IT TOOK SOME RUNNING, but the Southern Ram girls were able to catch a feisty Frankfort squad Monday night to clinch a 51-46 win. After holding sway through the first three quarters, SHS found itself down by one point with just 62 seconds to play. A 7-1 flurry over the closing minute, including a clutch 3-point bucket and a pair of free throws by sophomore guard Ashley Liller, gave the fourth-ranked Rams the victory. Liller scored a team-high 21 points while dishing out five assists and grabbing four steals. In the above photo, senior guard Jennifer Teagarden (#35) gathers in a long pass from Liller (#21), as Charlena Reeves (#45) crosses the mid-court line. Teagarden is shown below left going up for two of her eight points, while Becca Gangler (#25) looks on from the outside. Below right, Jennifer Bosley (#13), who scored 12 points, is shown making her move down the lane in the face of a fierce Frankfort defensive effort. After last night's 20-point win at Beall, the Rams' record stands at 14-6 heading into tonight's home contest against Preston County.

Freed up by an Ashlee Spady pick, Liller hit a clutch 3-pointer to put SHS back on top, 47-45, then followed that with a pair of free throws. A Jennifer Teagarden basket proved icing on the cake as the Rams concluded a 7-1 scoring run over the final 62 seconds.

Liller led Southern with 21 points, five assists, and three steals, and Bosley added 12 points and six rebounds. Reeves and Gangler each pulled down six rebounds as well. Frankfort was paced by Stacy Mielecki's game-high 28-point tally.

Frankfort's junior varsity downed the Rams by a score of 38-26 behind Andrea Leatherman's 16 points. Uphold led Southern with eight points.

Last night at Beall the Rams used a balanced attack to steadily increase their lead over the course of the contest en route to a 20-point win. SHS was up 10-9 after one quarter, 25-17 at the half, and 38-31 at the opening of the fourth quarter. Southern exploded for a 22-9 final stanza that left the Mountaineers far back.

Reeves's 13 points and seven rebounds led the Rams, while Liller added 10 points and Holly Shaffer contributed nine. Cheri Simmons scored 12 points to lead the Mountaineers' effort, and teammate Melissa Conrad took down a game-high 11 rebounds.

Southern's junior varsity crushed Beall, 48-11, behind Kim Teter's 13 points. Beall's Katie Sandvick recorded 11 points.

NHS Downed By Turkeyfoot, Blown Out By Bishop Walsh

The Northern High School boys' varsity basketball squad, which opened the week ranked fourth in the area, lost twice as its record fell to 12-8. The action opened with a 75-68 upset loss at the hands of Turkeyfoot, and the slide continued when Bishop Walsh throttled the Huskies by an 81-53 margin. NHS travels to Beall tomorrow night, then hosts Fort Hill Wednesday. Tipoff for both varsity contests is set for 7:30 p.m.

Thursday at Turkeyfoot the Huskies found themselves down 25-6 after one quarter and 41-28 at the half. A strong third quarter effort during which the guests went on a 17-3 run pulled NHS to within four at 49-45, but Turkeyfoot held on for the seven-point win.

Turkeyfoot's Andrew Wass put on an offensive show by ripping the nets for 34 points, while his teammates Andy Wheatley added 12 points and Dan Lytle and Eric Miller tallied 10 each. Northern's Jeremy Rice put in a fine 19-point effort in the losing cause, and Rob Dozier added 14 points while Tim Umbel and P.J. Workman contributed 10 points apiece.

Northern's junior varsity took a 48-36 victory behind Josh Swandol's 17 points.

The Huskies knew they had to contain Bishop Walsh's duo of Nebosja Bogdanovic and Mike Serpone Tuesday night in Cumberland, but the pair still scored over half of the Spartans' 81 points to help thump NHS. BW held a 22-9 lead at the opening of the second quarter, a 40-29 advantage at the start of the third quarter, and was up 59-43 heading into the final stanza.

Bogdanovic put in a sterling all-around effort with 24 points, seven rebounds, four steals, and four assists. Serpone notched 22 points, 15 from 3-point range, and also dished out five assists. Josh Resh's 16 points led the Huskies, Dozier scored 15 points, and Rice added seven.

NHS fell in the junior varsity match-up as well, dropping a 40-33 contest. Jayme Bradley scored 19 points for the victors.

Lakers Top Hagerstown To Give Gibson 300th Victory

The Garrett Community College men's basketball team closed its 1999-2000 regular season in style Saturday night, as the Lakers held off visiting Hagerstown CC, 90-81, and thus presented their coach, Dennis Gibson, with his 300th career win as head of the GCC program. It was the 20th win against just four defeats for the Lakers, who went into last night's 15-team Maryland JUCO Tournament seeded fourth (see other story about last night's results) and sporting a 13-4 mark in the JUCO standings.

Leading the Lakers against Hagerstown on Saturday was sophomore Dexter Levi, who recorded 21 points, 11 rebounds, and two blocks, while teammate Carlos Jones finished with 18 points. Scott Kochenderfer scored 13 points, including several key free throws in the final minutes, and he also dished out 10 assists. Also reaching double figures was Charles Somerville with 10 points.

The Lakers took charge of the game early and led by as many as 24 points with about 3½ minutes left in the first half. The Hawks narrowed the gap to 15, 53-38, by intermission.

Hagerstown chipped away at the Lakers' advantage throughout the second half and trailed by just four points, 79-75, with 1:26 remaining in the game. Charles Somerville then hit a lay-up to put Garrett's lead back to six, and Kochenderfer connected on a free throw to make it 82-75.

The Hawks were then forced to foul, and they sent Kochenderfer back to the line two more times. The sophomore drained all four of his opportunities to stretch the Lakers' lead back to 86-75. Hagerstown could get no closer than seven the rest of the way.

The loss dropped Hagerstown to 16-8 overall and 10-6 in the JUCO. Brian Williams led the Hawks with a balanced effort, as he recorded 18 points, 14 rebounds, four steals, and two blocks. Janson Greene, Travis Roberson, and David Covington also reached double figures in scoring with 16, 14, and 13 points, respectively.

The Lakers finished with a slight (50-48) edge in rebounds.

"We did a good job of maintaining composure when they made a run at us," Coach Gibson said. "We were fortunate to win, because Hagerstown is a very good team."

In commenting on getting his 300th win, the 15-year Laker mentor was quick to give the credit to others. "I am fortunate to have assistants like Dave Martin, Janie Workman, and Lloyd Day," he said. "They do a tremendous job. Winning 300 games as coach simply means that we have had the good fortune to have a lot of fine ball players here at Garrett. It is a credit to all of them, whose accomplishments on the floor are what win games."

Gibson's record as coach of the Lakers, until last night's contest with Montgomery-Rockville, was 300-164, for a winning percentage of just under 65%.

GCC Hits Stride, Downs Cecil, CCAC-Allegheny; JUCOs Ahead

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team defeated both its opponents this week, downing Cecil by a 69-57 margin and CCAC-Allegheny 70-53. The streaking Lakers, winners of five of their last six outings, are hoping those winning ways continue to carry them through this weekend's Maryland JUCO Women's Tournament at Prince George's Community College. Third-seeded Garrett takes a 10-11 overall record into tomorrow's debut against CCBC/Catonsville, the sixth seed in the eight-team field. The JUCO king will be crowned following Sunday's noon championship game.

Saturday's contest in McHenry got off to a slow start, but as the squads warmed up through the first half GCC began to take the upper hand. The Lakers held a 32-22 lead over Cecil at the half, and were up by 17 points partway through the second stanza before the guests rallied to cut the lead to six. Garrett managed to squelch the rally with some clutch rebounding, and eventually won by a 12-point margin.

Tasha Blackmon's 19 points and Donielle Gaines's 16 paced the Lakers to victory. Blackmon hit eight field goals, including one 3-pointer, and Gaines connected on three 3-pointers among her six field goals. Erica Henderson added eight points and Tameka Graves contributed seven. Cecil's Crystal Rogers notched a game-high 23 points.

Garrett dominated the boards by snagging an impressive 76 rebounds. Henderson led in the takedowns with 17, while Rogers grabbed 13 for the guests, who totaled 44 rebounds. GCC also dominated in the thievery department, taking away 14 steals to Cecil's five. Blackmon and Gaines recorded three steals apiece.

Tuesday's visit to Pittsburgh began as a see-saw battle in the first half's early going, but the Lakers' defensive strategy eventually began to take its toll on the CCAC-Allegheny hosts. "We concentrated on shutting down Ti'La Hardeman and Kathy Symchek," Garrett coach Ann Wellham commented. "We knew that if we could capitalize defensively on those two then we could control the game."

After nine lead changes in the first half, the Lakers took control with just over four minutes to go in the stanza. They built a 27-21 advantage by halftime, and during the second half upped the lead to as many as 22 points in the final few minutes en route to the 17-point win. Garrett tightened the noose on defense as it held CCAC-Allegheny scoreless for a 3:13 stretch during the second half.

Graves led the way for GCC with 21 points and 10 rebounds, both game-highs, while nabbing four steals. Henderson scored 13 points and had seven rebounds, Gretchen Baker scored 10 points, with two 3-pointers among her tally, and Gaines added 8 points. Shawntice McLaughlin's four assists and five steals led the squad in those categories. CCAC-Allegheny's Symchek finished with 11 points and Hardeman managed only 10 points, both held coming in below their averages by the Lakers' aggressive defense.

Lakers Advance In JUCO With Win Over Rockville

The Garrett Community College men's basketball team advanced to the quarterfinals of the Maryland JUCO Tournament last night by recording an 81-73 victory over Rockville. The tourney is being played at Hagerstown Community College.

Dexter Levi led the Laker effort by scoring 19 points and blocking three shots; however, it was foul shooting by Garrett as a team that led to the victory. The Lakers, who were outgunned from the floor by a 28-26 margin, took advantage of 27 Rockville fouls by making good on 24 of 32 free throws. Scott Kochenderfer led that effort by hitting seven of eight attempts.

The Lakers held a 46-37 halftime lead and held Rockville at arm's length most of the second half.

Also having a strong individual performance for Garrett was Charles Somerville, who had a double-double with 15 points and 10 rebounds. Carlos Jones, who hit three three-pointers, finished with 15 points, and Kochenderfer netted 12.

Leading Rockville's offensive effort were Mike Smith with 19 points, and Toney Epson and Demond Simmons with 10 apiece.

Coach Dennis Gibson was pleased with the win, but was concerned about the Lakers' turnovers, which totaled 27, compared to 20 for Rockville.

"We knew Rockville would play us well defensively, but we have to cut back on our unforced turnovers if we hope to keep progressing in the tournament," he said.

Garrett, seeded fourth in the 15-team tournament, will play the winner of today's Catonsville/Howard contest this Friday at 2 p.m. Catonsville is seeded fifth and Howard is the 12th seed.

Allegany College, which is the top seed in the tournament with a 16-0 JUCO mark and is ranked third in the national NJCAA poll, had a bye in the first round and will face the winner of the Charles (ninth seed) and Frederick (eighth seed) game this Friday evening.

In other contests played yesterday, Cecil (#3) met Baltimore (#14), Harford (#11) faced Hagerstown (#6), Essex (#7) played Takoma Park (#10), and Chesapeake (#15) squared off against Dundalk (#2).

RAMS, HUSKIES SALUTED BY SCHOOL BOARD — The Southern High School girls' cross country and the Northern High School football varsity programs were recognized last week by the Garrett County Board of Education for turning in outstanding seasons this past fall. The Maryland 1A State Champion Rams, who won their second state title under Coach Louis Newcomb, are shown above. From the left in the front row are Maria Hines, Angie Sincell, Erin Hoaicraft, Amber Stewart, Melissa Durst, and Coach Newcomb. In the second row are Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of schools, Stephanie Foreman, Anissa Jamison, Faryn Shaffer, Laura Hollingsworth, Beth Sauder, Haley Gillespie, and board member Rodney Durst, Melissa's proud father. Several of the Mountain Athletic Conference and Maryland 1A West Region Champion Huskies, who attained a perfect 10-0 regular season mark, are shown below. From the left are Durst, Mark Wolf, Ryan Savage, Adam Brenneman, Dan Rounds, Coach Phil Carr, and Teets.

Local Athletes To Compete In Winter Games

Three Garrett County athletes will take part in the 2000 Special Olympics Maryland (SOMD) Winter Games, scheduled for February 27-29 at the Wisp Ski Resort in McHenry. Nearly 250 athletes from throughout the state will compete in alpine, modified alpine, and cross-country skiing.

Athletes from nearby Allegany County will participate for the first time in five years. All delegations will compete for spots on the team for the 2001 Special Olympics World Winter Games to be held in Anchorage, Alaska. These world games are expected to attract 2,000 athletes from 85 countries, March 3-10.

This year's SOMD games weekend will begin with a floor hockey exhibition at Northern High School on Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Opening ceremonies will follow later that evening when approximately 400 spectators will witness the arrival of the Special Olympics flag, via a dog sled team.

Law enforcement officers will then parade the "Flame of Hope" down the mountainside and pass it off to the Special Olympics athletes. Finally, the cauldron will be lit to signify the official opening of the Winter Games.

Monday will mark the first of two days of competition in three sports. Alpine events will include slalom, giant slalom, glide, and super glide. Cross-country skiers will exhibit their skills in 500-meter, 1-kilometer, and 3-kilometer races, as well as team relays. The modified alpine events will feature slalom, giant slalom, downhill, and glide events.

The athletes and their families will be invited to celebrate at Monday evening's winter carnival and dance before completing the competitions and the closing ceremonies on Tuesday afternoon.

Winter games sponsors include Shaffer Toyota, Harley-Davison of Md. Inc., Wisp Mountain Resort, Wisp Resort Hotel, WKHJ Radio 104.5, A&A Long and Foster, Uno Chicago Bar and Grille, Pepsi, Snow Valley, Digcom, and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

on the builder. The overall fit and finish is strictly a builder's concern. To see some of the homes we get to be involved with in our remodeling work, one can be very thankful for this government involvement in our lives. Whether this work was done through ignorance or greed could be hard to determine. The important thing is that now someone is watching and the overall quality of the average home has gone up to some degree as a result. Short-cuts, hurried work, and unconcerned personnel are all direct functions of the builder.

Choosing a builder should be taken very seriously. His day-to-day control of your project and monies involved make him a very important person. Your best interest had better be on his mind. The outcome of a project is directly related to his abilities and concern.

And of course, the obvious ... as old man Grimes always says, "The quality remains long after the price is forgotten." We get what we pay for. In the material world nothing nice is inexpensive. Well-made things reflect their price. Always.

The whole thing seems akin to hunting squirrels with a bazooka — lots of collateral damage. Perhaps our earlier mentioned citizen should consider a smaller caliber with a more accurate shot.

To the Editor:

As I read through the editorial page to get a view on the community into which we intend to move, I was struck by the letters from two individuals regarding fluoride in the drinking water and the socialistic and communistic tendencies into which American citizens have fallen.

In Europe they do not have fluoride in their water, and they take fluoride pills given to them by their country through the national healthcare system. While we lived there, we refused these pills, and would do so again if the occasion ever arose. We lived in Europe for a number of years, and could not wait to return to the United States of America, where our freedoms are outlined in the beloved Constitution. Imagine my dismay, however, when we saw that this country is slowly developing into socialism right before our eyes. Drip by drip we are giving over our country to socialism, where everyone is the same, and no one has more than others, and if there's a problem, hey, just call the government to bail you out!

In a day and age when so many Americans are shouting for their right to immorality and their right to live their lives as they choose, why are people so quick to force others to ingest a poison simply because they desire to have it? What about the rights of those individuals who choose not to ingest poison?

Maybe it would help if the community were better informed about what they are about to add to their drinking water. People ought to be better informed; however, that is too much effort for a lot of people, to our shame! In a 1997 copyrighted article once slated for publication in the New York Times, the authors Griffiths and Bryson follow a convoluted trail of once-secret documents stretching as far back as the Manhattan Project. For those that don't know history, we're talking about the atomic bomb. The research shows that the idea of fluoride being good for people's teeth originated with the atomic bomb. That "fluoride was beneficial" constituted the government's cardinal defense against lawsuits stemming from an environmental contamination that took place from the DuPont chemical factory in Deepwater, N.J., in 1944! Fluoride is a toxic waste, a by-product of this research. Ask yourselves, where did fluoride come from...and then research it out; don't just believe it, check it out for yourselves! Would you buy a new car without checking out the mileage and the air conditioning, and going for a test drive? Yet, because our government says it's good for your children, you have no problem just accepting it.

I suggest that those who have Internet access review the site at http://www.thewinds.org/archive/medical/fluoride01-08.htm for further information.

I also suggest that those who read gather these following books together and read them; then, analyze the information and make a decided choice for yourselves, not for everyone else in your community: Fluoride, Teeth and the Atomic Bomb, Griffiths & Bryson, 1997; Review of Fluoride Benefits and Risks, Dept. of Health and Human Services, Feb 1991; The Journal of the Canadian Dental Assoc., Vol 53, pp 763-765, 1987; Neurotoxicity of Sodium Fluoride in Rats, Mullenix, P., Neurotoxicology and Teratoloty, 17(2), 1995.

I won't force you to eat grits; don't force me to ingest fluoride!

THE CIDER HOUSE RULES

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 2:11 - Released 12/17/99

The Cider House Rules is the kind of New England tale that author John Irving is known for. It blends romance with the love of children, the warmth of family with the darker side of human nature, and the all-encompassing belief that everything has a purpose. The fact that this time Irving penned the screen adaptation of his own novel (unlike all the previous movies inspired by his books) results in a film much more true to its source material and much the better for it. Moreover, the work of Swedish director Lasse Hallström (What's Eating Gilbert Grape?) and proven talent like Tobey Maguire, Michael Caine, and Charlize Theron ensures a quality production equal to its original text.

The film is set during World War II, partly in the small town of St. Cloud's, Maine, home of an orphanage where young, unhappily pregnant women come to leave their babies for adoption (or, in some cases, receive illegal abortions), and partly at a seaside apple orchard where migrant workers return every year to pick fruit and press cider. Homer Wells (Maguire) is born and abandoned at St. Cloud's, and although a few tries are made at placing him with a family, it never seems to work out. As he grows, he begins serving as assistant to the facility's physician, Dr. Wilbur Larch (Caine, sporting a flawless American accent). Over the years, though never attending medical school, Homer becomes an excellent obstetrician in Dr. Larch's own image, except for two differences: Homer Wells is not addicted to ether, and Homer Wells does not perform abortions.

When a young couple (Theron and Paul Rudd) come to terminate their unwanted pregnancy, Homer decides to hitch a ride with them and leave St. Cloud's to seek his fortune. Something about Wally and Candy impresses him, and he winds up on the orchard owned by Wally's family, picking apples with a small group of workers headed by Mr. Rose (Delroy Lindo). Among the workers is the only female, Mr. Rose's daughter Rose Rose (Erykah Badu), whom Candy is quite fond of, and several others. When Wally is shipped off to the war, Homer and Candy fall in love, and he soon learns that some rules were made to be broken.

This is a touching story, well-performed by its cast, accoutered with beautiful scenery and a lovely musical score by Rachel Portman. The scenes in the orphanage are especially moving, with supporting performances by Kieran Culkin and Erik Sullivan as a couple of younger friends on whom Homer leaves a lasting impression. However, director Hallström seems to have intentionally slowed the pace after Homer leaves the orphanage. His relationship with Candy is sweet (pardon the pun), but there is no urgency to their passion, and therefore her claim not to be "good at being alone" seems like a weak alibi for her betrayal of Wally. Likewise, Maguire is excellent at showing Homer's wonderment at experiencing life outside St. Cloud's, but emotionally he seems rather flat. Even when Homer is at his most spirited moments, like approaching Mr. Rose about an especially disturbing issue, or discussing his relationship with Candy after it is learned Wally is coming home, Maguire is tepid and his energy low.

Despite the sluggish nature of its pace and character relationships, The Cider House Rules is still an excellent film worthy of its recent Oscar nominations. ★★★★½

THE BEACH

Rated R - Running Time: 1:58 - Released 2/11/00

It is abundantly clear that director Danny Boyle wants us to equate his tropical thriller The Beach with Apocalypse Now. Although no mention of that film is made in John Hodge's screenplay, which is based on the novel by Alex Garland, there are numerous references to it throughout the film. Unfortunately, the only thing more laughable than comparing this film to Francis Coppola's philosophical 1979 masterpiece is comparing Leonardo DiCaprio to Martin Sheen. DiCaprio, who was excellent in What's Eating Gilbert Grape? and adequate in Titanic, obviously lacks the maturity needed for this role. He looks like a teenager, he acts like a teenager, and, although his character is supposed to have some sort of life-changing jungle experience in the film, he reflects no such metamorphosis nor result. He's the same snotty brat at the end of the film as at the beginning.

Besides Leonardo's inability to impress, the film suffers from a plethora of implausible plot elements and a story that meanders aimlessly through the tropical woods much like his character, Richard, does. It continues the trend of Southeast Asia horror stories like Return To Paradise and Brokedown Palace (I'm not even counting Anna And The King). Richard is a bored rich kid who takes a solo trip to Hong Kong for excitement, and soon learns about a mythical island with a secluded tidal pool, a white sand beach, and palm trees. Even though all these amenities could be found in Hawaii or any of a number of places currently on the regular routes of various commercial cruise lines, Richard decides to travel to the forbidden place, and invites his new French girlfriend (Virginie Ledoyen) and her French boyfriend (Guillaume Canet). After jumping a few hurdles, they arrive, and not only is it as beautiful as they expected, it is inhabited by a "self-sufficient" community of international potheads. A traveler's dream. But a series of unfortunate events leaves Richard cut off from the group, undergoing the aforementioned rite of passage.

There are enjoyable aspects of this film, including spectacular scenery of the tropical paradise (which the cast and crew apparently trashed during production, provoking litigation by the Thai government), and a standout performance by Robert Carlyle as the crazed bum who tells Richard about the place. But it is riddled with bizarre contrivances and unlikely scenarios. The commune is a dictatorship run by a sort of Hitler-in-a-bikini (Tilda Swinton), who surely did not ascend to this position because of her wisdom, since almost every decision she makes is selfish and ill-advised. The group is portrayed as a bunch of nature-friendly hippies who are tired of the rat race of civilization, but since they all use such things as Nintendo Game Boys and other battery-operated devices, not to mention tampons, chemical cleansers, and numerous products in plastic packaging, I kept wondering where the huge, toxic landfill is they must have created after 6 years there. Also, they apparently live on nothing but rice and fish, although none of them seemed to be suffering from scurvy and I didn't see one goiter in the bunch. And it's a good thing, because the island is bereft of anything remotely resembling a doctor.

We have all wondered what it would be like to live on a deserted tropical island, making our own way and our own rules. But The Beach doesn't take the subject beyond the fantasy level, since it refuses to address issues that would quickly come up in such a circumstance. And DiCaprio, donning a headband and a warlike scowl, doesn't provoke anything but a chuckle and a twinge of sympathetic embarassment. ★★★

SNOW DAY

Rated PG - Running Time: 1:25 - Released 2/11/00

Waking up to look out the window and see a world covered with deep, new snow is every kid's winter dream, and it's especially sweet when it happens on a school day and classes have to be canceled. This is the scenario for Chris Koch's Snow Day, a new opus from the fledgling Nickelodeon Films production company. Since the Nickelodeon TV network is known for fluffy, pre-teen entertainment, one would not expect Snow Day to be particularly deep. And it isn't. And the fact that its adult stars are Chevy Chase and Chris Elliott doesn't make it any deeper.

Snow Day, written by Will McRobb and Chris Viscardi, centers on a young man named Hal (Mark Webber), who, although he is a nobody at school, has eyes for the most popular girl, Claire (Emmanuelle Chriqui). The trouble is, Claire doesn't know he exists, and she's already dating the school jerk (David Paetkau). When a sudden snowstorm cancels school, Hal thinks he might have a chance with Claire since "on a snow day, anything can happen." Little does Hal know that his level-headed female friend Lane (Schuyler Fisk) has a crush on him. Meanwhile, Hal's father (Chase) is a local TV meteorologist forced to wear crazy costumes in an attempt to raise his sagging ratings, and his little sister (Zena Grey) is on a mission to extend the school holiday by stopping the much-feared "Snowplow Man" (Elliott) from completing his duties.

There isn't anything overtly offensive about Snow Day, apart from some flatulence humor which particularly prudish viewers may find unsavory, but it doesn't really have all that much to offer, either. Perhaps the best aspect, and the least appealing to kids, is the teen romance story, since Fisk and Webber are the best actors in the film. There is a bizarre appearance by shock-rocker Iggy Pop as a skating rink DJ addicted to easy listening music (no children would ever recognize him), and some funny gags involving Elliott and the farting kid. Chase is not doing his usual comic pratfall schtick here; he's relegated to a more serious part, although he does take an on-air sledride tumble down a snowy slope. Also appearing is Jean Smart (Designing Women) as Hal's career-minded mother who has little time for her kids between on-line meetings and self-administered pep talks. Finally, there is a running gag involving the school principal (Damian Young) being mercilessly pelted with snowballs wherever he goes.

The magic of an uscheduled day off is the theme of this film, and all the characters find ways to overcome their most daunting obstacles within the 24 hours represented. It's a reasonably pleasant diversion, but if it's snowy outside, I would think skiing, sled-riding, or engaging the neighbor kids in a spirited snowball battle would be a much more rewarding use of the time. ★★½

THE TIGGER MOVIE

Rated G - Running Time: 1:16 - Released 2/11/00

For those who love Winnie The Pooh, Tigger, and the various other characters created by A. A. Milne, and feel that Pooh has gotten all the glory while the more spirited Tigger has been forced to play second banana, The Tigger Movie is for you. This is a story in which Tigger is the main character, and Winnie and the others serve in supporting roles. For Pooh purists, it may be a disappointment, since none of the original actors who took part in classics like Winnie The Pooh And The Blustery Day are present (with the sole exception of John Fiedler, who has played the voice of Piglet all these years). But this change of personnel is a consequence of a long-lasting cartoon series; the actors whose voices we have grown accustomed to have either died or retired, and what we are left with is a group of impersonators who, while talented, are impersonators just the same.

Actually, Jim Cummings (voices of Pooh and Tigger), Ken Sansom (Rabbit), and Peter Cullen (Eeyore) have been around the Hundred Acre Wood a few times already, in the 1997 video release Pooh's Grand Adventure: The Search For Christopher Robin and various other recent titles, and they've become quite accomplished at mimicking the vocal characterizations of Sterling Holloway, Paul Winchell, and the rest. Assuming Sebastian Cabot's old role of narrator is none other than John Hurt. The voices are all perfectly adequate and the impersonations sometimes uncanny, but even so, the plot of The Tigger Movie is not terribly original.

Written and directed by Jun Falkenstein, the film tells the story of the energetic, black-and-orange striped creature whose claim to fame has always been that he's "the only one." But Tigger has grown tired of his uniqueness, and desires to find others like him who can bounce properly and do other Tigger-esque things. When the idea dawns on him that all creatures have a mother, he begins a quest to find his long-lost family. But his search comes up empty, and his well-meaning friends decide to send a phony letter from his relatives to lift his spirits. Tigger misinterprets the letter to imply that his long lost clan is coming to visit, and soon begins elaborate preparations for their arrival. Pooh and the rest are faced with either continuning the charade and allowing Tigger to be disappointed, or admitting their deceitful deed and possibly losing his friendship. Very serious issues for those stuffed with fluff.

Although the animation and vocal characterizations are more or less what we have come to expect from the Pooh/Tigger franchise, it seems that in the plot department, the producers are running out of ideas. This could well be attributed to the fact that Milne's creations have joined the vast roster of cartoon characters owned by Disney, the Wal-Mart of entertainment, a company becoming known for running out of ideas. Again we are treated to the Pooh-in-the-honey-tree sequence, again we see Eyeore's house destroyed, again Roo aspires to be just like his best buddy, Tigger. In addition, most of the film's musical numbers by Disney song legends Richard and Robert Sherman seem intended solely to pad out the film's running time. The notable exception is the song Tigger sings about his "family reunion," which features a hilarious clan of Tiggerish characters imposed on great works of art and molded into various famous personages.

Compared to the likes of Blustery Day, The Tigger Movie is a rather pale shadow of its predecessors. But it will serve to fill the black hole of film entertainment that exists every year between Christmas and Oscar time. So more power to it. ★★★½

"All donations are welcome," remarked Sandi Flockhart, chair of the Garrett County Commission for Women. "We have a situation that requires attention and we are going to do our best to give it attention."

The Women's Presidents Council has slated a public meeting to address the Dove Center issue for Wednesday, Feb. 23, at 5 p.m. at the Garrett County Lighthouse in Oakland. The Dove Center board of directors and the membership of all women's organizations have been invited to attend the meeting, the purpose of which is to identify next steps, generate ideas for program support, and update the status of pledges to the 100 Women Challenge.

"It was our collective community efforts, and especially the efforts of women's organizations, which produced the seed funds for the purchase of the shelter," said Women's Civic Club member Bobby Andersen. "It is very important that we work together for the Dove Center."

New Medicines for Parkinson's Disease

An estimated one million Americans over the age of 50 suffer from Parkinson's disease, a neurological (nerve and brain) condition sometimes referred to as "shaking palsy" or "Parkinson's tremors." It can cause rigidity, slow movements, changes in posture, and tremors. Parkinson's can progress to include confusion and difficulties associated with walking (e.g. shuffling gate), sleeping, and swallowing. The disease typically is first seen when people reach age 55 to 65 years. It may be caused by loss of responsiveness by "dopamine receptors" in the nervous system.

Town Hall

DEER PARK

The town meeting was held Monday, Feb. 14.

•The county commissioners attended the meeting to discuss a tax differential for Deer Park. The town elected to not request a differential, but discussed some alternatives.

•Bruce Ahern from the U.S. Census Bureau addressed the council. He was looking for a facility to use to test and train local census takers. The mayor and council agreed to let Ahern use the town office for this purpose during evening hours.

•Representatives from the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce asked the council to consider town participation in Autumn Glory activities. Some ideas were reviewed and will be discussed further.

The next town meeting will be held Monday, March 13.

MTN. LAKE PARK

The town meeting was held Tuesday, Feb. 8.

•The town will request bids for a 3-year insurance plan and a 1-year audit contract.

•There was a review of information on the tax differential issue. A letter will be drafted to present to the county commissioners when they attend the town council meeting next month.

•Representatives from the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce spoke to the council about possible town participation in the upcoming Autumn Glory celebration. Mayor Paul Shockey referred the chamber representatives to two town residents who have expressed interest in the project.

•Council member Louis Di Carlo is applying for a grant from the McDonald's Corporation to be used for several proposed town projects.

•A drainage problem on a property along D Street will be addressed by the town.

The next town meeting will be held Tuesday, March 14.

LOCAL MAYORS ATTEND CONFERENCE - Mayor Spencer R. Schlosnagle, Friendsville, and Mayor Paul Shockey, Mtn. Lake Park, attended the sixth annual winter conference held last week by the Maryland Mayors' Association at the Loews Hotel, Annapolis. The forum provided legislative briefings, meetings with delegations to offer testimony and receive reports on local legislative issues, and discussions and workshops. The participants also attended sessions of the state house and senate. Ron Young, deputy director of the state Office of Planning, spoke to the group, as did the Hon. John Willis, secretary of state, who discussed the 2000 census. In the photo above, from left, are Jack A. Gulio Jr., mayor of New Windsor; Schlosnagle; Elizabeth H. Tolbert, mayor of Barnesville and president of the Maryland Mayors' Association; and Shockey.

House Committee Questions Taylor's Subsidized Commuter Service Idea

by John W. Croft
Capital News Service

Lawmakers in Annapolis recently questioned the fairness, economic feasibility, and necessity of a bill to bring the country's first state-subsidized commuter air service to rural southern and western Maryland. The legislation is the brainchild of House Speaker Casper R. Taylor Jr., D-Allegany, with the purpose of bringing economic development to distressed areas of the state.

The bill aims to restore daily and weekend commuter air service from Baltimore-Washington International Airport to Hagerstown's Washington County Regional Airport and Cumberland Municipal Airport, while introducing new service to St. Mary's County Airport in southern Maryland.

US Airways terminated its Hagerstown-to-BWI route in 1998 after 30 years of service. Cumberland Airlines ended its service to Baltimore in 1994.

Delegate Howard P. Rawlings, D-Baltimore, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee (which heard the bill last week), asked if US Airways canceled the route because no one was riding the planes. Maryland Department of Transportation Secretary John Porcari, one of three speakers at the hearing, said he didn't know the full history, but a lack of passengers was part of the problem — a statement later confirmed by US Airways officials.

Proponents of the regional airline bill contend businesses and communities are asking for flights to BWI, and that the only way to create them is to subsidize the operation. Rawlings also was concerned the bill didn't consider other rural areas in the state.

"Why would you want to establish (service to) Hagerstown and Cumberland when Frederick isn't mentioned at all?" said Rawlings, a co-sponsor of the bill. Porcari said those airports were identified as reasonable candidates in a marketing study.

"We can add any community to that study," added David Blackshear, executive director of the Maryland Aviation Administration. Blackshear last month asked interested air carriers and charter companies to submit cost estimates for the service, assuming three daily round trips, two Saturday and Sunday round trips, and a one-way ticket price of $50.

Nine companies responded with cost estimates between $2 million and $6 million and one-way ticket prices ranging from $45 to $129, according to Blackshear.

"Any major air carriers?" asked Rawlings.

"No," Blackshear said.

Funding estimates for the bill call for $2.1 million a year in general fund subsidies through 2005, roughly 40 percent of the operation, according to Blackshear.

Kevin Smedley, president of Kinetic Enterprise Systems Inc., said he's one of the nine bidders — and he's looking for investors.

"You say airplanes and everybody says 'They crash,'" Smedley said. With a state subsidy, investors might bite because "they don't have to spend their $2.1 million up front to see if it works," Smedley said.

But before investors, there have to be users. That's why Delegate Joan Breslin Pitkin, D-Prince George's, was concerned there was no testimony from businesses and communities who reportedly asked for the commuter service. Mike Lewin, head of the state's Department of Business and Economic Development, said he had statements from businesses and others and promised to provide them to Pitkin.

Delegate Nancy K. Kopp, D-Montgomery, questioned whether the bill considered statewide solutions to the geographic barriers between bustling central Maryland and the outer regions, and if other methods of connecting them were considered.

"It's not as simple as giving someone some money to bring an airline in," Kopp said.

According to Pitkin, an appropriations subcommittee will probably review the bill and the new information and make recommendations to the full committee.

Schools Being Wired But Md. Trails Behind

by Leah Carlson
Capital News Service

At a time when Maryland is making progress in wiring classrooms, it still lags behind other states, studies show. Maryland ranks 39th among the 50 states for the ratio of students per Internet-connected computer, a relatively reliable measure of classroom technology integration, according to Education Week's "Technology Counts" report.

A recent state study revealed that access to technology in Maryland schools is becoming more widespread, but that most counties have not yet hit their goals, and great disparities exist among school districts.

Maryland could look to Delaware and Alaska as models — the two consistently ranked among the top states, and in the 1999 report they ranked No. 1 and 2 in the ratio of students per Internet-connected computer. Delaware has 5.8 students per each cyberspace port, Alaska 6, and Maryland 16.5, the national study shows.

In Delaware last year, 91 percent of schools had Internet access from at least one classroom; Maryland's figure was 62 percent, worse than the District of Columbia at 70 percent. Bigger states like New York, California, and Alabama consistently ranked low.

Maryland's hook-ups are hampered by funding problems, inadequate teacher training, and lack of hardware, according to the Maryland Business Roundtable for Education 1999 technology inventory, released this month.

The state also has wide discrepancies in technology-savvy schools. Queen Anne's County and Caroline County rate high in technology integration in classrooms, while Baltimore City rates significantly lower — a statistic common in states with large urban centers, which frequently are behind in schoolhouse computer links.

In Garrett County, and three other counties statewide, 100 percent of the classrooms have Internet access, but only 17 percent of the classrooms in Harford County and 21 percent of Baltimore City classrooms have Internet access.

"The larger systems probably are the ones with the longest way to go. The smaller systems with the smallest number of schools were able to make progress faster," said Barbara Reeves, director of instructional technology for the Maryland Department of Education.

Financial concerns and community interest also explain some of the discrepancies among school systems and among individual schools within the same system. "I think some counties have really determined that this is a priority ... and others haven't. Some counties have struggled with funding issues, like Baltimore City and Prince George's," said Roundtable executive director June Streckfus.

Funding problems have contributed to a digital divide, not only between rich and poor students, but between minorities and whites. The largest numbers of minority students are in big city schools, which tend to have less money and less access to technology.

The digital divide is even wider at home than it is at school. About 80 percent of affluent students, those with household incomes greater than $75,000, use a computer at home, but only 20 percent of students whose household income is $30,000 or less do, according to Education Week's report.

Special allocations and private donations to schools in low-income areas are eliminating that disparity, said Ed Friedman, director of the Stevens Institute of Technology in New Jersey. For instance, the national E-Rate program, a $2.5 billion fund established by the Federal Communications Commission in 1996, pays for Internet connections at schools and libraries in low-income areas.

"It will be at least another 5 or 10 years before technology is as pervasive in the schools as it is in the workplace," Friedman said.

Another key to student success with computers, measured by both reports, is teacher training. Those with more hours of technology training were more likely to include educational software and the Internet in lesson plans.

"It doesn't make sense to invest in the technology unless you invest in the teacher training. An enormous amount needs to be done in the colleges of education, which have been way behind on this issue," Friedman said.

"This governor included teacher training in the technology program, which was a major breakthrough," said Maryland State Teachers Association president Karl Pence. In his proposed operating budget Gov. Parris Glendening earmarked $1.7 million for the Maryland Technology Academy, which helps teachers learn how to integrate technology into their lessons.

Marketing Plan To Be Focus Of GOBA Meeting

A marketing plan being developed to promote the community of Oakland will be presented on Tuesday, Feb. 22, at 5:30 p.m. in the Oakland Town Hall as part of the annual meeting of the Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA).

The marketing and promotion plan will be presented by Dave Williams of the McClarran and Williams marketing firm. The company has a regional and national track record in similar efforts that include the marketing of the whitewater championship events, the Western Maryland Scenic Railroad, and the Rocky Gap Foundation, according to Mikal McCartney, GOBA president.

Williams is currently seeking input from the public for the Oakland plan to help identify the community's marketing niche and prepare a five-year plan to attract tourists to the downtown area. The marketing effort was funded through a grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) awarded to the Oakland Main Street program.

Other business will include a review of the past year's activities and a discussion on how to continue funding the Main Street program. The contract is to expire next year, McCartney said.

"We have been working very hard this past year to promote our community," McCartney stated, citing as one example the upgrade of the town's web page at www.oaklandmd.com.

The president is urging all GOBA members to attend the meeting and to assist with both the development of the marketing plan and brainstorming ideas as to how to continue funding the Main Street program.

TEACHER WINS SCHOLARSHIP - The Garrett County Administrators and Supervisors Association (A&S) has initiated a scholarship to be awarded to current Garrett County employees. The purpose is to assist and encourage employees to pursue a degree or certification in administration. In the photo above, the first recipient of this scholarship, Northern High School biology teacher Michelle Harman, accepted the award from A&S president Bill Ewing during a recent meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education meeting. Harman, who is finishing her National Board Certification, will begin a graduate program in administration and supervision at Frostburg State University this summer.

Truck Show To Include Pickups, Custom Vans

The second annual Western Maryland Truck Show (WMTS) will be held in Grantsville August 26-27. Coordinators Jim McFarland and Carson Yoder announced last week that this year's fund-raising truck event will expand to include entries in two new categories: pickup trucks and customized vans.

"We held our first planning meeting with our committee on Sunday. We started by reviewing last year's truck show and looking at what was good and what we wanted to expand or improve," Yoder said.

Last year the Western Maryland Truck Show limited entries to "big rig bobtails," which are the cab sections of the tractor trailers. Nearly 50 drivers entered their rigs in the competition. "This year we thought we'd do something a little different and open the show to pickup trucks and customized vans. This will let some other folks get involved who couldn't enter last year," McFarland stated.

In addition to the display of trucks, last year's WMTS included live music, children's games and activities, and food and souvenir vendors. "The committee is also going to be talking about how we want to expand the children's activities during the two-day show," McFarland added.

The WMTS charges an entry fee to those vehicles competing for trophies. There is no admission charge for spectators attending the events and entertainment. Money raised at the show will benefit the Dove Center, Garrett County's domestic violence and sexual assault resource center.

Co-Curricular Events Slated At Garrett CC

The spring semester schedule of co-curricular activities at Garrett Community College, offered to add a cultural dimension to students' experiences and for the benefit of the general public, was released recently. Partial funding for co-curricular activities has been provided by the Maryland State Arts Council and the Garrett County Arts Council.

All field trips and performances at the West Virginia University Creative Arts Center Concert Theater in Morgantown, W.Va., require advance registration, which may be made in the GCC Library.

Our Town, Thorton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning drama about life in small town New England in the early years of the 20th century, will be performed at the Our Town Theatre in Feb. 17-20. Performances of tonight through Saturday night begin at 8 p.m., and the Sunday matinee begins at 2 p.m. Admission is $9.

The musical production Show Boat will be performed at WVU's CAC Concert Theatre on Monday, Feb. 28, at 6 p.m Admission is $5 for students, $10 for the public.

A free performance of Native American songs drums, and storytelling is set for Wednesday, March 1, at 8 p.m. in the GCC auditorium. William Shakespeare's Macbeth will be performed at WVU's CAC Concert Theatre on Friday March 3, at 6 p.m. Admission is $5 for students, $10 for the public.

Artist and storyteller Louise Schoettler will present a free performance of Flesh on Old Bones on Wednesday, March 29, at 1 p.m. in the GCC auditorium. The National Players touring drama company will perform the play A Few Good Men on Friday, March 31, at 7:30 p.m. in the GCC auditorium. Admission is $4 for students and $10 for the public.

Spirit of the Dance will be presented at the WVU CAC Concert Theatre on Sunday, April 9, at 6 p.m. Admission is $5 for students and $10 for the public. Quilters will be presented at Our Town Theatre in Oakland, April 12-16 and April 26-30, with Wednesday through Saturday performances set for 8 p.m. and Sunday matinees at 3 p.m. Admission is $5.

Two events are set for Friday, April 14. A world music concert will be presented at WVU's CAC Concert Theatre at 6 p.m., with a $5 admission for students and $10 for the public. The Pittsburgh Ballet Theater will present a dance performance at Southern High School in Oakland at 8 p.m., with an admission charge of $4 for students and $10 for the public.

A bus trip to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., will depart from GCC at 6 a.m. on Friday, April 28, and a bus trip to Thomas Jefferson's Monticello and Charlottesville, Va., is set for 7 a.m. on Friday, May 5. Both trips have a $10 charge for students and a $20 charge for the public.

The Cashore Marionettes will be presented in the GCC auditorium on Friday, May 12, at 8 p.m., with an admission cost of $4 for students and $10 for the public.

Free evening Chautauqua performances will take place under the college's lawn tent from Wednesday, July 5, through Saturday, July 8. This year's Chautauqua theme is "The Civil War in Maryland." The Chautauqua program concludes the co-curricular series.

For further infomation interested persons may call 301-387-3102.

Schlosnagle Joins After-School Team At Grantsville Ctr.

Eileen Schlosnagle, Accident, has recently joined the teaching team at Kids'N'Corporated, the after-school program held at the Grantsville Senior Center.

The four-day-per-week program offers elementary and middle school children a variety of activities, including tutoring and homework assistance, health and nutrition education, field trips, mentoring, and snacks.

Schlosnagle brings to the program a teaching background that includes homeschooling and teacher certification in the British school system. She noted that one of the things that attracted her to the teaching position in Grantsville was the opportunity to interact with children, now that her son, age 16, is in college.

"To me it's really great to be around kids. I miss reading with young children and being around kids who are excited about learning. It's a joy to be with them and an honor to be asked to help them," Schlosnagle said.

Under the coordination of Garrett County Community Action, the Kids'N'Corporated after-school program was recongized last year by the governor's office for outstanding performance, and head teacher Karen Wood was also presented with a citation from the governor for her contributions to the program.

Organized under the statewide HotSpot initiative, the Grantsville after-school program is also funded in part through a grant from the Stanley P. Smith Family Foundation.

For more information about the after-school program at the Grantsville Senior Center, persons may contact Linda Green at 301-334-9431 or toll free 1-888-877-8403.

GRANT AWARDED - The town of Friendsville was recently approved for a grant from the Local Government Insurance Trust (LGIT). The funds, earmarked for safety-related equipment and supplies, will cover 50 percent of the cost of these items. In the photo above, Mayor Spencer Schlosnagle, left, and town clerk Sarah Sines, accept a check for $440 from LGIT executive director Jon Burrell.

Tech Summit Attended By GCNet Manager

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers (ASME) held its annual Public Affairs Summit in Annapolis last month, attended by Senator Barbara Mikulski, Speaker of the House Casper Taylor Jr., numerous mechanical engineers from technical and business areas, governor's staff members, federal officials, and others. David Lee, the general manager of the local Internet service provider (ISP) GCNet, was also present for the summit.

The summit, titled "The State of Technology in Maryland 2000," had three purposes: to see where Maryland stands in the process of assuring all citizens/businesses are able to fully participate in the "digital economy of the next century," to make links among those working in the "tech sector" to meet this challenge, and to provide guidance for developers of federal, state, regional, local, and corporate strategies.

"We as citizens of western Maryland are really appreciative of the efforts to get more high speed connections to our area," Lee said to the largely urban panel. "We want to make sure that every citizen, organization, and business has access to those added connections without having to pay huge distance connection charges.

"As a rural area faced with a problem of gaining access to technology, we did what rural people do — we banded together and did what it took to solve the problem," Lee said.

Other topics discussed at the summit included data privacy and security, education and training, and "e-commerce."

Muddy Creek Restoration Brings Private, Public Entities Together

"Alka-Seltzer Approach" Used To Save Fish

by David Foster

Muddy Creek, a poor habitat for trout over the past decade because of pollution, is being restored to a prime fishery through the combined efforts of the Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited, the Fisheries Service of the Department of Natural Resources, and a Garrett Community College student. The effort of this private/public partnership, improbable as it may sound, involves dumping the equivalent of a giant Alka-Seltzer™ tablet on the stream's bank, and letting it "plop-plop, fizz-fizz" into the flowing water.

How did a Garrett County waterway develop a "sour stomach"? Muddy Creek flows into the Youghiogheny River, home to one of the best trout fisheries in the eastern United States; however, prevailing winds carry pollution eastward from the many huge coal-burning electric power plants throughout the upper Ohio Valley. During our winters here on the mountaintop, falling snow "scrubs" the particulates from the atmosphere. Acid-laden snow packs down on the ground over the course of a long winter, often without any melting taking place if the area's winter temps hold to normal.

As spring's warmer temperatures melt the snowpack, acidic water drains into the soil and streams. Many of the county's streams flow through soils that contain high levels of calcium and magnesium, which naturally buffer acids; however, Muddy Creek's watershed has comparably low amounts of these buffering minerals. Acid-laden runoff from melting snow remains acidic as it joins the flowing stream, and as it does so it causes aluminum (a toxic metal) in the soil to leech into the stream as well.

This runoff markedly changes the acidity level of the stream. "For trout to thrive, water's pH level (which measures acidity on a scale from 1 to 7, with the lower the number meaning the more acidic a solution is) needs to be above 6 or higher," said Alan Klotz, fisheries biologist with the Department of Natural Resources Mt. Nebo office. "A pH level below 6 will hurt the fish by causing aluminum to leech from the soil into the stream. Aluminum will irritate the gills of a fish to the point where the fish will produce excess mucous, causing suffocation; low pH levels cause electrolyte imbalances in the fish's body as well. The end result could be a massive fish kill."

Muddy Creek was the scene of one such massive fish kill in the spring of 1989, when a large snowmelt that took place over the span of less than two weeks between a DNR trout stocking and the opening day of trout season killed off the stream's entire trout population. Just prior to that snow melt, the stream was home to a naturalized brown trout population that included fish up to 17 inches long, as well as approximately 5,000 adult rainbow trout that had been stocked just days earlier. On opening day of fishing season, not a trout was found alive.

"We investigated the fish kill by collecting pH samples from Muddy Creek mainstem from Cranesville Road downstream to Muddy Creek Falls, as well as from several tributary streams," Klotz said. "All pH readings in the mainstem were about 5.5, and several of the tributaries had pH levels below 4.5. Observations of dead rainbow trout and angler interviews indicated a complete fish kill, including thousands of trout. We stopped stocking brown trout in Muddy Creek after that, and from then on delayed stocking rainbow trout until after the snowmelt or as close as possible to the opening day of put-and-take season."

A better solution remained to be found, DNR fishery biologists knew, in the form of lime dozing. Adding a buffer in the form of limestone to a highly acidic stream can neutralize the acid in the water (a la Alka Seltzer) and raise the pH level to help fish thrive. The technique has been used with noted success in once-dead trout streams in other states, and is being used to help neutralize acid mine drainage that had been polluting streams near the sites of the old Kempton and Vindex coal mines.

That's where the Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited came in. "We've been wanting to start a stream project for a long time," said Swanton area resident Johnny Lipscomb, president of the local chapter of TU, a national anglers' organization that works to preserve and protect America's rivers and streams in order to ensure healthy trout and salmon populations. "DNR said that Muddy Creek could benefit from a lime dozing project, so, with the help of a large donation from the Meschach Browning Club, we decided to take on the restoration of Muddy Creek to a prime trout fishery.

"At Klotz's recommendation we planned for a dumping of 50 tons of limestone along the banks of Muddy Creek divided between two sites, the Cranesville Road bridge and the Yough Mountain Club culvert crossing. After securing approval from the Maryland Department of the Environment, and permission from landowners (including the Yough Mountain Club Homeowners Association) at those two locations granting us access for dumping, stocking, and fish survey work, we approached the Garrett County commissioners for help in getting the limestone to the stream. They put the county roads department on the project, and this helped make the work possible by saving us a lot of money in labor and trucking expenses. Deep Creek Quarry also played an important part by selling us the limestone at a reduced cost," Lipscomb explained.

"As we studied the project further, we could see that it would require regular testing of Muddy Creek's waters. We have a small chapter and really couldn't undertake that work; so the stream project ended up playing into the idea of a Garrett Community College scholarship, another pet project we've been wanting to undertake for a long time. We would ask the scholarship recipient to undertake the testing and monitoring of Muddy Creek's waters to evaluate the success of the lime dozing project, giving the student practical field experience."

After raising funds for the annual scholarship with assistance from a number of organizations — including a fund-raising banquet at Uno Restaurant, organized by 52 TONS OF LIMESTONE could spell the difference between a dead stream and a prime trout fishery in the case of Muddy Creek. A project of the Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited is designed to restore the stream to a trout-friendly waterway, while at the same time providing practical field experience and a TU scholarship for a Garrett Community College Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology student. Garrett County Roads Department crews, shown above, dumped the limestone in December at two different locations along the stream's bank, where melting snows of the spring thaw will carry it into the flowing waterway. As the limestone dissolves it will hopefully act to neutralize acid also borne by the melting snow, which has been making the stream inhospitable to trout for the past 10 years. GCC student and TU scholarship recipient Terri Belasco is pictured below taking a water quality sample from Muddy Creek to check on the stream's health.

TROUT UNLIMITED AWARDS SCHOLARSHIP — The Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited awarded a $500 scholarship to GCC student Terri Belasco recently. The Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology major is helping with the TU chapter's Muddy Creek fishery restoration by conducting regular water quality tests and documenting the project's progress. Although she often visited relatives in the Oakland area as a child, Belasco admits to not having a great deal of exposure to nature as she was growing up in Jersey City, N.J., but she has made up for lost time through her GCC studies and numerous volunteer assignments with Department of Natural Resources and the Nature Conservancy. "Young people interested in natural resources careers should volunteer as much as possible," Belasco remarked. "It keeps you focused on your goals while learning the field." Johnny Lipscomb, president of the Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited, is shown above at the left presenting Belasco with the TU scholarship certificate, with DNR fisheries biologist Alan Klotz, who also serves an adjunct instructor in the NRWT program, at the right.

An Example of Greatness

In the month of February, our focus moves to men of greatness who were examples to us all. One of these men was Abraham Lincoln, the sixteenth president of the United States.

Mr. Lincoln exemplified several qualities necessary for greatness. He pressed onward, only winning the presidency after being defeated for public office eleven times and suffering a nervous breakdown. Mr. Lincoln was also a man of fine character. He had empathy for the poor and oppressed, for he came from humble beginnings, and took nothing for granted. Lincoln believed that everyone should be treated equally, "with malice toward none and charity for all"...that we should exercise, "the angels of our nature."

Most importantly, Abraham Lincoln was a man of God. Of the Bible, he said, "Read this book for what on reason you can accept, and take the rest on faith..." Of the importance of churches... "blessed be God, who, in this, our great trial, giveth us the churches." Follow a great example. Worship this week.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ESCAPING THE CROSS

February 20, 2000

Background Scripture: Matthew 27:32-61.
Devotional Reading: John 19:16-30.

Mean-spirited though it was, the challenge the spectators hurled at Jesus on the cross would seem to be a valid one: "You who would destroy the temple and build it in three days, save yourself! If you are the Son of God, come down from the cross"! (Mt 25:40). They did not expect that Jesus would be able to meet this challenge, for the Son of God does not belong on a cross. Therefore, a person hanging on a cross cannot be the Son of God, for he would have the power to call down from heaven legions of angels to overcome the military might of even Rome.

As they saw it, these agonizing hours on the cross completely nullified any legitimate claims he might have made. His helplessness at the hands of the secular rulers meant that he never had the power that had been ascribed to him. "He saved others; he cannot save himself; he is the King of Israel; let him come down now from the cross, and we will believe in him" (25:42). This is a taunt, not an offer; they are not offering to follow him if he can descend from the cross. They believe he cannot "save himself" and therefore that he never really "saved others." It was a trick, an illusion—virtually what we would say if Jesus came working his miracles in our midst today.

Was God Not Able?

So, if not to free himself of this terrible ordeal, why, if Jesus was the Messiah, the Son of God, did he not save himself in order to prove to these scoffers that he was God's apointed Son? What a demonstration of the power of God and the validity of Jesus of Nazareth if God had delivered him from the cross. Did Jesus not want to be saved from this terrible death? Was God not able to save him?

Actually, the gospels lead us to believe that there was nothing inevitable about the cross. He had numerous alternatives to Golgotha. He could have avoided coming to Jerusalem. What was there in his mission that determined that he had to go there? Wouldn't it have been better to build up support in Galilee before risking a clash in Jerusalem? Having come there, he also could have left when the conflict with the authorities began to heat up. Or he could have answered their probing questions a little more judiciously than he did.

If he had to be in Jerusalem, why not keep a lower profile? Did he have to make that Palm Sunday procession and drive the moneychangers out of the temple (they were probably back at their old places a few days later)? If he knew that Judas's loyalty was suspect, shouldn't he have avoided the Garden of Gethsemane? Even at the last moment, why didn't he answer Pilate in a way which might have persuaded the Roman governor to find him innocent and release him? Actually, he had an opportunity to do so because the charges against him could have been demonstrated to be false, at the most the product of misunderstanding.

Who Drove The Nails?

These and similar questions lead some people to conclude that Jesus and the Father wanted the cross in order to fulfill prophecy and a grand plan of salvation. I submit to you, however, that the cross was attributable solely to human sin, not the will of God. Those were men who nailed Jesus to the cross, not angels.

You see, the question was never whether God was able to save Jesus from the cross, but did these people have the free will to perpetrate this terrible crime? And, if they did have that free will, would God's purpose be better served by saving him from death by crucifixion or by letting men do their worst and giving God the opportunity to show once and for all that the best of God is more powerful than the worst of men?

Jesus was actually confronted with two choices: remaining faithful to his mission and accepting a cross if it meant that, or seizing the opportunity to escape the cross and failing the Father. Jesus chose not to fail the Father and so he accepted the cross. So, Jesus does not expect that we will seek crosses, but that neither will we shirk them when the purpose of God is at stake.

Watercolor Artist Exhibits Paintings At Visitors Center

Watercolor paintings by Garrett County artist Turid Kimmell are currently on display at the Visitors Center in McHenry. This exhibit includes paintings of western Maryland scenes and flowers, which Kimmell said are two of her favorite subjects.

A native of Norway, Kimmell settled in Garrett County 15 years ago, after living throughout the United States in locations as diverse as Alaska and Texas. Of all the places she has lived, Kimmell said she loves Garrett County more than any other for its "uniqueness and beauty." This, she explained, is what she tries to capture in her watercolor paintings.

Kimmel has worked with acrylics, tole painting, and fiber arts, but has concentrated on watercolors for the last five years. The Visitors Center exhibit is the culmination of two years' work. A member of the Western Maryland Watercolor Society, she has displayed her work in that organization's annual exhibitions, as well as in Garrett County Arts Council exhibits and the Accident IDEA Show, in which she won second and third place ribbons.

The exhibition in McHenry is open to the public free of charge every day from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Kimmell's paintings will be exhibited through the month of February.

Frostburg State To Host Program On Hate Groups

Frostburg State University will sponsor speaker Floyd Cochran and his program "Hate Groups on the Rise — What Can We Do?" on Tuesday, March 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the FSU Lane Center multi-use room.

Cochran, a former member of the Neo-Nazi group Aryan Nation, is the director of the Education and Vigilance Network. His program will focus on how racist organizations are formed and maintained and what people can do to combat them.

In addition to programs on college campuses, Cochran has appeared on numerous national television and radio programs, including "DateLine," "48 Hours," "Good Morning America," and "All Things Considered."

This event, sponsored by the FSU Interfaith Council and numerous other campus organizations, is free and open to the public. For more information, persons may contact Larry Neumark at 301-687-7490.

Prof. Awad To Present Lecture On E-Commerce

Dr. Elias M. Awad, professor of management information systems at the McIntire School of Commerce at the University of Virginia, will speak at Frostburg State University on how to build a business on the Internet. The talk will be Thursday, Feb. 24, at 2 p.m. in Lane Center 201, Atkinson Room, and is free and open to the public.

His lecture will cover the life cycle of building a presence on the Internet, from vision — conceptualizing the product and the market — to planning, web design, installation, marketing, maintenance, and upgrade of the web site. It will also address constraints such as security, integrity, and confidentiality of the transactions on-line.

The lecture is part of the Association of Computing Machinery Spring 2000 Lecture Series. Awad has been named an ACM Distinguished Lecturer.

The event is sponsored by the FSU student chapter of ACM, the Student Government Association, the FSU Computer Club, the FSU Computer Science Department, and the Association for Computing Machinery. For more information, persons may contact Peter Mburu at 301-689-6241.

Senior Volunteers Sought To Work With Salem Youth

The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) has volunteer opportunities available for local senior citizens. Currently a variety of positions are available at the Salem Children's Trust School, a residential educational facility for youth located along Lower New Germany Road. Volunteers are needed to answer phones, create a monthly calendar, assist in the school, and teach art or music lessons.

RSVP volunteers should be at least 55 years old. For additional information interested persons may contact Charlie Johnson, RSVP director, at 301-723-4971. The RSVP program is sponsored by the Western Maryland Health System.

chapter member Sull McCartney, which included a raffle and auction of items donated by a number of local businesses — as well as a donation from the Mid-Atlantic Council of Trout Unlimited, the Yough TU chapter was able to make the first of what is planned to be an annual award of a $500 scholarship to a GCC student studying in the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program.

The recipient of this year's Trout Unlimited scholarship, the first of its kind in Garrett County, is NRWT program student Terri Belasco. A native of Jersey City, N.J., the GCC sophomore intends to continue her studies next fall at Frostburg State University and eventually teach environmental science to grade schoolers. "I had been taking water samples from Muddy Creek and testing them on a volunteer basis since last March and continued to do so throughout the summer," Belasco said. "I was very fortunate to be selected for the scholarship, and am very grateful."

Belasco's responsibilities include taking monthly water samples from Muddy Creek for her own tests at the GCC water quality lab to ascertain pH, acidity, alkalinity, conductivity, color, turbidity, phosphates, nitrates, and water hardness. She also assists in baseline biological studies by sampling aquatic invertebrates (including fly hatches) to determine if the stream contains an adequate food base to support trout.

Belasco is also participating in electroshocking projects with DNR personnel and Yough chapter TU members in order to conduct both a pre- and a post-liming census of the stream's fish population. Although she's a petite young woman, Belasco's ability to shoulder a 50-pound electroshock backpack through woods and streams for over an hour one day late last summer drew the admiration of her fellow fish census takers.

Garrett County Roads Department trucks dumped the 50 tons of limestone, which has a sand-like consistency, at the specified locations this past December. As the snowpack melts with this spring's thaw, Yough TU chapter members will be out in force shoveling the limestone into the creek, hopefully neutralizing the acids the meltwater carries with it. "The limestone will cause some discoloration when it first hits the water, turning it grayish for a short period. After that it will settle to the bottom for long-term dissolving," said Klotz.

"The limestone should begin neutralizing acids, and saving the fish population, almost immediately," Klotz added. His theory will be put to the test this summer when Belasco hoists her electroshock backpack once again as she and other team members conduct a post-liming fish census to determine the impact of the liming project. Before then, Belasco will be presenting the results of her water quality monitoring project in a written report and a slide presentation for students in the GCC water quality management class, as well as for the members of the Yough and Nemacolin chapters of Trout Unlimited.

"It's very rewarding to see Terri work so hard on this and other natural resources-related projects on her own time and be rewarded by several different groups," commented Klotz, who also serves as an adjunct instructor at the college, where he teaches a course in fisheries biology and management and a second class in water quality laboratory. "Also, this project would have never happened without the efforts of Trout Unlimited, especially the Yough chapter's initiative in taking on the restoration and its generosity in funding the GCC scholarship."

"The Muddy Creek stream restoration project and the Trout Unlimited GCC scholarship are great examples of the good things that can happen when public and private entities step out of their boxes and work together," agreed DNR's Gary Yoder. "A simple and inexpensive solution can be found when people step out of their boxes for a worthy cause."

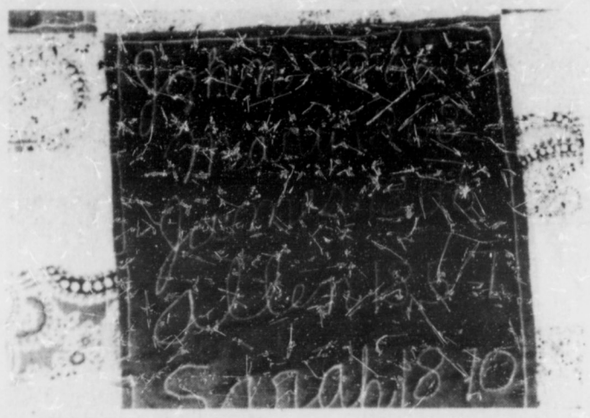
Ernie Savage Makes Quilts His Way — With A Band Saw



HE DOES IT HIS WAY - Ernie Savage brings a unique touch to his quilt-making, which has been his hobby for about 30 years. He has adapted skills from some of his other occupations to this craft. Cutting fabric into hundreds of tiny squares is no problem at all for a quilt-maker with a bandsaw. In the photo at left, Ernie lines up a stack of brightly colored fabric and neatly guides it along the blade for a quick, clean cut. His quilting apparatus, seen in the photo above, also bears the mark of Ernie's creativity. The frame on which he drapes the cover to be quilted is made from auto exhaust pipes that are suspended from a pulley system in the ceiling. What comes out of all this unusual equipment are quilts by the hundreds. In the photo, above right, Ernie and his daughter, Freda Sines, display one of the brightly colored quilts in his current collection. Below at right, is one block of a family genealogy quilt which Ernie made. It chronicles generations of the Savage family.

by Peggy Santamaria

Like many retired men, Ernie Savage spends much of his free time on his hobbies. Also like other retired men, he numbers among his hobbies golf and gardening. However, unlike many other men, Ernie spends much of his time on another hobby — quilting.

As far as Ernie can figure, he has been making quilts for about 30 years and has produced around 300 quilts. Now, at age 79, he is still busily cutting and sewing and presenting gift quilts to family members and friends.

Ernie practices a brand of quilt-making that bears his very own mark. "Dad sort of makes his own rules doing this. You notice that you don't see a lot of ironing boards around here," his daughter, Freda Sines, pointed out.

True. Though Ernie has six sewing machines that he uses for making quilt tops, there is nary an ironing board to be found. (Ernie did have seven sewing machines but recently sold one to another retired gentleman who wanted to start making quilts, too.)

Ernie has a trademark process for cutting the tiny pieces of fabric for his quilt tops. For this he uses a band saw. Yes, a band saw. He can pile up dozens of pieces of cloth and make clean, even stacks of patches with a few efficient movements of the saw blade.

Just about every kind of fabric has been used in one or another of Ernie's quilts, from wool to velour. "The first ones I made were flannel. I made them to keep the children warm at night — made them for all five children. They were the knotted kind," he reflected.

From there he moved on to crazy patch quilts. And from there to all types of patterns and designs.

When it comes to quilting the tops and backings, Ernie expresses his personal style again. In the basement of his home he rigged up a 10-foot-long pulley system along the ceiling. From it is suspended a framework on which he hangs the fabric he is quilting. The long arm of his specialty sewing machine stitches the quilting as he slips the fabric along, up and back, or side to side. He constructed this system himself. The framework is made of car exhaust pipes. "I just went to the auto supply place and bought them," he said simply.

For many years, Ernie's wife Jessie hand-quilted the tops that he made. They worked together on these projects for years. In 1997 her health failed and her ability to participate in the Savage family "cottage industry" diminished substantially. Ernie continued with his stitching, during the day working where he could be near her in the house in case she needed him. In December, after 57 years of marriage, Jessie died.

"We came up the hard way, you know. My mother died when I was 4 years old. My wife's mother had also died when she was little. We were both raised by our fathers. We didn't have toys, we had rakes and hoes," he recalled.

Ernie and Jessie, married in 1942, built the house near Friendsville where they raised five children and where he now lives, surrounded by many reminders of yesterday's family life and today's endeavors. Completed quilts cover beds and fill cedar chests. Boxes and bags of cut fabric abound, waiting to be sewn into a colorful pattern that will warm the toes and the heart of a new baby or a newlywed couple.

Ernie said he is always happy to show his quilt collection to those who stop by for a visit. "I think I have about 80 quilts here right now," he noted. He is also willing to demonstrate his unorthodox methods of quilt construction. "As a matter of fact, if people would want to stop by and learn how to sew, I could show them," he offered. And the invitation stands.

Elderly Focus Of GCC Massage Therapy Offering

"Special Populations: The Elderly" is the title of a non-credit massage therapy course set for Sunday, March 12, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Garrett Community College. The course is open to Core V massage therapy students, licensed massage therapists for Category A Continuing Education, and all interested members of the public.

The course will explore topics of life changes, loss of power, imbalances in health, the importance of social support, and the role massage therapy plays for elderly persons. Safe and supportive physical touch will be explored in relation to wellness. Demonstration and hands-on practice will include seated massage therapy which focuses on the shoulders, arms, back, and head. Hand and foot massage will also be demonstrated. A videotape titled "Compassionate Touch" will also be viewed.

The instructor, Cynthia Knight, is a teacher and practitioner of massage therapy with degrees in sociology and psychology from the University of Maryland. Knight is nationally certified in massage therapy by the NCBTMB and by the state of Maryland. She has maintained a Garrett County private practice since 1996, and has engaged in volunteer work at Mountain Glade Adult Day Services and the Goodwill Mennonite Home.

The cost for Garrett County residents is $81. There is an added fee for out-of-county residents, and Maryland senior citizens over 60 pay a reduced fee. Licensed massage therapists will earn seven hours of Category A Continuing Education, but must provide proof of licensure at the time of registration. GCC is approved by NCBTMB to provide Category Continuing Education for licensed massage therapists. Members of the public will receive a citation for participation.

COVER STORY

Little Richard captures lightning in a bottle

By John Crook
©TVData Features Syndicate

Leon

Biographical movies can be a dicey proposition. Too often, they either respect their central figure to death, turning him into a stuffed and mounted museum piece, or they take outrageous liberties that reduce a person's life to mere tabloid fodder.

Happily, Little Richard, which premieres Sunday, Feb. 20, on NBC, is a glittering exception.

Under the strong directorial hand of Robert Townsend, actor Leon (The Temptations) gives an electrifying performance as one of the most eccentric and influential figures in the world of American music.

Little Richard himself served as an executive producer on the project, but this TV movie takes a refreshingly honest approach to its quirky title character. Opening during a 1957 concert tour in Australia, where Richard receives what he believes to be a sign from God to leave rock 'n' roll, the movie then flashes back to his turbulent childhood in Macon, Ga.

Flamboyant even as a child, young Richard – one of 12 children – amuses his sisters by dressing in drag and pretending to be his loving mother, Muh (Jenifer Lewis), to the disgust and disapproval of his father, Bud (Carl Lumbly).

Richard receives some measure of pride and happiness from singing in his Macon church, but after his minister angrily accuses the boy of profaning his sanctuary by playing secular rock in the deserted hall, Richard overhears Bud admitting that he is ashamed of his son. Stung and shaken, Richard immediately leaves home for Atlanta, where a series of happy circumstances eventually propels him into his musical career.

The real Richard, who has complained in the past that his musical accomplishments were largely overlooked for a number of years, says he really didn't care whether his story was told in a dramatic TV movie instead of a documentary.

"I just wanted it told, and it didn't matter which way," the 67-year-old singer admits. "I just wanted to see it while I'm still here. My friends like Elvis ... (and) Jimi Hendrix, who was my guitar player, these people will never see these things. I wanted to see the reaction of the public while I'm alive."

And that public reaction is likely to be very positive, given the top flight entertainment Townsend and his cast have crafted, punctuated by some first-rate musical excerpts. But it's Leon's subtle yet spot-on impersonation of the central figure that most people will be talking about.

Last season, the actor played another famous singer – David Ruffin of the Temptations – in another NBC movie, but he emphasizes that the two jobs were very different experiences.

"With David Ruffin ... it was a very smooth, very elegant kind of performance, something that was very restrained. My hair didn't move," he says with a chuckle.

"From a number of performances I did in Little Richard, I can tell you that there's no way I could imagine doing a full set like that. I'm all over the place, jumping and spinning on the piano, and it's just amazing. Little Richard's style of singing in itself is enough to get you overworked!"

Yet Leon somehow doesn't let the effort show, fully embodying the character with all his eccentric tics and wide-eyed attitude yet somehow making all that weirdness become an integral and even oddly logical part of an unforgettable human being.

Molly Price

Q: What else has Molly Price, who plays Faith Yokas on NBC's Third Watch, done before? I am sure I saw her somewhere else. –Laura F. in Heidelberg, Germany.

A: Price's previous work includes three guest appearances (in different roles) on Law & Order as well as a series role in the short-lived Andrew Dice Clay-Cathy Moriarty sitcom Bless This House. Her film roles include Kiss Me Guido, Pushing Tin, Random Hearts and the upcoming Chasing Sleep.

Q: My mother insists that David Morse (The Langoliers) played a regular character on ER or Chicago Hope a few years ago. I say it probably was Ed Begley Jr. Who is right? –Sue Smith, Denton, Texas.

A: Neither of you. Morse and Begley, playing Dr. Jack Morrison and Dr. Victor Ehrlich, respectively, co-starred together in St. Elsewhere.

Q: Two of my supposedly knowledgeable friends are handing me what I think is the totally insupportable supposition that Regis Philbin's wife, Joy, is the sister of Kathie Lee Gifford. Will you please tell them that, while these ladies do look and talk alike, they are not related in any way? –Andrew W. Benedict, Venice, Fla.

A: Consider them told. Gifford and Philbin are not related.

Q: Will you please help me find the title of a movie starring Lou Costelio? He played a ghost named Horatio. There also was a female ghost. –S. Byars, Ravenna, Ohio.

A: You're looking for The Time of Their Lives, in which Costello and Marjorie Reynolds starred as Revolutionary War ghosts Horatio Prim and Melody Allen. They were unjustly branded as traitors and were trying to clear their names posthumously.

Q: What happened to Jean Smart of Designing Women? She is a fine actress. – M.M.W., Peru, N.Y.

A: Smart made a number of TV movies since leaving Women in 1991, two years before the show closed up shop. She also starred in two other sitcoms, High Society and Style & Substance. She made several stage appearances in recent years as well.

Her work in the 1999 feature film Guinevere earned her raves from critics, and she co-stars in the new film comedy Snow Day.

Q: I heard that Richard Dawson of Family Feud committed suicide. If so, when, how and why? –B. Barr, St. Claire Shores, Mich.

A: Dawson is still alive and "happily semiretired" in Beverly Hills these days.

It was Dawson's Feud successor, Ray Combs, who hanged himself in June 1996 after losing his job and a fortune in bad investments. For whatever reason, he chose his wife's 40th birthday to end his life.

Continuing Ed. Division At GCC Sets Scholarship

Garrett Community College's Continuing Education Division will sponsor an annual scholarship beginning with GCC's 2000-2001 academic year, according to the Garrett Community College Foundation Inc. "This scholarship is to encourage individuals who have GEDs (General Education Diplomas) to pursue credit courses in college," said Lowell Bender, the college's dean of Continuing Education.

"This scholarship demonstrates educational possibilities for those individuals who did not obtain their high school diploma through regular channels. Approximately one-third of Garrett County's population age 25 and older do not have a high school diploma. These individuals should consider credit courses at GCC," Bender remarked. The scholarship recipient must be a Garrett County resident, have a GED, and maintain a college semester average of at least a C.

The annual GCCF scholarship booklet, which provides information about all Foundation scholarships for the 2000-2001 academic year, is available from the college's Financial Aid Office. Northern and Southern Garrett County High School students may contact their guidance office for a copy, and reference copies are available at all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library as well as the GCC Library.

GCCF SCHOLARSHIP BENEFITS GED RECIPIENTS — A new scholarship was unveiled recently that will assist GED (General Education Diploma) recipients attending classes at Garrett Community College. Sponsored by college's Continuing Education Division, the annual scholarship is administered by the Garrett Community College Foundation and is detailed in the GCCF scholarship booklet. Shown above as the announcement of the new scholarship was being made are, from the left, Lowell Bender, GCC's dean of Continuing Education; Patricia Baer, associate program director of Adult Basic Education, GED preparation, child care training, and senior course offerings at the college; and Jeanne Gilbert, instructor in the GCC Adult Basic Education program.

The scholarship application is included in the booklet, and there is no fee to apply for any scholarships. The deadline to apply for GCCF scholarships is March 1 for the 2000-2001 academic year.

"The Garrett Community College Foundation sincerely appreciates this annual scholarship for recipients of General Education Diplomas," stated Bretta Reinhard, foundation advancement officer, who added that GED recipients may qualify for other foundation scholarships as well. "The Garrett Community College Foundation wants to encourage all interested individuals to apply for scholarships for the next academic year at Garrett Community College," Reinhard concluded.

National Trio Week Set; FSU To Participate

Participants in the Trio programs at Frostburg State University will celebrate National Trio Week, Feb. 21 to 26. Trio is a group of federally funded educational outreach programs created to enhance educational opportunities for first-generation college students, economically disadvantaged students, and students with disabilities.

Student Support Services (SSS), one of the four Trio programs at FSU, will acknowledge several local businesses that have been especially supportive of its programming and participants: Pizza Hut, Sheetz, Domino's, 7-Eleven, Pizza Outlet, Four Star Pizza, and McDonald's.

Throughout the week, representatives of FSU's Trio programs — Student Support Services, Upward Bound, Regional Math/Science Center, and the Ronald E. McNair Post-Baccalaureate Achievement Program — will be available in the Lane Center from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. to provide information about the programs.

In addition, during the week, SSS participants will present certificates of appreciation to FSU faculty and staff who have been nominated for being particularly supportive of SSS students.

Representatives from SSS also plan to attend the National Trio Day celebration at Baltimore City Community College Saturday, Feb. 26.

FSU Student Support Services is an academic support program entirely funded by the U.S. Department of Education. With an annual budget of more than $200,000, SSS serves 275 FSU students by providing academic advisement, personal counseling, financial aid assistance, professional tutoring, academic success workshops, and educational and cultural events.

FSU's Upward Bound program provides high school students with the skills and motivation necessary to succeed in high school and college. Participants are involved in both academic year and summer residential programs. The FSU Upward Bound program is funded to serve 60 students who attend high school in Allegany County.

The Upward Bound Regional Math/Science Center is comparable to the Upward Bound program, but addresses the need for specific instruction in math and science.

The Ronald E. McNair Post-Baccalaureate Achievement Program's mission is to increase the number of undergraduates from under-represented populations enrolling in graduate school to pursue doctoral degrees. Participating FSU students attend classes, work with a faculty mentor, and prepare research projects during the summer at University of Maryland, College Park.

For information on the FSU programs and events for Trio Week, persons may call 301-687-4481. All FSU Trio events are free and open to the public.

FSU Will Host Regional Math/ Science Center

The goal of the Regional Math/Science Center (RMSC) at Frostburg State University is to help interested and qualified students develop the skills necessary for successful admission into and completion of college programs that will lead to careers in mathematics and science, according to an FSU spokesperson.

For six weeks during the summer, eligible high school students attend a residential program at FSU, where they work to improve their math and science skills while conducting an environmental science research project. The students are exposed to hands-on laboratory and field-based experiences to facilitate learning and to keep the enthusiasm high. In addition to the academics, students participate in recreational activities and culturally stimulating fieldtrips that are designed to promote enthusiasm and individual growth. During the school year, the RMSC staff keeps in touch with the students to provide academic support and motivation. Students who are accepted into the program are expected and encouraged to continue in the program until they graduate from high school.

"The Regional Math/Science Center provides an excellent opportunity for students to meet others who share their academic interests, to get a head start on college preparation, and to challenge themselves to excel," the spokesperson said. The program is funded entirely by a $264,000 grant from the United States Department of Education and is completely free to all participants. This summer the six-week program will tentatively run from June 18 to July 28.

Currently the program has openings for students residing in West Virginia; the Appalachian region of Pennsylvania; Maryland's Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties; Baltimore City; and Maryland's Eastern Shore counties. To be eligible for the summer 2000 program, students must currently be in the 8th, 9th, or 10th grade. Students also must have an interest in math and/or science and meet the U.S. Department of Education income criteria or be a potential first-generation college graduate. Students currently enrolled in Upward Bound or Talent Search programs automatically meet those criteria. A detailed list of the eligibility requirements is available.

For more information and applications, persons may contact the Regional Math/Science Center office at 1-800-646-6004 or 301-687-4295, or visit the web site at www.frostburg.edu/clife/mscenter/.

Input Sought On Delinquency Prevention Issue

The Garrett County Delinquency Planning Committee will meet Monday, Feb. 21, at 6:30 p.m. at the Grantsville town hall. The public meeting is one of a number slated in communities throughout the county to gather input for a countywide delinquency prevention plan.

Such a plan "will help Garrett County remain one of the safest counties in Maryland," said Bob Stephens of the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families Inc., a spokesman for the planning group. "Garrett County's non-violent crime arrest rate increased by 30 percent from 1990 to 1997. It is clear that we need to find out what is accounting for these increases and then support efforts, both public and private, to address the underlying problems leading to delinquency."

The Delinquency Prevention Planning Committee consists of representatives from public and private agencies, the faith community, local government, and interested community members. Stephens emphasized that it is critical that the community be involved in this effort.

For further information on the Grantsville meeting interested persons may contact the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families at 301-334-1189.

A HOLIDAY MEAL was provided recently to the tenants of Accident Town View Village, with a number of volunteers from Oak Grove Church of the Brethren working together to make the event a success. The village is a subsidized housing project for persons age 62 and older, as well as persons with disabilities. The tenants noted their appreciation to the members of Oak Grove Church.

Daffodil Days Benefit Set By Cancer Society

The American Cancer Society is currently taking orders for flowers in conjunction with its Daffodil Days fund-raiser, set for the week of March 15 - 21. The annual event is designed to provide a way for the Cancer Society to reach out to communities and provide information to those who suffer from cancer and to their families.

"We usually do very well with the daffodil fund-raiser, and it gives the American Cancer Society the ability to continue the other range of services that it offers," said Connie Margison, the co-coordinator of the event in Garrett County.

Daffodils can be ordered by mail or by contacting the Water Street Market Place at 301-334-5747 or Jan Florist at 301-334-9404. Orders can be placed in quantities ranging from a bouquet of 10 flowers, or a single pot, to a full case of 50 bunches, and the flowers can be either delivered or picked up. Prices range from $6 for a bouquet, $8.50 for a single pot, to $250 for a 50-bunch case.

The proceeds from Daffodil Days are used to fund many organizations sponsored by the American Cancer Society, including Road to Recovery, which provides free transportation for patients to and from their treatments at local hospitals; Reach to Recovery, which provides one-on-one support for breast cancer patients provided by breast cancer survivors; and Look Good ... Feel Better, a seminar conducted by licensed cosmetologists that teaches patients how to apply make-up and offers creative ideas for wigs and turbans.

"The daffodil is a beautiful plant for the beginning of the spring and a reminder that spring is a time of renewal," stated Pam Snyder of Jan Florist.

Garrett Container Systems Receives FAA Certification

Garrett Container Systems (GCS) Inc., based in Accident, has been awarded Air Agency Certification by the Federal Aviation Administration. The certification recognizes GCS's compliance with FAA regulations.

The FAA certification allows GCS to market its specialty containers with such air freight shippers as Federal Express, Burlington Air Express, and Emery Worldwide. "We have only taken one more successful step forward in our long range plan to increase our commercial marketing effort," said Jim Kesselring, GCS quality/support manager.

"[With] Garrett Containers' can-do spirit, drive, and determination, I am confident that the expansion and job creation being noted today will lend itself impressively to further growth tomorrow," commented Congressman Roscoe Bartlett.

On Dean's List At Western Md.

Among the students of Western Maryland College, Westminster, who were named to the dean's list for academic excellence during the fall 1999 semester are three Garrett County residents. Inclusion on the list requires a minimum grade point average of 3.4 on a 4.0 scale, with highest honors awarded for a GPA of 3.8-4.0, high honors for a GPA of 3.6-3.79, and honors for a GPA of 3.4-3.59.

Local students earning high honors were Jennifer A. McKenzie, daughter of Judy and Olin McKenzie, Frostburg (Garrett County), and Michael J. Paesani, son of Darlene and David Tuel, Oakland, and Michael Paesani, Chesapeake, Ohio.

Earning honors was Brooke A. Brenneman, daughter of Donna Jo and Gerald Brenneman, Grantsville.

McKenzie and Brenneman are graduates of Northern High School, and Paesani is a graduate of Southern High School.

Western Maryland College is a private, independent college.

Valentine's Day Poetry Contest Winner Selected From 60 Entries

by Debra Wolf

Nearly 60 poems were submitted for the second annual Valentine's Day Poetry Contest. From those submissions, "Memories," a poem written by Red House resident Mary Jane Gnegy, was selected as the winning poem.

In this poem, Gnegy looks back on childhood experiences she had growing up under the love and protection of her grandparents. The words of the poem concretely paint a picture of the poet spending a winter's day with her grandparents. In the poem many images are shared. These images include literary pictures of grandfather coming in from the barn for a breakfast of oatmeal and coffee. There are also other strong images in the poem which relate the love and closeness of the relationship between the characters in the poem.

Gnegy relates that this poem is her first attempt at writing poetry. For a first attempt, she has done a relatively good job!

MEMORIES
by Mary Jane Gnegy

As I sit with my cup of coffee, out the window I can look — to the fields — to the mountain — to the sky —
My memories begin to fly.

Back in time, Grandma is cooking
oats and making coffee,
Grandpa is coming in from the barn for his oats and coffee —
every morning the same.

In the car on a cold winter night, me in the middle,
Grandpa driving and Grandma on my right.
Cuddled between them, the heater blowing in my face,
I couldn't get cold in such a cozy place.

It's Sunday afternoon and I want Grandma to teach me a stitch or so —
Grandpa says "to work on Sunday, on Monday you will have to pick it out with your nose."

Up in bed — not much heat,
I pull the cover up to my head and down on my feet.
Grandma, I'm cold.
She says "come over here and cuddle in the middle."
Grandpa begins to scold —
We are crowding him out of bed.

I could go on and on without compare, but the greatest of my memories is the love my grandparents and I would share.

Antiques
by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Be careful when buying an antique bed. The size may fool you. It was not until the 1920s that the sizes were standardized by manufacturers, so early beds often require special mattresses and sheets. Take the measurement from the inside of the bed, side-to-side between the rails and head-to-foot. If the footboard or headboard is curved, as it sometimes was in Victorian times, you may need a custom-made mattress. Standard beds today are: single (39 inches by 74 inches), three-quarter (48 inches by 74 inches), double (54 inches by 74 inches), queen (60 inches wide or larger), and king (78 inches wide, which is the size of two singles). An old bed can sometimes use a standard box spring and mattress, but today it is also possible to get a special polyurethane foam mattress cut to fit. But don't forget the problem of today's fitted bottom sheets. Special mattresses may require a 4-inch-deep "pocket," and these special sheets are hard to find.

Q: I have a set of four cobalt-blue glass cruets. I received them several years ago as two separate gift sets. All four cruets have the same etched leaf-and-flower design. Recently I found a silver castor that holds all four cruets. The castor is marked "Meriden B. Company" in a circle. The design on the platform of the castor is very similar to the design on the cruets. Have I accidentally assembled an original set?

A: Your castor is pictured in the Meriden Britannia Silver-Plate Treasury catalog of 1886-87. It was one of several silver-plate castor sets available from the company. The mark you describe was used until the 1930s, although the Meriden Britannia Co. became part of the International Silver Co. in 1898. Your glass cruets, on the other hand, are 1970s reproductions. We found them pictured in a wholesale catalog, where they were offered in blue or ruby.

Pet Care
by Peter Edwards

Animal Health News (a publication of the American Veterinary Medicine Association) reports on the study of progressive retinal atrophy in dogs. This condition, also called progressive rod-cone degeneration, causes blindness. Scientists had already determined that the degeneration can be traced to a gene. An earlier test was developed to identify the gene with Portuguese water dogs. Now, there are tests for English cocker spaniels and Chesapeake Bay retrievers. Researchers, working on a study funded by the Morris Animal Foundation and the Seeing Eye, are currently developing tests for other breeds, including poodles and Labrador retrievers. It's hoped that very soon we'll be able to test all dogs for the gene.

To 13-year-old Brian who keeps losing his goldfish and wonders why: First, be careful not to use water directly from the tap. Let it stand for a while to allow the chlorine to escape. Or, you can ask your pet store for a product that neutralizes the chlorine. Also, remove all uneaten food from the tank one minute or, at the most, two minutes to avoid overfeeding your fish.

Home Repair: The Front Line

My good friend John Wyman, helps run a bed-and-breakfast on England's southern coast. Keeping his family's three-story Exmouth home in shape for visitors can be a challenge.

"My place is 1929-1930 vintage," he writes. "More wood was used to hold up the roof than you'd see in a new home today. But apart from that, it's brick and lathe-and-plaster walls all the way. Repairs therefore are more of a challenge.

"In the attic last year I slipped off a joist and my leg went through the ceiling. The ceiling was plasterboard, nailed onto the underside of the attic joists. Thick wallpaper had been put over the ceiling; so when my foot went through, it created a sort of B-52 trapdoor; the two halves of the hanging drywall were held to the ceiling by tough wallpaper. All I had to do was push the two swinging bits of ceiling back into place and re-nail, then glue the loose, frayed bits of wallpaper, spackle a bit, and paint.

"Trouble was, the 'bomb bay' didn't neatly close, so more spackle was needed than would otherwise have been the case. Additionally, the pattern in the wallpaper made it difficult to spackle. The result looked a bit amateurish, but, oh well, it was free labor and we got the job finished right away. Actually, the ceiling is not nearly as bad as you might imagine."

To avoid such accidents, lay a thick piece of wood between the joists. The plank should be between 5/8 and 1-and-a-half inches thick and should support your full weight.

Tips

• Shut off any unused or rarely used rooms in the winter, and close the air vents in them. This saves a lot in heating costs. — Margaret G., Memphis, Tenn.

• I saved my old rubber garden hose and attached a length of it to the bottom of my garage door. It's a great way to keep the cold air out of the garage. — Jack H., Sterling Heights, Mich.

Poet to Visit Frostburg State

Frostburg State University's Western Maryland Writers' Workshop and Department of English will present award-winning poet Stephen Dunn on Thursday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the FSU Performing Arts Center Studio Theatre.

Dunn, considered one of the most highly respected writers in the country, is noted for the ordinary questions his poems probe. Judith Kitchen of the Georgia Review wrote, "Stephen Dunn's subject has never been the large issue, the political or the abstract. What is at stake in his poetry is more immediate and more essential: how to live the one life we're given with integrity, with humor and exuberance, and yes, grace."

A recipient of the Academy Award in Literature from the American Academy of Arts & Letters and fellowships from the Guggenheim and Rockefeller foundations, Dunn is the author of 10 collections of poetry, including Loosestrife, which was a finalist for the National Book Critic's Circle Award. He teaches at Richard Stockton College in New Jersey.

This reading is free and open to the public. A reception and book signing will follow. For further information, persons may contact the FSU Department of English at 301-687-4221.

Writer, Director Knobel-Besa To Lead Workshop

Western Maryland writer and theater director Penny Knobel-Besa will be the guest speaker at a free public workshop that will be hosted by Garrett County Health Department's teen health theater, Pandora's Box, at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center on Saturday, Feb. 26. This will be the acting group's second annual theater workshop.

"This will be an interactive workshop with the participants learning some basic and advanced theater techniques, along with various skills that they can continue to use and develop after the workshop," Knobel-Besa said.

An Allegany County resident and former director of public relations for the Cumberland Theatre, Knobel-Besa also has experience as an independent film director and playwright. One of her children's musicals, Under Your Pillow, was produced off-Broadway in 1994.

Aside from writing and directing, Knobel-Besa is an actor who has performed in many musicals in the Baltimore-Washington area and in western Maryland. She also founded the Maryland Theater Arts Academy, where she taught dramatic arts and radio production in conjunction with WFWM Radio in Allegany County.

Knobel-Besa previously held a workshop with Pandora's Box. "I'm impressed with the work being done by the young people in that project. I hope I will be able to give them some ideas about ways to get their message across. Pandora's Box provides such a positive way for young people to reach out to others in the community with their extremely important messages," she said.

Check-in for the forum will be at 9:30 a.m. with the program scheduled from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Lunch will be provided at the workshop, which is sponsored by the health department and funded by the Garrett County Arts Council.

All members of the community age 14 and over are invited to attend.

There will be limited seating available at the workshop, so those interested in attending are encouraged to call the health department at 301-334-8122 to register by February 23.

Evening Of Jazz Slated At FSU

Frostburg State University's Café Frostburg will present an evening of jazz with "Zoot" on Friday, March 3, at 8 p.m. in the Lane Center Greenhouse.

After years of playing in one of the Southeast's most established independent jazz bands, Rob Chaseman and Andrew Dykers decided it was time to branch off into what they say is "a more natural setting" for their craft. They have shared the stage with numerous other well-known artists, including the Dave Matthews Band, Edwin McCain, the Verve Pipe, and Sister Hazel.

This event is free and open to the public. For additional information, persons may contact the Lane Center Information Desk at 301-687-4411.

Deadline Slated For Arts Council Grant Requests

The deadline for nonprofit organizations to submit applications to the Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) for funding requests is Tuesday, March 21. With primary funding from the Maryland State Arts Council, GCAC awards grants to nonprofit organizations presenting public arts events or projects in Garrett County or for the benefit of its citizens.

Grants of $500 or more to support arts programs or projects planned for presentation between July 1, 2000, and June 30, 2001 will be awarded through the GCAC program. Qualifying organizations may apply to GCAC for grant funding support for any type of public arts presentation, including music, dance, creative writing and storytelling, drama, painting, folk arts, and other arts activities. Recipients must supply a cash match, and funded programs and projects must conform to established eligibility criteria, including accessibility to persons with disabilities.

In the current fiscal year, GCAC awarded over $35,000 to 19 organizations requesting arts funding support. Funded programs include concerts, festivals, shows, exhibits, theatrical presentations, cultural events, a video project, and a student arts fair.

Grant requests must be submitted on approved application forms which are available from the arts council. Additional information and complete guidelines and application forms are available by writing GCAC, P.O. Box 930, McHenry, MD 21541, or by calling 301-387-3121.

She Stoops To Conquer Set At Frostburg State

Frostburg State's University Theatre will present She Stoops to Conquer on March 3, 4, 9, 10, and 11 at 8 p.m. in the FSU Performing Arts Center Drama Theatre. There will be an afternoon matinee at 2 p.m. on Sunday, March 5.

This play, by Oliver Goldsmith, is considered by critics as one of the funniest drawing room comedies ever written. The audience watches as a shy young man, on his way to meet his intended bride for the first time, finds himself misdirected. He mistakes his betrothed's house for an inn, her father for the innkeeper, and herself for a maid. After a series of misadventures, all is happily resolved.

Tickets and reservations for this production may be made by telephoning 301-687-4145 between 1 and 4:30 p.m., Mondays through Fridays.

Garrett Co. Farm Bureau Members Commemorate Food Check-Out Day

Food in America is affordable. In fact, between Jan. 1 and Feb. 9, the official Food Check-Out Day, the average American earned enough income to pay for his or her family's entire 2000 food supply, according to the Garrett County Farm Bureau.

As a result, the Garrett County Farm Bureau celebrated Food Check-Out Day on Sat., Feb. 12, when Women's Committee co-chairpersons Debbie Barnard and Becky DeBerry Tasker distributed posters and stickers at Browning's Foodland in Mtn. Lake Park, and made a food donation to the House of Hope in Oakland.

According to the latest statistics compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service, American families and individuals spend, on average, 10.9 percent of their disposable personal income for food. That means the average household will have earned enough disposable income — that portion of income available for spending or saving — to pay for the annual food supply in just 40 days. Last year, Food Check-Out Day fell on Feb. 9 as well.

"The early occurrence of this date is noteworthy," said Barnard. "It speaks well of our nation's increasing standard of living, which would certainly be reduced without the affordable, domestic food supply produced by America's farmers and ranchers."

In comparison to Food Check-Out Day, Tax Freedom Day, the day the average American had earned enough money to pay federal, state, and local taxes, was May 11 last year, according to the Tax Foundation.

"I find it amazing that people can pay for their yearly food supply three months earlier than it would take them to satisfy their tax burden," Barnard said. "Rather than being an economic burden, food remains quite a bargain for shoppers. That's the way it should be."

Barnard hopes Americans will come to understand that affordable food is "a product of our successful food production and distribution system.

"This day should hold meaning for most Americans," she said. "As food producers, we are concerned that some Americans cannot afford to buy the food they need, but we are proud of the part local farmers play in making our food supply more affordable for all."

The percent of disposable personal income spent for food has declined over the last 25 years. In 1970, Food Check-Out Day would have been 11 days later — Feb. 20. Food is more affordable today because of a widening gap between growth in per-capita incomes and the amount of money spent for food, according to USDA.

This overall decrease is made more notable by the fact that trends indicate Americans are buying more expensive convenience food items for preparation at home, as well as more food away from home.

The Agriculture Department's latest statistic, compiled for 1998, includes food and non-alcoholic beverages consumed at home and away from home. This includes food purchases from grocery stores and other retail outlets, including food purchases with food stamps and vouchers for the Women, Infants, and Children's (WIC) program. The statistic also includes away-from-home meals and snacks purchased by families and individuals, as well as food furnished to employees.

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Farming In Maryland.....

"Food Check-Out Day tracks the amount of income needed by Americans to purchase food on an annual basis," Barnard said. "It should be useful over time to measure fluctuations in the affordability of food."

Farmer Co-Op Endorses Maryland Conservation Pro.

Southern States vows to help conserve the environment with its recent endorsement of the Maryland Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP) for farmers.

Southern States will provide its resources to help spread the word about CREP to farmers. The program pays farmers to install streamside buffers and other conservation practices on farms.

"The program is a voluntary initiative that makes it more cost-effective to install streamside buffers and other conservation practices on farms," says Wayne Boutwell, Southern States president and CEO. "CREP pays up to 100 percent of the cost of most practices and offers soil rental rates 50 percent to 70 percent higher than regular soil rental rates. In some cases, CREP payments may even be greater than the production value of enrolled lands. Wow, this is a great opportunity for farmers."

To learn more about CREP, those interested may call toll free 1-877-4BUFFER.

The program is spearheaded by Future Harvest — Chesapeake Alliance for Sustainable Agriculture (Future Harvest — CASA), a nonprofit organization based in Maryland made up of farmers, agricultural professionals, landowners, and consumers that support profitable and sustainable food and farming systems in the Chesapeake Bay region.

Southern States — founded in 1923 — is a farmer-owned cooperative operating in 16 states stretching from Michigan to Florida and west to Arkansas. This Richmond, Va., based firm is one of the largest U.S. farmer cooperative that manufactures, purchases, or processes feed, seed, fertilizer, and fuel. It also sells farm, animal health, lawn, home, and garden supplies through 745 local dealers in its operating territory. In addition, Southern States gins cotton and markets livestock, small grains, corn, peanuts, and soybeans. In its fiscal year which ended June 30, 1999, Southern States had sales of $1.3 billion.

FARM BUREAU ANNUAL FOOD CHECK-OUT DAY — Members of the Garrett County Farm Bureau celebrated Food Check-Out Day (the day, Feb. 9 this year, by which U.S. citizens have earned enough income to purchase a year's worth of food), by making a food donation to the House of Hope in Oakland. Pictured presenting the donation is Debbie Barnard, Garrett County Farm Bureau Women's Committee chairperson, and receiving on behalf of the House of Hope is Art Lake, coordinator of St. John's Food Pantry. See story for additional information.

Pruning is a late winter job that often gets forgotten as we hustle to get ready for spring. Pruning now, though, during the dormant season, invigorates many trees and shrubs because it leaves the plants with extra root and energy reserves that will support new growth on the remaining branches. During the dormant season, pruning is easier because the branches can be seen more clearly without leaves in the way, and it gives us a reason to go outside when we get some reasonably mild winter days.

The web site www.organicgardening.com provides a list of shrubs and trees that can be pruned from now until the long days of spring start the sap flowing again. The web site also suggests that trees which "bleed" or ooze sap when pruned in late winter or early spring be pruned in summer or fall. Those trees include maples, birches, dogwoods, and walnuts. Late winter pruning can be done to barberries, glossy abelia, beautyberries, camellias, euonymous, and mallow shrubs; and trees such as Bradford and Callery pears, crabapples, poplar, spruce, junipers, European hornbeam, sumacs, bald cypress, cherries, plums, and other fruit trees.

Well-pruned plants produce more flowers and fruit. And sensible pruning helps trees and shrubs ward off pests and diseases, so you'll have to care for them less. Pruning for almost any shrub is the same. According to Rodale's Illustrated Encyclopedia of Gardening and Landscaping Techniques, in the first-year, dead, diseased, and crossing branches can be removed. In the second year half of the largest, woodiest stems should be removed, and in year 3, the remaining large stems should be removed, leaving only healthy young stems. It's much the same for fruit trees. The first year, dead, diseased, and crossing branches, as well as suckers, are removed. The second year half the limbs with narrow, weak crotches and all new suckers are removed. Crowded smaller branches can also be thinned out. In the third year any branches that are still too crowded or weak should be removed, as well as any new suckers.

The same book advises pruners to remove dead or dying branches; prune out diseased limbs right away, being sure to cut well below the disease; and to cut back branches that have grown over where people walk or mow. Where two branches are crossing, the smaller one should be pruned, and branches should be thinned judiciously to allow sunlight and air into the center of the tree. Some pruning do's and don'ts the book suggests are to cut at an angle that mirrors the branch collar, the furrow of bark where the branches meet. Cut the branch just above the branch collar, and if it's done right, a circle will swell around the spot. Do cut large branches in three parts. First, cut halfway through the limb one inch from the trunk. Next, cut through the limb about one inch further out from the first cut. When this cut is made, the limb's weight will cause it to break off at the pivot point. Last, cut off the remainder just above the branch collar.

Don't cut a limb flush with the trunk. It may look neat, but cutting into the trunk provides pests a way into the tree. Don't leave stubs behind — stubs rot, inviting insects and disease to move into healthy tissue. Don't scalp your trees. A tree with a flat-top looks ridiculous, and it will encourage sprouts in place of healthy branches. Cut to the tree's natural shape.

Another good reference is Rodale's Successful Organic Gardening: Pruning, which shows how to keep shrubs in shape as well as many ways to make the job go quicker and easier. Most pruning work is easy for home gardeners to do, but all the books and web sites warn pruners to work safely by avoiding any cut that can't be made from the ground with pole pruners; any work -- whether it can be reached or not — in a tree near power lines; or storm damage repair where heavy limbs are still attached or hung up in the crown of the tree.

The International Society of Arborists Online has information on tree care for homeowners at www2.champaign.isa-arbor.com, and reforestation and tree care are the concerns of the National Arbor Day Foundation at www.arborday.org. Information on pruning all kinds of trees and shrubs from the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service can be found on-line at www.agnr.umd.edu/CES/greennursury.html, or at the Garrett County Extension Service at 1916 Maryland Highway, Suite A, Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550, 301-334-6960.

Or, if you're on-line and feel like checking out recreational tree climbing or learning why cats climb trees, why they won't come down, and how to rescue them, look up "Tree Climbers International" at www.treeclimbing.com and find out why both cats and kids love being in the treetops.

U.S. Sheep & Lamb Inventory Down

All sheep and lamb inventory in the United States on Jan. 1, 2000, totaled 7.03 million head, down 3% from 1999 and 10% below two years ago. Inventory has declined since 1942 when it reached a peak of 56.2 million head.

Breeding sheep inventory declined to 5.16 million head on Jan. 1, 2000, down 3% from 5.30 million head on Jan. 1, 1999. Ewes one year old and older, at 4.23 million head, were 2% below last year.

Market sheep and lambs on Jan. 1, 2000, totaled 1.86 million head, down 3% from Jan. 1, 1999. Market lambs comprised 96% of the total. Twenty-four percent were lambs under 65 pounds, 17% were 65-84 pounds, 26% were 85-105 pounds, 29% were over 105 pounds, and 4% were market sheep.

The 1999 lamb crop of 4.72 million head was down 6% from 1998 to a new record low. The 1999 lambing rate was 109 per 100 ewes one year old and older on Jan. 1, 1999, compared with 110 in 1998.

The number of operations with sheep during 1999 totaled 66,800, down 3% from 1998 and 8% from three major producing states (Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas) during 1999 was 2.90 million pounds, down 43% from 1998. Goats and kids clipped, at 444,000 head, was down 37% from 1998. Average weight per clip was 6.5 pounds compared with 7.2 pounds a year earlier. Value of mohair was $10 million dollars, down 20% from 1998.

America's farmers and ranchers are true professionals. Most farmers and ranchers are trained and certified in the use of agricultural chemicals. And farmers test and evaluate the soil before administering fertilizers. Farmers and ranchers don't spend hard-earned money on costly fertilizers and nutrients unless they absolutely have to. Doing otherwise doesn't make good business sense.

Managing Financial Risks with the Futures and Options Workshop

Friday, March 10, 2000, 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Garrett Community College, Rm 307, Continuing Education Building.

Around the first of the year, Dr. Kevin McKnew, dairy and grain marketing specialist, University of Maryland presented a program to a group of area farmers on how to use the futures and options to sell milk and purchase grain. I think all of the folks there, including myself, were impressed with the potential opportunities that farmers may have in managing financial risk by selling and buying in the futures and options markets. Dr. McKnew is an expert in this area. He previously served as an advisor to the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade. Dr. McKnew will teach us how to organize and implement a marketing plan for selling milk and purchasing grain. He has also volunteered to provide follow-up assistance until we become "experts." I hope the outcome of this program will result in organized groups making wise marketing decisions that will help minimize financial risk and improve profitability. Would you like to have your milk locked in at $15.50/cwt? A group of Frederick County dairies made that decision in August 1999, and I'm sure they are presently pleased.

Please make your reservations by March 3, 2000, so we will have time to prepare the printed materials. Why not pick up the phone and call now: Garrett Extension Office, 301-334-6960? Lunch is available at the GCC cafeteria.

Looking for Something to Do?

It's a good time to check the germination rate of old, questionable seed. Place 20 seeds between moistened paper towels, roll up the towel and place it in a plastic bread bag. Put the bag on top of the refrigerator or other warm location and check after 5-7 days to see what percentage has germinated. Discard seed lots with less than 75% germination.

Put Your Ideas to Test:

Farmers seeking to cut production costs or improve stewardship of natural resources often experiment with new methods. This coming year the Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) will be awarding $500,000 in grants for on-the-farm research projects. The research projects do not have to be complicated or in great detail. It might sound like one of the following:

* to determine if a legume cover crop will supply enough nitrogen to cut back on purchased fertilizer;
* to learn if my cattle will gain more on an improved grass mix versus the existing pasture; or
* to learn if marketing my value-added farm products over the Internet will increase profits.

If you have an idea that you would like to on-the-farm research, contact me for more information.

NASS Releases Dec. Figures For Dairy Products

The December 1999 highlights for dairy products were released Feb. 3 by the USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service.

American type cheese production totaled 307 million pounds, 2.4% above December 1998 and 7.0% above November 1999.

Total cheese output (excluding cottage cheese) was 698 million pounds, 4.4% above December 1998 and 2.7% above November 1999.

Cream cottage cheese production was 26.8 million pounds, 6.7% below December 1998 and 6.4% below November 1999.

Lowfat cottage cheese production was 25.8 million pounds, 4.8% below December 1998 and 4.8% below November 1999.

Butter production was 108 million pounds in December, 1.4% above December 1998 and 19.3% above November 1999.

Frozen dessert (comparisons with December 1998): ice cream, regular (hard) — 56.0 million gallons, up 0.9%; ice cream, lowfat (total) — 24.6 million gallons, down 5.1%; ice cream, nonfat (hard) — 2.38 million gallons, up 0.2%; sherbet (hard) — 3.20 million gallons, down 5.1%; frozen yogurt (total) — 4.79 million gallons, down 16.8%.

Dry milk products (comparisons with December 1998): nonfat dry milk for human food — 129 million pounds, up 16.6%; dry whole milk — 9.90 million pounds, up 2.0%; dry buttermilk — 4.70 million pounds, down 10.3%.

Cheddar cheese prices received for US 40-pound blocks averaged $1.11 per pound for the week ending January 29. The price per pound decreased 2.2 cents from the previous week. The price for US 500-pound barrels adjusted to 39% moisture averaged $1.10 per pound, down 1.7 cents from the previous week.

Butter prices received for 25 kilogram and 68 pound boxes meeting USDA Grade AA standards averaged 88.0 cents per pound for the week ending January 29. The U.S. price per pound decreased 2.6 cents from the previous week.

Nonfat dry milk prices received for bag, tote, and tanker sales meeting USDA Extra Grade or USPH Grade A standards averaged $1.01 per pound for the week ending January 29. The U.S. price per pound decreased 0.4 cents from the previous week.

Dry whey prices received for bag, tote, and tanker sales meeting USDA Extra Grade standards averaged 18.4 cents per pound for the week ending January 29. The U.S. price per pound increased 0.3 cents from the previous week.

Agricultural Prices Reported For November

According to the Natural Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS), U.S. prices were stale for the month of November. Wheat was down by two cents per bushel from last month. Corn and oat prices remained the same, and soybeans took a 37 cent drop from a month ago. Soybean prices were unchanged from a year ago.

Hay prices went up five dollars per ton from a month ago and virtually unchanged from 1998.

Livestock didn't fare much better as prices were virtually unchanged from a month ago. Hog and calf prices were down by almost one dollar per hundredweight.

Production Of Fresh Market Vegetables Up

Fresh market vegetable and melon production for 25 selected crops in 1999 totaled 456 million hundredweight, up 9% from 1998. Value of the 1999 crop was estimated at 7.95 billion dollars, a decrease of 1% from last year. Harvested area covered 1.90 million acres, up 2% from a year ago.

California continued to be the leading fresh market state, accounting for 45% of the harvested area, 51% of production, and 57% of the value. The three largest crops in terms of production were head lettuce, onions, and watermelon, which combined to account for 41% of the total production. Head lettuce, tomatoes, and onions were the most valuable crops, accounting for 33% of the total value when combined.

Chickenpox

in 2001. It is already necessary for enrollment in day care programs, and children who do not comply can be turned away.

Chickenpox is highly contagious, affecting 90 percent of Americans by their early 20s, according to the Maryland Community and Public Health Administration. It is characterized by an itchy rash and often accompanied by fever and fatigue. It is not life-threatening for otherwise healthy children, but it can be dangerous, and even deadly, for newborns, adults and people with leukemia or weak immune systems.

Greg K. Reed, assistant chief at Maryland's Center for Immunization, said he feels "very strongly" that aggressive use of the vaccine will have a tremendous impact in reducing the number of hospitalizations, illnesses and missed days of work" to care for sick children.

For some parents, however, side effects of the vaccine are still too common compared to what they see as a relatively mild disease. "I don't like putting things into my kids' bodies that don't need to be," said Stacey Barkley, a Lusby mother of two daughters. The federal Centers for Disease Control reported that in one study of 8,900 healthy children between 1 and 12 who were vaccinated, 14.7 percent developed a fever, 19.3 percent complained of pain or redness at the injection site, and 3.8 percent developed a chickenpox rash.

During the first year of vaccinations, about 21 cases of serious illness were reported within six weeks of the shot, but the CDC has not concluded that the vaccine caused the sickness. It reported a "minimal" risk that vaccinated children will pass the virus on to others.

While the CDC reported that the vaccine has proven effective for at least 10 years, catching chickenpox gives a person lifetime immunity to the virus. If immunization from the vaccine does wear off, adolescents and adults may find themselves susceptible at an age when the disease can be much more dangerous.

There is also a fear that children who are vaccinated may be susceptible to shingles, a painful skin condition caused by the same virus, when they grow older.

After only five years of widespread use in this country, local and national advocates are concerned that too much is still unknown. "Largely, parents are unaware" of arguments against vaccination, said Amanda Buxbaum, director of Vaccine Information and Action in Maryland. The group opposes mandatory vaccinations, and wants to let parents know that there are exceptions for children with doctor-verified medical reasons to avoid the vaccine and for families that have religious objections.

Barkley said she was "leery at first," because the vaccine was so new, but decided to let her daughters get the vaccine after talking to her doctor. In particular, she thought that if most other children were vaccinated, it would be difficult for her daughters to catch the illness and develop a natural immunity until later in life, when it can be more dangerous.

The American Academy of Pediatrics reported that the vaccine was 70 to 90 percent effective at preventing the illness altogether in clinical trials and 95 percent effective in preventing severe outbreaks. The academy and the CDC have recommended routine vaccinations for children over 1, and say it is also effective for adolescents and adults.

Reed said specific vaccination numbers are unavailable for Maryland, but he believes that doctors are encouraging, and parents are widely accepting, the vaccine. He noted that chickenpox vaccine is being distributed to low-income families through the state's Vaccines for Children program at the same rate as vaccines for measles, mumps and rubella.

Barkley said she is not opposed to vaccination, as long as the decision is up to the parents, not mandated by the health department. She said she would wonder "why are they making me do this."

"It should be my choice," she said.

Registration For Preschool To Be Held Again

The Garrett County Board of Education announces that the comprehensive preschool registration program, which began 21 years ago, will be held again this year. This program is for all children entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time in September.

This registration program, which will be held in all elementary schools during April, has been developed to help identify strengths and needs of children and to identify early any problems that may interfere with a successful start in school, according to Phillip Lauver of the board of education.

Because of a change in state regulations, parents must register any child who will be 5 years old by December 31, 2000. This new law allows the following exemptions to the school attendance requirements: permits compliance through the home school instruction regulation; grants a one-year immaturity waiver if the parent or guardian makes a written request to the local school system; and allows a 5-year-old to be enrolled in one of three alternative program settings — a full-time licensed child care center, a full-time registered family day care home, or part time in a Head Start 5-year-old program.

Parents of children who meet the above qualifications are asked to fill out the registration blank on this page and mail it to the designated address. All parents registering children for school will receive a registration appointment. However, parents who choose to use one of the exemptions from the required 5-year-old attendance must request the appropriate exemption form from the Department of Pupil Services at 301-334-8939, Lauver said.

Parents are to bring their child's birth certificate, an official immunization record, and social security card, and to provide important information for the school's records during the registration. New state regulations now require parents to also bring proof of current residency, such as: deed/mortgage agreement, current property tax bill, current rental lease or agreement, or current utility bill with applicant's name and address.

In addition, each child registering for school will receive a general health interview. Parents should be aware that a booster immunization for MMR (measles, mumps, and rubella) is required for kindergarten and first grade registrants. Immunizations, if needed, will be administered on site by the Garrett County Health Department nurses, free of charge.

State Park Programs

DEEP CREEK LAKE

Horse-drawn sleigh rides will be departing from the Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park this Saturday, Feb. 19, at noon, 1, 2, and 3 p.m. The cost is $5 per person and children under 4 ride for free. Reservations may be made by calling the center at 301-387-2038.

Broken Bar Stables provides the sleigh rides at Deep Creek Lake and Herrington Manor state parks (see below) in partnership with the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Nature Tourism Program, which can arrange special group bookings upon request. Interested persons may call 301-387-7314 for information.

HERRINGTON MANOR

Cross-country ski clinics will be held at the concession stand building at Herrington Manor State Park this Saturday, Feb. 19, and Sunday, Feb. 20, at 10 a.m, noon, and 2 p.m. The cost is $25 per person, which includes ski rental, one hour of instruction and one hour of on-trail assistance and/or instruction. The clinics will be conducted by Allegany Expeditions, and are designed for both beginners and more experienced skiers.

Horse-drawn sleigh rides will depart from the concession stand building of the park this Sunday, Feb. 20, at noon, 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 p.m. The cost is $5 per person, and children under 4 ride for free.

Reservations for the ski clinic and the sleigh rides may be made by calling the park on weekdays at 301-334-9180 or on weekends at 301-334-8464.

On Dean's List At Wesleyan

Among the students named to the dean's list at West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, for outstanding academic achievement during the fall 1999 semester was Ann Sebold, daughter of Don and Charlotte Sebold, McHenry. She earned a grade point average of at least 3.5 on a 4.0 scale while carrying a minimum of 12 hours of credit.

Sebold is a 1999 honor graduate of Northern High School and a freshman at Wesleyan, where she is majoring in elementary education.

West Virginia Wesleyan College, which is affiliated with the United Methodist Church, was founded in 1890 and has an enrollment of about 1,500.

Amateur Radio Licensing Exams To Be Offered

Local amateur radio operators will be given an opportunity to earn their licenses by taking the licensing exams that will be given Saturday, March 18, in the Oakland municipal building. Exams will be given for all classes of amateur radio licenses. The exams will be given in the public meeting room, beginning at 9 a.m. that day. The fee is $6.65.

Anyone wishing to register for the exam and/or obtain more information may telephone 301-387-6167 or send an e-mail to k3wj@arrl.net.

County Observes School Guidance Counselors Week

Garrett County schools observed National School Guidance Counselors Week last week, February 7-11. As part of the week's observance, the Garrett County School Counselors Association recognized two new counselors as well as focused on goals of developing conflict resolution programs and character development programs throughout the county.

Progam Goals

Northern Middle School counselor Jack Settle explained that these programs were "particularly important" as part of the local, state and national efforts to reduce violence in schools. Bonnie Swyter, elementary guidance counselor, noted that each month elementary schools are attempting to emphasize positive character traits such as honesty, responsibility, citizenship, and caring. Middle and high school counselors are considering how to continue this program in the secondary schools, she noted.

Another part of the effort to reduce violence in schools includes instructing students in conflict mediation and developing peer mediation programs at all school levels. Tim Watson, elementary school counselor, described the elementary school counselors' activities with students. "The main lesson series involving conflict resolution in the elementary schools is taught in six to eight sessions with fourth graders," stated Watson. "We cover conflict with peers, teachers, and parents and how to resolve conflict peacefully in a win-win situation, meaning that all parties can come away from a conflict feeling like everyone was a winner. We talk with fifth graders about peer pressure, especially during Red Ribbon Week in October. With third graders we teach lessons on getting along better with classmates," he explained.

In the high schools, conflicts are handled through mediation, sometimes by counselors and sometimes by peer counselors. Joanny Martin, Northern High School guidance counselor, noted that Northern High School recently implemented a complementary component to the Peer Counseling Program. "The Peer Counselors trained 10 students in the mediation process," Martin said.

Referrals for mediation come from students, staff, and administrators regarding students who are involved in disputes. The mediators attempt to resolve the disagreement in a "precise and mutually acceptable manner" before it becomes an irreversible conflict. "The Peer Counselors orient the student body to this process in hopes that students will learn life-long mediation skills," Martin said.

New Counselors Recognized

Southern Middle and High schools both have new counselors this year. Stephanie Howell is a first year guidance counselor at Southern Middle School, and Steve Dauses, who has several years' experience as a guidance counselor, is serving as a guidance counselor this year at Southern Garrett High School.

Howell, who lives in Finzel with her son Schuyler, received her bachelor's degree in psychology from Frostburg State University. She earned her master's of education in guidance and counseling in the spring of 1999, having served a practicum at Beall Jr.-Sr. High School.

Howell also has accomplished 21 hours toward a master's of business administration. "I chose guidance and counseling as a career, because I have a natural interest in all people, especially children. I have been interested in the psychology field since high school and have thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated my education endeavors," she said.

In addition to her education degrees, Howell has served as a team trainer to a local dance/drill team in Allegany County for five years. Having her aerobics certification and membership through AAAI/ISMA company, she teaches aerobics at the YMCA in Cumberland and at Frostburg State University.

Howell's hobbies include running, dance/exercise, skiing, and horseback riding.

Steve Dauses resides in McHenry with his wife Candy and the youngest of his four children. He holds a bachelor's degree in psychology from Hofstra University, N.Y., and a master's degree in psychology/counseling from Towson State University.

Dauses has worked for three years as a high school psychology instructor, seven years as a high school counselor, and 18 years as a cooperative education coordinator. During the 1998-99 school year, he served as the instructor for the Alternative School, a Garrett County high school program located at Southern High School.

Dauses explained his reasons for becoming a school counselor. "I enjoy helping students, staff members and families," he said. Dauses' hobbies include tennis, gardening and reconditioning furniture.

Potomac State College Open Houses Slated

Potomac State College, Keyser, W.Va., will hold open houses for prospective students on Monday, Feb. 21, Thursday, March 16, and Saturday, April 8. Those attending will have the opportunity to tour the campus and learn about admission requirements, financial aid, scholarships, housing, campus life, and majors. Meeting faculty members and interacting with current students will also be a part of the day's events. A complimentary lunch will be provided in the campus dining hall.

The open houses are targeting prospective students who have not yet applied at Potomac State. Students who have already applied will receive invitations to a special orientation day.

Potomac State College is a branch of West Virginia University. Persons desiring more information about the college or the open houses may telephone the admissions and records office at 800-262-7332 or 304-788-6820.

On Dean's List, With Who's Who

Rhonda K. Schwinabart, daughter of Vivian and Richard Schwinabart, Accident, has been named to the dean's list at Hood College, Frederick, and is also listed to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Schwinabart, a 1996 graduate of Northern High School and a senior at Hood, earned dean's list recognition for outstanding academic achievement in the fall 1999 semester. Her selection to Who's Who was based upon her academic achievement, community service, leadership in extracurricular activities, and potential for continued success.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

The Junior Firemen met on Thursday night for their monthly meeting. They will participate in CPR training on February 17 at 6:30 p.m. at the fire hall, with Jeff Beitzel as instructor.

The Youth of Emmanuel celebrated Valentine's Day with a party at the church. They plan a sledding outing at New Germany State Park soon.

Work continues at Emmanuel Lutheran's new church. The Building Committee members meet weekly, with hopes of an early summer dedication.

Word was recently received from John, Angela, and Elizabeth Tarrant (one of our former Mission Builders families from Oklahoma City) that John has accepted a position at Rainbow Trails Lutheran Camp near Canon City, Colo. They soon will be leaving the pressures of city life to move to the small town of Hillside, Colo., a community similar to Bittinger. They added, "If we can't move to Garrett County, this will be the next best thing." They send their warmest regards to everyone at Emmanuel.

Lenny and Torrey Poholsky attended the Pittsburgh Penguin/Edmonton Oilers hockey game at Mellon Arena on Friday night. It ended in a 2-2 tie after a five-minute overtime, which was an added treat for Torrey.

Barbara Michael, Oakland, was a Wednesday guest of Sally Poholsky.

Betty and Ellis Sacra, Partlow, Va., were visitors of Ruth DiPaolo last week. They returned to their home on Sunday after visiting other relatives in Lonaconing and Cumberland.

Ruth DiPaolo entertained her friend, Shirley Johnson, with a birthday dinner in Cumberland on Thursday evening.

Ferne Beachy and Sally, Lenny, and Torrey Polosky visited June and Bill Green in LaVale recently. They also celebrated Valentine's Day with dinner in LaVale.

Olen and Ruth Beitzel, the Don Brenneman family, and the Ron Cling family returned on Tuesday, Feb. 8, from a flight to Disney World in Florida. The vacation was a Christmas gift from the Beitzels.

A surprise "over the hill" birthday party was given last Thursday for cousins David Yoder, born December 24, 1959, and Sharon (Brenneman) Knupp, born December 31, 1959. Approximately 50 members of the Sanford Bender and Henry Brenneman families attended the pizza dinner at the Dry Run Church gym in Bittinger. Sharon told them, "I may be over the hill, but I'm not through the meadow yet."

Believe it or not, I got some good written news from some of my neighbors this week. Thanks to Sharon Knupp and Sally Poholsky. Also thanks to Donna Glotfelty, who faithfully sends in her news.

The Bittinger 4-H Club visited Our Town Theatre in Oakland for a brief public speaking workshop conducted by Jane Avery. I was amused to hear that Meredith had trouble talking "off the top of her head" on any subject, especially since all her teachers at school remark how she can talk.

Today (Monday), Valentine's Day, is a major holiday for the elementary school kids. Mrs. Holiday plans a party for today. Mere did quite a good job on the valentine box, and our family contributed a few dozen homemade cookies. My girls were up early and excited about their valentine presents. Mere is running around before getting dressed for school in a T-shirt over pink underwear. Her little bottom looks like a valentine and it is hard to resist pinching it, but she hates that.

Here it is late winter, and there is quite a lot of running around. Most of the time I just want to chill out at home. On the other hand, I usually feel down at this time of year, so I try to force myself to go out. You get a beautiful snow cover and then it turns warm with lots of rain or sleet, or just a lot of mud. I never did get the winter picture that I wanted of the rail fence in Brenneman's Grove with all the snow, or a good shot of the big hemlocks freshly covered with puffy pillows of snow on those rocks and rhododendron along Rock Lodge Road near the spring. All the precipitation is so good for our ground water supply. I am so relieved since last summer's drought really stressed me out. I believe that this coming summer will be a good hay season. Bad ski winter/good hay summer. Let's test that out.

As part of my resolution to try doing more social things with interesting people, I accepted an invitation to attend a dress rehearsal of Our Town Theatre's play, Our Town, since that group is filled with people I enjoy visiting with, namely, director Jane Avery, cast members Susan Bell, Liz Gilbert, Don Sincell, Ben Sincell, Mike Hall, Richard Hill, and Fred Jacoby, and a whole bunch of others, too.

The production was excellent. The play is so familar to me since I studied in many classes and did a scene from it in my acting class in college. It holds many memories for me, and I was struck by the amount of humor potential in it. The cast members should be given credit for their amusing performance.

Thanks again to all of you who contributed news for me this week.

Masons To Meet

Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free, and Accepted Masons, will have a regular communication on Tuesday, Feb. 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple. The Entered Apprentice Degree will be conferred. All Master Masons are invited to attend and join in refreshments after the meeting.

Riggleman On Board At Salem

David Riggleman, who joined the board of directors at the Maryland Salem Children's Trust last year, has recently been elected to serve a three-year term with that organization.

Employed as the vice president of investments at the Cumberland office of the financial firm Legg Mason Wood Walker Inc., Riggleman has served as chairman of the board of YMCA Cumberland downtown branch and on the legislative committee of the Allegany County Chamber of Commerce.

A member of the Western Maryland Station Center board of directors, Riggleman also coaches PeeWee and Little League baseball. "Mr. Riggleman brings his knowledge and experience in economics to the Salem board, which directs a residential educational program for children in need," a spokesman for Salem said.

Riggleman lives in Cumberland with his wife Kelly and three sons, Grant, Jonathan, and Ben.

SWANTON NEWS

OTTERBEIN CHURCH

The Brotherhood met last Tuesday evening at McHenry United Methodist Church. Orval Teets, Ray Sweitzer, Jesse Skipper, and Richard Gerlach attended from Swanton.

The United Methodist Women met at the home of Mary June Harvey on February 8.

Plans for the "Call to Prayer and Self Denial" meeting were discussed. Louise Beckman and Shirley Lipscomb are in charge of the service, to be held March 14 at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary of the church. A covered dish luncheon will be held in the social room following the service. Alverta Sweitzer and Doris Howell will host the luncheon.

COMMUNITY CENTER

The February meeting of the Center will be held Monday, Feb. 21, 7:30 p.m.

Those interested in the $500 scholarship may pick up applications at the meeting on Monday evening or from the scholarship chairperson, Dorothy Bernard.

PERSONALS

Orval and Mareva Teets attended a meeting of the National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Workers, Unit 103, on Wednesday, Feb. 9, at the Ponderosa in LaVale.

Betty Wildesen, who has been unable to be out and about, has had numerous visits from neighbors, friends, and Pastor Ball and his wife Maxine.

Luella Baker has had several family members from Ohio visiting her recently.

Former Swanton residents Steve and Lucinda Davis hosted a family party Saturday for the first birthday of their son Jacob at their home in Augusta, W.Va. Their daughter Amber helped with the party. Those attending from Swanton were: Elwood and Lenore Davis, John, Linda, and A.J. Fleming, April Tichnell, Randy, Lawre, Zachary, and Hannah Virts, Richard Gerlach, Orval and Mareva Teets, and Carl and Grace Lee. Chris and Ellen Riley of Mt. Airy also attended.

Henry and Amanda Hinebaugh Rexrode, Oakland, announce the birth of their 6 lb.,7 oz. daughter, Kathleen Faith, on February 9 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Millie and Jim Rexrode, Swanton, are the paternal grandparents.

Meredith and Maxine Ball visited their son Mike, his wife Franci, and their son Michael in Gettysburg, Pa., last week.

David and Mary Louise Wilson celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary on Valentine's Day. Their family provided a dinner for them at the Silver Tree restaurant.

GED Application Deadline Noted

4-H Club News

SNOWY CREEK

by Stacey Glover

The Snowy Creek 4-H Club held its first meeting of 2000 on February 10. Our January meeting was canceled. There were 24 members and 12 adults present, and one guest, Brittany Diehl.

The 2000 officers include: Mark Wolf, president; Keith Artice, vice president; Amanda Frantz, secretary; Stacey Glover, reporter; and Shelby Glover, treasurer.

At the meeting we had a guest speaker, Woody Watson. Watson spoke about his hobby, photography. He explained how to observe and take pictures of objects, and showed us a display of pictures that he has taken.

There was an officers meeting held on January 16 to decide the 2000 agenda, which the club accepted. Those who attended were Mark Wolf, Keith Artice, Amanda Frantz, and Michael Guard.

Members who attended the 4-H ski day were Michael and Mitchell Guard, Jennifer and Lincoln Lowdermilk, Darrick Lowdermilk, Michael and Lindsay Wolf, and Will Gallagher.

The club also voted to do a Mousetrap Race Car activity for next month's meeting, which will be on March 9.

The Foster Care Staff of the Garrett County Department of Social Services would like to give special thanks to the staff of the Meadow Mountain Youth Center, especially Dan Duggan, Rob Baker, Thomas Lancaster and Eric Wilson, for our recent trip to the Bowden Cave.
It was a very valuable and rewarding experience.

Thanks again!!

Grantsville Native Accepts Position As Jail Director

Grantsville native Allan Collins has recently accepted the position of director of the Riley County Jail in Manhattan, Kan. A 1978 graduate of Northern High School, he earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice at East Central University in Ada, Okla., and is currently pursuing a master's degree at the University of Tulsa, Tulsa, Okla.

Having worked for 14 years in the Oklahoma Department of Corrections, Collins stepped in to oversee operation of the Riley County Jail, following the resignation in September of the previous director.

In his new position, Collins will be responsible for operations of a new law enforcement center, scheduled to open next month. The facility is designed to house inmates in four pods, designated maximum, medium, and work-release sections for males and a multi-custody section for females.

The inmates housed at the new law enforcement center will be under direct supervision, which involves more interaction between inmates and corrections staff than the "lock-down" type supervision used at the current jail site, Collins explained.

Prior to moving into the new facility, Collins will familiarize the corrections staff with the direct supervision procedures that will be used within the new pod system. He will also be responsible for updating the jail's policies and procedures to bring them in line with those of the American Correctional Association, the national organization which certifies jails and prisons.

Collins, who is married to the former Myrtle Harris, is the son of Ruby Collins, Rawlings, and the father of Melissa and Becky Collins, Accident.

On Dean's List

An Oakland resident is among 235 students at Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa., who were named to the dean's list for outstanding academic achievement during the fall 1999 semester.

Kevin M. Andrews, a senior geology major, was named to the list for earning a grade point average of at least 3.6 on a 4.0 scale. The 1996 graduate of Southern High School is the son of Joe and Darlene Andrews, Oakland. He is also a member of the Juniata soccer team.

Juniata College is a private, liberal arts college with an enrollment of 1,250.

GCC Sets Oil Painting Class For Beginners

A beginning oil painting class will take place at the Oakland Center of Garrett Community College beginning Friday, March 17, and will continue for five consecutive Fridays from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. The course is being offered by the college's Continuing Education Division.

Participants may rent brushes, cleaner, and paint from the instructor for a $10 fee. Those participants interested in purchasing their own supplies will need oil paints, brushes, and an odorless cleaner. All participants must supply their own pencils, paper towels, and a 16-by-20- or 18-by-24-inch canvas.

The cost of the course is $31 tuition plus a $4 registration fee. A registration deadline has been set for Friday, March 10, and no registrations will be taken after that date. For more information and to register, interested persons may call GCC's Oakland Center at 301-334-8304.

COVE

There will be a farm safety event on April 7, 6:30 to 9 p.m., in the Bittinger fire hall. The farm safety is for everyone and there is no cost.

Linda and Keaton attended the pastor appreciation dinner at the Western Maryland Christian Center in honor of Pastor Mike Robinson. Carl Stallman was a Monday evening supper guest of the Thomases. Linda Thomas attended the funeral of Mrs. Margaret Hilliard and dinner following on Tuesday afternoon.

Darlene Schmidt and daughter Rachel and Cassie Adkins delivered a food basket to the Wiles family on behalf of the Cove Kids 4-H on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Julia Bender and children Michelle and Michael, Cassie Adkins, and Rachel Schmidt represented the Cove Kids 4-H Club on Thursday evening by helping set up for the dance at the Accident fire hall. Darlene Schmidt, Rachel, Cassie, Becky Wiles, and Kevin Haenftling attended the Valentine's dance at the Accident fire hall on Friday evening. Mrs. Schmidt and daughter and Cassie were Saturday visitors of Pam Schmidt, Kara Alt, and Melissa Collins, Morgantown. Mrs. Schmidt and daughter, Brett House, and Cassie attended the "love your pastor" dinner at the Rush Baptist Church on Sunday. They were afternoon visitors of Anita House.

A Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Markel Maust was Phebe Maust.

Jeremy Bender was a Thursday visitor of Andrew Mosser, Grantsville. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bender and family were Sunday evening supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bender and family.

Cindy Green and daughter Christy, Oakland, were Sunday afternoon visitors of Joyce Paugh and Josephine Upole.

Derrick Bender is spending the week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bender, and family. Derrick is a student at Rosedale Bible Institute, Irwin, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Harman and son Blake were among the guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wampler to help Saylor celebrate his second birthday on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve McClintock were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Broadwater, where the Broadwater family met for a family dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Pete Morris, New Smyrna Beach, Fla., spent several days in the area visiting with family and were among the dinner guests at the Broadwater home.

A Saturday luncheon guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Long and daughter Beth was J.R. Thomas. Saturday supper guests of the Longs were Linda Thomas and son Keaton. The Longs were among those who had dinner at the Church of His Marvellous Light, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., on Sunday to honor Rev. and Mrs. Jerry Frankhouser for pastor appreciation. The Longs visited at the Humbert Funeral Home, Confluence, on Monday following the death of Mrs. Long's aunt, Margaret (Peg) Hilliard. The Longs had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hiles, Hyndman, Pa., Bob Hiles Jr., Philadelphia, Barbara Basinger, Ohiopyle, Pa., Scott Kemp, Confluence, Pa., Debbie Hiles and friend Shirley, Syracuse, N.Y., and Carrie Holler and son Levi, Hyndman, Pa. on Monday evening at a restaurant. Mr. and Mrs. Long attended the funeral service and fellowship luncheon on Tuesday for Mrs. Hilliard.

NMS Students Hold Holiday Social Event

Following several weeks of preparation, Northern Middle School students in Lisa Carr's class hosted their annual Christmas social event for their parents, school staff, and faculty.

Prior to the event, students designed and sent invitations, reviewed their hosting and social skills, and practiced their recipe reading, measuring, and cooking skills. The students also discussed hygiene and health issues in preparation for hosting the party.

Students prepared, displayed, and served many kinds of cookies, fudge, Chex mixes, dips, and punch. For the occasion, eighth grader Jerry Cosner assumed the role of Santa Claus.

On Dean's List

Area students were named to the 1999 fall semester dean's list at West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, W.Va. Students on the dean's list have achieved a 3.5 or higher grade point average for the semester while carrying a load of at least 12 semester hours.

Misty Rodeheaver, Oakland, a junior international studies major, and Ann Sebold, McHenry, freshman elementary education major, were among those on the list.

West Virginia Wesleyan College, founded in 1890, enrolls approximately 1,500 students. The college is one of a select handful nationwide designated a "Think-Pad University," providing a personal laptop computer to each incoming freshman.

Good Will From Goodwill

by Linda Beitzel
Goodwill Mennonite Home

January, along with its usual snow and delays, brought us recognition week for the activities department. Idella arranged her usual quiz pertaining to the residents. Using their names and some imagination, the quiz proved to be quite a challenge for the staff. Only Debra Beachy was correct with her answers. For that she chose ceramic salt and pepper shakers from the crafts department.

The activities department was also responsible for bringing the Amish ladies, who quilted a lovely quilt in just two days. The first day, there were nine ladies, and the second day there were seven. All materials and labor was donated with Idella Bender furnishing the material, Verda Tice doing the piecing, and Shirley Teets and Idella donating their time and vehicles for transportation. Miriam Bender, Alice Orendorf, and Sandra Yoder provided them with lunch each day. After it is bound and finished, it will be sold at the Country Fest auction, held by the Dry Run Mennonite Church.

The monthly birthday party was hosted by Christ Lutheran Church from Grantsville. There were nine honorees and each was presented with a corsage of yellow silk carnations. Entertainment was provided by Ellinor Benedict, who played her fiddle. They served ice cream and cake for the celebration.

The sound coming from hand-cranking on an ice cream maker filled the activities room for our much anticipated ice cream party. We have the electric ones, but the residents enjoy hearing the manual ones, and assisting when they can. Vera and Elvin Beitzel provide ice cream makers and some "crank." Mary Alice Skidmore and Ella Maust also assisted. A lot of reminiscing was done, like comparing what kind of salt to use and obtaining the ice from the ice house. Of course, the best part being tasting!

The residents liked the return of our regular schedule after our flurry of holiday activities. And after a few days of canceled programs due to flu, the evening programs were welcomed once again and appreciated.

We welcome our newest residents: Anne Schmidt from Owings Mills; Velma Green, Keyser, W.Va.; Rhoda Miller from Springs, Pa.; and Eleanor Wolfe from Oakland.

Our sympathies go to the friends and families of Geneva Glass, who passed away in January.

January programs were presented by: the Tony Wilburn family, Duane Frederick, Friendsville Methodist choir, Maple Glen Church, Little Meadows Baptist Church, Alan and Alta Birkby, Crystal Keefer, the Daymond Shmuck family, Praise and Worship team from Cherry Glade, Mark Durst and Charlie Moses, Full Gospel Church, Southern Middle School Handbell Choir, Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren mixed chorus, Jim Miller and Marthy Duncan, missionary Ann Taylor, Charles and Barbara Winnebrenner, Glade Mennonite Church children, Dry Run Mennonite choir, and the Miller girls.

Congratulations to Charlotte Stanton for receiving the Jack and Dorothy Smouse Scholarship at Garrett Community College.

Group Slates Second Bible Quizzing Event

The Min. Top Youth for Christ will hold its second Bible quizzing event of this season on Sunday, Feb. 20, at Faith Evangelical Free Church, Min. Lake Park, beginning at 2 p.m.

The quiz questions will concern information in Acts 3, 4, 5:11. Refreshments will be served during a social hour following the quiz. Families, friends, and other interested members of the community are invited to attend.

Future quizzes are slated for March 12 and April 9, plus a quiz camp weekend in April. For more information on these events or the Min. Top Youth for Christ group, persons may call quizzing coordinator Janie Beitzel at 814-662-2942.

JWCC Holds Monthly Meeting

The Junior Woman's Civic Club met last Thursday at the home of Elizabeth Huxford for the club's regular monthly meeting.

During the business meeting, donation checks were written to the Northern Rescue Squad, the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad, and the American Heart Association. The club also decided to sponsor JWCC member Kathleen Seaman as a participant in the 2nd annual Deep Creek Dunk to benefit Maryland Special Olympics. The meeting concluded with the drawing for the door prize, a Party-Lite candle, which was won by Elizabeth Huxford.

The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, March 2, and will be held at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center.

The Junior Woman's Civic Club is open to women age 18 and older. Anyone interested in attending the next meeting or joining the club may contact Beverly Haines at 301-387-9629, Beverly Barb at 301-334-2113, or any club member for further information.

The Maryland State Forest & Park Service is offering for sale the following timber on 30 acres of Compartment 45 of Garrett State Forest. Said timber is estimated to cut 150,950 Bd. Ft. of live hardwood sawtimber according to the International ¼" Saw Kerf Rule and 90 standard cords of hardwood pulpwood, more or less. All tallied trees 11" DBH and larger with at least one 16' log to an 8" top DIB with less than 50% defect were tallied as sawtimber.

Timber is located on the west side of Piney Mtn. Rd., approx. one mile south of the Sang Run-Cranesville and Piney Mtn. Road intersection. Timber is offered for sale subject to the following conditions:

1. Timber will be shown at 9:00 a.m. on Tuesday, February 22, 2000. Anyone interested in seeing this timber should meet at the intersection of White Rock-Cranesville and Sang Run-Cranesville Roads, at the above date and time.

2. Contract/Bid Forms will be available at the showing or from Potomac-Garrett State Forest Hdqts., 1431 Potomac Camp Rd., Oakland, MD 21550, 301-334-2138.

3. A Security Bond in the amount of ten percent of bid amount must be posted upon submission of the bid to the Maryland State Forest & Park Service.

4. The operator must be a registered Forest Product Operator to be awarded successful bidding.

5. A Performance Bond in the amount of ten percent of bid amount must be posted upon acceptance of the contract by the State of Maryland. The Security Bond may be applied to cover the Performance Bond.

6. Bids will be received until 1:00 p.m. on Monday, March 6, 2000, at which time they will be opened publicly.

7. Bidder may pay 50% of bid price on acceptance of Contract, with the remaining 50% payable within 90 calendar days from bid acceptance. If Buyer selects this option, the delayed payment must be covered by a payment surety bond in form acceptable to the State.

8. All timber volumes noted in this offering are estimates. Parties bidding on this timber should determine such volumes to their own satisfaction. No adjustments on the basis of volumes will be made with buyers.

MARYLAND DEPARTMENT OF THE ENVIRONMENT WATER MANAGEMENT ADMINISTRATION NOTICE OF TENTATIVE DETERMINATION
Garrett County
Application for State Discharge Permit 99-DP-0532:

Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation, 5400 Westheimer Court, Houston, Texas 77056-5310 submitted an application to renew a permit to discharge methanol contaminated brine and well workover wastewater from a natural gas storage and transmission facility, located approximately 1.5 miles west of Maryland Route 219 on the Accident-Friendsville Road near Accident, Maryland, to ground waters of the State via infiltration lagoons.

A tentative determination has been made by the Department to reissue the permit requiring that prior to any on-site discharge of any wastewaters, the effluent be sampled and analyzed, and the permit's effluent limits met for methanol, volatile organic chemicals, and ethylene. Periodic monitoring of the surface water and an on-site water well will also be required.

A public hearing on the tentative determination will be scheduled if a written request is received by March 2, 2000. The request should be sent to the Maryland Department of the Environment, Water Management Administration, 2500 Broening Highway, Baltimore, Maryland 21224, Attn.: Ching-Tzone Tien, and must include the name, address and telephone number (home or work) of the person making the request, the name of any other party whom the person making the request may represent, and the name of the facility and permit number. Failure to request a hearing by March 2, 2000 will constitute a waiver of the right to a public hearing on the tentative determination. Written comments concerning the tentative determination will be considered in the preparation of a final determination if submitted to the Department, to the attention of Dr. Tien at the above address, on or before March 13, 2000. Any hearing-impaired person who requests a hearing may also request an interpreter at the hearing by contacting Dr. Tien at (410) 631-3662 or by written request to the above address at least ten working days prior to the scheduled hearing date.

Information supporting the tentative determination, including the draft permit and fact sheet, may be reviewed by contacting Dr. Tien at the above telephone number to make an appointment or by written request to Dr. Tien at the above address. Copies of documents may be obtained at a cost of $0.30 per page.

PUBLIC NOTICES

Notice to Grant Waiver

The Maryland Department of Aging proposes to grant a waiver of Sec. 306(a)(C) of the Older Americans Act, 1965, as amended, to the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging (AAA). This section requires each area agency on aging to expend a percentage of Title IIIB funds to provide legal assistance to older individuals. The State has determined that amount to be 5%. In requesting a waiver of this provision, Garrett County AAA has demonstrated that existing services meet the State requirement for legal assistance.

Older individuals in Garrett County are advised of the availability of legal assistance services through the Garrett County AAA Information and Assistance program, brochures and other publications, and outreach efforts on the part of Garrett Co. AAA staff. The demand for legal assistance services is met through existing legal assistance services provided to the agency on a Pro Bono basis. The commitment for Pro Bono services exceeds the demand for legal assistance services.

The waiver of Section 306(a)(C) of the Older Americans Act, 1965, as amended, for Garrett County AAA will become effective thirty (30) days from the date of publication of this notice.

PUBLIC NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE that the Town of Oakland, on the 7th day of February 2000, introduced an Annexation Resolution, in accordance with the provisions of Article 23A, Section 19 of the Annotated Code of Maryland, for the annexation of the area known as the Memorial Drive Area Annexation, and providing that the area to be annexed shall be zoned as "Residential/Office" (RO) category as defined by the Oakland Zoning Ordinance. The full resolution as introduced is as follows:

BEFORE THE MAYOR AND TOWN COUNCIL OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND

RESOLUTION NO.: R2000-02
(ANNEXATION NO. A2000-01 - MEMORIAL DRIVE AREA ANNEXATION)

WHEREAS, pursuant to Section 19(b) of Article 23A of the Annotated Code of Maryland, the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland have initiated this Resolution to enlarge the corporate boundaries of the Town by annexation of land adjoining and contiguous to the existing corporate boundaries, and being the area known as the Memorial Drive Area Annexation, as is depicted in detail on a Plat dated January 12, 2000, prepared by Kerry S. Shultz, surveyor; and

WHEREAS, the Mayor and Town Council have caused to be made a verification of the fact that the said annexation has been consented to by not less than twenty-five percent (25%) of the persons who reside in the area to be annexed, and who are registered as voters in County elections, and from the owners of not less than twenty-five percent (25%) of the assessed valuation of the real property located in the area to be annexed, as evidenced by the signatures of said persons on writings establishing their consent.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE MAYOR AND TOWN COUNCIL OF OAKLAND, MARYLAND, THAT ALL THE LAND LYING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF THE HEREINAFTER DESCRIBED PARCEL OR PARCELS SHALL BE ANNEXED TO AND BECOME PART OF THE TOWN OF OAKLAND:

ALL THAT AREA KNOWN as the Memorial Drive Area Annexation, situate, lying and being in Election District No 7 of Garrett County, Maryland, lying north and south of Memorial Drive, approximately 0.6 mile northeast of the intersection of U.S. Route 219 and Memorial Drive, more particularly described as follows:

Wal-Mart Site Prep Under Way; MDE Meeting Set

Site preparation work began this week for the Wal-Mart Supercenter project in the northern end of Oakland. Soil runoff mitigation infrastructure is being put into place, and two construction equipment entrance driveways, one off old Route 219 across from Food Lion and the other off Garrett Highway just north of the existing grocery store, are being constructed for sediment control purposes by the project's general contractor, Cleveland Construction.

The work is allowable in advance of a 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 1, public informational hearing at Oakland's city hall, sponsored by the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE). The public hearing is being held to "allow the applicant [most likely Wal-Mart representatives from Freeland and Kauffman Engineering of Aiken, S.C, and/or Jim Cook Consulting] to make a presentation concerning their project and its anticipated impacts," on sensitive wetland and waterway areas, according to a statement by Matthew Radcliffe, environmental specialist with MDE's Nontidal Wetlands and Waterways Division.

"The public will be afforded an opportunity to ask questions and make comments concerning those aspects of the project which fall under our review and authority, including questions concerning potential cumulative impacts. The Department will also make a presentation concerning

NO PICNICKERS TODAY — High waters on Saturday morning definitely would have nixed any picnicking plans at Rotary Park in Oakland, where the Little Youghiogheny River and Wilson Creek swelled far above their banks, flowing through the Mountain Fresh Pavilion, and at one point completely covering the Rotary Park bridge railings. While the Potomac and Youghiogheny rivers rose to a degree, the real problem this weekend was caused by the county's smaller creeks and streams. Several homes were flooded, mostly in Crellin and Friendsville, and roads and bridges were damaged. See story and more photos throughout today's issue. Photo by John McEwen

Commissioners Cut Business Property Tax

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners this week announced that the county's business personal property tax rate will be cut 10% this year. All businesses in the county are eligible for the reduction except utilities. The action is partly the result of a request made by the Garrett County Economic Development Corporation three years ago, which led to legislation being passed allowing the commissioners to reduce the tax.

The development corporation asked for the reduction in order to enhance the county's attractiveness to new businesses, as well as to support existing companies. The commissioner board at that time agreed with the rationale and requested the Garrett County Delegation to the General Assembly to introduce the enabling legislation, which was enacted in 1997.

The development corporation asked the commissioners to lessen the tax each year, finally ending it completely in 10 years. Because of budget limitations in the first eligible year, a reduction was not made. Last year there was also no reduction, but the commissioners agreed to put up a match of $250,000 in a revolving loan fund specifically to support local economic development. This is the first year since the enabling legislation was enacted that a reduction in the tax has been made.

James Hinebaugh, director of the Garrett County Economic Development Department, was present for the announcement and voiced his appreciation to the commissioners for the action.

"I want to thank you for this — I know it's a tough decision," Hinebaugh said. "I really appreciate the commitment to economic development that this board has made."

Commissioner Frederick Holliday said he was con-

Small Waterways Overflow Banks; Homes, Businesses Flooded Saturday

A combination of melting snow and a rainfall of over three inches in 24 hours caused flooding Friday and Saturday in several areas of Garrett County, chiefly in Crellin, Friendsville, Grantsville, and Oakland. While no injuries were reported as a result of the high water, several homes were damaged, as well as roadways and bridges.

"The big rivers weren't our problem this time," said Brad Frantz, director of Garrett County Emergency Management. "The flooding was mostly in little streams and creeks. Just about every small stream in the county came up over its banks."

The most seriously affected areas were Crellin and Friendsville, Frantz said, with houses taking in water in both towns. Water came into the cafeteria in the Friendsville Elementary School, and flowed into houses in Crellin that are already in line for flood mitigation assistance.

"The folks in Crellin are getting sort of used to it," Frantz said, noting that a Red Cross shelter was established at the Crellin Elementary School for a short time. "We recommended that the families evacuate, but no one did."

The Holland Nursery in Crellin sustained damages as well, with potted plants washing down the river. In Oakland, the Little Youghiogheny spilled over its banks, filling the flood plains and damaging the Rt. 39 bridge, which was closed for several hours until the waters receded on Saturday.

An apartment building along High Street in Oakland was evacuated, Frantz said, because high water extinguished the pilot light, causing the building to have a potentially dangerous gas leak. The problem was resolved quickly, Frantz said. In Grantsville, a vehicle became stranded in high water and the riders had to evacuate, he reported.

The high water caused minor problems at the Deep Creek Lake Water Treatment Plant, according to Ron Petrella, director of the Garrett County Sanitary District. It also has caused more serious problems in Bloomington, where the water supplies are now muddy and residents must boil their water before using it. (See separate story.)

Petrella's staff worked with the State Highway Administration to repair a roadway in Friendsville. The road was nearly washed out, and a water pipe nearby was damaged as well. The problem was fixed yesterday, Petrella reported.

While several roads were impassable for much of the weekend because of high water, Fred Polce, superin-

Oakland Delays Plans To Annex

Oakland has postponed the annexation of property along Memorial Drive and canceled the hearing scheduled for March 20.

The decision to take this action came as a result of the need to address zoning issues in the area proposed for annexation. "This is only a postponement. We have to do some work on zoning plans and ordinances in the town master plan," said Oakland mayor Asa McCain Jr., adding that the plans require regular updating.

McCain said a meeting with the town's attorney is slated for Tuesday, Feb. 29, to review some of the zoning strategies under consideration. "We didn't have enough days to get the work done. We still plan to continue with the annexation," the mayor concluded.

Fire Destroys Mobile Home, 4-Year-Old Is Hospitalized

A fire believed to have been caused by an electrical problem seriously damaged a Friendsville-area mobile home Friday evening, destroyed all of the possessions of the family of Jeffrey and Christina Travis, and ultimately sent one of the couple's three children to the hospital for treatment.

Volunteers from several area fire departments were called to the Travis residence, located along White Rock Road, at 6:36 p.m. According to Friendsville fire chief Terry Spear, flames were showing when firefighters arrived on the scene. Mr. and Mrs. Travis and their three children, Cecil, 6, Ashley, 4, and Nancy, 1, escaped the trailer, but 4-year-old Ashley had to be taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital on Sunday for treatment of smoke and carbon monoxide inhalation, which aggravated her asthma condition. She remains a patient at the hospital.

The loss was estimated to be at least $6,000 and the mobile home was rendered uninhabitable. The family, who rented the property, were initially accommodated at the Sunset Inn Motel in Friendsville, courtesy of the Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Some 40 volunteers from the Friendsville VFD and Deep Creek VFC, along with the county air cascade vehicle (housed at Deep Creek VFC), the Northern Rescue Squad, and representatives of the American Red Cross. The Addison VFD sent personnel and a unit to stand by at Friendsville's station.

The family is now residing with Mrs. Travis's mother, Ellen Ford, in Gorman. Persons wishing to assist the family with donations of money, clothing, and furniture may telephone 301-334-0781.

Second Annual Deep Creek Dunk Slated For Saturday

Chainsaws To Be Used To Cut Ice

The second annual Maryland State Police Deep Creek Dunk will be held this Saturday, Feb. 26, behind Uno's Restaurant. Registration will be at noon, with the "dunking" to begin at 2 p.m. for this fund-raising event to benefit Special Olympics Maryland, Garrett County and Allegany County chapters. In preparation for the dunk, plans are on the board to use chainsaws, if necessary, to remove sections of ice so that the dunkers will have sufficient space to run into the water as a group, explained David Gell, a state coordinator for the SOMD event. "We will also have divers from the Department of Natural Resources in the water. Safety of the participants is a major issue for us," he said.

Gell also reported that as of Monday 138 dunkers had pre-registered to take the plunge. "Last year we had 50 who were pre-registered and had 160 show up for the dunk. I don't know exactly what that means for this year, except I think it will be a successful event. Of course we encourage people to walk up and register the day of the event if they have not done so in advance," he commented.

Each dunker must gather a minimum of $50 in pledges to participate in the event, which was modeled on the Special Olympics fund-raising Polar Bear Plunge in the Chesapeake Bay, which has been held for a number of years. The purpose of creating the Deep Creek Dunk was to earn money that would be specifically earmarked for programs for the special athletes in Garrett and Allegany counties, Gell explained.

"This year we are seeing the results of this effort. We are looking at the Special

Boiling Water Notice In Effect For Bloomington

The Garrett County Sanitary District has issued a boiling water notice for the Bloomington Water System until further notice. Recent flooding has contributed to high turbidity levels in the Bloomington area, and all residents of the town are advised to boil water for drinking and cooking purposes, according to GCSD administrator Ron Petrella. Residents are also asked to conserve water any way they can, since tank levels are low in the wake of low production of water due to the turbidity problems.

The lifting of the boiling water notice and conservation of water request will be announced through local media, including The Republican, when official. Persons with questions regarding these matters may contact the Sanitary District at 301-334-1980.

Accident Man Arrested On Rape Charge

A 38-year-old Accident man was arrested Friday and charged with rape and several associated sex offense and assault charges, according to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation.

Roger Dwayne Knox is accused of forcing a 33-year-old woman to have sexual intercourse with him. The charging statement indicated that the alleged assault took place the previous Wednesday at Knox's Aiken Miller Road residence. The initial report was made to the Maryland State Police, who subsequently turned the criminal investigation over to GBI detectives.

Knox faces charges of second degree rape, second degree sex offense, fourth degree sex offense, and second degree assault. He was released from jail after he posted a $50,000 bond.

Spassil Speaks On Dove Center Funding Issues

The current financial status of the Dove Center, Garrett County's resource for domestic abuse, was addressed by agency executive director Linda Spassil at a meeting last night in Oakland. She outlined, to the members of the Garrett County Women's Presidents Council and others in attendance, the Dove Center's current services, partnerships, affiliations, and fundraisers. In addition, she identified the federal, state, and other grant funding streams which the agency accesses.

Charles Strauss To Receive Nat'l Award From Arbor Day Foundation

Charles Strauss, Accident, will receive the 2000 Lawrence Enersen Award from the National Arbor Day Foundation at a special awards ceremony to be held in Nebraska City, Neb., Saturday, April 29. The awards ceremony is part of the Arbor Day weekend celebration held in Nebraska City from April 28 to 30. The Enersen Award recognizes exemplary tree planting and conservation work at the community level.

As a biology teacher, Strauss worked to initiate a comprehensive program of outdoor education and conservation for his students. Northern High School is situated on over 100 acres, including 65 acres of woodland. His program consisted of an arboretum, nature trails, and an amphitheater among the conifers on the property. What was begun as an education program evolved into the Camp Hickory education center, which now includes dormitories and kitchen facilities. The camp hosts programs and organizations, and continues to enhance the class-

Edwards, Hafer To Host Annual Mid-Session Mtg.

The annual mid-session meeting of the Garrett County Delegation will be held on Saturday, Feb. 26, from 10 a.m. until noon in the Garrett Community College auditorium.

Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer will discuss the progress of the 2000 Maryland General Assembly, and will provide information on specific bills that they are sponsoring this year.

All persons interested in the activities of this year's legislative session are encouraged to attend the meeting. Following their presentations, questions from the audience will be fielded by the elected officials.

BIENVENUE! FRENCH STUDENTS WELCOMED - A group of 14 students from Lycée Alain-René Lesage in Vannes, France, arrived in Garrett County February 11. These high school juniors comprise the seventh group of French students to visit Garrett County through the exchange program, which originated in 1986. Their hometown, Vannes, is located in the picturesque coastal provence of Brittany, which is noted for its architecture, traditional costume, and scenic shoreline vistas. During the their three-week visit, the students will visit classrooms at Southern High School, attend extra-curricular activities, and enjoy the hospitality of host families. SHS French teacher Lowell Leitzel coordinates this exchange program. In the photo above from left in the first row are teacher François Urvoaz, Anne-Frédérique Guillotin, Audrey Renoux, Estelle Plaud, Cécile Laudet, Gaelle Tuffigo, Cynthia Derhan, Marine Lemaitre, and Emilie Joy. In the second row are Gael Levavasseur, Matthieu Petitgas, Camille Dauguet, Antoine Josso, Ronan Legrand, and Xavier Chapel.

THE SIGN SAYS IT ALL - A deluge of rain on Friday coupled with melting snow caused several local waterways to swell way above their banks, resulting in considerable damage to local properties, particularly in the Crellin and Friendsville areas. This photo was taken by Pam Glotfelty on a flooded section of Silver Knob Road south of Oakland.

Domestic-Related Incidents Result In Several Arrests

Several domestic altercations in the southern portion of the county resulted in the arrests of five individuals recently, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Two of the incidents took place early this morning.

Deputies summoned to a domestic complaint shortly after 12 a.m. this morning at 948 Crellin Mine Road arrested John Glenn Arnold, 37, Oakland, and charged him with one count of second degree assault. The alleged victim was transported by the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. Arnold is being held in the detention center on a $50,000 bond set by a district court commissioner.

Less than three hours later, deputies responded to 1043 White Church Road after an alleged assault victim made a report at the sheriff's office. The subject reportedly displayed injuries that she attributed to a domestic-related assault by Ray Everett Shillingburg, 41, who was subsequently arrested at the home on a charge of second degree assault. Shillingburg is being held on $5,000 bond.

A domestic incident at 6002 George Washington Highway resulted in Saturday's arrest of Jamie Lynn Glotfelty, 22, Oakland. Glotfelty faces a second degree assault charge after he allegedly pushed a woman into a chair during a 1 a.m. altercation. The police report indicated that alcohol was a factor in Glotfelty's behavior. He was subsequently released on his own recognizance.

A Sunday, Feb. 13, domestic dispute resulted in the arrests of both parties at a residence located at 2818 Maryland Highway. Deputies called to the scene shortly before 11 p.m. arrested Michael Allen DeWitt, 25, and Wanda Jean DeWitt, 25, both of the same address. Each was charged with second degree assault upon the other, and both were released on their own recognizance.

"LET THE GAMES BEGIN" - The Special Olympics Maryland winter games will held on the slopes at the Wisp February 27-29. The Garrett County contingent of coaches, volunteers, and special athletes are ready to let the games begin. After a practice run down the mountains for the alpine skiers they gathered for this photo. From left are coaches Sarah Hofman and Chad Brown, athletes Robert Broadwater, 15, Swanton, and Chad Stallman, 17, Friendsville, and volunteer Carol Walker. In front is athlete Keith Platter, 15 Grantsville. Other members of the Garrett delegation, not pictured, are head of the delegation and coach Sharon Platter, and coach Christine Brown. Below, Stallman practices his run downhill in preparation for the coming challenge.

Sheriff's Deputy Makes Drug Bust While On Patrol

The alert actions of a Garrett County sheriff's deputy on routine patrol resulted in the arrests of three individuals, two of whom were juveniles, on drug charges and alcohol violations last Thursday night in Oakland.

Shortly after 8 p.m., a deputy patrolling through the Southern Garrett County Industrial Park observed a vehicle enter a private parking lot behind the old optical plant. When he approached the parked car and asked the occupants to step outside he reportedly noted the smell of burnt marijuana and saw several beer cans inside the vehicle.

An ensuing search found suspected marijuana on the person of Steven Russell Shiflett, 20, Oakland, and more marijuana and drug paraphernalia inside the car. Shiflett and two juvenile females in his company were each charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia and underage consumption of alcohol.

Shiflett was subsequently released on his own recognizance, while the two juveniles were released to family. The Department of Juvenile Justice will be processing the juveniles' cases.

In other sheriff's news, two subjects were arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI) recently. Mark Bliss Duckworth, 25, Swanton, was arrested and charged with DWI at 5 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 12, after he was discovered sleeping at the wheel of a car parked at the intersection of Bethlehem and Eagle Rock roads. The following day a traffic stop resulted in the DWI arrest of Daniel Blair Sweitzer, 22, Oakland.

GC Unemployment Rate Drops 27% In One-Year Period

According to a report from the Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing, and Regulations, Garrett County's unemployment rate showed the greatest decrease in the state from Dec. 1998 to Dec. 1999. The county's rate dropped 27% in that time.

The 1999 overall average unemployment rate in the county was 8.3%, showing a 37% reduction in a two-year period. This rate is the second lowest rate in the county since unemployment records have been kept, according to county officials.

"Even though the rates are very favorable, much work remains to further improve the unemployment picture in Garrett County," said James Hinebaugh, director of the county's economic development office. The county's rate is still more than 2½ times greater than the state average.

Commissioner chairman Wendell Beitzel said that new businesses and expansions currently under way in the county, or in the planning stages, will continue to improve the rate of employment.

"Strong emphasis in economic development and job creation is starting to pay dividends," Beitzel said.

Commissioner Frederick Holliday said he believes the county must provide strong leadership to develop new businesses and strengthen existing ones. "This will lead to better paying jobs and the further reduction of unemployment rates," he said.

"Much of the success in reducing the unemployment rate is attributed to the growing economy, good Garrett County workforce, and growth in the tourist segment of the county's economy," said Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr. "We have a wonderful opportunity to bring our county into the mainstream of economic activity in the state."

Olympics program being reborn in this area. Garrett County has three athletes participating in the winter games, and Allegany County, which hasn't participated in three years, has four athletes signed up. There is a year-round program in Garrett County now for Special Olympics," Gell noted.

Not only has the program for special athletes in western Maryland been reinstituted, it has recently grown to include additional participants. According to Garrett County coordinator Chad Brown, a new contingent of interested athletes and volunteers have entered the SOMD Garrett County program.

OTT Schedules Auditions For Musical Quilters

Quilters, a musical written by Barbara Damashek and Molly Newman, will be presented at Our Town Theatre April 12-15 and April 26-30. The production has parts for seven females from ages 14 to 70. Auditions for these roles will be held at the theatre in Oakland on Feb. 25, 7-9 p.m., Feb. 26, 2:30-4:30 p.m., and Feb. 27, 1-4 p.m.

Jane Avery, director of the play, said the auditions will include reading, improvisation, and singing. Susan Peterson, musical director, is encouraging auditioners to prepare a song to sing and to bring the sheet music for the piece.

Through interrelated scenes, Quilters captures the challenges and rewards of frontier life for a woman and her six daughters.

"It is a story that explores the human spirit and celebrates human dignity in the face of adversity," Avery said.

Quilters will be produced by special permission of the Dramatists Play Service Inc., and will be funded in part by Maryland 2000, the Stanley P. Smith Family Foundation, and the Maryland State Arts Council.

Questions about the production should be directed to Avery at the theatre, which can be reached at 301-334-5640.

Friendsville Man Arrested Again For Child Abuse

A Friendsville man has been arrested for the second time in four months on charges of child abuse, according to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation. He is currently incarcerated in the detention center on a $25,000 bond set by a district court commissioner.

Thomas Martin Eichhorn, 55, of Bear Creek Road, was arrested Tuesday after he reportedly struck a juvenile with a leather belt on two separate occasions over the weekend. He was charged with two counts of child abuse and two counts of second degree assault.

Tuesday's arrest came after a court appearance on Nov. 17 during which child abuse charges faced by Eichhorn were dismissed and a second degree assault charge was placed onto the stet docket with the condition that he participate in parenting classes and counseling sessions. Those charges stemmed from an October arrest by GBI detectives.

In other GBI/sheriff's office news, an Oakland man was served with a warrant recently that charged him with child abuse. Thomas John McDonnell III, 33, faces charges of two counts each of child abuse and second degree assault, and one count of fourth degree sex offense. Further details of the incident were not available.

McDonnell was released from jail after posting a $5,000 bond.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS BEGIN THIS WEEKEND, and to celebrate the event, the Garrett County commissioners this week presented a United States flag to the three local Special Olympics athletes. The three-day event, to be held at Wisp Resort, will begin Sunday, Feb. 27, and run through Tuesday, Feb. 29, involving over 200 athletes competing in four winter sports. Jason Schriml, the western Maryland district director of the Special Olympics Maryland, asked the commissioners to proclaim next week as Special Olympics Maryland Winter Games Week. Coverage of the events will be published in next week's issue of The Republican. In the photo above, seated left to right are Commissioners Wendell Beitzel, Fred Holliday, and Ernie Gregg. Standing in the same order are Carl "Skip" Rebele of Proctor Kildow Post #71 (organizer of the flag presentation), Robert Broadwater, Sharon Platter, Chad Stallman, Karen Broadwater, Keith Platter, and Schriml.

Police Charge Woman With Assault During Attempt To Serve Warrant

A woman in Friendsville was charged with assault on the police officers who were reportedly attempting to serve a warrant on Monday.

Tfc. J. LeMay of the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police reported that he and Tfc. R. Cuthbertson arrived at a Friendsville residence to serve a warrant to Kimberly Joy Hinkley, 33. The charges on the warrant of unlawful taking of a vehicle and unlawful use of a vehicle had resulted from a domestic dispute the previous Friday, the officer reported.

Upon locating Hinkley at the residence with the stolen vehicle, the officers attempted to serve the warrant and Hinkley allegedly drew a buck knife and pointed it at both officers. She then resisted arrest, according to the police, but was finally taken into custody.

Hinckley was taken to the barrack and to Garrett Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries sustained in the struggle to avoid arrest, the report said.

One Injured In DWI Incident

One passenger was injured and the driver of the vehicle charged with driving while intoxicated as a result of an accident at the intersection of Bumble Bee and Spear roads on Saturday.

Police reported that Adam H. Manning, 20, Glen Rock, Pa., was operating a 1988 Pontiac southbound on Spear Road around 1 a.m. and failed to stop for a "Stop" sign at the intersection. The car skidded through the intersection, off the road, and struck a ditch, Tfc. LeMay reported.

Northern Rescue Squad and Accident VFD responded to the scene and a passenger, Timothy Shifflett, was taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

Faces Charges

Police have charged Frederick County teacher Justin Warfield, 25, with vehicular homicide while intoxicated as a result of an accident January 8 on Mayhew Inn Road in which Brandon Chesnick, 27, also of Frederick County, was killed.

According to the police report, Warfield was operating a Jeep on the snow-covered roadway south of McHenry when he tried to pass another vehicle and the Jeep overturned. Chesnik was a passenger in the Jeep at the time of the accident.

tendent of the Garrett County Roads Department said this morning that a but one roadway are now open. Big Run Road, off New Germany Road, remains closed this morning because of major damage in one location. He said the materials to fix the road should be in by late tomorrow, and the road will be repaired by early next week.

His crew worked this week to replace the Pea Ridge Spur Bridge, which was completely washed out. The bridge is located near Grantsville.

"We finished it yesterday," Polce said. "We're still doing a few touch-ups on it, but it's ready for traffic." Polce said at least two culverts were destroyed, and road shoulders were washed away.

"We've repaired most of the damage, although we're still waiting for some more materials for some of the areas," Police said.

Frantz said his office was extremely busy for hours.

"We were swamped — no pun intended," he said. "The phone rang constantly. But everyone did a great job handling everything. We had volunteers out everywhere checking on people or helping with road closures."

Petrella and Polce agreed that the emergency was handled well by all involved.

"Our staff was out all weekend — they've been great," Petrella said. "And the state roads people have been, too."

Oakland Mayor McCain Seeking Seventh Term

Asa M. McCain Jr., who has served as Oakland's mayor for the past 12 years, announced this week that he has filed for his seventh two-year term in that office. The Oakland municipal election will be held Monday, March 13, when a mayor, three councilpersons, and a town treasurer will be elected.

"I want to thank everyone for their support during the community's recent sesquicentennial celebration," McCain said in making his filing announcement. "My primary reason to want to continue in this office is to finish the restoration of the 1884 train station, as well as the enhancements to the walking trail, which include the beginning of an arboretum featuring native plants."

McCain said he plans to continue his support of the Main Street Program's effort to revitalize the town's economy.

"I also welcome citizens who want to get involved in their community, including seeking a council position or joining one of the many committees formed to enhance opportunities in the region," he said.

The deadline to file for office is Friday, Mar. 3, at 4 p.m. Oakland residents (18 and over) who are not registered to vote in municipal elections may register at Oakland City Hall during regular office hours until 4:30 p.m. Friday, Mar. 3. The town maintains a separate register of voters; however, persons who have registered at the Board of Election Supervisors after January 1, 1990, and who are residents of Oakland are automatically qualified to vote in the municipal elections.

The deadline for obtaining absentee ballots is Monday, Mar. 6, at 4 p.m.

Planning Comm. Seeking Input On Sign Regs

As requested by the Garrett County Board of Commissioners, the county's planning commission is currently investigating the issue of countywide outdoor signage regulations. The commissioners proposed this investigation in an effort, they said, to protect the scenic qualities of the county's highways and landscape, and to promote orderly development of outdoor advertising structures.

The commissioners asked the planning commission to consider a variety of measures that could be implemented to limit the height, size, and location of advertising signs. During the most recent meeting of the planning commission, members discussed existing regulations, areas covered by these existing rules, and the identification of locations that possibly are in need of sign controls. The members also decided that public input is needed on this issue.

"Before we can determine the need for new sign regulations throughout Garrett County, we need to hear the opinions of land owners, business people, and citizens who might be affected by proposed sign regulations," said Charles "Bus" Bender, chairman of the planning commission.

The commission members decided that comments from citizens will be welcome at their next regular meeting, which is set for March 1, 1:30 p.m., in the planning commission meeting room, located on the third floor of the county courthouse. Bender said the commission is open to an exchange of information and opinions regarding sign regulations in the county.

Peace Corps Worker To Speak At Ruth Enlow

As part of Black History Month observances, the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland will on Feb. 26 host a visit from Susan Umstot, a young local woman on leave from the Peace Corps. Miss Umstot has been working for the past 2½ years in Malawi, which is located in the south easternportion of Africa.

The Peace Corps worker, daughter of Jay and Judy Umstot, Oakland, has been serving the African populace in an educational capacity. She has worked for the Ministry of Health, educating the youth about HIV and the means of prevention.

Miss Umstot will speak about her experiences at the library in Oakland on Saturday, Feb. 26, at 1 p.m. She will be dressed as a young African woman and will answer questions about the African lifestyle.

SUSAN UMSTOT TO SPEAK ABOUT MALAWI — A local woman on leave from Peace Corps work in Africa is slated to speak at the Ruth Enlow Library about the past two years of her life, living and working in Malawi. Miss Umstot will most likely be returning to the African country in about one month to finish her third year there with the Peace Corps. While at home, she has offered to give a talk about her experiences, which will be held at the Oakland branch of the library on Saturday, Feb. 26, beginning at 1 p.m. See story. In the photo above, Umstot is pictured as she gets a lesson in sifting maize, the people's main food source. "Everyone was laughing because the maize was flying everywhere," she said. In the photo below, Umstot stands with fellow workers as they open a new youth center.

Spassil Speaks

15. It is the 20th anniversary of its observance, Spassil told those gathered at the Garrett County Lighthouse for the meeting. It was also two decades ago that Spassil began working with victims of violence.

"My dream for victims of domestic and sexual violence began 20 years ago as well. At that time, these issues were not talked about, and victims were left to suffer in silence at the hands of their oppressors," Spassil stated.

She noted that coming to Garrett County in 1998 permitted her to "dream once more" as she saw what had been "grassroots efforts" developing into a comprehensive service delivery system to aid the victims of family violence and prevent future occurrences of such abuse.

Spassil reported that her "dream" included increased staffing, 24-hour hotline coverage, and outreach services available to clients around the county. "I saw funding streams that were untapped and began to access them," she said, noting that it was through such grants that the Dove Center was able to expand outreach services to Grantsville, Kitzmiller, and the Accident/Friendsville area.

"I'm going as fast as I can to access as much money as I can," Spassil explained, adding that it is more difficult to acquire funds for administrative expenses than for direct service costs.

Spassil delineated 22 funding sources with which she is currently working to support various aspects of the Dove Center's multi-faceted program. Each source funds specific types of activities or services, and each grant or contract covers a different period of time, she noted.

Among the services expanded under Spassil's administration have been shelter services. In FY97, shelter bednights totaled 199. In FY99 that number had jumped to 1,222. "To date in 2000 that number is 154," she reported.

The Women's Presidents Council recently issued a challenge to local women to contribute $50 per month for the next four months. To date, $7,000 has been raised, with other money pledged.

The women attending Wednesday night's meeting suggested various long-term remedies, including consideration of rewriting the by-laws of the Dove Center and several potential funding possibilities.

Cut Tax

cerned about making the decision before striking the budget for fiscal year 2001.

"This will mean $150,000 less on our tax base," Holliday said. "I don't like having to set this before we know what the budget is going to be."

Commissioner Ernest Gregg said he felt that "first and foremost" the commissioners must support and stabilize existing businesses in the county, and also work to encourage the establishment of new operations. Commissioner chairman Wendell Beitzel said the county is giving up some tax revenue through this action, but that "ultimately it will be returned two-fold."

Garrett County is one of six political jurisdictions in the state that collect personal property taxes from businesses, and, up until this decision, one of just four that had no exemption at all.

"This is an investment in the future," Beitzel said.

The public meeting was scheduled after MDE received a letter from George Falter of the "Garrett County Chamber of People" that raised questions over the possibility of contamination to wells from salt runoff and other contaminants, and other water quality concerns.

the review process," Radcliffe explained. "Our review is focused upon the proposed impact to 5,173 square feet of emergent wetland and 16,500 square feet of regulated buffer impacts to 60 linear feet of waterway and water quality issues."

The site preparation work already under way is allowable in advance of the granting of the Nontidal Wetlands and Waterways permit, Radcliffe said, as long as the activity does not disturb the wetland and waterway areas described in MDE's statement. Wal-Mart already has permit approval from the Garrett County Soil Conservation District to carry out the sediment control work currently under way in areas not impacting those particular wetlands and waterways.

Cleveland Construction has worked on a number of Wal-Mart projects, according to Oakland project superintendent Jack Demshar. With offices in Cleveland, Columbus, and Cincinnati, Ohio, Orlando, Fla., and Detroit, Mich., the firm often has as many as six Wal-Mart projects under way simultaneously. Demshar said that at its peak the Oakland project will employ as many as 70 construction workers, "quite a few of whom will be local." Demshar also added that he anticipates his firm's construction work will be completed by the end of August.

Health vs. Wisdom...

"I'd rather have my children healthy than bright" is a line in the Thornton Wilder play Our Town that just completed a 10-performance run at Our Town Theatre in Oakland. It is spoken by Mrs. Webb as she reprimands one of her children for reading a school textbook at the breakfast table. The comment tends to evoke a chuckle from the parents in the audience, but then invariably makes them think more deeply about such an opinion. Which is preferable: a bright child or a healthy child?

The line came to mind yesterday when it was announced that, just in the decade of the 90s, there has been a marked increase in cases of type II sugar diabetes in young children, a condition that before hardly existed in this age group. The primary cause of type II diabetes is obesity; therefore, we have far more obese children today than in the past. In fact, 27% of the children in the United States are obese or at least considerably overweight.

The report went on to state that many school systems in our country are curtailing or eliminating altogether physical education programs in order to allow more time for academics. There is so much emphasis and pressure being placed on our teachers and students to improve those test scores. For many children, who come from a home environment that simply does not emphasize the importance of exercise and taking care of one's body, the school PE program is — or was — their only exposure to such an important, life-sustaining necessity.

Another major factor, of course, is the convenience and relative ease of daily life these days. Just a few generations ago there was considerable manual labor necessary just to make it through a routine day — hauling water, chopping wood, tending livestock, working in gardens, mowing the lawn (sans a power mower), walking to work, etc. Those days are gone for good, and with them the healthy exercises that were the by-products.

Never before have we had so much knowledge about our bodies and about the nutritional and physical needs to keep them healthy. Yet at the same time we are slashing programs that help our young people learn how to fulfill those needs in order to spend more money on developing their intellects. We also keep looking for miracle pills to take off pounds, to give us more stamina, and to fix the numerous ills we have, many of which are a direct result of our sedentary lifestyles.

We are going to end up with an entire society of overweight, out-of-shape, unhealthy young adults, who may (or may not) get higher scores on those seemingly all-important tests. This writer tends strongly to agree with Mrs. Webb.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Well, they're at it again! Now the commissioners are proposing an increase in the marriage license fee to help fund the Dove Center. Considering the millions upon millions of dollars that are lavished on businesses, the Economic Development Corp., and the Chamber of Commerce in the form of grants, surely there must be a few thousand available for a much-needed service like the Dove Center. To quote Tillie Fowler, Republican representative of Florida, "What is more immoral than taxing people just because they fall in love?"

Commissioner Gregg said, "If we had code home rule, we wouldn't have to wait for legislation" to increase the fee. Now I don't know a whole lot about code home rule, but I can't imagine giving these guys any more power than they already have. We would likely have increases on everything imaginable and if you think that the $4,000 dollar "investigation" was bad, look out!

P.S. What will they get into next?

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Accident volunteer firefighters and Northern Rescue Squad, "Station 2," for helping my family and me after our accident on Harman Road on Monday, February 14.

I am especially thankful to Michele Snyder, her brother, Paul Harman, Jason Perry, David Hook, and Larry Nesline. Michele stopped when she saw our tracks go down into a steep ravine. When Paul drove up to the accident, he radioed for the rescue squad, assisted us out of the ravine, and assessed our injuries. Michele and her brother helped pull us up out of the ravine, then went out of her way to drive my husband and sister-in-law home. Paul Harman, David Hook, and Jason Perry took care of our grandchildren on the way to the hospital. Larry Nesline drove the ambulance.

Thankfully, none of us was badly injured. All of these people risked their lives out in a snowstorm for no pay. Everyone in Garrett County should be grateful to have such wonderful people who volunteer their time. I am proud that my son is both an EMT and a fireman.

Thank you again to everyone who helped us. You were angels working overtime on Valentine's Day.

Dale and Sherry Umbel

To The Editor:

From time to time, I enjoy reading. I am not crazy about fiction, so I like to read about real happenings and facts.

I just happened to get a wonderful book for Christmas titled The World Almanac and Book of Facts 2000. As I was reading I came across some interesting facts I would like to share with the voting public. If you are not registered to vote you may read this anyway, then go register as a Republican and help me vote the liberals out of office.

I would like to share a quote with you. I will give you the name at the end of my letter. "This year will go down in history. For the first time a civilized nation has full gun registration. Our streets will be safer, and our police more efficient, and the world will follow our lead into the future."

Under the title "Principal Types of Accidental Deaths In the U.S. 1970-98," I will only use the '98 figures. There were 41,200 motor vehicle deaths, 900 accidental firearm deaths; 16,600 by falls, 900 by firearms; 8,400 by poison, 900 by firearms; 4,100 by drowning, 900 by firearms; 3,700 by fires and burns, 900 by firearms; 3,200 ingestion of food or objects, 900 by firearms; 600 by poison gases, and only 900 by firearms.

Why all the hoop-la about firearms? Folks, it's simple. You are being lied to by the media and liberal politicians. Where's the outcry over abortions? U.S. abortions by state 1992-96 — Maryland, 31,310 in 1996; total abortions in the U.S. in 1996 was 1,365,730. I am sure the numbers are even higher now. I repeat, 1,365,730 dead babies! May God continue to have mercy on us. Back to the firearm issue. As I heard an evangelist say recently, "No charge for the extra meat."

Under the title "Deaths In the U.S. Involving Firearms 1996," total deaths, 33,750; suicides, 18,166; homicides 14,037; accidents 1,134; and undetermined, 413. Undetermined means that the intention involved (whether accident, suicide, or homicide) could not be determined.

Let's take homicide for an example. Again, 14,037 confirmed cases with firearms. Under the title "Executions, by State & Method 1977-1997," total number of executions for a 20-year period, all states, 432. Total executions in Maryland for the past 20 years are 2, according to the World Almanac and Book of Facts 2000 Edition.

Now folks, there's something terribly wrong here. Again, according to the Almanac, Maryland currently has 17 people on death row. If you're going to dance, you have to pay the fiddler, as the old saying goes.

Governor Glendening, we don't need anymore gun laws, except one, the right to carry if we so choose, to protect ourselves, family, and property. Start enforcing the laws we already have and fulfill your obligation to the law and citizens of Maryland, and quit trying to take our firearms away.

Firearms are not the problem. People who misuse them are! Deal with them severely and the problem will take care of itself.

The name of the person who made the quote I mentioned earlier — Adolf Hitler, 1935. Surprised? I was also when I read it.

Folks, please start paying attention to what's going on in politics. Quit relying on the liberal media for your information. You are being brainwashed and don't realize it. Take the time to look up the facts for yourself and then make up your own mind. Beware; we are losing our freedoms a little at a time.

Sincerely,
Charles F. Craver
Oakland

To the Editor,

I am writing about a problem concerning the "shut-in," elderly, and disabled people. You see, when traveling to Baltimore with my son for a doctor's appointment around the 5th of July 1999, we stopped at the Sam's Club in Hagerstown to pick up a few items. The problem that I have seen is spread widely over the USA. Upon entering the Sam's Club, I went to the comfort station, and it was extremely packed with men going in and out. It seemed to be a busy and hot day. When I went to leave the comfort station, there was a lady standing outside the door waiting for a turn to bring in her disabled and elderly father, who was in a wheelchair. Having seen the problem with the crowded restroom, it was no place for a lady. I volunteered to take him in to use the restroom because I knew she would have been waiting for awhile to get in.

In all new structures being built, I believe that there should be a special room for the disabled men and women that allow other members not of their same sex to take them to the restroom. I have noticed that they usually have one stall for the disabled people to use, and it sometimes is also used by people without disability problems. I have talked to many disabled people with this problem of going to the restroom.

When I took the gentleman back out, they were extremely grateful for my assisting him. I believe that this is a problem that needs to be addressed by govern-

COMMUNITY

"When you're in trouble, people around here really jump in to help — even if they don't like you." The speaker was a housewife and mother whose young family took over her ancestral home several years ago.

We had seen each other at a recent funeral, and that had been the catalyst for our conversation. Ours is a funeral-going place. People leave their labors, paid and unpaid, in order to pay their respects and to show solidarity with the family who has lost a loved one.

The particular funeral where we had seen each other had been a wonderful event. The gentleman who had died was full of years, and breathed his last in the bosom of his family. The moment of death came during his night time rest, but just the evening before, his bed had been surrounded by children and grandchildren. Tenderness colored the months of his illness, which all knew must lead to death.

It was a death to be envied. Death can be ugly. Death can outrage nature. Naked death is, at its best, a nullity. Death can, however, be so clothed in the bonds of blood and friendship that it becomes lovely. Death can yield the sweet savor of community. So it had done on the day of that funeral.

The goodwife who assessed and praised her neighbors had lived elsewhere. She and her husband have such assorted skills and gifts that they could have chosen to live anywhere. They would have flourished wherever they had set themselves down. Any place would gladly have welcomed them.

They made a choice to live in an extraordinary community that once upon a time was ordinary. In other words, this place was once like most other places. As a patriot myself, I would add that my own community may always have been a little more wonderful than anywhere else, but the difference was once only a difference in degree. Today it is a difference in kind.

When I opine about all the wonderful lost virtues of the past, someone will remind me — and rightly — that the good old days were not equally good for everyone. That is true enough. There is more equality today.

On the whole, however, we seem to use this great gift of greater opportunity for all to squander the good legacy of the past in selfish consumption. It is easier today in America than it ever has been for anyone — regardless of race, color, creed, gender, or anything else — to join the rat race. There is less noblesse oblige in the world today because almost nobody feels noble enough to be obligated.

Many qualities are essential for community to happen. Near to the heart of community is a strong sense of duty. There are things that a person simply ought to do whether they be convenient or pleasant or profitable. So it is that in a true community neighbors help each other — even if they don't like each other.

One of my favorite phrases is "no matter what." It is not a favorite in that I use it often. In fact, I try not to use it too often, because it is serious language. "No matter what" is the language of irrevocable commitment. It is what wedding vows are supposed to mean, but somehow that meaning has been largely lost in our time.

"I love you — no matter what." "I'm your neighbor — no matter what." "We're in this together — no matter what."

"No matter what" is the language of commitment and not of license. If you are my neighbor — no matter what, then that does not license me to burgle your house in order to test the proposition. "No matter what" is language that binds both of us. The obligation is reciprocal. "No matter what" is language to be used with great care, but it is language to be used and to be lived.

Community can still happen today, in a family, in a neighborhood, or even in larger circles, if people are prepared to do the work of love when they can and to do the work of duty even when love fails.

COME BACK, JACK

by Mary Sincell McEwen

When spring teases us in February, I get a little depressed. Warm weather at such an early time can only mean one thing: March will be white. April might be, too. And by that time, especially after having a few weeks of sweet-smelling air and rivulets of melted snow coursing the streets, we just aren't going to be in the mood. I prefer to have winter when it's winter. I actually love it. The snow, the cold, the excitement, the stark nature of it all. It's part of us, our harsh winters. We're better off when we have a proper winter season, which makes the real spring seem all the more wonderful. Life is more interesting when it's iced with layers of snow. I love a good storm, or what my family eloquently refers to as "a real butt-dragger," when the snow is the talk of the town and the forecast is simply "more of the same." I wish it would come back for just a few weeks, with snow flying like it did late last month. That was indeed a butt-dragger of the first degree — a storm similar to the ones I remember as a kid. To those of you who have moved far away, perhaps to places of warmth and no snow, I write to you now to help you remember a true mountaintop storm:

The snow keeps falling. And falling. Its dance is mesmerizing; one can hardly keep from staring for long moments at the white, windswept specks. For three or four solid days they might dance, piling up beyond a foot, drifting feet upon feet in some spots. The wind sculpts bulging, crimped drifts that push out over roadways, seemingly in defiance of gravity. The snow is clean and light, looking like granulated or powered sugar, snaking across the fields and roads. Despite the continuous work of those dedicated snowplowers, some drifts edge out onto the street, bringing the space down to a lane and a half. But experienced Garrett County drivers expect this; we know where the snow drifts, and we know to be careful at those places.

The cold is penetrating. People who don't wear hats wear them, and kids actually zip up their coats. A booted foot sinks into the fluff, and that distinctive creak signals in no uncertain terms that the mercury has not risen far. Even though most boot tops are inadequate in such depths, one knows if she hurries inside and quickly brushes the powdery snow off, her pant legs will be dry because one's body temperature is no match for the outdoor chill. The wind is almost constant, keeping workplaces and homes just on the other side of cool, except for the spots directly in front of wood stoves or furnace vents, which are often draped with sleepy cats. Intricate frosted designs are etched on windows, closing in tighter with each passing hour until only a tiny crescent of clear glass remains. The icicles grow long, like pointy teeth, and even at midday, not a single sun-warmed droplet is released from any sharpened point. They are as stone. To break one, a person must work hard until it gives, punctuating the air with a metallic poink. The lakes and ponds are frozen silent, iron-hard and gray.

The fact is, the weather is deadly. One's life could be sifted away in short order, should there be no shelter. When considering that fact, I feel so snug and safe sitting in our wood-fire warmed living room with the snow swirling about outside. I have always been impressed by how we humans have figured out such ways of protecting our lives, building strong, warm homes to keep ourselves and our children safe from the elements. Even though we sometimes sleep under piles of blankets with all but our noses covered, we are much warmer inside than out, and I'm thankful we are fortunate enough to be secure.

The inrush of snow brings much sporting opportunity, of course — skiing, sled-riding, or general romping about in the drifts. The expanse of Oakland's golf course lends itself beautifully to sledding, so those grounds were visited twice by my family early this month (after the arduous task of getting three little boys dressed properly for such activity. Cheesh!). The sled with runners didn't go very well because the snow was too deep for it. But the plastic flyers were fast as lightening, bolting us down over the hillside through piles of powder and over unexpected drops. We screamed and laughed and bounced, stopping only when we rolled off the sled and into the white cold. I watched my sons do what I used to do — You go down the hill, endure a spectacular crash, and then lie there, silently. Remember that? The snow gives wherever your body lies, perfectly cradling you from head to foot. You stare upward, watching the flakes come down, just barely visible as they are a tad grayer than the sky. It's so quiet. You can just hear the tiny flakes touching down with the gentlest of sounds. You might venture to taste the snow, sticking your tongue into it and squeaking a bite between your teeth. Even though you know you're basically eating rain, it's somehow different. Better. Of course it's only a matter of time before someone in the real world shouts "Are you okay?" and you have to roll over and wave to him. The cold starts creeping through your snow pants anyway, so it's time to get on your feet.

If ever I write a play about Garrett County, I will open it with a completely dark stage, the only sound being that of someone trudging through frigid snow. That footfall squeak will prompt all to recollect the sounds and sensations of winter on the mountaintop, a defining feature of life here in this most beautiful, sometimes wild place. Come on back for a while, Mr. Frost. Give us our due. Then please move on before spring grows old.

THREE INCHES OF RAIN AND MELTING SNOW took a toll in Garrett County last weekend, as the combined events of nature caused the flooding of a number of area streams and creeks. Snowy Creek, the Little Yough, and other smaller waterways did most of the damage, according to Brad Frantz, director of the county's emergency management office. In the photo above, the high water shown is the Youghiogheny in Crellin, which was filled up with the overflowing Snowy Creek. Shown in the background is the Rt. 39 bridge. In the photo above right, the high water in Oakland is shown in a scene shot from the town's train station. Shown below right is the Holland Nursery in Crellin, where minor damages were incurred when the floodwaters swept away some plants and other materials. At left is an apparently "abandoned vehicle" left in the path of rising waters in Crellin.

Bartlett Tries To Put Washington Back In Washington's Birthday

By Ananda Shorey
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — If it were not a bill in Congress, it might sound like a line-up for the next Celebrity Death Match: In this corner, the Father of Our Country, facing off against Honest Abe the Rail-Splitter.

But Rep. Roscoe Bartlett, R-Frederick, insists it was not his intention to pit one president against the other when he introduced a bill to require that federal publications and agencies refer to Presidents' Day as Washington's Birthday again.

"Abe Lincoln was my favorite president," Bartlett said. "But Washington was the only president to be elected twice with every vote in the Electoral College."

Bartlett said the problem began in 1971 when President Nixon announced that the third Monday of February would be Presidents' Day. Bartlett said the name of the holiday was never legally changed from its original title, Washington's Birthday.

"There has never been a law that has said this has been Presidents' Day," Bartlett said. "It was a proclamation by President Nixon that has caught on, contrary to what the law says."

The George Washington Bicentennial Act of 1999 would require all federal agencies and publications to refer to the holiday observed on the third Monday in February by its legal name, Washington's Birthday.

"The federal government needs to be in compliance with the federal law," Bartlett said. The representative has 38 co-sponsors on the bill, which promptly went no where after he introduced it last year. A companion bill was introduced in the Senate in May by Sen. John Warner, R-Va.

Bartlett's bill, introduced on the bicentennial of Washington's death, was stalled after a former co-sponsor, Rep. Ray LaHood, R-Ill., reversed himself and objected to the bill at the last minute. LaHood said Wednesday that he backed off after he realized that the bill would be disrespectful to Lincoln. He said that calling the holiday "Presidents' Day" captures what the country should remember and honor about both Lincoln and Washington.

"I think it (the bill) detracts from the current Presidents' Day holiday," LaHood said. "I think it is trying to ignore Lincoln and I do not agree with that."

Bartlett said his objective was not to be disrespectful to Lincoln, whom he called one of the country's most prominent leaders. But he also said that holidays are not always the best way to honor individuals because the hype can take away from the purpose of the celebration.

Bartlett also has a local interest in this legislation: His district includes the first Washington monument and the first county named for the president.

The bill would not affect states or the private sector, Bartlett said.

"States and businesses can call it whatever they wish," Bartlett said. "We need to set a good example and hope that everyone else will follow."

In a prepared statement, he said 29 states and the District of Columbia celebrate only Washington's Birthday. Maryland is one of those states, according to tourism officials. Fifteen states have a separate holiday honoring Lincoln, and Massachusetts celebrates "Presidents Day" to honor its four native-born presidents, according to Bartlett's office.

A spokesman for Warner said that although the senator thinks other presidents should get recognition, the law says that it is Washington's Birthday and that needs to be kept in the forefront on the federal level.

Bartlett, a staunch Republican, said all presidents should have a day in their honor, even President Clinton, a Democrat with whom the western Maryland Republican frequently disagrees. But honoring Washington separately, he said, is "just the right thing to do."

"Presidents' Day is not a day to celebrate the presidents' birthdays, thank you," he said.

Bartlett Praised By Seniors' Group And U.S. Chamber

Representative Roscoe Bartlett was praised by two national organizations recently, earning commendations from the United Seniors Association Inc. (USA) for his voting record on issues concerning the elderly, and from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce for his "strong support for pro-business policies and legislation in the first session of the 106th Congress."

The president of the 685,000-member USA reported that Bartlett earned a 100% rating during 1999 on seniors' issues.

"He voted right on the big issues of interest to seniors," said President Sandra Butler. These issues included the preservation of Social Security surpluses, tax limitation, Social Security Lock Box legislation, tax cuts affecting seniors, the rights of grassroots organizations to communicate with the public, and health care reform.

"It is vital that Social Security surpluses be saved, not spent," Butler said. "With the continued support of Representative Bartlett, I am hopeful that the Lock Box Bill will be enacted this year."

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, reportedly the world's largest business federation, presented Bartlett with its 1999 Spirit of Enterprise Award.

"In the last session of Congress, Roscoe clearly demonstrated that he supports better jobs, increased productivity, and economic growth, which all go hand in hand with the success of American business," said Thomas J. Donohue, president and CEO of the chamber.

The chamber awards the Spirit of Enterprise based on rankings it gives members of Congress in its publication titled How They Voted. Votes included in the rankings are recorded floor votes on issues for which the chamber's board of directors has established policy, and the chamber's position has been communicated to the members of Congress before the vote.

Bartlett earned an 84% score with the chamber last year, and has compiled a 91% career ranking over his time in office. Key votes for 1999 involved issues such as Y2K liability reform, cutting taxes, expanding trade, and reducing excessive regulations.

THE WHOLE NINE YARDS

Rated R - Running Time: 1:41 - Released 2/18/00

The gimmick of The Whole Nine Yards (naive geek gets involved with the mob) is one we've seen repeatedly in the past few years. Mickey Blue Eyes was cheaper and less engaging than Analyze This; The Whole Nine Yards follows closely in Mickey's footsteps. Since his enlistment as Chandler on Friends, Matthew Perry seems unable to play anything else. His Jerry Lewis-style, slapstick patter is excruciating, only slightly less so than Bruce Willis's cool-headed tough guy.

Perry is a Montreal dentist named "Oz" living with his irritating wife Sophie (Rosanna Arquette, poorly faking a French accent) and hateful mother-in-law. His only friend is his assistant, Jill (Amanda Peet), who counsels him to "dump the bitch" and "get laid." Just when he thinks his life can't get any worse, a famous Chicago hit man named Jimmy Tudeski (Willis), just out of prison after serving time for 17 murders, moves in next door. Because Jimmy has a huge price on his head, Sophie blackmails Oz to go to Chicago and rat him out to his enemies. He is escorted to the home of crime boss Janni Gogolack (Kevin Pollak, with an even worse slavic accent) by Frankie Figs (Michael Clarke Duncan), another hit man, where he meets Jimmy's estranged wife Cynthia (Natasha Henstridge), who is being held hostage, and learns that Jimmy owes Janni $10 million. Janni wants to kill Jimmy to get his money back, Jimmy wants to kill Janni and keep the money, and both want to kill Cynthia to get her out of the way. Soon there is a showdown planned between the two mobsters, and Oz and Cynthia are in the middle. Trouble is, in the meantime, Oz has fallen in love with Cynthia, and will do anything to protect her.

Sound dumb? It is. I can appreciate a mob farce just as much as the next guy, but it has to have characters and dialogue that are either convincing or wacked-out enough to be funny. It has to have a director who can decide what the tone is supposed to be and make all the members of the cast understand this decision, and it needs actors who can consistently deliver the concept. The Whole Nine Yards has none of these. The script by Mitchell Kapner (his freshman effort) is occasionally clever, but riddled with idiotic setups to allow Perry to do a spit take or a vomit sound. Some of the characters are believable as human beings; others are ridiculous caricatures.

Director Jonathan Lynn doesn't help his actors with this problem; he seems undecided as to whether this is supposed to be a thriller, a straight farce, or a romatic comedy. So he simply relies on Perry's pratfalls and some naked female flesh to make us overlook the inconsistencies. The romantic scenes are incredibly weak; Perry and Henstridge have zero chemistry. Peet is remarkably engaging (even though her character does a complete about-face halfway through the film), but Willis is obviously just awaiting his paycheck. Kevin Pollak, who has done well in films like Grumpy Old Men and the HBO miniseries From The Earth To The Moon, is howlingly bad as Janni. His accent is supposed to be overblown, but he downplays it so it just comes off as bad. One can't blame him, though; if he read the script he must have been baffled as to what his character was supposed to be.

And then there's Michael Clarke Duncan, currently up for an Oscar for his powerful work in The Green Mile. It is unfortunate that this film is playing in theatres right now; it appears after his moment in the limelight that he's back to his regular gig as glorified thug. ★★

HANGING UP

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:33 - Released 2/11/00

While Nora and Delia Ephron, creators of Michael, Sleepless In Seattle, and its clone You've Got Mail, are clearly the reigning chick-flick producers in the business, their most recent effort is suprisingly watchable. Hanging Up, starring Meg Ryan, Diane Keaton, Lisa Kudrow, and Walter Matthau, and directed by Keaton, is more substantial than would be expected given the Ephron sisters' previous output. It is another journey into the dysfunctional family genre, where three daughters are trying to deal with the impending death of their elderly, formerly abusive, alcoholic father, the indifference of their divorced mother, and the hectic nature of their own lives, not to mention the various tensions that exist between themselves and each other. As would be expected, the script is at times cloying and unconscionably manipulative, but the interaction among these three actresses and Matthau helps immensely to pull it off.

The film skips back and forth between the present, when father Lou (Matthau) is placed in an L.A. hospital for observation after becoming "disoriented," and several different periods in the family's past, when various father-related events molded our three sisters into the women they have become. Georgia (Keaton), the eldest, is the egocentric publisher of a successful women's magazine named after her. Eve (Ryan) is an accident-prone party planner with a husband (Adam Arkin) and son (Jesse James or Ethan Dampf, depending on the time period), whose panicky nature causes her to be the only one to care for Dad — she constantly worries that he'll die. And Maddy (Kudrow), the youngest, is a spoiled soap opera actress who can't get enough respect from her sisters no matter how hard she says she works. They spend most of the film on the phone to each other, with Eve trying to convince the others to come and take part in the caregiving duties, and the others being too busy.

I think what impresses me about this film is not the plot but the simple reality achieved among the four leading players. Keaton was wise not to overdirect Ryan and Matthau; their spontaneous interaction, which comprises more screen time than her own part or Kudrow's, is comfortable and down to earth. Matthau, especially, is convincing as ever in this grumpy old man role, but with more edge and less humor than in his films co-starring Jack Lemmon. One scene, in which he bursts in on his grandson's birthday party in a drunken stupor, is surprisingly real and disturbing. The few scenes where all three women are actually in the same room are well-performed (partially improvised) and cleverly scripted; they serve to delineate clearly the three separate characters. The unfortunate exception is the final scene, which is such a blatant ripoff of Keaton's 1986 three-sister vehicle, Crimes Of The Heart, it's shameful. I've stuffed plenty of turkeys in my life, folks, and I've never had a need for a bowl of flour nearby. ★★★★

EYE OF THE BEHOLDER

Rated R - Running Time: 1:41 - Released 1/28/00

I've not read the novel Eye Of The Beholder by Marc Behm, but if it's anything like the movie, it escapes me why writer/director Stephan Elliott chose to make it into a film. If it isn't, then Behm must be very upset with Elliott by now. The film is a cinematic mess, and marks a serious career misstep for both those gentlemen, not to mention its stars, Ewan McGregor and Ashley Judd.

McGregor plays "The Eye," a British private investigator obsessed with beautiful, young Joanna (Judd), even though he regularly witnesses her murdering men. He does this by chasing her around the U.S. and spying on her with high-tech surveillance equipment. Whenever she dashes off to a new location (usually right after offing somebody), he quickly gets on the same plane/train/bus and follows her there, somehow arriving early enough to rig up a complex system of cameras and microphones in her hotel room without her knowing it. Then he sits in his car and watches her on his laptop computer. Until she kills some guy and leaves.

To be fair, these two apparently have reason for being so flaky. Joanna's father disappeared when she was a little girl, leaving her with a severe case of separation anxiety and an apparent lack of trust in men. When she is alone with a man, she seduces and kills him before he can hurt her. Or something. Meanwhile, The Eye lost his young daughter when his ex-wife left him, so he is plagued by visions of a young girl telling him what to do, but never trusting him to do what she asks. Or something. Needless to say, the cops are after Joanna, but every time they start to close in, Eye creates a diversion and she escapes.

I'm sure Ewan McGregor is secure in his future; after all, he's slated to perform in the upcoming Star Wars episodes, and we know his character doesn't die — he grows up to be Alec Guinness. But I think he must have realized this film wasn't such a good idea when he was fishing pubic hairs out of Judd's bathtub. Every career has a low point. As for Judd, she's a talented actress on a bad streak. I thought Double Jeopardy was insipid, but . . . if she doesn't start picking her projects more carefully, she's going to have to go back to cleaning Wynonna's van. Also appearing in this film is k.d. lang as the Eye's connection to the investigative firm. Why an American country music star with an aversion to capital letters would be cast as a British agent is beyond me, but lang shows no sense of being British anyway. All she has to do is sit at a computer console with a headset on and act like an affectionate telephone operator. She can't even do that convincingly.

As if to make up for the disjointed quality of the story, director Elliott has incorporated various themes into the film, such as the repetitive use of snow globes, angel statues, and astrology. But unfortunately, these things only pretty up a bad picture. ★½

In Loving Memory Of
who passed away one year ago on February 28, 1999

I can sit and laugh
At the many times you made me cry.
'Cause I grew to love you
As the years went by.

You taught us a lot
With your bossy ways.
How I wish now for
One of those days.

The flowers will be blooming soon.
I remember how you told us
To plant them so
You could see them from the room.

Every time we go over there
I can still see you covered up
In your reclining chair.

With chocolate covered cherries
By your side.
A hot cup of coffee
Your slippers and TV Guide.

You always called us on the phone
To check on us
Or just to say
"Hi Son, how was your day?"

Now the phone is silent, Pop.
And when we come to visit
It's on a grassy hilltop.

We hope that you are at rest.
'Cause to us you were the best.

We love and miss you "Pop",

SWOLLEN CREEKS closed a number of roads and flooded many basements last Friday, as three-plus inches of rain fell in a relatively short period and combined with snow-melt runoff. Above left is a low spot on Underwood Road south of Oakland. Above right is flooded farmland in the Silver Knob area. Below left is Crellin Mine Road covered by an overflowed, usually docile, Snowy Creek. Below right, a pickup fords through waters on Crellin-Underwood Road. Volunteer fire departments were kept busy all night Friday and much of the weekend pumping water out of basements. Various personnel from affected municipalities, the American Red Cross, county and state roads departments, Garrett County Sanitary Commission, and the Office of Emergency Management were also involved in the response effort. Home Detention Sentencing By Judges Supported By House

By Chris Frates
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — The Maryland House of Delegates voted 127-6 Tuesday to again give state judges the authority to sentence prisoners to home detention, a power stripped by a 1999 Maryland Court of Appeals decision.

The high court said in August that only judges in Cecil, Allegany, Calvert, St. Mary's, and Charles counties had the authority under current law to impose home detention, which had been a common practice in all counties. The bill would return that authority to judges statewide.

The Senate passed its own version of the bill earlier this session in just nine working days — lightning fast for a bill approval. There are differences between the two measures, but a Senate leader said Tuesday that he expects to be able to work out the differences.

The sponsor of the House measure, Delegate Dana Dembrow, D-Montgomery, said judges throughout the state asked for the bill. He said it gives them an option between the extremes of hard time and parole, and saves taxpayers money because many criminals pay private home detention companies to monitor them instead of being jailed at taxpayers' expense.

"That is better than just paying a fine and getting back on the street to start drinking and using drugs," Dembrow said. He also said the bill would help free prison cells for violent offenders by letting judges sentence non-violent offenders to home detention.

Delegate James Hubbard, D-Prince George's, stood up to oppose the bill before Tuesday's vote, citing a recent case in Baltimore where a violent felon on home detention was charged with a police officer's murder.

"As we push this through today, we just give judges another way to put people in home detention so they can leave home and go out and commit crimes," he said on the floor. Hubbard tried unsuccessfully last week to require that judges review the criminal record of those they sentence to home detention, but his amendment failed 44-91.

The House did add several clarifying amendments to the bill, however, as well as an amendment to specify that inmates get prison credit for the time they spend on home detention. Then, if home detention were violated, the inmate would have to serve only the balance of his/her sentence in jail, not the entire sentence.

The Senate bill does not address that issue. The House amendments won the support of the public defender's office, which opposed the Senate bill because of its ambiguities, said Theodore Wieseman, a deputy counsel with the office.

Some private home detention agencies, which have seen a drop in business since the ruling, also support the bill.

"I think business throughout the state will pick up, not right away, but slowly but surely," if the bill passes, said Timothy Schlauch, executive director of Alert, a private home detention company.

Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee chairman Walter Baker, D-Cecil, said he expects to be able to work out differences between the bills with House Judiciary Committee chairman Joseph Vallario Jr., D-Prince George's, which would clear the way for final passage.

Gov. Parris Glendening supports giving "the courts more authority" and tightening "the restrictions on criminals," said Raquel Guillory, his spokeswoman. But since Glendening has not read the bill yet, she could not say whether he would sign it.

Frostburg State Diversity Day Activities Set

The Frostburg State University Diversity Center will celebrate Diversity Day with a full schedule of events on Tuesday, Feb. 29. The capstone event will feature speaker Colman McCarthy, former Washington Post newspaper columnist and founder of the Center for Teaching Peace, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Lane Center Multi-use Room.

McCarthy, who wrote for the Washington Post for 28 years, founded the Center for Teaching Peace in 1982. The center is a nonprofit group that helps schools establish a peace studies program or broaden an existing curriculum.

He is the author of several books, including All of One Peace: Essays on Nonviolence, Disturbers of Peace: Profiles in Nonadjustment, and Involvements: One Journalist's Place in the World. McCarthy has also contributed his essays to numerous magazines including the New Yorker and Reader's Digest.

In addition to his role as director of the center, McCarthy is an adjunct faculty member at Georgetown University Law Center and the University of Maryland. He also serves as a volunteer teacher at Chevy Chase High School in Bethesda. He lives in Washington, D.C., with his family.

Other Diversity Day activities include Picture Quiltin.9 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Lane Center Lobby; Heritage Sharing, sponsored by the National Coalition Building Institute (NCSI), and Students Promoting, Educating & Encouraging Diversity (SPEED), from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Lane Center, Room 201, and a Conflict Resolution Workshop featuring McCarthy from 2 to 4 p.m. in Lane Center, Room 201.

The Picture Quiltin.9 activity presents an opportunity to have participants' family photos made into quilt panels. Family members can include biologic, cluster mates, friends, organization members, etc.

The Heritage Sharing portion of Diversity Day events offers an opportunity for the university community to share cultural activities, including dancing, music, and poetry. Also included is a performance by the University Chorale.

The Conflict Resolution Workshop, featuring McCarthy, offers an opportunity to work together to develop means for individuals and groups to resolve conflict without anger or violence.

Diversity Day activities are free and open to the public. For information, persons may contact the FSU Diversity Center at 301-687-4050.

Another installment of the winter "Kidstuff" activities series is slated at Our Town Theatre on Saturday, Feb. 26. The afternoon event is designed for children in kindergarten through fifth grade, and will be held from 1 until 2:30 p.m. at the theatre.

Activities will include games, theatrical improvisation, arts and crafts, and other events. Jane Avery will conduct these activities.

Children who would like to attend Kidstuff should be registered by Friday, Feb. 25. Registration can be made by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640 and leaving a message as to how many children, their names, and their ages.

Participants are asked to make a small donation to the theatre as admission.

"Teen Coffee House" Planned At OT Theatre

A Teen Coffee House will be hosted at Our Town Theatre in Oakland on Saturday, Feb. 26, from 7 until 10:30 p.m. All area teenagers are invited to attend. A $2 cover charge per person will be collected at the door.

The evening will include music, socializing, and other entertainment and activities.

For more information, persons may call the theatre at 301-334-5640.

WVU African Ensemble, Steel Band To Perform

Frostburg State University will present the West Virginia University African Ensemble and Steel Band on Tuesday, March 7, at 7 p.m. in the FSU Performing Arts Center's Pealer Recital Hall. The performance is free and open to the public.

The performance is the fourth in a five-program series from the African American Studies Forum 2000, coordinated by FSU's Dr. Jean-Marie Makang.

The ensemble, founded and directed by Dr. Paschal Yao Younge of WVU, consists of a group of professors and students from WVU who are interested in promoting the African and Caribbean cultures through musical and dance performances. All of the music and dancing in the show is native to these cultures and has been developed over the last century.

The African American Studies Forum 2000 is sponsored by African American Studies, the Maryland State Arts Council, the Office of the Provost, the Office of University Advancement, the Center for International Education, and the Black Student Alliance. Other programs in the series have included lectures and reflections of the African educational system, religion and spirituality, and medical practices. Coming in April, the final program in the series will be a convocation for Martin Luther King Jr., on Monday, April 17, presented by Dr. Norman Fortenberry of the National Science Foundation.

For more information on the performance, persons may call Makang at 301-687-3089 or e-mail him at jmakang@frostburg.edu.

Local Student Lands Role In WVU's Macbeth

A Garrett County student is among the cast of West Virginia University's production of Shakespeare's Macbeth, which will open next Thursday, Mar. 2, and be presented nine times through March 12 in the WVU Creative Arts Center studio theatre.

Matthew Sincell, a junior theatre major at WVU, will portray Malcolm, son of the murdered King Duncan in this classic tale of morality, evil, and the supernatural. The play explores the physical and spiritual world of Macbeth and his followers as they descend into prophetic damnation. The story reveals the darker sides of human nature, complete with witches, spells, ghosts, prophesies, battles, revenge, and murder.

Sincell attends WVU on a full scholarship and has performed a number of roles, including Gus in Arcadia, Sebastian in Snow Orchid, and most recently, Lord Goring in An Ideal Husband. He also had a role as a pirate in the recent West Virginia Public Theatre production of Peter Pan.

Sincell, a 1997 honor graduate of Southern High School and a son of Don and Suzie Sincell, has been a local stage performer since he was a year old, having played numerous roles with the Garrett Choral Society, the Ecumenical Youth Ministry, and in school productions.

Macbeth is being directed by Jerry McGonigle, with set design by James Winsor, costume design by Virginia Johnson, and stage combat/choreography by Thomas O'Conner.

The play will be presented at 7:30 p.m. on March 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, 10, and 11, and at 2 p.m. on March 4 and 12. Tickets may be obtained by calling the WVU box office at 1-304-293-SHOW.

The production is tentatively slated to be performed several times in Germany by the WVU cast this spring.

Theater Group Slates Musicals

Apple Alley Players/McNeill's Rangers Inc., the community theater group based in Keyser, W.Va., has announced a twinbill for its summer 2000 season.

The theater group that first debuted the original outdoor Civil War musical/drama McNeill's Rangers in the Larenim Park Amphitheater in Mineral County in 1985 will once again present that production, as well as Rodgers and Hammerstein's classic musical, Oklahoma!

Apple Alley will be presenting the two historic musicals on alternating weeks this summer, beginning with McNeill's Rangers on June 29, 30, and July 1; Oklahoma! on July 6, 7, and 8; McNeill's Rangers, July 13, 14, and 15; Oklahoma! on July 20, 21, and 22; and a final week of McNeill's Rangers on July 27, 28, and 29.

Both productions will be presented at the Larenim Park Amphitheater, a rustic outdoor theater in Mineral County along Patterson Creek Road three miles north of Burlington, W.Va.

For more information about either of the productions, interested persons may call 304-788-0458.

FSU Theater To Stage Comedy: I Hate Hamlet

The Frostburg State University theater department will present I Hate Hamlet, a student production under the direction of Marty Spears, on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 25 and 26, at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center Studio Theatre.

This comedy, which Paul Rudnick set in New York, portrays the problems faced by an acclaimed actor, Andrew Rally, who has been offered the role of Hamlet, which he does not want to play. Other characters involved in the plot are a girlfriend, an agent, and the ghost of John Barrymore.

The cast includes FSU students John Bennett, T.C. Kouyeas, Andrea Smith, Carly Churchey, Jason Knox, and Karen Saidman.

For information, persons may contact the FSU theater department at 301-687-4145. FSU is committed to making all of its programs, services, and activities accessible to persons with disabilities. One may request accommodations through the ADA Compliance Office, 301-687-4102, TDD 301-687-7955.

Huskies Dominate Bi-County Tourney; Rams Place Second

Garrett County dominated the annual Bi-County Wrestling Tournament, held Saturday at Northern High School, as the Huskies rolled to a first-place team victory with 292 points and the Southern High Rams placed second in the six-team event with 171 points. Fort Hill placed third with 124 points, followed by Beall with 100.5, Westmar with 41, and Allegany with 36.

The Huskies, who won the Maryland State Dual Meet Championship the previous weekend, captured an incredible 12 individual titles out of the final 13 bouts, while Southern Ram John Hayhurst won the 189-pound division crown.

Earning championship trophies for the Huskies via pins in the final round were: Pete Stein in the 103-pound division, Matt McNees at 119, Paul Beitzel at 130, defending state champion Brandon Stein at 135, and David Wampler in the 171-pound division. Winning on decisions for Northern were: Blake Huber at 112, Jeremiah Guard at 125, Brandon Kamp at 140, Keith Artice at 145, Adam Brenneman at 152, Mark Wolf at 160, and Ryan Savage in the 275-pound class.

Hayhurst also won on a pin for the Rams.

Garnering a second place for the Huskies was Ryan Brenneman (189), while Chris Hayhurst (103), Shawn Shiflett (130), Nick Sines (135), Jeremy Lear (140), and Jeremy Hayhurst (160) all earned runner-up trophies for the Rams.

Placing third for the Rams were Geoff Tressler (125), Keith Bennett (145), and Shawn O'Brien (171). Finishing in fourth place for Southern were Adam Murray (112), Justin Gregory (119), and Brad Palmer (275).

Both the Huskies and the Rams will return to the mats this Friday and Saturday in the West Region championships, to be hosted by Middletown High School. The top four finishers in the regional event will advance to the state 1A/2A championships.

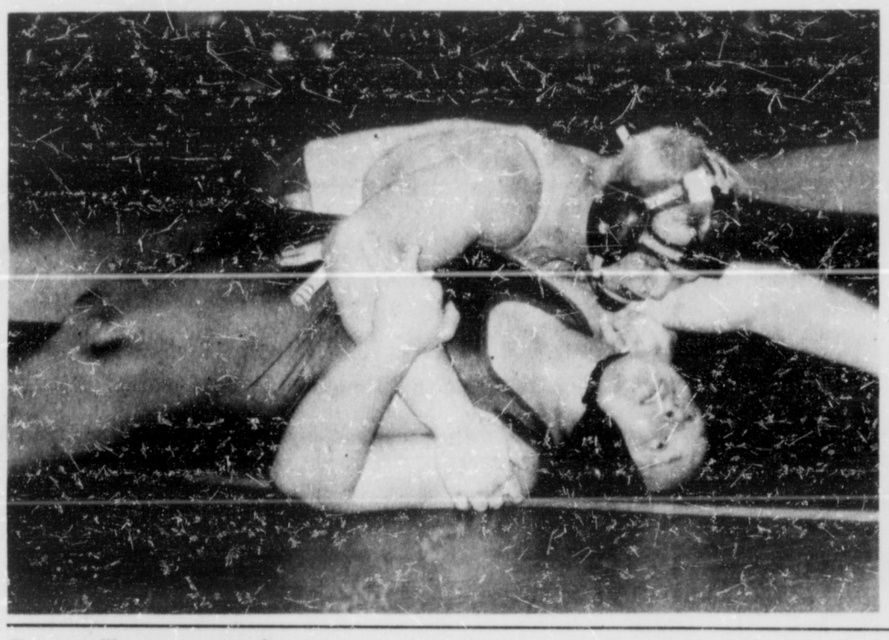
DOMINATION is among the adjectives one would use to describe how the Northern High wrestling team did in Saturday's annual Bi-County Championships, which were hosted by the Huskies. The Northern squad captured 12 of 13 individual championships to coast to a convincing team victory. Placing second in the six-team competition was the other Garrett County team, the Southern Rams. At left, NHS head coach Scott Stough and assistant Steve Savage display yet another Husky-earned trophy. Above center, Northern's Mark Wolf works hard to earn a decision over Southern's Jeremy Hayhurst to win the 160-pound division crown. Above right is Southern's only individual champion, John Hayhurst, left, as he tangles with Northern's Ryan Brenneman in the 189-pound final and ultimately pins Brenneman. Below left, Northern heavyweight Ryan Savage controls James Riggins of Allegany in the finals and goes on to earn a 16-7 decision. Below right, Northern's Jeremiah Guard handles Brian Crowe of Beall and finally wins a close 1-0 decision to claim the title in the 125-pound class. The Rams and Huskies will move on to the West Regional Championships this weekend. Photos courtesy of Delos Carpenter.



Northern Mat Team Wins At Pa. Tournament

The Northern Youth Wrestling Team was among many that participated in a tournament Saturday at Meyersdale, Pa., with 15 of its members placing among the top four in their respective weight/age divisions.

Capturing first places for the local team were: Jason Opel, 6 and under, 62 pounds; Josh Duckworth, 7-8, 70; Jason Warnick, 9-10, 55; and Brandon Opel, 9-10, 85. Earning second-place trophies were: Cooper Corley, 6-under, 53; Zach Watkins, 7-8, 70; Cory Tressler, 9-10, 70; Ryan Winebrenner, 9-10, 80; Travis Rounds, 9-10, 85; Andrew Ganoe, 9-10, 90; and Brock Glotfelty, 11-12, heavyweight.

Ryan Finzel, 9-10, 75 pounds, and Robert Stark, 11-12, 110, each finished in third places, while Adam Finzel, 6-under, 45, took a fourth place.

Levi and Clay Fazenbaker also participated.

The team will compete again this Saturday, Feb. 26, in a tournament at Rockwood, Pa., with competition slated to begin at 9:30 a.m. The team's first- and second-year wrestlers will compete at Rockwood on Sunday, Feb. 27, beginning at 10 a.m.

SMC Wrestlers Compete Again, Win 13 Trophies

The Southern Mat Club youth wrestlers earned numerous awards at a tournament in Meyersdale, Pa., on Saturday. Seventeen team members traveled to compete against wrestlers from central Pennsylvania and Maryland and, of those 17, 13 earned trophies for fourth place or better.

Individually, six SMC wrestlers captured the championship trophy in their respective class. Jakob Scheffel, Brutus Scheffel, Daniel Carr, Justin Ratliff, Jeremy Gregory, and Scott Wildesen each defeated all their opponents to earn the top prize. Earning second place at Meyersdale were Ryan Ratliff and Colin McCaffrey. Third-place award winners were Nick Brant, Gavin Murphy, Derek Fratz-Orr, and Zach McCaffrey. Placing fourth was Kevin Mauk.

Other team members who competed but were unable to earn a trophy were Kurt Gangler, Nick Fratz-Orr, and Coty Rasel, who each won two matches, and Paul Beckman.

This weekend, the team will travel to Mapletown, Pa., on Saturday and Rockwood, Pa., on Sunday for more tournament action.

NORTHERN'S FOURTH-QUARTER RUN fell short last night in a 67-52 varsity boys loss to visiting Fort Hill. The Huskies, down by 10 going into the final stanza, had battled back to cut the lead to three points in the closing minutes, but the Sentinels' accuracy from the free-throw line sank NHS's hopes. Power forward Joel Resh (#34), is shown above putting a shot just over a defender's outstretched hand for two of his 10 points while, from the left, his Husky teammates Tim Umbel (#22), who scored a team-high 13 points, and Rob Dozier (#50), who pulled down a game-high 10 rebounds, await the result. Below, forward A.J. Thomas (#30) looks for an opening to feed the ball outside for a possible three-point attempt by another NHS player, possibly Umbel, who connected for three long-distance buckets. Resh and P.J. Workman (#24) scramble for position in the background. The 12-9 Huskies close out their regular season tonight at Beall before their first 1A West Region Playoff contest Tuesday at Oldtown.

Husky Rally Falls Short In Clash With Sentinels

A loss last night by the Northern High boys' varsity assured Fort Hill a share of the Western Maryland Interscholastic League title with Southern, as the Huskies fell to the visiting Sentinels, 67-52. Coach Paul Edwards and his team, now 12-9 overall and 5-6 in the WMIL, have one remaining regular-season game this evening at Beall before entering the 1A West Region tournament.

The Huskies had the momentum early last night and jumped out to a 14-7 lead by the end of the first quarter. But Fort Hill settled down and out-scored the home team in the second stanza by a 26-8 margin to take a 33-22 advantage into the locker room at halftime. The second quarter featured a 14-0 run behind the three-point shooting of Fort Hill's Jason Repac and Eric Dudley.

The third period was evenly played, with Northern down by 10, 43-33, going into the final quarter. The Huskies rallied to cut the Sentinels' lead to just three points in the fourth period, but then fell back again when they had to foul and Fort Hill made good on their free throws. The Sentinels connected on 14 of 16 opportunities all in the final period.

Dudley led Fort Hill's scoring effort with 24 points, 10 of which were scored on 12 free-throw attempts in the fourth quarter. Jeremy Snyder also reached double figures with 15 points.

Leading Northern's attack was Tim Umbel with 13 points, nine of which were scored from long range. Josh Resh netted 10 points, and Rob Dozier, who fouled out of the contest, scored seven points and grabbed a game-high 10 rebounds.

The Sentinels finished their regular season with an 18-3 overall record and an 11-1 mark in the WMIL, their only league loss being to Southern. They will enter the 2A West playoffs next Tuesday.

Service League Title Contests To Be Saturday

The Service Club Basketball league will hold its fifth annual "Saturday Championship Showdown" this Saturday, Feb. 26, in the Southern High School main and auxiliary gymnasiums. Competition will get under way with a junior division (5th and 6th grade boys) consolation game at 9 a.m., followed by the junior division title contest at 9:30.

The consolation game in the girls' division (8th grade and under) will begin at 10 a.m. and be followed by the title game at 10:30. The senior division (7th and 8th grade boys) will play its consolation game at 11 a.m. and its championship contest at 11:30.

The senior division title game will be followed by a pizza party, sponsored by Little Caesar's Pizza and Browning's Foodland and held in the SHS cafeteria. Parents are reminded that team and individual photographs will be distributed at the party. The league directors invite all players, parents, families, volunteers, referees, and sponsors to attend.

HUSKY CHEER TEAM FOURTH IN STATE - The 1999-2000 Northern High School Cheer Team recently competed in the Maryland State Cheerleading Championships at College Park and returned home with a fourth place in the state. The team also recently qualified to attend the Cheering Across America National Championship, to be held in Myrtle Beach, S.C., next month. They will start their "Reach the Beach" competition tour this weekend in Ocean City, and will end their long season at Kings Dominion in April. "We have a well-rounded team this year," stated Lisa Carr, head coach. "We have excellent stunters, dancers, and, for once, good gymnasts." Assistant coach Larah Friend added, "The community support has been wonderful, and we extend a special thank you to all donors." Members of the team pictured above include, front row, from left: Carrie Friend, Leigh Ann Sheft, and Laramie Slawson; middle row: Moriah Geis, Coty Warn, and Brooke Butler; and back row: Jennifer Goehringer, Janelle Sines, Amber Welmer, and Brandi Fazenbaker.

Smiley's Upsets 219 Motors In League Playoffs

Third-seeded Smiley's upset second-seeded 219 Motors, 58-56, in semifinal action of the Mountain Top Men's Basketball League Sunday afternoon, while top-ranked Condoerr survived a scare by Midas, seeded fourth, and held on to win, 77-74, in the other semifinal.

The contest between Smiley's and 219 Motors was close throughout, but 219 did not have anyone big enough to match up with 6-7 Joe Refosco, who hit a game-high 23 points, including six in the final minutes of the fourth quarter. Jon Hegeman tried to answer with outstanding three-point shooting, as he connected for five long-range buckets and finished with 17 points to lead 219 Motors.

With the game tied and 11 seconds left on the clock, Scott Shahan took an inbounds pass and hit a running jump shot with just two seconds left to secure the win for Smiley's. A long inbounds pass with just two seconds left was stolen by Aaron Newcomb and time expired.

Shahan finished right behind Refosco by scoring 21 points in the victory.

Undefeated Condoerr led throughout the second game, and was on top by a 54-45 margin after three quarters. Midas trailed by 16 points with just two minutes left, but went to full-court pressure defense. C.J. Getson then hit three consecutive three-pointers after Condoerr turnovers to cut the lead to seven points. Midas then fouled Pete Brosnihan, who missed the front end of a one-and-one, and Oliver Jones responded with another three-pointer for Midas to cut the lead to four points. Midas again fouled Brosnihan, who again missed his first free throw, and Getson hit yet another three-point bucket to make it a one-point lead with just four seconds left.

Midas then fouled Dennis Gibson on the inbounds play, but Gibson sank both foul shots to put Condoerr back up by three. Midas could not get open for a three-point shot in the final seconds.

Gibson led the winners with 31 points, while Jason Brenneman and Jones netted 27 and 21, respectively.

Smiley's will meet Condoerr in the title game this Sunday, Feb. 27, with a noon tip-off.

Sparkles & Sweets Benefit a Huge Success!

The seventh annual Sparkles and Sweets benefit held February 18 was a HUGE success. Everything sparkled on a rainy night as people dined, chatted and bid on over 150 items.

Martin Heise, Wendy Friend, Tracy Shuttlesworth and the wonderful staff at Will O' the Wisp did a superb job as always of displaying the desserts and meeting all our needs. The Dinner for Two gave each of us a great selection and beginning to a fine evening of delectables.

Paul Mullan, our Master of Ceremonies, showed his other talent as an auctioneer— and all done with humor and enthusiasm as he filled in at the last moment.

Dave Zimmerman, the incomparable Mr. Z, provided music throughout the evening for listening, dancing and enjoyment for all.

The Republican, Weekender, Cumberland Times* and *The Lake-Front placed our pictures and articles in prominent places so the word was spread about the event.

Paul Wampler, The Town & Country Printer, went beyond the call of duty by meeting our ticket printing needs promptly and with last minute changes.

The night could not have happened had it not been for all the following businesses and individuals who donated items, services and desserts. We are forever grateful and appreciative.

Rams Contain Tornadoes In Heart-Stopper, Edge Knights

A heart-stopping, four-overtime, 66-59 victory at Keyser on Monday evening and a come-from-behind, 42-37, win just 24 hours later at home over Preston brought a dramatic close to the regular season of the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team, as Coach Tom Bosley and the Rams are now preparing for the 1A West Regional Tournament.

The two victories this week gave the Rams an 18-4 overall record, and they are the top seed going into the regional playoffs. They were awarded a bye in the first round and will meet the winner of the Mount Savage/Hancock game in the quarterfinals next Tuesday, Feb. 29.

Southern trailed through the first three quarters against Keyser, which was played Monday after rain and flood conditions forced postponement of the game last Friday evening. The Rams were behind by a 7-6 margin at the end of the first quarter, trailed 16-14 at intermission, and were down by seven points, 29-22, going into the final period.

With just seconds to play, it appeared that the Golden Tornadoes would pull off the upset of the Rams, as they had a three-point lead and possession of the ball. But a Keyser player shot the ball from three-point range with about 15 seconds remaining, missing the rim entirely, and the Rams regained possession for a final attempt to knot the score. Following a time-out by Coach Bosley, play resumed and Justin Liller drained a three-pointer with just 1.7 seconds on the clock to knot the score at 40-40 and send the contest into its first overtime period.

Liller had one of his best individual efforts of the season, as he finished with a game-high 26 points and was a perfect 8-for-8 from the foul line.

The Rams were again down, this time by two, with just seconds to play in the first overtime period, but Justin Stephens came through with a basket at the 1.4-second mark to tie the score again (44-44) and add another four-minute overtime period.

Nathaniel Panther sunk a pair of three-pointers in the second overtime period to help the Rams stay even again, as that extra stanza ended in a 54-54 deadlock. Panther then recorded another long-range goal with just 5.1 seconds left in overtime period number three to tie the score at 57-57 and force the fourth extra period.

Keyser was forced to foul in the fourth OT, repeatedly sending the Rams to the line, where they converted nine of 10 attempts to put the game away. Liller and Panther were both 4-for-4 in that final period, while Jason Finch recorded one of two.

Panther also had an outstanding night for the Rams, as he recorded 22 points, including nine from long range. Stephens just missed double figures with nine points.

Leading the Golden Tornadoes was Nelson Guerin, who finished with 24 points, while teammate Brian Staggs also reached double figures with 15.

The loss dropped Keyser to 5-14.

The Rams were outgunned from the floor by a 20-18 margin, but converted 25 of 35 free throws, compared to 18 of 24 by Keyser, to win the game.

The Southern junior varsity had an easier time securing a win in the preliminary game, topping the Keyser jayvees, 61-41, behind an 18-point effort by Chad Panther. Rusty Clay paced Keyser with 11 points.

Against the Preston Knights Tuesday evening, the Rams again found themselves behind after three quarters of defensive competition, this time by four points, and rallied in the final stanza for the win.

The score was tied at 11-11 at the end of the first quarter, and the Rams held a 23-19 advantage at half-time before being outscored in the third period by a 13-5 margin, giving them a 32-28 deficit.

An early fourth-quarter, three-point play by Justin Stephens narrowed Preston's lead to one, 34-33, and Nathaniel Panther followed with another three-pointer on the Rams' next possession to give them the lead for good.

Panther's 6-for-6 effort at the foul line in the fourth quarter was another key to the Ram victory. He was the only member of the team to reach double figures with 13 points, and he also grabbed six rebounds. Stephens had seven rebounds and Justin Liller finished with four assists.

Leading Preston with nine points was Zach Zinn. The loss stopped a five-game win streak for the Knights, who dropped to 7-12 with the loss.

The Southern junior varsity concluded another winning season with a 55-53 triple-overtime win in the first game. The victory left the Ram jayvees with a 17-3 record. Chad Panther ripped the nets for 27 points for Southern, and D.R. Parsons scored 19. Leading Preston was Chris Hartley with 23 points.

Gonder, Quality Machine Winners In League Play

Recreational Basketball League teams sponsored by Gonder Insurance and Quality Machine were winners in games played Sunday, with Gonder's topping Dan Bosley Construction, 59-47, and Quality Machine defeating Patterson Boat Company, 49-42.

Bill Braithwaite, Jason Shank, and Rick Minnick all finished in double figures for Gonder's with 16, 12, and 10 points, respectively. Tom Bosley and Paul Lewis each netted 18 points for Bosley Construction.

Leading Quality Machine offensively were Joe Refosco with 14 points and Stan Eggleston with 10, while Greg Shockey and Bill Franklin paced Patterson Boat with 17 and 14, respectively.

In games slated for this Sunday, Feb. 27, Quality Machine will meet Gonder's in the 6 p.m. game, and Bosley Construction will play Mettiki Coal Company in the 7 p.m. contest.

Rams' Defense Helps Down Knights, Indians; Squad Earns Playoff Bye

The girls' varsity of Southern High School defeated Preston 59-42 Thursday in Oakland, then concluded its regular season Monday evening by recording an easy 49-16 Western Maryland Interscholastic League homecourt victory over winless Mount Savage. It was the 16th win in 22 games for the Rams, who earned a first-round bye in the Class 1A West Region playoffs.

The match-up with Preston was tight throughout the first half, as the Rams were up by only two points after one quarter and three points after two quarters. After stepping up its defensive effort in the second half, SHS went on a 15-0 run in the third quarter en route to a 42-26 advantage at the opening of the final stanza.

"We were up only 23-20 at the half and it was like there was a lid on the rim," Don Stemple, the Rams' head coach remarked. "We realized our defense was going to have to do it if we were going to win the game."

Sophomore Ashley Liller sparked the Rams' offense by connecting for 23 points, including the squad's lone three-point bucket. The guard also dished out five assists and nabbed five steals. Senior forward Becca Gangler recorded 11 points and five steals.

Marcy Miller scored 11 points and Marcy Harper added nine points for the Knights.

Southern's junior varsity took a 40-29 win from Preston behind a 15-point effort by Kim Teter and a 13-point tally by Ashley Keyes.

It was fitting that Gangler, Jennifer Teagarden, and Joy Jackson, the three seniors on Coach Stemple's squad, led the Rams in scoring and other categories against the Indians in the regular season finale.

Gangler recorded 10 points and six steals, Teagarden had 10 points and five assists, and Jackson finished with seven points and four steals.

The Rams held commanding leads of 20-2, 34-6, and 41-14 at the quarters over the Indians, who dropped to 0-21. Jennifer Bosley and Charlena Reeves netted eight and six points, respectively, for the Rams.

Katie Sweene led the Indians with eight points.

The 15-6 Rams, who are seeded third in the West Region 1A tourney behind top seed Allegany (19-2) and number two seed Williamsport (17-3), will host Clear Spring in a quarterfinal match-up Monday evening.

Southern Frosh Split Four With W.Va. Squads

The Southern High School freshmen boys' basketball team played four contests against three different West Virginia frosh squads recently, including a trip to the championship contest of the Keyser Freshman Basketball Tournament over the weekend. The Rams knocked off Frankfort and Pendleton in victories that were bookended by a pair of defeats at the hands of Keyser's Golden Tornado.

A warm-up for the tourney was played on Saturday, Feb. 12, a contest which the Rams lost by a 45-37 margin. Erick Adames led the Golden Tornado with 13 points. Southern's scoring tally was not available.

The Keyser Tournament got under way for the Rams last Wednesday as Southern handily defeated Frankfort, 45-29. Joe Davis scored 11 points for SHS, and Dennis Tressler added 10. The Rams advanced to take on Pendleton in the second round the following night, and took that contest by a 39-26 margin behind Tressler's 13 points.

The championship game on Saturday featured a rematch between the Rams and the Keyser hosts, a hard-fought battle that ended with the Golden Tornado holding a 42-38 advantage. Tressler's 22 points led all scorers.

The All-Tournament team included two Rams, Tressler and Matt Stephens. Rounding out the honorary squad was Westmar's Neil Alexander, Allegany's Dustin Kammauf, Frankfort's Adam White, Jake Owens and Joel Byers of Pendleton, and Keyser's Geoff Newlin and Adam Pritts.

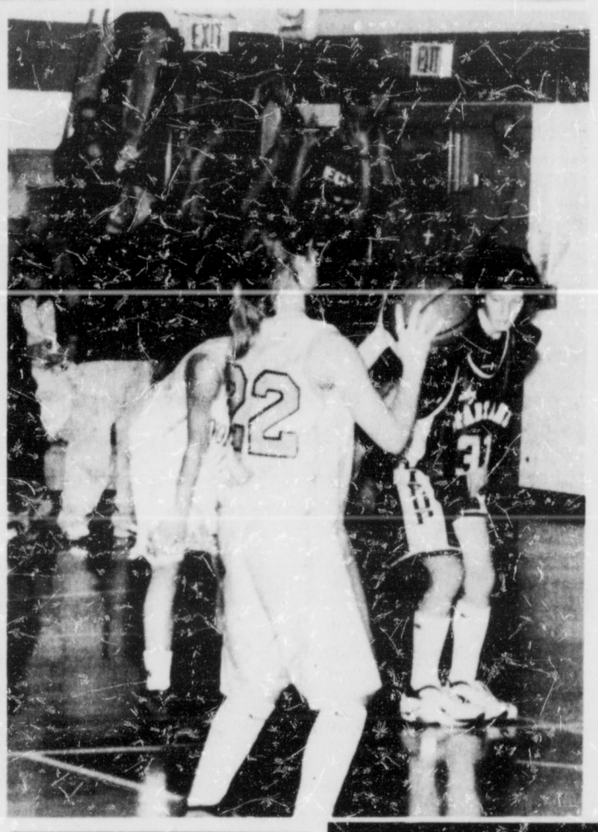
HEADED BACK TO NATIONALS — Four local athletes will enter national competition this spring, defending gold and silver medals won last year. The second annual United States Sportaerobic Youth Championships will be held in California in early April, and the athletes pictured here will be among those vying for medals and striving for personal best performances. In the photo above left is gold-medalist Mariana Beitzel, whose athletic talent Coach Brenda Brosnihan this week referred to as "unbelievable." She is pictured with Coach Elaine Alfano, a world champion in the sportaerobic field. Shown above right are, from left, athletes Jessie Railey, Amanda Bell, and Heather Hanline as they glean performance hints from Coach Dale Duncan, also an award-winning sportaerobic performer. The young women are currently raising funds for their trip out west. See story.



HUSKIES ARE RIDING A WAVE - Northern High's girls' basketball squad is on a roll heading into the upcoming 1A West Region Playoffs after winning three straight this week in convincing fashion. The Huskies opened the action with a 20-point homecourt trouncing of Bishop Walsh last Thursday, which included fine performances by senior guards Heather Nugent and Mimi Harvey. Shown above, Nugent (#22), takes an inbounds pass from Harvey (at the far left) in preparation to fire in one of her four three-pointers that helped her to a game-high 22-point tally. Across the court, fellow Huskies Amanda Frantz (#20), Bridget Frazee (#11), and Heidi Frazee (#14) ready to move into rebounding position if need be. Nugent is pictured at right preparing to connect on a free throw, with help from the NHS boys' squad in the background. Their spell must have worked, as Nugent hit all six of her foul shots during the contest. Fellow senior Heidi Frazee and sophomore Bridget Frazee, and freshman Frantz turned in strong showings in this and the week's other contests, a 47-37 win at Hancock and a 52-37 victory at Westmar. The 15-7 Huskies open in playoff action at home Monday at 7 p.m. against Beall.

NHS Tunes Up For Playoffs By Downing BW, Hancock, Westmar

The Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team came off an idle week two weeks ago to hit on all cylinders in each of three outings this week. In their final regular season tune-up for the playoffs, the Huskies trounced Bishop Walsh 63-43, downed Hancock 47-37, and put Westmar away by a 52-37 margin.

NHS used a 15-2 run to jump out to a 21-11 first quarter lead over BW last Thursday. The Spartans closed the gap to a 29-25 margin by the half, but Northern staved off the guests through the third period, which ended with the hosts up 40-35. A 23-8 fourth-quarter tally gave the Huskies their 20-point victory.

Seniors Heather Nugent, Heidi Frazee, and Mimi Harvey each had a big game in their final regular season appearance on the Northern homecourt. Nugent hit for 22 points, including 12 as she connected for four three-point buckets, and handed out seven assists. Frazee notched a 20-point total, and Harvey dished out seven assists of her own. Sophomore Bridget Frazee contributed 11 points and pulled down a team-high 15 rebounds for a double-double, in addition to taking away four steals. Freshman Amanda Frantz scored eight points.

Shera Rowan and Desiree DuVall both scored 12 points for the Spartans.

Northern's junior varsity squad took a 24-13 win as Julie Brenneman paced the Huskies with eight points. Ashley Devlin's six points led BW.

Monday's trip to Hancock proved to be an easy win for the Huskies, despite the relatively close 10-point final margin. Northern led from start to finish, going up 13-4 after one quarter and amassing a 28-13 advantage by the half. Hancock battled back to cut NHS's lead to 36-27 after three quarters, but couldn't close the gap after that.

Heidi Frazee led the Huskies with 18 points while pulling down 11 rebounds. Bridget Frazee added 11 points and 14 rebounds, and Nugent contributed 11 points. Amanda True led Hancock with 11 points.

The Huskies' junior varsity squad lost to the hosts, but the score was not available.

Last night at Westmar the Huskies steadily increased their lead throughout the contest with consistent offense and swarming defense. NHS took a 6-4 first quarter lead and an 18-13 lead at the half before moving up 33-25 at the end of the third quarter. After a 19-12 fourth quarter Northern finished on top by 15 points.

Heidi Frazee had another big game, scoring 15 points, pulling down 11 rebounds, dishing out five assists, and grabbing four steals. Frantz stepped up to score 14 points while Bridget Frazee took down 10 rebounds. Westmar's Stacey Langham scored 11 points.

Northern took a barnburner of a junior varsity contest by a score of 27-26. Christie Flockhart scored 16 points for the Huskies, while Marcie Sloan scored nine for Westmar.

The 15-7 Huskies, who have an 8-4 WMIL mark, are seeded fourth in the 1A West Region playoffs. Northern drew a first-round bye as a result of a blind draw and will open its playoff run at home against Beall on Monday at 7 p.m.

GC Athlete Trio To Defend Titles At Nat'l Youth Aerobic Championships

Garrett County's 2000 Varsity Sportaerobic Team, consisting of Amanda Bell, Heather Hanline, and Jessie Railey, as well as individual competitor Marlana Beitzel are all currently in training for the second annual United States Youth Sportaerobic Championships, slated for April 7 and 8 in Los Angeles, Calif.

The four girls were all members of the 1999 Garrett County Sportaerobic Team, which won numerous gold medals at last year's national event, as well as ranking fourth through sixth in the World Championships.

"Coaching these four young ladies has been a joy. I have never seen kids more determined and working so hard to achieve a goal," said Brenda Brosnihan, coach. "Performing these routines takes an incredible amount of physical conditioning. The principles they are learning about fitness, nutrition, and sports training will benefit them the rest of their lives. They are all ready winners for the effort they have put into their practices."

Sportaerobics is a performance sport wherein athletes showcase artistic choreography in combination with technical skills of varying difficulty, all in 1-minute-45-second performances. Brosnihan said the routines must demonstrate the components of fitness: cardiovascular endurance, muscular strength, muscular endurance, flexibility, balance, coordination, agility, speed, and power, all within continuous rhythmic movement patterns.

The four girls, along with their parents and Brosnihan, have traveled several times to Springfield, N.J., to work with choreography and coach Dale Duncan, whose credits include national titles and world rankings.

"Marlana is a very gifted and focused athlete," Duncan said. "I have no doubt that she and the trio will give outstanding performances at nationals."

Miss Beitzel has also worked with the 1995 national and 1996 world champion Elaine Alfano, who shared many tips on physical conditioning and helped analyze the local athlete's skills and performance.

"Coaching a smaller team this year has allowed me to recharge and learn more about the sport from these outstanding coaches," Coach Brosnihan said. "It should help me be more effective next year when our team will once again include junior and junior varsity members.

Also assisting with the girls' physical training and aiding any sore muscles or injuries is physical therapist Tracy Umstot.

"Tracy has been a valuable asset to our program. She helps keep all of us in working order," Brosnihan said.

The team is planning several local performances over the next four weeks. WHAG television in Hagerstown is scheduled to do a story and air a performance by the group.

Training for sportaerobics requires funding for special coaching, competition apparel, and travel.

"Last year the support from our community was overwhelming. This year we are only having one fundraiser before nationals. We hope people will once again want to be part of the expe-

Lakers Halted By Catonsville In JUCO; Set For Regionals

The opportunity for a Maryland JUCO title was dashed Friday for the Garrett Community College Lakers, as they gave up a 10-point halftime lead and were edged by Catonsville CC, 83-79, in a tournament quarterfinal at Hagerstown Community College. GCC (21-5) had advanced to the quarterfinals by defeating Rockville last Wednesday.

The Lakers' season is not over yet, however, as they will enter the NJCAA Region XX Tournament this evening to vie for a spot in the national tourney. They will play Hagerstown CC at Trojan Square Garden of Allegany College of Maryland in Cumberland.

Anton Jenifer made the difference for the Catonsville Cardinals, as he poured in a game-high 31 points, with 14 of those points being converted on 16 attempts at the free-throw line. Teammate Anthony Breland had a double-double with 16 points and 10 rebounds, while Garrett Smith and Magnus St. Ange also reached double figures in scoring with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

The Lakers were on top 40-30 at intermission, but the Cardinals went on a 13-2 run to begin the second half and took the lead at the 16:30 mark. St. Ange scored eight of those 13 points.

The lead then exchanged sides 14 times until a bucket by Smith put Catonsville up for good, 78-77, with about two minutes to play.

Dexter Levi paced the Lakers with 19 points, eight rebounds, and three blocks. Charles Somerville, who fouled out of the contest with 10:30 to play, had 14 points and eight rebounds, Scott Kochenderfer netted 11 points, and Corin Turner had five assists.

The Lakers out-rebounded the Cardinals by a 47-37 margin, but turned the ball over 20 times, compared to 11 turnovers by Catonsville.

"Without Charles Somerville it's tough for us to win against a team as good as Catonsville," stated GCC coach Dennis Gibson. "We lost our composure in the second half and didn't play a full 40 minutes of basketball."

The Lakers were seeded fourth in the tournament, while Catonsville was the fifth seed.

Catonsville was then edged by Allegany College in the semifinals, and the Trojans, seeded first in the tournament, went on to meet second-seeded Dundalk in the championship game, but it was never played. Because of a dispute over uniforms, Allegany refused to play the game and thus a champion was not determined.

"Unfortunately, I don't have much to say (about the JUCO controversy)," said Gibson. "I am so disappointed over the antics of the coaches in our region, and specifically the Maryland JUCO, that I have lost a lot of focus and desire. I realize again why I got out of the Division I level of JUCO basketball in 1994."

The Lakers rejoined the Division I ranks this season, however.

"As far as our team is concerned, we have a great group of young men ready to pull off a David vs. Goliath type of season and win our regional tournament," Gibson continued. "Our top player, Charles Somerville, has had an All-American type of year. His stats prove him to be the top player in the region."

The Lakers will be a slight favorite to win this evening in their Division I Region XX opener against Hagerstown, as they defeated the Hawks in their final game of the regular season, 90-81. Hagerstown enters the tourney with a 17-8 record and is seeded third, while Garrett is seeded second. Allegany (27-1) is seeded first and is ranked third nationally in Division I.

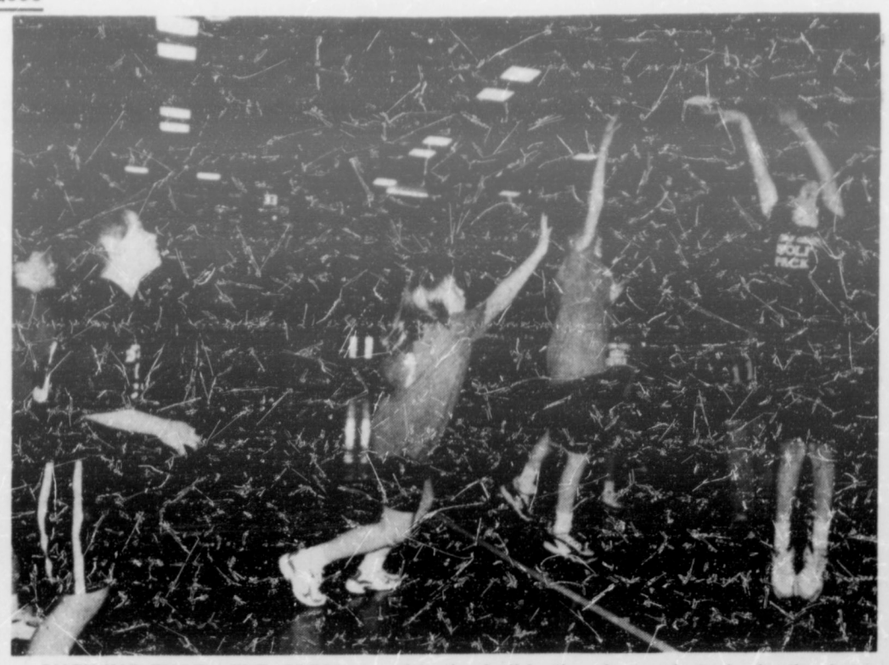
Northern Youth Hoopsters Finish Inaugural Season

The Northern Garrett Youth Basketball League has concluded its regular season and will wrap up its inaugural year with playoffs this Saturday and March 4 at Northern High School. Wolfpack, the regular season champion with a 6-0 record, will meet the Blue Devils (0-6) at 12:30 p.m., and the Yellow Jackets (3-3) will face the Terps (3-3) at 1:30 in the other semifinal. The championship game between the two winners this week will play for the league title on March 4.

The league includes boys and girls in grades 4-6, with the focus on teaching proper fundamentals and techniques, team play, sportsmanship, and competition.

"I'm very pleased with the number of kids we were able to involve in the program in its first year," stated Paul Edwards, head coach of the Northern High School boys' varsity and league organizer. "I've been very impressed with the level of play and the obvious improvement in many of the fundamental facets of the game. We look forward to continuing to improve and expand the league in coming years."



SHOWING EXCELLENT FORM shooting the ball in the above photo is Justin Orendorf, a member of the Wolfpack team in the new Northern Garrett Youth Basketball League, which concluded its regular season this past Saturday and will move into playoffs this Saturday. Orendorf shoots above the outstretched hands of Lucas McMillan and Bailee Martin-Sellers of the Blue Devils, while Orendorf's teammate Joshua Frantz, left, positions himself for a possible rebound. At right, Holly Wampler of Wolfpack puts up a shot while being defended by Blue Devil Martin-Sellers. Lakers Advance Past Cardinals In JUCO; Fall Prey To Hawks In Semis

Garrett Community College women's basketball team got off to an opening-round 68-54 victory over Catonsville in the Maryland JUCO Tournament Friday at Prince George's Community College before a 62-48 loss to Hagerstown in semi-final action the following day. GCC holds an 11-12 record heading into tonight's home contest with Potomac State, the final regular season tune-up before the three-day Region XX Tournament opens in McHenry Friday, March 3.

The win over the Cardinals was close at the start, but a field goal by Gretchen Baker at the 11:05 mark gave the Lakers a lead they never relinquished. GCC clamped down on defense to hold Catonsville scoreless for nearly four minutes midway through the period, which gave Garrett time to build and maintain a comfortable lead that it held the rest of the way.

The 14-point victory was sparked by an 18-point performance by Donielle Gaines, who connected on a pair of three-point goals in addition to seven field goals and both of her free throws. Baker (who also hit two three-pointers), Tasha Blackmon, and Erica Henderson each tallied 13 points for Garrett.

CATONSVILLE (54)
Joy Hyman 5 6-10 17, Anita Smith 4 0-0 8, Jessie Oster 1 3-4 5, Melanie Payne 0 1-2 1, Latia Few 4 1-2 9, Tamara Ervin 5 4-8 14. Totals 19 15-26 54.

GARRETT (68)
Shawntice McLaughlin 2 0-2 4, Donielle Gaines 7 2-2 18, Tasha Blackmon 3 7-8 13, Gretchen Baker 5 1-2 13, Erica Henderson 6 1-9 13, Tameka Graves 3 1-2 7. Totals 26 12-25 68.

Halftime Score: Garrett 27, Catonsville 20.

Three point goals - Catonsville 1 (Hyman), Garrett 4 (Gaines 2, Baker 2). Total fouls - Catonsville 18, Garrett 16. Fouled out - Oster. Rebounds - Catonsville 49 (Hyman 15), Garrett 61 (Blackmon 12). Assists - Catonsville 8 (Hyman 4), Garrett 14 (McLaughlin 9).

The Lakers, who have relied on rebounding advantages to help them win all year, amassed a 61-49 rebounding margin with the help of Blackmon's team-high 12 boards. Henderson took down nine rebounds while Shawntice McLaughlin had nine assists and Tameka Graves contributed seven points and seven rebounds. Catonsville's Joy Hyman put forth an outstanding all-around effort with 17 points, 15 rebounds, and four assists.

"I'm very proud of the Lakers' performance this evening," GCC head coach Ann Wellham said afterwards. "They showed great maturity."

Turnovers proved to be the Lakers' Achilles' heel in their 14-point semifinal loss to Hagerstown, as Garrett gave the ball up 30 times as compared to the Hawks' 17 miscues. The GCC mistakes were especially costly over the course of the second period, as the Lakers were down by only a 24-18 margin at the half. Garrett was also out-rebounded 52-49.

"The types of mistakes we've been making all year really hurt us tonight," remarked Wellham. "There was tremendous effort, but our mental mistakes overshadowed the good things we were able to do."

Gaines led the Lakers again with 16 points, a high for both teams. Henderson scored 10 points, Blackmon took down 11 rebounds, and McLaughlin handed out eight assists. Ebony Rector paced the victors with 15 points.

GARRETT (48)
Shawntice McLaughlin 1 0-4 2, Donielle Gaines 7 0-0 16, Tasha Blackmon 2 4-6 8, Gretchen Baker 3 0-0 6, Erica Henderson 5 0-2 10, Tameka Graves 3 0-0 6. Totals 21 4-12 48.

Bowl For Kids' Sake Inviting League Bowlers

Garrett County Big Brothers Big Sisters is "gearing up" for their annual fund-raiser, Bowl for Kids' Sake. While the main event will be held at Par-Matt Lanes on Saturday, April 1, league bowlers who want to participate may bowl during their regular league night.

League bowlers obtain pledges, just like non-league bowlers, and qualify for T-shirts and incentive prizes, and compete for adult and youth special prizes; prize awards are based on pledges received. Youth bowlers will use their highest game the week of March 6, while adult league participants will use their highest game the week of March 20 as their Bowl for Kids' Sake game. Pledges are to be turned in two weeks following the game, at which time T-shirts and gift certificates for incentive prizes won will be distributed by a representative from Big Brothers Big Sisters at the bowling alley.

Those organizing leagues on behalf of Big Brothers Big Sisters are: Janet Tichnell (Youth League), Annie Bishop (Monday Skirts and Thursday Mixed), and Hugh Schrier (Monday Merchants and Tuesday Die Hards). Any leagues that are not represented may call Big Brothers Big Sisters at 301-334-3591 or 800-400-0735. Information is also available at Par-Matt Lanes, Oakland.

OPENING DAY OF TROUT SEASON (MARCH 25) MAKES A FISHERMAN'S THOUGHTS TURN TO SPRING

This year, trout anglers will benefit from more than 442,800 adult trout stocked in lakes, rivers, and streams in 15 counties. The stocking schedule is now available on DNR's web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/fisheries/springtroutstock.html.

By the end of February, it will also be available, free of charge, at DNR Regional Service Centers, area fishery offices, and from licensing agents. Information regarding stream closures so that officials can stock and trout can acclimate is also provided in the schedule.

DNR's spring stocking began in early winter when 15,500 rainbow trout were stocked into Liberty Reservoir. In addition, several thousand adult trout were stocked into many central and southern Maryland lakes and ponds during early January to relieve crowding at state hatcheries due to the impacts of the drought. This year's spring stocking number is down from previous years and the trout may be slightly smaller. Both conditions are due to the lack of water at DNR hatcheries last summer and fall.

The West Virginia Division of Natural Resources (WV DNR) stocked trout in the North Branch of the Potomac on February 1. The trout were stocked in the put-and-take area at Barnum, W.Va., downstream to a red post located below Blue Hole. This area will be stocked by the WV DNR again in the beginning of March.

The Greensburg Tribune-Review of last Sunday carried a feature on this winter's excellent fishing at Deep Creek Lake. Anglers are finding hot fishing in the coves and the main body as well. It was reported that Dave Gordon of Grantsville caught a 36-inch northern pike on 4-pound test at Turkey Neck along with a 17 3/4-inch yellow perch. Reports from all around the lake tell of outstanding catches of northern pike, trout, bass, walleye, and pickerel.

GARRETT COUNTY FLY-FISHERS GROUP HOLDS SECOND MEETING

The new fly-fishing group initiated two months ago seems to be catching on. Wednesday before last they held their second meeting and had Mac Seaholm, well-traveled and expert fly-fisherman, as a guest with his slide presentation of fly-fishing in New Zealand. The group meets at the Point View on Deep Creek Lake on the second Wednesday of each month. They offer an open invitation to interested parties. No formalities, no dues, just good conversation.

WATERFOWL SURVEY SHOWS MIXED RESULTS

The DNR announced mixed results in their 2000 Midwinter Waterfowl Survey. The total waterfowl counted in Maryland this year was 911,800, compared to 881,100 in 1999. Higher number of scaup and greater snow geese accounted for most of the increase in waterfowl this winter.

Canada goose numbers were expected to be higher this year following favorable nesting conditions in northern Quebec; however, this year's estimate (396,400) was nearly identical to last winter's estimate of 396,700 birds. Total dabbling ducks observed during the 2000 Mid-winter Waterfowl Survey were estimated at 93,200, compared to 93,000 in 1999. Mallards increased slightly from 48,000 in 1999 to 50,100 this winter. Black ducks, a species whose status remains a concern to managers, declined from 30,300 in 1999 to 25,900 in 2000. Dabblers that showed increases this year included widgeon (4,600) and pintail (5,400). Diving duck estimates increased from 229,600 last winter to 241,200 in 2000. Canvasback (49,900) estimates changed very little from last winter. Slight increases were observed for goldeneye (9,100), bufflehead (15,500), and redheads (5,300). A substantial increase in scaup (96,100) was observed. Furthermore, hunters reported bagging good numbers of scaup, especially during the latter portion of the 60-day duck season. Although ruddy duck numbers remained high (60,600) again this year, they were not as abundant as they were in 1999 when 84,000 were observed. The total number of ducks estimated during the survey was 341,300, compared to 348,800 in 1999.

Snow geese (150,700) showed an increase over 1999 (110,900), despite a poor nesting season. Reproductive surveys made on the wintering areas showed the snow goose population contained few young geese, the result of poor nesting conditions on their Arctic nesting grounds and fox predation. A large concentration of snow geese (60,000) was observed for the first time on the Chesapeake Bay along Kent County. Snow geese were also seen on Eastern Bay, providing further evidence that these birds are adapting to agricultural foods and expanding their winter range. Tundra swan numbers (15,600) remained unchanged from 1999.

Lawmakers Push To Let Teachers Extend Contracts Over Summer

by Leah Carlson
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — In an attempt to alleviate the teacher shortage and improve summer school programs by attracting better instructors, state lawmakers introduced a bill to allow teachers to extend their contracts to a full year. Under this $10 million proposal, teachers would have the option to work in tutoring, intervention, and enrichment programs during the summer and earn a wage equal to what they get the rest of the year.

Summer teachers now usually get a stipend lower than their regular salaries. Also, their summer school work does not usually count toward retirement. The average teacher contract is for about 186 days, or 38 weeks, and summer work could add another eight weeks per year.

"I talk to young teachers all the time who say they're frustrated with having to fill the gap over the summer months," said Delegate William H. Cole IV, D-Baltimore. More than 30 delegates, including House Speaker Casper Taylor, D-Allegany, are behind the bill.

Maryland State Teachers Association president Karl Pence said summer school programs offering better paychecks would entice better teachers, and that, in turn, would help students prepare for state assessment exams.

"I think it would be a good inducement," Pence said. "The focus should be on learning, not just making up for lost time."

Several delegates with teaching experience endorsed the bill. Delegate B. Daniel Riley, D-Harford, who teaches social studies at Magnolia Middle School in Joppa, said the contract extension would help financially strapped teachers who might otherwise be tempted to find more lucrative work in another field.

"It's sad to see them leave because they're not making enough to make it," Riley said. "It's tough, especially on the young ones."

Delegate Paul Carlson, D-Montgomery, who taught in New York schools in 1996, helped explain the legislation to more than 60 children from Belle Grove Elementary School in Baltimore visiting Annapolis Tuesday.

"This bill is about you," Carlson said.

Delegate Robert Zirkin, D-Baltimore County, chief sponsor for the bill, said he hopes it will bring more respect to the teaching profession. The sponsors also hope the proposal will help lessen the state teacher shortage. Maryland will need 11,000 additional teachers by 2001, but state colleges only produce about 2,500 qualified educators each year, and half of those leave the state.

Last week, Gov. Parris Glendening proposed a 10 percent salary increase for public school teachers over two years. Counties providing a 4 percent increase would get an extra 1 percent from the state each year. While the idea of higher teacher salaries has nearly unanimous appeal, some criticized Glendening's approach. Several counties, particularly Queen Anne's and Prince George's counties, might have trouble rounding up their 4 percent, The Washington Post reported.

Critics charge that the governor's $90 million proposal would favor wealthy school districts and senior teachers who already have higher salaries. Those critics include Catherine Brennan, staff director for the New Maryland Education Coalition, who also said enhancement funding totaling $20 million of Glendening's proposal would be distributed unequally and benefit poorer districts, like Baltimore City and Prince George's County, the least.

Soaring Tuition Gives Students A Sobering Lesson in Economics

by Erin J. Medea
Capital News Service

The amount of school loans taken out by Maryland college students jumped 50 percent between 1995 and 1998, as grants and scholarships failed to keep pace with rising tuition costs.

The heavier level of borrowing comes at a time when the increase in tuition has also outstripped the increase in incomes, leaving students worried that it will be harder to pay back their loans once they graduate.

In Maryland, average tuition at a public four-year school increased 28 percent from 1995 to 1999. The Census Bureau said per capita income grew 17 percent from 1995 to 1998, the last year for which figures were available, rising from $17,227 to $20,120.

Some Maryland students are worried about their looming debt.

"I don't know exactly how much I have taken out in loans, but all I know is that it's a lot," said Nicole Mendez, a senior communications major at the University of Maryland College Park.

"Since tuition keeps increasing, I keep borrowing more and more," she said. "I have no idea how I'm going to pay off the loans because I'm sure my starting salary won't be that high."

Experts agree with Mendez that recent graduates dedicate a great amount of their salaries to loan payments.

"The debt-income ratio can be quite high," said Jamie Merisotis, president of the Institute for Higher Education Policy. "I'm certainly concerned that tuition has increased more than inflation for a consecutive 18 years now."

Rising tuition costs are "forcing students to take out more loans because aid is not increasing at the same rate," said Jamie Pueschel, legislative director for the U.S. Student Association.

But an official with the University System of Maryland said the state is trying to help students, both by capping tuition and boosting aid where possible.

"We are trying to increase institution aid and make sure students are making the most of federal aid," said Vice Chancellor Joe Vivona.

Vivona acknowledged that tuition has increased faster than inflation, but said that the money is needed for improving such things as technology on the system's 11 campuses.

"I think in Maryland tuition is moderate and what we have done for three consecutive years now is capped tuition costs," he said.

But the National Center for Education Statistics said Maryland is above the 1997-98 national average of $3,110 for in-state tuition at a public four-year institution. In 1997-97, Maryland was charging $4,135 to in-state students at public four-year schools. Vermont's tuition was the highest at $6,492 and Nevada the lowest at $1,884.

Experts said colleges waste a lot of money on amenities that do not improve education, such as sport and art complexes and excessive research. If universities did not compete with each other on such things, tuition would not be so high, they said.

"They're spending more but not necessarily in ways that increase the value of education," said Bill Massy, president of the Jackson Hole Higher Education Group and a Stanford University professor.

But experts do not see the situation changing any time soon.

"I think what is coming down the pike is more and more borrowing at higher levels," Merisotis said.

Prekindergarten Registration Information

Beginning March 1, 2000, and ending May 1, 2000, the Garrett County Board of Education will be accepting applications for its Extended Elementary Education Program or prekindergarten. To be eligible for this program a child must be 4 years of age on or before December 31, 2000.

There is a two-step application process:

1. Interested parents should obtain a copy of the Notificationof Interest for Prekindergarten Program documents. (These documents can be obtained from the nearest elementary school or from the Office of Pupil Services at the Board of Education office in Oakland.) The first document explains the enrollment and selection process for the prekindergarten program. The second document is an information sheet. This information sheet should be completed and forwarded to the Office of Pupil Services, Garrett County Board of Education, 40 South 4th Street, Oakland, Maryland 21550. The form can also be taken to the closest elementary school.

2. Upon receipt of the Notification of Interest for Prekindergarten Program information sheet, the parents will be given or sent a second set of documents. This second set includes a parent letter, a photocopy of the Board of Education's guidelines for determining the eligibility and selection of prekindergarten students, and a Garrett County Prekindergarten Program Questionnaire. This questionnaire will need to be completed and returned as soon as possible to the Office of Pupil Services. The information provided by parents on this questionaire will be used to determine which children are enrolled in the prekindergarten program. The Office of Pupil Services will date and log in all questionnaires.

Any questions about this enrollment process should be directed to Ms. Liz Lewis, administrative secretary, Office of Pupil Services, at 301-334-8939.

Retired Forester's Writing Puts Paul Bunyan Back To Logging

by Peggy Santamaria

After a lifetime spent in the forests and woodlands of America, Grantsville resident Jack T. Slocum, at age 81, took up his pen to write about the legendary figure Paul Bunyan. Explaining that he had always been interested in this mythical character, Slocum said he decided to take a somewhat"tongue-in-cheek" approach in his story, which he titled Paul Bunyan Logs Again: For Young Folks Under 90.

"From what I have read, the first accounts of the character named Paul Bunyan were published in the American Lumberman in 1914. Perhaps the mythical figure was invented by a logger and submitted as a story," Slocum suggested.

Since his first appearance, the bigger-than-life woodsman (Bunyan stands over 8 feet tall and weighs in at 451 pounds) has appeared in hundreds of accounts. "Some of the writers stretched the truth so far that their stories became fairy tales," Slocum said.

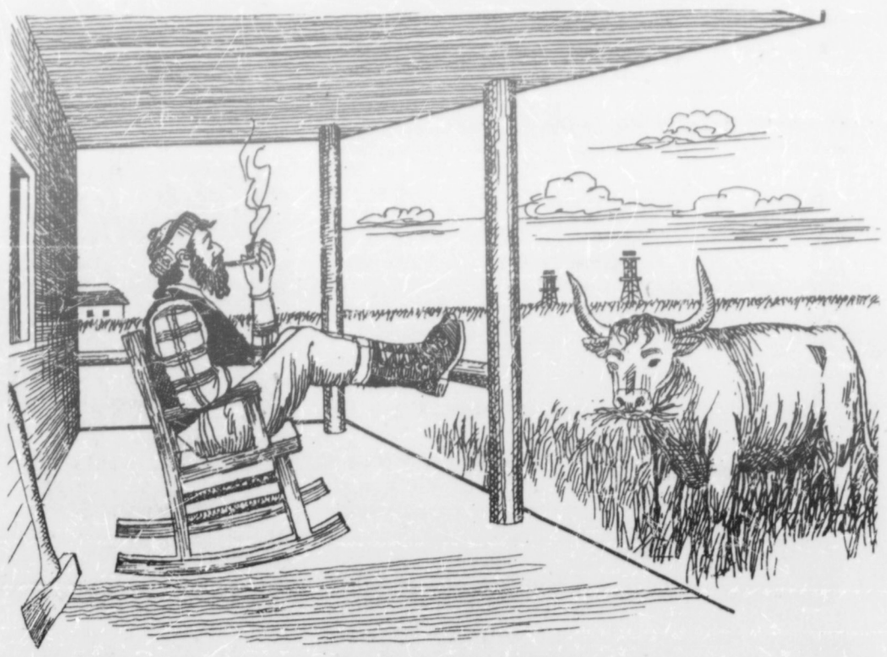
Narrated by Johnny Inkslinger, Paul Bunyan's "clerk of the works," the adventures of the fabled woodsman told by Slocum sprouted from seeds of reality. "My stories are all based on true incidents which were actually experienced while I was working as an industrial forester in the Middle Atlantic states. Each experience starts with a very logical and true situation," he noted.

Slocum had much experience upon which to draw for these fables. Born in Rhode Island in 1916 and raised in neighboring Massachusetts, Slocum said he developed an early interest in the environment. Having attended the University of Massachusetts and having served as a guide at Lost River in New Hampshire, he went on to the Yale Graduate School of Forestry.

During his career, Slocum worked for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. as a tie and lumber inspector, managed forest properties, and surveyed land. He is also a member of the Society of American Foresters. "The Paul Bunyan stories actually pay tribute to the lumber industry, which has played such a vital part in the building of America," he explained.

Pen-and-ink illustrations by Washington, D.C., artist Dick Guy highlight Slocum's 10-chapter narrative. To date, the author has not found a publisher for his work but does have copies available for purchase in a bound, illustrated, 8½-inch-by-11-inch format.

Anyone wishing to contact Jack Slocum may write to him at 75 Killdeer Lane, Grantsville, MD 21536.



TELLING TALL TALES - The fabled woodsman Paul Bunyan is brought to life in the pages penned by Garrett County resident Jack T. Slocum. A retired forester, Slocum decided to expand on the exploits of this American legend. The pen-and-ink drawings of Washington, D.C., artist Dick Guy illustrate the story. Above and below are samples of the works that illuminate the pages of Slocum's narrative.

In Who's Who Among Teachers

Angela Dobbins, a fourth year teacher in the Baltimore County school system, has been selected to be included in the sixth edition of Who's Who Among America's Teachers 2000.

Dobbins is the daughter of Pete and Betty Dobbins, Dundalk, and granddaughter of Forrest (Pete) and Mert Dobbins, Oakland, and the late John and Henrietta Wilhelm, Dundalk. She was also nominated for this honor during her first year in teaching. Only 5 percent of the nation's teachers are selected to be listed in this publication.

Home Heating Aid Not Enough To Help Truly Poor, Advocates Say

by Nicole Morgan
Capital News Service

The $2.9 million in federal fuel assistance released to Maryland last week still is not enough to help the state's most impoverished families keep warm while heating oil prices remain sky-high, advocates said.

The federal Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) money that was released to the state Wednesday comes on top of a Feb. 10 disbursement of $3.2 million, and is in addition to millions in federal aid the state receives annually. But some advocates still are not satisfied.

"I don't think we've scratched the surface for this need," said Mary Ellen Vanni, executive director of the Fuel Fund for Maryland, a private nonprofit organization. The Fuel Fund provides financial aid to help Maryland's poorest families through times like this, when the weather is cold and fuel costs become overwhelming.

Low-income families are "in dire straits," Vanni said. "We've had more calls this month for assistance with oil than we had all of last year, just because of the price."

Fuel oil prices reached a record high last week, according to fuel distributors around the state. Some were reporting prices of $1.70 a gallon, up from 99 cents just a month earlier.

Legislative offices also are swamped with complaints from residents who say they are having a hard time coping with what they see as outrageously high fuel prices.

"Calls to our office have picked up steadily," said Jesse Jacobs, a spokesman for Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Baltimore. "People are asking that we try to do something."

Vanni said that about 225,000 Maryland families fall below poverty levels. While she could not estimate how many of them heat their homes with oil, she said that even if it were a fraction of those families, the recent $6 million in additional funding would provide minimal relief.

If just one-fourth of the state's poor families heat their homes with oil, this month's extra federal funding would only provide each family with about an additional $100 for the winter, she said.

"That's not a lot of oil," she said. "I mean, that wouldn't even fill a tank."

Vanni estimated that the Maryland Energy Assistance Program only serves about one-third of the neediest families, and many of the rest turn to the Fuel Fund, she said.

"We've had a family that had to turn an oil truck away because the price was $180," and the woman had only budgeted $100 for oil, Vanni said.

Higher fuel costs have strapped families nationwide. The demand for assistance has been so great that LIHEAP funds are depleted, White House spokesman Steve Boyd said last week.

Within the next 10 days, President Clinton will ask Congress to appropriate $600 million to replenish LIHEAP, Boyd said. Even if Congress says no, Boyd said, the administration believes there are other federal disaster relief funds that could be used for heating fuel assistance.

But Vanni said that the additional $600 million for LIHEAP is "essential."

"You have a cold house, you can't eat, you can't study," she said of low-income families facing high fuel costs. "It affects every aspect of a family's life."

KOC Oakland Council Funds GCC Scholarship

The Knights of Columbus, Oakland Council #1771, has contributed $1,000 to fund an annual Garrett Community College Foundation Inc. scholarship beginning with the 2000-2001 academic year at GCC. "The Oakland Council #1771 of the Knights of Columbus is to be commended for supporting this scholarship," said Bretta Reinhard, foundation advancement officer. "We want to thank the Knights of Columbus for sponsoring this scholarship to GCC."

The KOC scholarship recipient must be a Garrett County resident, demonstrate financial need, enroll as a full-time student at GCC, have a high school cumulative average of at least C, and maintain a college semester average of at least C. Members and immediate family of members of the KOC Oakland Council are not eligible for this scholarship.

The annual GCCF scholarship booklet, which provides information about all GCCF scholarships for the college's 2000-2001 academic year, is available from the GCC Financial Aid Office. Northern and Southern Garrett County high school students may contact their guidance office to obtain a copy, and reference copies are available at all branches of the Ruth Enlow Library and the GCC Library.

The scholarship application is included in the scholarship booklet, and there is no fee to apply for these scholarships. The deadline to apply for all GCCF scholarships is March 1 for the 2000-2001 academic year.

"The Garrett Community College Foundation wants to encourage all interested individuals to apply for these scholarships for the next academic year at Garrett Community College," Reinhard concluded.

Defective Water Heaters Eligible For Free Repairs

State Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. has announced that Maryland consumers can benefit from a major class-action settlement that provides free replacement of a water heater component, which, if defective, may cause loss of hot water and damage to other appliances. "I encourage all eligible consumers to take advantage of this settlement," Curran said. "The repair is free and may save you trouble and money down the road."

The component, called a dip tube, may deteriorate and cause a loss of hot water pressure and temperature and the appearance of small white or gray particles in the hot water supply that may damage other appliances that use hot water.

Dip tubes are plastic parts that bring cold water from the intake at the top of the water heater down to the bottom, where water is heated. Some tubes manufactured by the Ohio-based Perfection Company that were installed in major water heater brands have deteriorated prematurely.

Six water heater manufacturers — American Water Heater Company, A.O. Smith Corporation, Bradford White Corporation, Lochinvar Corporation, Rheem Manufacturing Company, and State Industries Inc. — have entered into a class action settlement in federal court that provides for free replacement of the tubes for consumers.

Any consumer who owns a water heater covered by the settlement is entitled to have the dip tube replaced for free, regardless of condition. Consumers whose dip tubes have deteriorated and who are having problems with their hot water are entitled to have their plumbing systems flushed in addition to having the dip tubes replaced. Consumers who have already paid for related repairs are entitled to reimbursement.

Determining Eligibility

All consumers who had a water heater installed between August 1993 and September 1999 should determine if their water heater is eligible for a dip tube replacement. They need to find the manufacturer name and serial number on the water heater and call 1-800-329-0561 (toll-free) to get a listing of the eligible serial numbers or consult the settlement web site at www.diptubesettlement.com.

Filing A Claim

A "proof of claim" form can be requested by calling the settlement's toll-free number, consulting the web site, or writing to Dip Tube Litigation, Claims Administrator, P.O. Box 9338, Garden City, NY 11530-9338.

Consumers seeking a dip tube replacement or repairs for a current related hot water problem must submit a claim by Dec. 31, 2000. After submitting the claim form, the consumer will receive a dip tube replacement certificate and a list of approved plumbing professionals in his or her area. Those seeking reimbursement for prior replacement and associated repairs must submit a claim by June 30, 2000.

F&M BANK DONATES — Jeff McCauley, vice president of commercial banking for the Farmers & Merchants Bank and Trust (F&M Bank) of Oakland, pictured left, recently presented a check for $1,000 to William B. Grant, chairman of the GCMH Foundation's George Loar Circle Committee. This donation will be used toward the purchase of vital patient care equipment at the hospital. The F&M Bank is the newest member of the Foundation's George Loar Circle, a donor recognition group that honors businesses and civic associations that support healthcare through an annual donation of $1,000. There are currently 24 businesses and civic associations listed in the George Loar Circle membership.

SBDC THANKS FSU - The Small Business Development Center/Western Region Inc. recently presented a commemorative display trophy to Frostburg State University for that institution's support to the SBDC as it marks its 10th anniversary in providing service to entrepreneurs and small businesses in the region. Making the presentation to Dr. Catherine R. Gira, president of FSU, was W. Sam LaMarina, right, executive director of the Western Maryland SBDC. Also present (at left) was Dr. Steven Wilkinson, dean of the FSU College of Business and SBDC representative.

Antiques Show, Sale Slated At Lakeview Resort

The Monongalia Arts Center (MAC), based in Morgantown, will present the 27th annual Antiques Show and Sale at Lakeview Scanticon Resort in Morgantown Friday, Feb. 25, through Sunday, Feb. 27. Show hours are 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $5 per adult; children under 12 are admitted free. The admission fee is good for all three days of the show.

The Antiques Show and Sale is MAC's largest yearly fund-raiser. Sally Decker, show manager, has engaged 55 dealers from the eastern United States offering antiques, collectibles, silver, brass, furniture, oriental rugs, linens, jewelry, crystal, china, paintings, figurines, glassware, and European porcelain.

As an added attraction, MAC will offer appraisals at $15 written and $7 verbal (per item). Antiques and collectibles will be appraised on Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m., and Morgantown gemologist John P. Kuehn will appraise jewelry from 1 to 3 p.m. on Sunday.

Additional show events are the bake sale and a 50/50 drawing at 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Monies raised from the event help support the programs and services of the MAC, which include arts education, community theatre, an art gallery, and arts outreach in Monongalia County.

To reach Lakeview Scanticon Resort and Conference Center, persons should follow U.S. I-79 north or south to I-68 east, and take exit 10.

For more information, persons may contact the Monongalia Arts Center at 304-292-3325.

AURORA/EGLON NEWS

BEAN DINNER

A ham, bean, and cornbread dinner will be served at the Aurora fire hall on Saturday evening, Feb. 26, weather permitting. For this dinner, which also includes desserts, donations of $5 for adults and $3 for children are asked. Take-outs will also be available.

The dinner is sponsored by the Aurora Volunteer Fire Department, and the public is welcome.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER, MARCH 3

Maple Spring Church of the Brethren, located near Eglon, will be the site of the March 3 celebration of World Day of Prayer.

This Church Women United celebration worship was prepared by the women of Indonesia, using the theme "Talitha Kumi," or Young Woman, Stand Up!"

A covered-dish luncheon will be shared at noon, for which the host church will provide beverages, bread, and table service. The program will begin at 1 p.m.

All women of the area are invited to this ecumenical Christian program.

MEET YOUR CANDIDATE DAY PLANNED

An opportunity for the public to meet local candidates will be provided to this area on March 4 at the Mt. Grove Memorial Building. Candidates to be on the ballot at the May 9 Primary Election will be present, beginning with those for the board of education at noon; for sheriff at 1 p.m.; for the House of Delegates at 2 p.m.; and between 3 and 5 p.m., those candidates for assessor, magistrate, prosecuting attorney, and all other Preston County offices.

Everyone is welcome, and refreshments will be available.

MYERS BIRTHDAY

Marguerite Myers, Aurora, will observe her birthday on March 6. As she has apparently been ill this winter, it is suggested that friends and relatives remember her with cards, which may be addressed to her at Rt. 1, Box 1, Aurora, WV 26705.

AURORA CEOS

The Jan. 18 meeting of the Aurora CEOS was conducted at the Union Ambulance squad hall, with Dorothy Spaid presenting devotions on the theme "Thinking Positively." Ten members were present.

"Reading Partners" was the discussion theme led by Ressie Conrad. She emphasized the latter part of the theme "Open Door to Possibilities" by mentioning the effects of beginning to read to children at an early age.

Wilda Stemple, Family Committee chair, asked that each member work on an individual health history, and announced that the committee will continue with the heritage goal. Continuing Education Chairperson Ressie Conrad announced that her committee will continue working on home and gun safety. A county-wide "Show How" day will be sponsored by the Marketing and Membership Committee.

A thank-you note was received from Tracy Waugh for the club's contribution toward the purchase of a risograph for the county extension office. Alice Penzo suggested that the club continue to work on a "crazy quilt" project. The club purchased hammers for Leonard Snyder to take with him to the Sucre, Bolivia, mission project. A bulletin board at the Aurora Post Office will continue to be a club project. Members will also seek to help the Aurora Pioneer 4-H Club with improvements to Trotter Park.

16TH BIRTHDAY

A "Sweet 16" birthday party on Jan. 29 at the Aurora United Methodist Memorial Building honored Hannah Myers. The event was hosted by her father and stepmother, Mike and Sue Myers, and her grandparents, Ben and Opal Myers, all of Aurora.

A cake was baked and decorated by Dean Sisler. Music was provided by DJs Myles Liston and Josh Kidder, Kingwood.

Guests included the guest of honor's grandparents, Donnie and Joan Welsh, along with Patricia Minor, Angela, Richard, Bethany, and Victoria Stevens, Jerry, Jeanie, Benjamin, Cody, and Tanner Myers, Linda and Jacob Cannon, and Melissa DeWitt, all of Oakland; Rhae Stevens, Kingwood; Ed Huffman, Fellowsville; Chris Willis, Independence; Clint Kelly, Albright; Gary, Wendy, and Jillian Everly, Bruceton Mills; Peggy Myers, Joe, Stacy, Becca, and Joey "Bubba" Fint, Eric and Kendra Durst, and Jessica Callahan, all of Aurora; and Matthew Burns.

AVFD DONATIONS

The Aurora Volunteer Fire Department received recent donations from the following: Kathy and Steve Dillsworth, Dallas Fletcher, Mary Jane Hanline in memory of her mother Lydia Harsh, Neil and Marjorie Donham, George Lipscomb, Richard and Connie Knotts, and Cletis Lambert.

OBITUARY

Kenneth Robert Helton, 61, Aurora, died Feb. 5 at Hernando Hospice House, Tampa, Fla.

He was born July 19, 1938, in Chattanooga, Tenn.

He is survived by his wife, Jo Ann (Snyder) Helton; two daughters, Pam Crissostomo and Kacie Tall; three sons, Robert, William, and James Helton; three brothers, Garland and Horace Helton, and Willard Hodges; two sisters, Mary Jo Mathias and Geraldine Holcomb; and five grandchildren.

Visitation with the family was held at Silver Spring on Feb. 8, and at the Aurora United Methodist Memorial Building on Feb. 9. Services were held on Feb. 10 at the Stemple Ridge United Methodist Church, with the Rev. Joe Robinette officiating. Interment was in the Stemple Ridge Cemetery. The Hinkle Funeral Home was in charge of local arrangements.

It is requested that memorial donations be made to the Union Ambulance Service, Aurora, WV 26705.

PERSONAL MENTION

Gudrun "Goody" Conrad, Aurora, was admitted Tuesday evening to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland. She was transferred Thursday to Monongalia General Hospital, Morgantown, where she underwent heart catheterization and placement of stints. She returned home on Sunday.

Jack Adams, Aurora, was transferred last Tuesday from Garrett Memorial Hospital to Mon General and, after heart catheterization, underwent triple bypass surgery on Feb. 21.

Also in Monongalia General Hospital for heart catheterization on Friday was Clifton Arnold, also of Aurora.

Mildred Kovalck, Aurora, was a recent patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of an apparent illness resulting from flu complications.

Jim Highberger underwent gall bladder surgery last Wednesday in a Charleston, S.C., hospital. He is the husband of Judy (Fike) Highberger and son-in-law of Louella Fike, Aurora.

Bradley Teets, Stroudsburg, Pa., was a Feb. 11 visitor with his mother, Ruth Teets, a resident of the Cortland Acres Nursing Home.

Bessie Heckert was reportedly quite ill last week at Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home, Oakland. Her daughter, Barbara Heckert, Eglon, spent much of the time with her.

Weekend visitors with Homer and Marguerite Myers were their daughter and son-in-law, Mary and Alan Myers, Middletown, Del.

John and Florence Minnig returned last Thursday to their home at Eglon after a 10-day visit in California. They visited their new grandson, Nathaniel Zachary Zenker, and his parents, Faith and Jesse Zenker, at Arroyo Grande, and with their daughter, Cheri Minnig, Davis.

Frances Stemple, Aurora, was taken Monday evening to GCMH, where she was treated for symptoms of an apparent stroke.

Judy (Harsh) Stemple, Eglon, is also a patient at Garrett Memorial.

Word was received by relatives here of the Feb. 21 death of Effie (Feather) Biser, who had been residing with her son, Dayton Biser, at Springfield, Va. She is a sister of Willard Feather and Wilda Rembold, both of Aurora.

Iris (Myers) Simmons, Aurora, received word last week of the death of a nephew, the son of Calvin and Betty (Myers) Knotts, Daleville, Va.

4-H Club News

AURORA PIONEERS
by Tracy Fields

The Aurora Pioneers recently held their February meeting at the home of Stacy Fint, club leader. The meeting began by Neil Mersing leading the American pledge and Marissa Bachtel leading the 4-H pledge. Scott Fields led "Singing in the Rain" as an opening song. Kaylen Fike and Marissa Bachtel read devotions about Valentine's Day.

Some members will be going to state camps at Jackson's Mill in the upcoming month. These camps are Teen Leader Charting Weekend and Dance Camp. The Pioneers plan to go swimming at Alpine Lake soon.

Members had been encouraged to bring baked goods to be judged. Marissa Bachtel placed second with a heart-shaped red velvet cake. Tracy Fields won first place with fudge hearts on a stick. After the judging, the members tasted the various entries. Special treat bags were decorated and packed with the remaining tasty treats and shared within the community.

Scholarship Is Available

Arthurdale Heritage, Inc., is currently accepting applications for the Manford B. Weaver Scholarship. This scholarship is awarded to a descendant of original Arthurdale homesteaders and provides full tuition at a West Virginia public college or university.

Applications are available at Arthurdale Heritage and the Preston High School guidance office. Deadline for receipt of applications is April 1.

To the Editor:

Just a note of coincidence and remembrance. On A-4 of the 2-17 Republican was Brian Crabtree's letter about his Eagle Scout project of tree planting. He is a member of Troop 22, an offshoot of Troop 1. On A-6 is the obituary of Robert Stemple, a charter member of Troop 1 and Eagle Scout.

The Scouting movement lives on, being 90 years old in the USA. Troop 1 lives on, being 76 years old in Oakland.

Only a few Scouts reach Eagle. I wish Brian well on his quest to Eagle rank.

To the Editor:

First it was the Sheriff's Dept. and now it's the teachers. Don't blame the county commissioners about your salaries. No one feels sorry for the rest of the hard-working people in this county. A lot of people only get a raise when the minimum wage goes up, which isn't very often.

No one is forced to work in this area; you make your own decision. I, for one, travel 160 miles to work all week to only be home on the weekends. I made this decision because I know how the pay is in this county.

As for the woman who wrote in saying that people didn't realize their pay would be the same for 20 or 25 years, I know several people who have worked the same place for 15 or 20 years and are barely making above the minimum wage. How would you like to have that salary? But again, they make their own choice to stay with the same job.

This county needs industry, not just tourism. Most tourism jobs are low-paying except for the business owners.

Everyone deserves to find a good-paying job where they live. But it's hard to find in this county. Believe me, I don't look forward to paying my taxes every year, because I sure don't get much of a return for them.

Thank you for letting me express my opinion.

Sincerely,
James A. Tasker

To the Editor:

To a very troubled soul, your thievery of the sound system, microphone, and speakers from the Hoyes United Methodist Church during early February has greatly distressed our congregation. We at Hoyes are all praying for you because you must be greatly in need to steal from a church.

If you had approached us with your need, we would have tried to help you. One of the great commandments is "Thou shalt not steal." You have not only stolen from a building; you have stolen from God's house.

If you would find it in your heart to return what you have stolen, we would still try to assist you. As it is, we can only pray that you will change your way of life. We will continue praying for your soul.

Town Hall

GRANTSVILLE

The town meeting was held Monday, Feb. 21.

•A public hearing was held on a modification to the zoning ordinance that would, by special exception, permit government offices within areas zoned as town residential. The ordinance was adopted by the council.

•The county commissioners attended the meeting and reviewed with the mayor and council the project to increase the water supply to the town and the surrounding area.

•The council informed the commissioners that Grantsville will not seek a tax differential.

•Bids to refurbish the basketball court in the community were opened. Of the three submitted, the lowest was made by Keystone Lime. They were awarded the contract. The work is to be completed by May 15.

•There was an initial reading of an ordinance to set the rate for water and sewer use by those outside the town limits. The rate is proposed at 1.5 times the town rate.

•There was discussion of the library project. There are no new developments at this time.

•Using a town revitalization grant, the town will put in new sidewalks along Main Street, Route 669, and Route 495.

The next town meeting will be held Monday, March 20.

MTN. LAKE PARK

The town meeting was held Tuesday, Feb. 22.

•A resident asked what action the town is taking concerning a "burned-out" building. Mayor Shockey told him that the town now has a dangerous building ordinance and is taking the required steps to remedy the situation described by the resident.

•Paul Deal, the chair of the town's Halloween celebration committee, reported that a meeting was held, and there were many residents involved who are sharing ideas. More meetings will be held in the future.

•Supplemental Budget Resolution 00-01 was read, approved, and signed by all council members.

•Charter Amendment Resolution 00-02 was read, approved, and signed by all council members.

•Mayor Shockey told a D St. property owner that permits have been applied for and that work will begin soon to repair a drain on that property.

•Town employee David Simmons received a letter of recognition from Maryalnd State Police following a maintenace inspection of the town's vehicles. The letter complimented the quality of the maintenance work performed on the fleet of vehicles, noting that it was "of the highest standard."

•Carl Rebele reported to the council on his efforts to seek funding and locations for town park facilities.

•Lou DiCarlo reported that he has submitted a grant application to the McDonald Corporation.

The next town meeting will be held March 14.

OAKLAND

The town has postponed the annexation of the property along Memorial Drive. See story.

Town elections are slated for March 13. Persons may file for office until 4 p.m. March 3. See story.

GETTING SUPPORT FROM FRIENDS - Tfc. Blair Bittinger, seated in the center of the front row in the photo above, stopped by the Grantsville after-school program recently to tell the elementary and middle school students about the upcoming Deep Creek Dunk. He explained that the Maryland State Police sponsor this event to raise money for the Special Olympics program in Garrett and Allegany counties and that he would be among those to "suit up" and bound into the frigid waters after the ice is cut away by chainsaws. The students in the after-school program decided to sponsor Tfc. Bittinger and to do something special for him. Last Thursday the students invited him to stop by again for a visit and they surprised him by presenting him with a specially made T-shirt for the dunk. Not only are they giving him their support in advance of the dunk, but they plan to be on the shore of Deep Creek Lake on Saturday to cheer for Tfc. Bittinger as he plunges into the water. In the photo with the officer are the students in the Grantsville after-school program along with teachers Karen Wood and Stephanie Merrill, at left in the back, and teacher Eileen Schlosnagle, seated among the students on the right in the second row. Standing in the back row are students from Frostburg State University who volunteer at the Grantsville after-school program, which is funded by the HotSpot initiative and coordinated by Community Action.

Mountain Lake Park Observer

by Dan Whittelsey

This is the first column of a series devoted to the governing of Mountain Lake Park. The object is to inform the residents of the town of the progress Mayor Paul Shockey and the Town Council have made since their election last summer.

During January the mayor provided me with the following summary of what has been achieved:

"The Town Council and I (Shockey) are addressing a host of new issues, including the Dangerous Building Ordinance which was recently passed and which should help eliminate burned and abandoned buildings that are an eyesore and can be dangerous.

"An ordinance prohibiting the parking of large commercial trucks on our residential streets has been approved by the council.

"The Town Council and I initiated studies by residents concerning fluoridation of the town water supply, which was then approved.

"The town has been successful in obtaining a state grant of $20,000 for repairs to the Mary Drive sewer pumping station.

"As a result of comments received at a council meeting after last Halloween, I appointed a committee of interested citizens from Mtn. Lake Park, Oakland, and Loch Lynn to address the issue of trick or treating throughout the area next fall. Dr. Paul Deal has been reporting on their progress."

Elsewhere in The Republican you can find a report of the town council's meetings.

At the most recent meeting of the council (Tuesday of this week), there was a very lovely and interesting discussion concerning the purchase by the town and usage of the El Lobo Restaurant and adjoining properties by you, the taxpayers.

Carl Rebele advised the council that grant money could be found provided that a detail and far-sighted plan is developed by the town.

Mayor Shockey said that he would appoint a committee to put such a plan together, under the direction of the town's Planning Committee.

The Planning Committee's next meeting is set for March 8 at 6:30 p.m. at Town Hall. The next council meeting will be on March 14 at 6 p.m., also at Town Hall.

Please attend, town residents. We need community support. Your money is involved.

4-H Club News

Grantsville
by Aaron Wilhelm
reporter

The February meeting of the Grantsville 4-H Club began with a visit to the Goodwill Mennonite Home in Grantsville. Members of the club performed songs, read poetry, and displayed many other talents for the seniors. From the Mennonite Home members traveled to the Grantsville Sportsman's Club to carry out their standard monthly meeting.

This month the population of the Grantsville 4-H experienced tremendous growth, adding 11 new members to its roster including: Anthony Little, Temell Booker, Matt Otto, Darrell Nelson, Jerome Smith, Mark Franklin, Caressa Frazee, Shawn Adams, Aaron Newman, Jessica Bender, Kara Bowser, and Brittany Wilhelm.

The club decided to hold its annual bowling project during the month of March on Sundays, 5, 12, 19, and 26, and April 9 from 1 to 3:30 p.m. Members decided to donate $100 to the Livestock Association and $100 to the Ryan Weimer Foundation, in memory of Jerry Weimer — a longtime member of the Grantsville 4-H Club.

The club also discussed where to have the annual 4-H club trip; however, no decision has been made.

Massage Offered For Reversing Stress-Related Damage To System

by Peggy Santamaria

"Unfortunately all kinds of stress go deep into our bodies — down to the cell level. This is when illness, imbalances, and disease become our lifestyle." —Cynthia Knight.

Cynthia Knight, a licensed massage therapist who teaches physiology and anatomy for the massage therapy program at Garrett Community College, while speaking about the benefits of message recently, described the use and abuse that the nervous system may experience in today's society.

The human body is designed to deal with stress through a nervous system which automatically responds to potential threats by pumping out the extra energy and strength required by the situation. It is the sympathetic branch of the autonomic nervous system that reacts to a perceived danger, Knight explained.

It is the sympathetic part of the system that would get a person moving should a tiger be waiting outside the cave when he or she emerges for the day. The "flight or fight" response, it has been called. For example, adrenalin may course through the system allowing the person to run at top speed or fight in a burst of energy.

Knight also referred to the system responsible for the body's reversing the sympathetic response. Once the threat is withdrawn, the parasympathetic system kicks in to regulate the functions of the body and return all processes to normal speed and production, she noted.

With both parts of the nervous system functioning, the body can maintain a balance. However, problems may result if the "perceived threats" are present more than absent. This is like the tiger always being outside the cave door, Knight said.

"Our current lifestyle has our bodies' systems stuck in the physical activities of the sympathetic branch of the autonomic nervous system. Our thoughts and actions are geared to the need to escape constant perceived dangers, to move away from the anxieties we feel from the stress of being out of control — in our jobs, in our relationships, and with our family responsibilities," she said.

When the body reacts to stress, hormones and other body chemicals are sent to various organs to alter their function, Knight explained. "In the cardiovascular system, the blood pressure goes up and the heart rate speeds up. This can cause harm to the body if it goes on too long," she noted.

The digestive system is also altered in response to the perceived danger or stress. "Its activities are affected in such a way that constipation, acid reflux, diarrhea, ulcers, and irritable bowel syndrome may result from a constant imbalance. Immune function may be so overwhelmed that it becomes suppressed. Often the central nervous system will protect itself from the relentless stress by allowing the brain to shift into depression," Knight said.

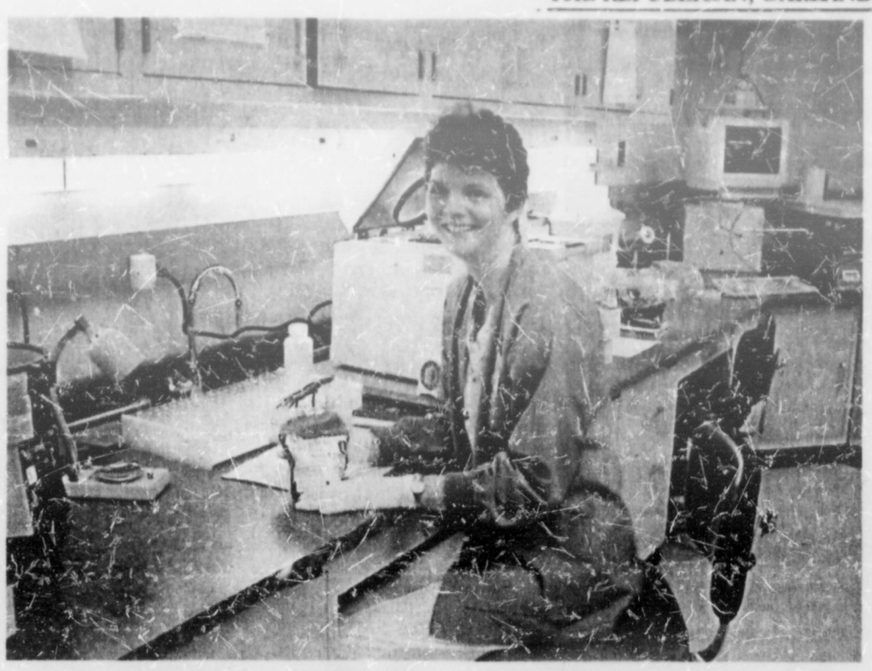
Since the stressors of daily life are ever-present through combinations of such things as noise, driving in traffic, and demands from others, some people will seek a semblance of relief through unhealthy behaviors, Knight pointed out. "Smoking, grabbing food on the run, missing sleep, neglecting exercise, and seeking pick-me-ups through sodas and candy are all behaviors that further stress our bodies," she stated.

Knight explained that massage supports the body to return to wellness and balance. "The supportive, repetitive, deeply relaxing strokes one experiences during a massage actually reverse the sympathetic activity and move the body into parasympathetic flow," she said.

The sensory input from touch "rebalances" the two branches of the nervous system, reversing the chemical activity to lower blood pressure and heart rate and to return digestive activity to normal, she added.

"During massage, breathing becomes deep and regular, soothing specific nerves. In a balanced state the flow of blood and lymphatic fluid are able to function in their specific activities of cleansing and nourishing the cells. The immune system is also able to return to its normal function of repairing and healing," Knight said.

The benefits of massage are not limited to the moments spent on the massage table, Knight emphasized. The therapist will also suggest to the client ways to be more in touch with one's own needs and steps to self-help. "Through massage a person really can become self-empowered," she concluded.



GCMH LABORATORY ACCREDITATION — Surveyors from the American Association of Blood Banks Accreditation were "very complimentary" of the laboratory at Garrett County Memorial Hospital during a recent survey. "Our lab did so well that the surveyors commented on their plan to include examples of our lab's quality plan and other documentation in a commendable practice file to serve as a resource for other hospitals," explained Lois Rhodes, MT(ASCP), section chief of the GCMH Blood Bank, pictured above. The GCMH lab achieved a level of "no areas of noncompliance for regulations" in this recent accreditation survey, which is done every two years.

St. Mark's To Host Prayer And Healing Workshop

A prayer and healing workshop will be held at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland on Sunday, March 5, from 1 until 3 p.m. Jim Kulma, chaplain and director of pastoral care at Lutheran Hospital of the Cleveland (Ohio) Clinic Health System, will present the workshop, which will focus on simple methods of empowering prayers of healing for the participants and others.

"Research is beginning to confirm what people of faith have always asserted: Prayer really works," Kulma said. "Recent studies are showing that prayer and religious practice are good for your health, as well as your faith. Workshop participants will learn to relax the body, focus the mind and intention, and open the heart for healing."

A graduate of Lutheran Theological Southern Seminary in Columbia, S.C., Kulma completed his clinical pastoral education residency at Richland Memorial Hospital, also in Columbia. He is an active member of the Network of Biblical Storytellers, and is also a certified teacher of Tai Chi Chuan. Kulma has made two trips to China to gain further knowledge and experience in Tai Chi and Chinese wellness.

The chaplain lives in Lakewood, Ohio, with his wife Toni and their three children.

The workshop is free and open to the public. For more information, persons may contact Pastor Mike Robinson at 301-334-2668.

Dove Center Staff Visit Head Start Centers In County

Staff members from the Dove Center, Garrett County's resource for domestic violence and sexual assault, have recently completed visits to the Head Start centers in the county, where they met with parents and teachers of children in the Head Start program.

The purpose of these meetings, according to Dove Center counselor Heather Hanline, was to inform the Head Start staff and family members about the varied services and outreach programs aimed at preventing or intervening in matters of family violence.

"We are going to be doing some more education soon. There is a grant that will be funding a parenting class that I hope to teach in March," Hanline added.

Any group or organization that is interested in having a Dove Center staff member speak about the services available may call the center at 301-334-6255 or 301-895-4300.

Doctors Ask Lawmakers For Limits On Insurers' Denial of Payments

by Debra Hoffman
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — A House committee Thursday approved two bills to force insurance companies to pay for preauthorized services and limit the time they could take back money paid in error, after insurers and physicians battled over the measures in a hearing last week.

The bills, sponsored by Delegate John Donoghue, D-Washington, come after legislation passed last year was unable to satisfy both sides.

While the vote was on House bills, the identical measures were debated in the Senate Finance Committee last Wednesday.

Committee Chairman Sen. Thomas Bromwell, D-Baltimore County, chastised the lobbyists for not resolving the issue with last year's bills.

"We want to solve this problem," Bromwell said. "We want doctors to get paid, we want insurance companies to pay, and more importantly, we want our people to get quality care."

The first bill concerns preauthorization, the insurer's approval that doctors receive before a medical procedure. The bill would mandate payment after approval except in cases of fraud or improper coding.

"If they say OK, they should pay," said Pegeen Townsend, legislative adviser for the Maryland Hospital Association.

Denials often occur because a patient changes insurance coverage between the authorization and the procedure, said Robert Enten, spokesman for the Maryland Association of Health Plans. Enten said doctors should call insurers the day of the procedure to verify the patient's coverage.

"Why should the burden be on the doctor?" said Sen. George Della Jr., D-Baltimore. "You (the insurance companies) are the only ones who know if the patient is a member, yet you don't take the initiative to call to let the doctor know," Della added.

Enten said it would not be economical for an insurance company to inform doctors when a patient is dropped, and reminded lawmakers that "a preauthorization is not an absolute guarantee of payment."

Voting against the bill in the House committee, Delegate Richard LaVay, R-Montgomery, said insurers would stop preauthorization if the legislation passed, denying patients the right to know if their procedure is covered. LaVay's amendment to provide more exemptions for retroactive denial failed.

The second bill would prohibit retroactive payment denials later than six months, unless information submitted was fraudulent or incorrectly coded. Current law has the same restriction, yet insurance companies have found a way around it. While money cannot be deducted from future payment, insurers can ask doctors to issue a check immediately.

The Maryland medical society, MedChi, supports the retroactive denial bill and said insurers should have the same restrictions as doctors, who have six months to submit a claim for payment.

Dr. Janet Brown, a Glen Burnie radiologist, said her practice is frustrated by administrative work required to deal with retroactive denials. The practice had 45 cases of retroactive denials in 1999, 30 cases in 1998 and in 1997.

Brown's practice is involved in a retroactive denial from 1995, said Cheryl Tucker, Brown's office manager.

"I went to medical school to practice medicine," Brown said. "I did not go to medical school to become a (certified public accountant)."

Health maintenance organizations are concerned the new bill includes capitation fees, a monthly allowance a doctor receives for treating a patient. The insurer will reclaim the monthly fee for a patient no longer covered, a process that can take more than six months, said Fran Doherty, spokeswoman for CareFirst BlueCross BlueShield.

House Economic Matters Committee chairman Michael Busch, D-Anne Arundel, compared the practice to a restaurant owner docking a cook's pay when patrons don't pay for their meals.

New technology could be the answer to these dilemmas, one senator said.

Sen. Delores Kelley, D-Baltimore, said both problems could be circumvented if insurance companies provided doctors with a list of covered patients over the Internet.

Cell Phones Available For Abuse Victims

A program introduced in Garrett County this week will provide victims of domestic violence (DV) and stalking access to 911 and the National Domestic Violence Hotline immediately through cellular telephones.

The Dove Center, Garrett County's domestic violence program, will distribute cellular telephones to victims who have a current ex parte or protection order and meet the cellular telephone program criteria.

According to a report from the U.S. Department of Justice, domestic violence in many cases does not stop after a victim leaves the abuser, and 75 percent of assaults occur after divorce or separation. In addition, the report notes that during the six-month period after an abusive incident, 32 percent of victims report that they are re-victimized.

"Even when a victim has an ex parte or protective order, she or he is not necessarily safe. Having a telephone available around-the-clock is essential, if a victim needs to call police for help. Now victims of domestic violence and/or stalking will have immediate access to 911 and the National DV Hotline, thereby giving victims a new tool for security during a time when they are particularly vulnerable," said Linda Spassil, director of the Dove Center.

This new program is a local example of a statewide initiative to provide cellular telephones to DV victims throughout Maryland. The donation of cellular telephones and the initiation of this project were made possible by the collaborative partnership of Bell Atlantic Mobile, the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention, Maryland State Police, and the Maryland Network Against Domestic Violence. For more information or to obtain an application, persons may contact the Dove Center at 301-334-6255 or 301-895-4300.

Alzheimer's Assn. Offers Support For Caregivers

Family members of people with Alzheimer's disease may find some help in coping with the responsibilities of caregiving through the support groups sponsored by the Alzheimer's Association. Held throughout the state, the support meetings provide a forum for people within a community to share information and resources.

In Garrett County, the support group meetings are coordinated by Donna McClintock for the Western Maryland chapter of the association. These evening sessions, offered to the public free of charge, are held at various locations in Oakland.

Anyone interested in learning more about the resources available for family members of Alzheimer's patients and participating in support group meetings may contact McClintock at 301-334-8253 or call the Western Maryland chapter at 1-800-696-6830.

Bloodmobile To Visit Mar. 3, 6

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will visit Garrett County in three locations on two different days, as a crew will be at the Proctor Kildow Post 33 American Legion home in Oakland and at the Kitzmiller fire hall on Friday, Mar. 3, and at the Grantsville fire hall on Monday, Mar. 6.

Donors will be welcomed at the Oakland and Kitzmiller sites from noon to 6 p.m., and at Grantsville from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Blood supplies remain dangerously low in the region, according to the ARC, with O negative and A negative blood particularly needed. To be permitted to donate blood, a person must be at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 105 pounds, be in generally good health, and may not have donated within the last 56 days.

Osteoporosis: Prevention Is The Best Medicine

More than 10 million post-menopausal women in the United States have osteoporosis - a loss of bone mass that causes the bones to become porous and fragile. Another 18 million are considered at risk for fractures that are prone to occur in the hip, spine, and wrist. It is estimated that half of all women over the age of 50 years in the US experience osteoporosis-related fractures during their lifetimes.

When it comes to osteoporosis, prevention is the "best medicine." Weight-bearing exercises like walking can help slow the loss of bone tissue. A diet rich in calcium and/or calcium supplements also is recommended.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

Thanks For All The Help!

For the third year in a row, Warm The Children was a success in Garrett County, because of the generosity of the donors, the wonderful help of the volunteers, and the cooperation of our two participating stores. We raised over $16,000 this year, and were able to buy new winter clothing and footwear for 180 local children and teenagers. An achievement of this magnitude can only be attained with cooperation from all angles, including the entire Garrett County public school system, the staff and students of which helped identify children in need, donated money, and shopped the stores. Other departments of the county government also helped, from the sheriff's office to the road crews. Thanks also to Janie and Larry Stover of Oakland's J.C. Penney, and Rob Stone, who were invaluable partners in this effort. Also, in Hyndman, once again a wonderful partner, the Civic Club of Oakland, headed up by Bobby Anderson and Bobbie Henderson, who took over the shopping detail in the Southern end of the county. Lisa Brodwater, the Grant's elite co-coordinator of the program, who did a tremendous job. David Foster, who almost single handedly took care of the hundreds of thank you notes; the generous contributors; and to Mack and Natalie Stewart, who from Hagerstown, Comps operate the entire Warm the Children effort across the county, involving 10 newspapers and helping about 11,000 children nationwide. In fact, in our area, about $850,000 was donated this year, and every penny of that will be spent on the children. That's the beauty of the program, and the reason why we will do it again for the 11th year.

Thanks,

Program Coordinator

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN IS STILL YOUR BEST FRIEND

Although we rarely hear about the physician that follows the same old ways of daily house rounds, there are still some of them left. In some remote areas it is the only way for a doctor to bring health care to a community.

Today's modern physician serves in a very specialized but much more efficient manner. He knows that if it is possible for someone who is sick to get to the office, he is better equipped to help them. With the facilities available he is able to more quickly diagnose and treat his patients. Should the service of a specialist be required, he will suggest one.

"Mom, I don't want to take my medicine. It tastes yukky!"

"Please take it. It's good for you!"

How many times did we hear that as a youngster? Yet, we didn't have a whole lot of choice, if we were going to get better. As adults, we often have a sense of déjà vu when faced with a distasteful situation which gives us little choice but to take a deep breath and "swallow hard." Yet, in hindsight, we often find that we become more complete and confident people as a result.

A wise First Lady, Eleanor Roosevelt said, "You have to accept whatever comes and the only important thing is that you meet it with courage and the best that you have to give." We read in Psalm 31:24... "Be of good courage, and He shall strengthen your heart, all ye that hope in the Lord."

Grow in courage as you worship each week. Then you can take whatever comes your way. It might just be good for you.

These firms invite you to a House of Worship each week

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE SAME, BUT DIFFERENT!

February 27, 2000

Background Scripture:
Matthew 27:62 through 28:20.
Devotional Reading:
John 20:19-31.

A man challenged me, saying: "Surely as a preacher you must know that the resurrection accounts in the New Testament are unreliable. They don't agree about who did what, when they did it, what was said and done. They don't agree as to whether the Risen Christ was a flesh and blood person or an ghostly apparition. The gospel accounts sound like four or more different experiences!"

Yes, I do know that the resurrection experiences in the four gospels are really in disagreement about many of the details concerning the resurrection. Matthew, for example, mentions an earthquake, no minor detail, (28:2), while Mark, Luke and John do not. Matthew says that, on the way to tell the disciples the angel's message that Christ was risen, the women encounter the risen Jesus. John records the encounter but tells us that only Mary Magdalene was present. Luke and Mark say nothing about this incident.

Diverse Forms

Yet, even apart from these details, the risen Jesus they encounter appears in diverse forms: a recognizable physical body in Matthew 28:9, a seemingly physical Jesus who goes through solid walls and disappears in John 20:19-29 and Luke 24:13-25, an unassented body that Mary Magdalene is instructed not to touch (Jn. 20:17), a physical presence they are invited to touch and in which he joins them in eating some broiled fish (Lk 24:36-43). Matthew, Mark and John agree that the resurrected Christ instructs them to go to Galilee, while Luke speaks of his farewell charge and ascension on the Mount of Olives (Lk 24:44-49.)

Even more troubling for some people is the fact that, although the risen Christ is for the most part represented as the Jesus they knew and followed, there are some who do not recognize him right away—Mary Magdalene in Jn. 20:11-17, the two disciples on the Emmaus road in Lk. 24:13-35 and some unnamed disciples of whom we are told in Mt. 28:17—"And when they saw him (in Galilee) they worshipped him; but some doubted."

Yes, I acknowledge all these discrepancies and others we do not have space to pursue. But, unlike the skeptic who concluded that these discrepancies make the gospels "unreliable," I reach an entirely different conclusion. If each of the four Evangelists had written

SEARCHERS SALUTED - A search in bitterly cold weather and over a foot of snow had a happy ending late last month when Raymond Tichinel was found deep in a wooded area near Kitzmiller. The 15-year-old youth, who had been missing for nearly five hours, was rescued when a track initiated by sheriff's deputy Dave McLaughlin and his bloodhound Jonathan eventually led volunteer searchers John and Rodger W. Evans to the snow-covered trail where he was lying. A number of the searchers were honored in a ceremony that took place at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office recently. Shown above from the left in the front row flanking Raymond Tichinel are his mother, Carol Kent, and Tim Tichinel, his uncle. In the back row are his stepfather, James Kent, searcher Michael Stalnaker, Sheriff Dick Sanders, and searchers Dwight Lewis, Dfc. Dave McLaughlin, Randy Harold, Rodger Evans, and Lt. Paul Pratt. Not available for the photo was fellow searcher John Evans, who, along with his brother Rodger, eventually located Tichinel and transported him out of the woods — and then reported to his job site in Grafton, W.Va., to mine coal on the night shift. Sanders is shown below pinning a badge on Tichinel that made him an honorary deputy. "I want to tell everyone who helped find me 'thank you,'" Tichinel said. "I know I am very lucky." The youth had left his home on a search of his own to find two lost puppies, "Sonic" and "Baby." The 8-month-old dogs had returned home on their own while Tichinel was in the woods looking for them, and were there to greet him when he was discharged from Garrett County Memorial Hospital two days after his own rescue.

Kitzmiller Search Party Honored For Lifesaving Effort Last Month

by David Foster

A group of Kitzmiller area residents, along with two Garrett County sheriff's deputies, were recognized in a recent sheriff's office ceremony that saluted their "willingness to sacrifice their own comforts for someone in great need," as Sheriff P.R. "Dick" Sanders remarked. The honorees had spent several hours participating in a search for a lost juvenile who would have likely perished in frigid darkness if another hour had gone by before he was found.

Shortly before 3 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 24, 15-year-old Raymond Tichinel, worried about a pair of his family's puppies that had strayed into a stand of thick woods, left his Tichinel Lane residence to search for them. The Tichinel family lives northwest of Kitzmiller on the edge of a very rugged mountain area, and when the youth embarked on his search there was over a foot of snow on the ground and the temperature was 25 degrees and falling.

At 4:41 p.m., the sheriff's dispatcher received a call from Tichinel's mother, Carol Kent, who said that her son had not returned. Lt. Paul Pratt and Dfc. Dave McLaughlin and his bloodhound Jonathan were assigned to search for the missing youth. Pratt, who grew up in the Kitzmiller area, and McLaughlin, who had just returned to Garrett County from a full day of training in Hagerstown, immediately responded to the scene to begin searching in the falling darkness.

"It was tough tracking work," McLaughlin recalled. "Raymond had gotten into a creek [Wolfden Run] and had followed it for a good ways, sometimes getting out onto one bank or the other before going back into the stream, and he did a lot of backtracking too. Jonathan tracked all these movements and even found a glove underwater that Raymond had dropped in the creek. At some points I had to lift him up to place him on rocks that Raymond had climbed onto along the bank," not an easy task as the dog weighs 120 pounds.

"It was extremely cold," Pratt stated. "The state police personnel aboard the Trooper 5 helicopter, who were searching the area from the air, toid us later that it was so cold that the bodies of the searchers didn't show up on the infrared camera whenever they were searching in the stream bed. The cold made it impossible for them to pick up Raymond when he was near the creek too."

The two sheriff's deputies and the airborne state troopers were assisted by personnel from the Kitzmiller Volunteer Fire Department, the Elk Garden Rescue Squad, the Southern Rescue Squad, and the Department of Natural Resources. A group of concerned citizens also volunteered to join in the search, including Michael Stalnaker, Dwight Lewis, Randy Harold, and Tim Tichinel.

Two additional citizens also volunteered to help find the missing youth. Rodger W. Evans, who was on his way home from a day's work at the Beitzel Corporation in Bittinger, saw the helicopter flying above the woods off Kitzmiller Road and learned that Raymond was missing. Evans got his brother John, who was getting ready to go to work on the night shift at the Whitetail Coal Mine site in Grafton, W.Va., and the two rode into the woods on their four-wheeler.

The Evanses joined up with McLaughlin and his dog, and when Jonathan's track came upon a four-wheeler path deep in the woods off Wolfden Run, the two brothers went ahead to follow the trail. They soon came upon Tichinel, who was lying in the snow over three miles from his home after having traced and retraced his own steps for nearly five hours.

"Raymond had taken his coat off and was using it for a pillow," Rodger Evans said later. "He had also lost his boots, and was obviously in trouble." John Evans took off his coat and put it around Raymond, and Roger took off his own socks and put them on the youth's frozen feet. "My feet felt like ice," Tichinel recalled.

The youth was loaded onto the four-wheeler, and the two-mile ride to the nearest home, the Stalnaker residence, took over 30 minutes. "We had to keep talking to him throughout the ride to keep him awake," Rodger Evans said. "He wanted to go to sleep, and we knew that would be bad." Suffering from frostbite and hypothermia, Raymond Tichinel was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was hospitalized for two days. The sheriff's office recognition ceremony for the search party volunteers took place over two weeks after the youth was released from the hospital, and he was only then beginning to walk without limping.

"I can't say how thankful I am to everyone who helped look for Raymond," said Carol Kent, the boy's mother. "I was scared to death that evening, but still had hope because so many people joined in the search. When the sheriff's office called us to say he had been found, our prayers were answered."

"I know most of the families of the searchers," commented Pratt. "We couldn't have found Raymond without them. Without a doubt, they saved his life."

"We are blessed with living in a community where there is such a giving and caring attitude," Sanders observed. "This was an example of citizens and police working together for the common good of our neighbors."

Glendening Announces $10 Million Incentive To Protect Water Quality

Moving forward with his aggressive efforts to preserve Maryland's natural resources and protect the state's water quality, Governor Parris N. Glendening committed an additional $10 million incentive to encourage farmers to enroll their land in the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP). Under the program, farmers are reimbursed for removing environmentally sensitive farmland from production, and receive funding to plant buffers or wetlands next to streams. The program protects water quality in Maryland's rivers and streams, and enhances ecosystems by reducing soil erosion, controlling nutrient run-off, and increasing wildlife habitat.

"This is a win-win program," said Gov. Glendening. "It is good for farmers, who have the opportunity to get value for the lands they are setting aside for the environment. It is great for the environment, because it helps create natural protective buffers that capture runoff and preserve our waterways. This $10 million investment in CREP is an investment in the future of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributary streams."

Through CREP in Maryland, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture (USDA), the state, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, and Ducks Unlimited have now committed more than $200 million as part of a five-year agreement to voluntarily implement conservation practices and protect 100,000 acres of marginal or sensitive farmland along streams and rivers. Maryland's additional $10 million enhancement will pay farmers a bonus of $100 per acre for land enrolled in the program and will leverage additional federal incentives.

"The additional $10 million for bonus payments to Maryland's farmers will encourage their voluntary decision to install conservation practices," said Steve Weber, president of the Maryland Farm Bureau.

Landowners who enter into CREP contracts with USDA take highly erodible lands, marginal cropland adjacent to streams, and converted wetlands out of production for 10 to 15 years. Best management practices are then implemented to protect the natural resources on that land. In exchange, annual rental payments are issued to the landowner along with financial and technical assistance to establish approved conservation measures. Riparian buffers, stream protection and wetlands restoration projects are all covered under the program.

"The Bay depends on natural filters, like wetlands and forests along streams, creeks, and rivers, to clean its water," said Chesapeake Bay Foundation president William C. Baker. "CREP has been a great boost to restoring these natural water filters, and, with the changes the governor has proposed, this program will achieve its full potential throughout Maryland."

More information on enrolling in the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program is available by calling, toll free, 1-877-4BUFFER.

Cattle On Feed In Historic Seven States Up 11%

Cattle on feed Feb. 1, 2000, in the seven states historically surveyed by the government for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 9.89 million, up 11% from the previous year and 8% above Feb. 1, 1998, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS).

Farming In Maryland.....

Insufficient Staffing At Maryland FSAs Congressional Concern

Responding to concerns expressed by Maryland farmers, Senator Paul S. Sarbanes, the chair of the Maryland congressional delegation, has announced that all 10 members of the congressional delegation have signed a letter urging the assistance of U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman to address concerns about insufficient staffing at federal Farm Service Agency (FSA) operations throughout the state of Maryland and the nation.

In the letter, the delegation expressed their concern that inadequate funding has been provided in the fiscal 2001 budget to sustain FSA field offices in the state of Maryland. Furthermore, at their current staffing levels, it is extremely difficult for these offices to accomplish their missions completely and in a timely manner. The FSA's latest budget projections would reduce the Maryland FSA's staffing level to 69 positions or less. The delegation asserts that in order to function at a minimal capacity, the FSA in Maryland requires at least 76 personnel, and as a result of this staffing shortfall, some of these offices will be on the brink of closure. FSA is, in part, responsible for implementing disaster assistance and relief program efforts to Maryland's family farmers.

The Maryland delegation letter to Secretary Glickman stated: "In our view, failing to fund adequate staffing for this critical agency adds insult to injury for many farmers in Maryland and across the nation — many of whom desperately need relief in the face of extensive drought and economic depression. We urge you to review this matter carefully and promptly, and work with appropriate congressional committees and FSA offices throughout the country to ensure that they have the sufficient staffing levels with which to conduct their missions."

The FSA reaches out in many ways to offer assistance and support to deal with a host of farm-related issues, including Production Flexibility Contracts, Commodity Price Protection loans, Catastrophic Crop Insurance requests, Direct Operating Loans, and Conservation Reserve contracts. In addition, as a result of an earlier restructuring in 1994, county FSA offices were expanded to include agricultural credit operations from the Farmers Home Administration.

Glickman Seeks To Expand State's Fed. Farm Aid

A recent Associated Press report credits Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman as saying it's time all states got a share of the billions of dollars in federal aid sent to farmers each year.

Instead of devoting farm assistance to a handful of midwestern and southern states — what Glickman calls the "Depression-era regions" — he wants to share the aid with growers nationwide, including fruit and vegetable growers who usually get little or no federal aid.

"No longer is farm policy the province of seven or eight states," Glickman said. "We produce agricultural commodities everywhere in this country."

Seven states — Iowa, Texas, Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, and North Dakota — get half of the government farm payments each year but account for only about 30 percent of the nation's agricultural output.

California produced $25 billion worth of crops and livestock in 1998, twice as much as number two Iowa, but got less federal farm aid than Montana. Pennsylvania produced $1 billion more than North Dakota but got one-tenth as much government money. New Jersey, not regarded as a farm state, produced nearly $800 million worth of fruit, vegetables, milk, and other agricultural products in 1998.

Glickman made a first step toward what he calls a "national" farm policy by proposing last month that Congress double spending on conservation programs. Some of that $1.3 billion in extra spending would go to growers who traditionally don't participate in federal programs. A proposed expansion of the federally subsidized crop insurance system would also offer coverage for livestock producers for the first time.

But the former Kansas congressman, in his sixth and last year as agriculture secretary, thinks that Congress should go a lot further when it writes a new farm program in 2002.

He said federal subsidies should be directed toward guaranteeing all farmers a minimum income instead of supporting the prices of select crops, as the government has done since the 1930s.

For Glickman, it is a matter of fairness and political expediency. Support for farm spending could dwindle if more areas don't benefit, he warned.

Economic Farm Surveys Begin

Maryland farmers will have the opportunity to "let their voice be heard" by participating in the 1999 agricultural economic surveys. These surveys, titled the 1999 Agricultural Economics and Land Ownership Survey and the 1999 Agricultural Resource Management Study, provide vital statistics about the economic condition of production agriculture. Local benefits resulting from these surveys include development of drought assistance programs for producers. The results are also used to determine the percent of farmland owned by type of landlord at the state and national level.

Producers chosen to participate in the agricultural economic surveys will either receive a 1999 Agricultural Economics and Land Ownership Survey in the mail or will be visited by an interviewer to complete the report at the farm operator's convenience. The official interviewer for Garrett and Allegany counties is Carolyn Ganoe.

Results will be published in a series of reports on the current farm financial situation. A free copy of these reports can be obtained from the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service web site at www.usda.gov/nass/md or by calling 1-800-675-0295.

The survey will benefit farmers and their organizations, which need reliable data showing the current economic conditions on farms to have a strong voice for their financial future. Survey results help determine disaster relief and direct payment funding. Without these facts, credit providers have very limited information and take conservative financial positions. Survey results provide a financial benchmark for the Farm Services Agency and other organizations. Federal programs, legislation, and impact studies would struggle under great uncertainty without these facts.

No-Till Conference Set At Hagerstown Location

Soil care and crop management are two major topics to be covered at the 25th anniversary Mid-Atlantic No-Till Conference, set this year on Thursday, Feb 24, in the Four Points Hotel at Hagerstown.

The leadoff speaker will be D. Wayne Reeves, research agronomist at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Soil Dynamics Laboratory near Auburn, Ala. Dr. Reeves's topic will be "Meeting the Challenge: Advancing the Adoption of Conservation Tillage."

Reeves also will lead morning and afternoon breakout sessions on "Managing Soil Compaction in Conservation Tillage." He is a firm believer that research should not gather dust in scientific journals, but must be transferred to those who can benefit from it.

As in previous years, the no-till conference is sponsored by Cooperative Extension at Penn State and the University of Maryland and by the USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service in participating states, with assistance from interested agribusinesses and related organizations.

The day will begin with registration at 8 a.m. Morning program sessions will run from 9 to 11:45 a.m., and afternoon sessions from 1:30 to 3:15 p.m. A $25 registration fee will be payable for persons who have not registered in advance. It includes lunch and program materials. For additional information, those interested may call T. Milton Nelson at 301-405-4596.

MDA Reports Production Of Chickens & Eggs

Maryland laying flocks produced 84 million eggs during December 1999, of which 76 million were table eggs and 8 million were hatching eggs. The average rate of lay was 77.6%. The average number of layers on hand during December 1999 was 3,493,000. On Jan. 1, 2000, 3% of the layers in Maryland were being molted and 37% of all layers had been through a molt.

U.S. egg production totaled 7.27 billion during December 1999, up 3% from the 7.05 billion produced in 1998. Production included 6.19 billion table eggs and 1.08 billion hatching eggs, of which 1.02 billion were broiler-type and 64 million were egg-type. The total numbers of layers during December 1999 averaged 329 million, up 2% from the total average number of layers during December 1998. December egg production per 100 layers was 2,213 eggs up 1% from 2,190 eggs in December 1998.

Small Farmers,

Cultivating For The Future

by Bernice Kepple, farm editor

Anyone — even someone with a large family — who keeps a milk cow or a couple of dairy goats will end up with extra milk from time to time. That happened to me quite often when my children were young and we were milking several goats twice a day. Without any pigs to feed, and much more milk than a few barn cats could drink, I occasionally made cottage cheese and butter. This was an all-day adventure for me though, because goat's milk is naturally homogenized, and to get the cream I had to use a cream separator. Luckily, we had bought a working separator at an auction, and I even found it easy to use. It did a wonderful job and gave me all the cream I needed to make a pound or two of butter, but the clean up was terrible. The machine had so many parts, all of which had to be carefully cleaned and completely dried before being put away, that it took me longer to clean up than to separate the milk.

For my butter project, I had been given a churn by my mother-in-law, one she had used many times when her children were growing up on the dairy farm. It is a one-gallon glass container with metal paddles inside and gears on the lid run by a crank at the side, like a large egg beater. We were also lucky enough to find a new three-gallon wooden churn in the attic of the first house we moved into. It was brand new with a dated sales slip from the '50s still inside the churn. Neighbors told us the former owner must have bought it, since he had owned a cow he called Eisenhower. It makes a great piece to have sitting out with my other antiques, but it wasn't useable, being much too big for my little project.

The finished goat butter was pure white, and I should have ordered a natural source of color for it, but I never seemed to be able to plan that far ahead and have it on hand when I needed it. Even though my butter was white, it tasted good and I was very proud of it. Unfortunately, over all the years that we milked the Jersey cows I never had time to make butter, although it would have been much easier since it didn't need to be separated; a large quantity of heavy cream always rose to the top of the jar, and it had a natural yellow color. I wish now I had made the time, but that's another story.

I've found a few web sites that will be helpful to anyone with the desire to make butter at home. Straus Family Creamery, an organic dairy farm in California, has a very interesting web site with a number of pages to help children understand where their food comes from. They provide instructions for a simple way to make small amounts of butter at www.strausmilk.com/butter.html. The Dazey butter churn company provides recipes and interesting facts about Dazey churns at www.ponyexpress.net/~butchnd/page1.html; and there is a lesson in making homemade butter in a quart jar at www3.parentspiace.com/readroom/explorer/act1195b.html.

There is a very interesting conversation on-line taken from a phone interview between an 80-year-old mother in Kentucky and her daughter in 1995 about making butter from cow's milk. You can find that at www.me.cc.va.us/emppages/jenrose/bitter.html.

Books available through the library include Making Cheese, Butter and Yogurt by the Gardenways staff; Butter & Cheese Making by V. Cheke and A. Sheppard; and Making Cheese & Butter, part of the Country Kitchen Library, by Phyllis Hobson.

This is a great project for adults and children alike, because the results are instant and the taste is great. I always enjoyed doing things the way the "old folks" did. It was especially nice because I didn't have to do it. Just like everyone else, I could drive over to the store and pick up a pound of butter anytime instead of using the churn. Isn't the grocery store where all our food comes from anyway?

Dairy Market Update—Ken Bailey, Penn State University

According to economic theory, lower milk prices should slow down the growth in the nation's milk supply. But USDA's January milk production report showed no such reaction to economic signals. Milk production in 20 major states in January was 12.2 billion pounds, up 4.7 % from a year ago. Production per cow averaged 1,576 pounds per cow, up 58 pounds or 3.8 % from a year ago. And the number of milking cows continued to increase. January cow numbers were at 7.76 million head, up 69,000 head or 0.9 % from a year ago, and up 6,000 head from December 1999.

Milk production in January grew just about everywhere. Of course the West was up: Arizona up 9.1 %, California up 11.0 %, Idaho up 14.5 %, and New Mexico up 10.2 %. Several other states were also up: Indiana up 6.5 %, Kentucky up 3.5 %, Michigan up 8.1 %, Pennsylvania up 3.1 %, Texas up 4.4 %, and Virginia up 5.1 %.

All this extra milk appears to be moving into the production of butter, nonfat dry milk, and cheese. That is resulting in greater growth in stocks of dairy products. The Cold Storage Report indicates that butter stocks grew from 25.1 million pounds on December 31, 1999, to 79.1 million pounds by January 31, 2000. Butter stocks in January grew 30.1 % from a year ago. Stocks of American cheese grew from 458.0 million pounds in December 31, 1999, to 481.1 million pounds by January 31, 2000. American cheese stocks in January grew 6.4 % over a year ago. Total cheese stocks grew 7.5 % in January over a year ago.

It is normal to see stocks of dairy products grow in January since there is a lot of extra milk available, particularly cream. Many butter processors build inventory this time of year since they don't have to compete for available cream supplies from ice cream makers. Growth in the milk supply, however, is adding to greater levels of dairy product production.

The markets for dairy commodities remained depressed this week at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Barrel prices showed some strength, rising from $1.08 per pound on Monday, Feb. 14, to $1.10 per pound by Friday, Feb. 18. Prices for 40-pound blocks fluctuated between $1.1150 and $1.1050 per pound. Grade AA butter rose from $0.8750 per pound on Monday to $0.9100 by Friday. This rise in price is unusual given the strong growth in butter stocks. According to USDA, "producers and handlers are once again questioning whether price firmness is being influenced by factors other than supply/demand."

The Class III milk futures at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange settled at the following prices as of February 18, 2000: February--$9.60; March--$9.82; April--$9.99; May--$10.10; June--$10.85; July--$11.70; August--$12.25; September--$12.39; October--$12.50; November--$12.20; and December--$12.05.

Creep Feeding Lambs

Creep feeding lambs is a means of providing supplemental feed to young lambs during the nursing period. It works best for early-born lambs (before March 15) and is especially beneficial when the lambing percentage is high. Lambs, which have the inherited ability to gain rapidly, benefit from creep feeding.

Lambs begin to nibble grain a week to 10 days and should have access to a palatable lamb starter ration. A 75-90 % concentrate and a protein of 17-20 % are generally considered ideal for a lamb starter. Corn and oats plus leafy, high-quality alfalfa free choice are excellent feeds for starting lambs.

Barley can be used but may not be quite as palatable as corn and oats for the first two weeks. Protein sources can be soybean meal, linseed meal, or sunflower meal. Molasses at 5 % of the ration serves as an excellent appetizer and helps hold down the dust.

Antibiotics at the rate of 20-25 grams per ton are recommended. Aureomycin and Terramycin are the two most commonly used antibiotics. The creep ration should be ground or cracked, unless a pelleted ration is used. Remember that lambs have a tendency to eat feed in whatever form their mother's ration is. At 35-45 days of age, it is advisable to change to a more practical ration of 14-16 % protein.

The creep area should be clean and well bedded. A light in the creep is a good tool to attract the lambs to the creep area. The grain, hay and a source of water should be in the creep at all times.

Fruit Production In State Down In '99 Over '98

Maryland fruit growers produced 39 million pounds of apples in 1999, 14% more than the 35 million pounds produced in 1998. Utilized production totaled 38 million pounds, 12% above 1998's 34 million pounds. The season average price for utilized production was 10.7 cents per pound, down from 17.8 cents per pound in 1998. The value of Maryland's utilized production for 1999 was $4.1 million compared with $6.1 million in 1998.

Maryland peach growers produced 9.1 million pounds of peaches in 1999, down 13% from 1998. The season average price for the 1999 peach crop was 47.1 cents per pound compared with 30 cents for the 1998 crop. The value of the utilized production totaled $4.1 million, up 35% from the $3.1 million for 1998.

The United States utilized apple production for 1999 was estimated at 10.5 billion pounds, 2% less than 1998. Production in eastern states increased as a result of favorable spring growing conditions but was more than offset by production decreases in Washington, Colorado, and Idaho. Utilized peach production in 1999 was estimated at 2.43 billion pounds, up 4% from last year but 3% below 1997.

January Prices Paid By Farmers Unchanged

The January Index of Prices Paid for Commodities and Services, Interest, Taxes, and Farm Wage Rates (PPITW) was 118% of the 1990-92 average, according to a report from the National Agricultural Statistics Service. The index was unchanged from December but 3 points (2.6%) above January 1999.

Lower prices in January for feed concentrates, potash and phosphate materials, and insecticides were offset by higher prices for feed grains, complete feeds, feeder pigs, and feed supplements.

Index Of Farm Products Prices Received Drops

According to the USDA, the preliminary All Farm Products Index of Prices Received in January was 90 based on 1990-92=100, down 2 points (2.2%) from the December index. Lower prices for broilers, milk, turkeys, and tomatoes more than offset price increases for corn, lettuce, soybeans, and cotton.

The seasonal change in the mix of commodities farmers sell also affects the overall index. Lower seasonal marketings of cotton, tobacco, grapes, and cottonseed more than offset the relatively higher marketings of corn, soybeans, cattle, and rice. These marketing changes account for one point of the January index decrease.

Compared with January 1999, the All Farm Products Index was seven points (7.2%) lower. Price decreases from January 1999 for milk, soybeans, cotton, and corn more than offset price increases for cattle, hogs, lettuce, and apples.

Yoder Appointed Associate Prof. Of Church History

Grantsville native Nathan E. (Nate) Yoder has been named associate professor of church history at Eastern Mennonite Seminary, Harrisonburg, Va., interim dean Sara Wenger Shenk has announced.

The appointment was approved by the board of trustees of Eastern Mennonite University. The seminary is a graduate division of EMU.

Dr. Yoder is the son of Paul H. and Marie Yoder of Grantsville and a 1973 graduate of Northern High School. He is a graduate of Western Kentucky University and earned a master's degree and doctorate in American history from the University of Notre Dame. He has been serving at the seminary on a temporary basis since 1994.

Yoder is an ordained Mennonite minister and served as pastor of Dayton (Va.) Mennonite Church from 1993 until 1999. He is a member of the Historical Committee of the Mennonite Church and was president of Shenandoah Valley Mennonite Historians from 1995 to 1997.

Yoder is a member of the American Historical Association, the American Society of Church History, and the Conference on Faith and History. His dissertation addressed the topic "Mennonite Fundamentalism: Shaping an Identity for an American Context."

Yoder is married to Miriam Miller of Gosben, Ind. They have three children: Paul, Amelia, and Evan.

EMS is the only accredited seminary in the Shenandoah Valley and is on the approved list of schools for the training of United Methodist ministerial students.

Oakland Man Convicted In Theft Scheme

An Oakland man was handed a six-month suspended sentence by Garrett County District Court judge Ralph M. Burnett after pleading guilty to taking part in a felony theft scheme uncovered by the Garrett Bureau of Investigation.

James Donald Bow, 41, had been arrested by GBI detectives in December for his part in swindling the Three Tees BP gas station in Oakland while he was employed there. On several occasions last fall Bow sold fuel to customer who would fill the tank of his tractor-trailer cab and then concoct a fake receipt that charged the transaction to Larry Wagner's trucking company.

Bow and the customer would forge signatures and send the receipt to Wagner's for payment, while at the same time Bow also made out a cash receipt for the customer to turn in for cash reimbursement from the trucking company. Each time this occurred Bow received a $50 payment from the customer for his part in the scheme.

In addition to the suspended sentence, Bow was also fined $355, placed on one year of unsupervised probation, and ordered to complete 40 hours of community service. Two additional counts of participation in a felony theft scheme, three counts each of forgery and uttering, and six counts of misdemeanor theft were not prosecuted by the state's attorney's office.

In other district court news, a Grantsville man who was arrested for disorderly conduct in the Department of Social Services lobby was handed a one-month jail term.

Richard Allen Wright, 42, had entered a not-guilty plea to the charge. Wright had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in December for yelling and cursing in the DSS lobby during a scheduled visit with his child, who had been placed in foster care.

Richard Martin Ravenscroft, 18, Manchester, was handed a five-day jail sentence for breaking an apartment window in Grantsville by throwing a beer bottle and a rock through it. Ravenscroft was also fined $55 and ordered to pay $192 in restitution. The destruction of property charge was filed by Maryland State Police troopers at the time of Ravenscroft's December arrest.

Amanda Ray Guy, 25, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and was released from jail with credit for time already served. She had been arrested by sheriff's deputies in February of last year after a state's attorney's office investigation.

CHRISTMAS PROJECT EFFORTS NOTED - The Oakland Rotary Cub recently recognized Doug Riley and Kathy Zimmerman for their volunteer service as co-chairs of the Rotary Christmas Project. The two Rotarians were each presented with a $50 check payable to the charity of their choice. Riley, shown above at left being presented with the check by Steve Lantz, Rotary president, donated his funds to the American Cancer Society. Zimmerman (not available for photo) chose Bethel United Methodist Church as her beneficiary. "Doug Riley and Kathy Zimmerman are to be commended for their first time in handling such a large project," Lantz said. "They are indeed an asset to Rotary."

Additional charges of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute and possession of drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted.

A December traffic stop resulted in the drug convictions of a pair of Mtn. Lake Park men, each of whom was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling and an order to participate in the sheriff's office Reality program for at-risk youth.

Michael Joseph Dehus, 18, and John Haska Dehus, 20, both pleaded guilty to marijuana possession, and each was handed a PBJ, fined $155 and placed on six months of supervised probation. The charges stemmed from their arrests after state troopers stopped their vehicle along Garrett Highway for its defective headlight. An ensuing search uncovered marijuana in the vehicle.

Samuel Roy Williams, 35, and Sheila Lynn Williams, 32, both of Swanton, were each handed a PBJ after pleading guilty to marijuana possession. Both were fined $55 and placed on 90 days' supervised probation for the drug charge that stemmed from their November arrest by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, when a search of their home uncovered marijuana, smoking pipes, and rolling papers. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

A second degree assault charge faced by Harold Joseph McKenzie, 42, Grantsville, was placed onto the stet docket. McKenzie had been arrested by state troopers in September after allegedly striking a juvenile during an argument.

A charge of fraud by converting leased goods to her own use faced by Salliann Summerville, 42, Oakland, was stetted. Oakland City police officers arrested Summerville in January after the Family Rental Center reported that she had not made payments on a rented television.

Charges of trespassing and failure to obey a lawful order faced by John Edward Ayers, 19, Oakland, were stetted. Sheriff's deputies arrested Ayers in November for loitering in the parking lot of Browning's Foodland after specifically being warned not to do so.

Darren Jay Fritz, 34, Oakland, faced five charges that were not prosecuted. The charges stemmed from two separate arrests in the same January evening. Oakland City police initially charged Fritz with disorderly conduct and reckless endangerment through alcohol intoxication after they apprehended him as he was yelling and swearing in the hallway of an Oakland apartment building. Additional charges of malicious destruction of property and two counts of second degree assault were filed by two residents of the complex, who alleged that Fritz had kicked a hole in their apartment door and assaulted them.

David Allen Mayne, 18, Oakland, was not prosecuted on possession of marijuana and driving while intoxicated charges that stemmed from a November sheriff's office arrest following a traffic stop in Oakland.

Virginia Lorraine Moore, 46, Mtn. Lake Park, was not prosecuted on a second degree assault charge that stemmed from her January arrest by sheriff's deputies. She had allegedly assaulted her adult son during a domestic altercation.

Jason Randall Ballard, 18, Reston, Va., was not prosecuted on charges of misdemeanor theft and malicious destruction of property that stemmed from his January arrest by state troopers for allegedly stealing a Coors Light advertising banner from the McHenry Citgo station. The building's siding was reportedly damaged when the banner was ripped from its screws.

Lawrence Wayne Ford, 40, Mtn. Lake Park, was deemed not guilty of second degree assault. Donna Lee DeWitt, 33, Oakland, was deemed not guilty of second degree assault. Mischele Elaine Ervin, 38, Burlington, W.Va., was deemed not guilty of malicious destruction of property.

Cancer Support Group To Hear Judge Burnett

The Cancer Support Group will meet next Tuesday, Feb. 29, in the Community Services building of Garrett County Memorial Hospital at 7 p.m. (Persons should note change of meeting place.)

Judge Ralph Burnett will speak on prostate cancer. Burnett was diagnosed with prostate cancer in 1996 and underwent surgery at Johns Hopkins University Hospital. He was elected to the board of directors of the National Prostate Cancer Coalition in 1998 and elected chairman of the board in 1999.

NPCC is a coalition consisting of the American Cancer Society, American Foundation for Urological Diseases, Us Too, Cancer Research Institute, and CapCure. Its principal function is to lobby Congress for increased funding for prostate cancer research, modify public policy toward prostate cancer, and increase public awareness about prostate cancer and the need for screening and evaluation. During the four years of its existence, the NPCC has increased federal funding for research at the National Cancer Institute from $60 million to $260 million and at the Department of Defense from $10 million to $75 million.

Burnett speaks at different events around the country. He is also a member of CapCure, a private foundation established by financier Michael Milken, supporting more than 500 research projects worldwide. CapCure-supported scientists are investigating strategies including vaccine chemotherapy, and relate drug therapies.

Burnett is married to Lucy and has two grown children, Cathy and Chase, and two grandchildren, Ian and Eli.

The meeting is open to the public and the support group is urging all interested people to come out and hear Judge Burnett.

Colleges Form Regional Institute For Global Affairs, Entrepreneurship

In order to promote international opportunities among businesses operating in Appalachian Maryland and West Virginia, four higher education institutions in the region are joining forces to create a Regional Institute for Global Affairs and Entrepreneurship, to be housed at Frostburg State University.

The project is aided by a $75,882 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The four institutions — FSU, Salem-Teikyo University in Salem, W.Va., Shepherd College in Shepherdstown, W.Va., and Fairmont State College in Fairmont, W.Va. — each bring varied assets to the table, according to Dr. Amit Shah, co-director of the institute with Dr. Joan Serafin. Serafin is associate professor of political science at FSU and coordinator of FSU's International Studies Program, and Shah is associate professor of business administration at FSU and associate coordinator of International Studies.

"The aim of the institute is to enhance economic development and outreach to business and strengthen the linkage between academic institutions and business institutions," Shah said.

The institute will work to identify businesses that have the potential to export and then help them get started, Shah said.

"We have resources here, but they are theoretical. The businesses have the practical experience. We'll unite them," Serafin said.

The faculty resource people and student interns will be able to provide information, assistance, and guidance for businesses exploring international opportunities. Student interns can provide language assistance, market research, research to help find clientele, and help with learning about international law and the laws of the target countries. Faculty and students will help develop management, marketing, and technology plans.

The institute's mission will also include seminars and workshops to provide guidance and information for businesses that may not have considered exporting. A web page with much of the information offered in the workshops will be available, designed for business people too busy to attend, Serafin said. The institute will also provide one-on-one assistance to businesses ready to make the move.

The institute will start by surveying businesses in the service region of the participating colleges to see what the business interest is and how ready firms are to export.

In the region, there are many small-to-medium-sized firms that could benefit from an international marketplace, Shah said, emphasizing that both manufacturers and service firms could benefit from the institute's services.

One unique element of the institute will be its ability to cross state lines, with the colleges working as a consortium, Serafin said.

Each institution brings its own strengths and unique resources to the project, Shah and Serafin said. FSU offers its program in international studies, as well as its extensive business programs and courses in French and Spanish. Salem-Teikyo, formed by a partnership between Salem College and Teikyo University in Japan, provides an internationalized curriculum, Japanese language instruction, and an intercultural educational experience that highlights Asia in general and Japan in particular.

Business and economics have some of the most extensive course offerings at Fairmont, and most of the degree programs have been redesigned to offer an integrated educational experience in sub-disciplines by requiring a common core of business courses.

At Shepherd, extensive educational and internship opportunities in Washington, D.C., are coupled with programs in French and Spanish, accounting, business, economics, and political science.

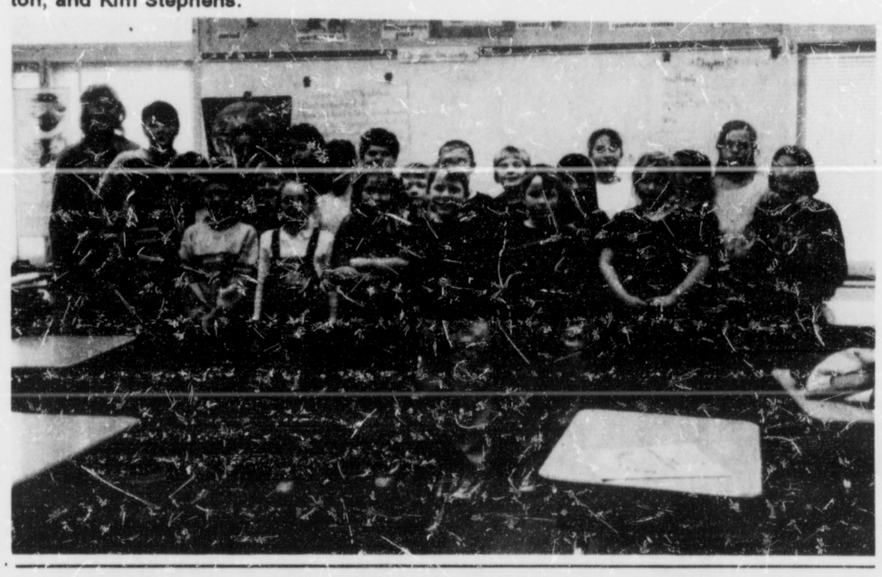
"There are complementary strengths that each partner brings to the table," Shah said.

The institute will consist of five faculty members from the colleges and a total of 15 to 20 undergraduate and graduate interns. It will then direct participating businesses to whomever can help the most.

"We'll be able to match the interest of the firm with the expertise of each university," Serafin said.

For information on the Regional Institute for Global Affairs and Entrepreneurship, persons may contact Shah at 301-687-4408 or Serafin at 301-687-4386.

YOUGH GLADE STUDENTS JOIN JUNIOR RANGER RANKS - The fourth grade students of Yough Glade Elementary School completed the Maryland Department of Natural Resources State Forest and Park Service Jr. Ranger program recently. Deep Creek Ranger Carole Walker presented the two-day program to Barbara Baker's and Glenda Newcomb's classes, emphasizing topics including "Living with Black Bears" and conservation opportunities. The Jr. Ranger Program is a DNR "Ranger at Heart" initiative designed to heighten public awareness of natural resources. Shown above are Mrs. Baker's students; in the front row from the left are Andrea Steyer, Sarah Brenneman, Rachel Skipper, Dakota Roy, Tim Preston, and Nicole Ferguson. In the second row are Joel Rush, Sandy Nice, Derrick Tasker, Bryson Sanders, Danny Sisler, Steven Fike, Carissa Lewis, Aaron King, and Ranger Carole Walker. In the third row are Mrs. Baker, Sarah Shaffer, Tatiana McCasky, Tiffany Wotring, Courtney Hinebaugh, Catlin Jones, Philip Adams, and Andrew Sauder. Mrs. Newcomb's class is shown below; in the front row are Cory Shuttleworth, Clarissa Blamble, Courtney Gregory, Josh Ash, Jeremy Ash, and Tiffine Sliger. In the second row are Eric Tichnell, James Spano, Tyler Tasker, Clare Buckle, Mitchel Georg, Megan Shaffer, Kevin Mauk, and Andrea Hedrick. In the third row are Ranger Walker, Sean Sisler, B.J. Uphole, Danielle Paugh, Trever Hardesty, Cory Broadwater, Cody Colaw, Lauren Whealton, and Kim Stephens.



Free Course To Be Offered On Criminal Justice

Adults in the Grantsville area will have the opportunity to attend a free "Police Academy," which is a course on how the criminal justice system works. The course will be funded through the community mobilization grant under the HotSpot initiative. Coordinated by Bill Ferry of the Office of the State's Attorney, the course will be open to anyone age 18 or older who lives within the postal zone 21535.

"The purpose of this academy is not to train people how to conduct investigations or apprehend people — that's the job of the police. The purpose is to familiarize the community with how the criminal justice system works and how its parts interact. We will look at the function of the courts, juvenile justice, parole and probation, and the state's attorney's office," Ferry explained.

The course is scheduled to be held in April on four evenings from 6 to 9 p.m. Tentatively, the dates are set for April 11, 13, 18, and 20. For further information, persons may contact Ferry at 301-334-1974.

Pleasant View Slates Dinner

A spaghetti dinner will be served at Pleasant View Baptist Church this Saturday, Feb. 26, to raise funds for the youth of the church to attend their annual Youth Conference, which will be held in Ocean City. Serving will be from 5 to 7 p.m. at the church, and the meal is available for a free-will donation. The menu will include spaghetti, salad, garlic bread, beverage, and dessert. All are invited.

Pleasant View Baptist Church is located about two miles south of Oakland along U.S. Rt. 219.

FSU To Host Western Md. History Day

Frostburg State University will host Western Maryland History Day for Allegany and Garrett county middle and high school students on Saturday, March 11, from 9 a.m. to noon in the FSU Lewis J. Ort Library.

Through a variety of techniques including original documentaries, museum-type exhibits, dramatic performances, and papers, young historians from Washington Middle, Allegany High, Southern High, and Southern Middle schools will present projects based on the theme "Turning Points in History."

FSU is the western Maryland coordinator for the state History Day program. Throughout the state, more than 3,000 middle and high school students will be participating in regional History Day events sponsored by Columbia Gas of Maryland and the Maryland Humanities Council.

Finalists from the Western Maryland History Day will become eligible to enter the Maryland History Day 2000 competition scheduled for April 29 at the University of Baltimore.

Maryland's History Day program is part of the National History Day network which seeks to reform the teaching and learning of history in the secondary schools. National History Day, headquartered at the University of Maryland, College Park, draws more than a half million participants and teachers from 49 states annually.

The FSU event is free and open to the public. In the event of snow, History Day will be held on April 1. For information, persons may contact Nicholas Clubb, FSU Department of History, at 301-687-4215.

Demos Convene, Plan Campaign, Annual Dinner

The Democratic Club of Garrett County held its monthly meeting February 16 at Garrett Community College. Members explored ideas for the "10,000 for 2000 Campaign," a national democratic movement to newly register and to have 10,000 new voters in the 2000 election in each state. Local efforts for the general election were identified and include the use of poll-watchers, a phone bank, and transportation of voters.

Tom Bratten, Garrett County Democratic Central Committee chair, updated members on the plans for the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner. The dinner is planned for May 19 at the Will O' the Wisp. Speaker of the House of Delegates Casper R. Taylor Jr. will be the guest speaker. Business advertisements and patron and memorial ads are currently being sold for the dinner booklet. An essay contest for high school students is being planned. The contest winner will be honored at the dinner with a savings bond. Additional information will be announced as it becomes available.

The next meeting of the club will take place Wednesday, March 1, at 7 p.m. in Room 315 of the Garrett Community College Continuing Education building.

COVER STORY

Embattled efforts to solve crime exposed in Murder

By Jacqueline Cutler
©TVData Features Syndicate

Dyanne Iandoli

Three years ago, JonBenet Ramsey, the 6-year-old Colorado beauty pageant princess, was found murdered in her family mansion. No one has been charged with the crime. Everyone has an opinion on who did it, and most people suspect her parents, who have steadfastly maintained their innocence.

Perfect Murder, Perfect Town, a two-part TV movie airing Sunday, Feb. 27, and Wednesday, March 1, on CBS, looks at the fascinating case from the inside

Expect no answers from the movie, based on the book by Lawrence Schiller, who also produced and directed the film. Rather than draw conclusions, which he insists must be done by a jury, Schiller focuses on the internecine warfare between the Boulder Police Department and the district attorney's office.

"I tried to tell the story of the struggle to find justice," he says. And he does, almost too well. The turf war between the two agencies is exhaustively detailed – to the point of confusion.

"I don't think the public has any conception of how brutally this child was killed, how brutal the strangulation was," Schiller adds.

After the movie, the public will have a much better idea. Schiller does not try to re-create the murder, but there are disturbing scenes in which the body is shown in full rigor mortis. Then again, the violent murder of a 6-year-old is, by nature, beyond disturbing.

The day after Christmas, JonBenet's body was found in the basement on her favorite blanket. There were no signs of forced entry into the house. A ransom note, written with a pen from the kitchen, was left on a pad in the home. It asked for the same amount as the father's bonus.

The movie is well cast, with Marg Helgenberger and Ronny Cox turning in terrific performances as the Ramseys: the extroverted, former beauty queen Patsy and the stoic businessman John. Dyanne Iandoli, the girl who plays JonBenet, has an extremely minor role.

Kris Kristofferson plays Detective Lou Smit, and turns in his usual laconic, smart performance. Ken Howard as District Attorney Alex Hunter, Deirdre Lovejoy as Detective Linda Arndt and Sean Whalen as Jeff Shapiro, the sleazy tabloid reporter, are all great.

The movie shoot was "never-ending discussion about the case itself," Helgenberger says. "It made for a very unique experience as an actor, and whomever we were playing, that was the point of view we took. The guys playing the cops either thought Patsy did it or John did it. It wasn't as if they wouldn't listen to me. I don't think anyone involved with the production was convinced of anyone's innocence."

Helgenberger spends much of the first two hours of the movie crying, which she says "wasn't any fun. I would have liked at some point in my life to play Patsy Ramsey with all of her complexities and colors. In this she is grieving through most of it. She is a fascinating person, compelling and enigmatic. She is infamous and I think a lot of people point the finger at her. She's an easy target."

After watching, she says she hopes "people can go away with the opinion that perhaps the Ramseys are innocent, at least to consider the possibility. ... I do think people will be a little more enlightened as to why this case wasn't solved – with all the leaks and misinformation."

SUNDAY

Sunday on Fox, Malcolm's (Frankie Muniz) older brother escapes the confinement of his military school to see his girlfriend in Malcolm in the Middle.

TV PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels

Shawnee Smith

Q: Where might I have seen the girl who plays Linda on Becker before? Also, is the actor who plays Jake on that show really blind? –Dee Haas, Pedro, Ohio.

A: Shawnee Smith, 29, has worked steadily since her preteen years (she was one of the dancers in the 1982 movie Annie), but is best known for her 1986 TV series debut as Sonia, the rebellious stepdaughter of TV producer Paula Russell (Bess Armstrong) on the NBC situation comedy All Is Forgiven.

Her TV credits include series roles in such short-lived fare as A Brand New Life, Arsenio and The Tom Show, as well as guest appearances on The X-Files and Players.

She also had a key role in the TV miniseries adaptations of Stephen King's The Stand and Jackie Collins' Lucky/Chances.

And no, Alex Desert, who plays Jake Malinak, is not blind in real life.

Q: Where can I find a video copy of My Name is Bill W., the TV movie about Alcoholics Anonymous starring James Garner and James Woods? –Mrs. Pamela John, Norwalk, Iowa.

A: From Movies Unlimited. Call them at 1-800-4MOVIES, or visit their Website at www.moviesunlimited.com.

A reminder: It is impossible for TV Pipeline to conduct individual searches for the scores of titles that are requested every week. Please, PLEASE contact Movies Unlimited with any video requests. Many thanks.

Q: Who played the leading role in T.H.E. Cat? –Jewell Brown, Owensboro, Ky.

A: Veteran character actor (and Minute Maid orange juice pitchman) Robert Loggia played Thomas Hewitt Edward Cat in that 1966-67 NBC adventure series.

Q: My brother-in-law insists that the role of Eric "Hoss" Cartwright on Bonanza was recast with a look-alike actor after the death of Dan Blocker. Is he right? –Yvonne G., Lakewood, Fla.

A: No. When Blocker died unexpectedly before production began on the 1972-73 season, the role was not recast. Ratings already were slipping, but the loss of this beloved character was a final blow. It was canceled at midseason.

Q: Will we see more episodes of Crusade in the near future? Is Peter Woodward on that show related to Edward Woodward? And is Steven Culp, who plays Clayton Webb on JAG, related to Robert Culp? –Sandra Sandburg, Dexter, N.H.

A: There are no immediate prospects for Crusade, which TNT ordered as a limited series. Peter Woodward is Edward's son. The Culps are not related, but Steven says most people assume they are: When he worked on One Life to Live, his network bio originally contained that same error.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

The Garrett County Youth Council sponsored a bowling party in Oakland on Sunday night. Over 70 youth from the county attended. Robbie and Blakely Glotfelty, Matthew Bass, and Katie Sussman attended from Bittinger.

Denver and Naomi Beitzel returned to Bittinger from a recent trip to California to find a very, very wet basement. In watching the news, I heard that the region where they visited out West suffered heavy flooding. Is Bittinger no longer safe from flooding with these two back in town? We hope high water isn't following them around.

Ruth DiPaolo treated her granddaughters to a trip to the mall and dinner at Ponderosa on Saturday following three basketball games at Braddock Middle School in Cumberland. What a brave grandma!

Bill, Tina, Karla, and Derek Buckel celebrated the 76th birthday of Ken Buckel at his home on Saturday evening. Karla lent a big hand and served the group. On Tuesday, the 22nd, Ken and Harriett celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary.

Brent, Kelly, and Wyatt Beachy, Clarkston, Mich., were weekend guests of Dave and Nancy Beachy. Dinner guests were Ferne Beachy, Sam, Cindy, and Aaron Stanton, and Lenny, Sally, and Torrey Poholsky. Cindy Stanton was celebrating her birthday over the weekend.

Ann McLister, Frederick, visited her family over the weekend.

Parents and grandparents of Teri and Max Beitzel, Robbie Glotfelty, Matthew Bass, Brent Housley, and Claire Sussman had a busy week attending basketball games with Bishop Walsh, Braddock Middle School, and Elk Garden.

The Bass kids are disappointed that their promising igloo is melting away without a full season of use. Better luck next time, guys.

The Accident fifth grade went on a skiing trip on Thursday. What a beautiful day for the trip! Attending from Bittinger were Scott Bass, Tyler Southerly, Sara Shawley, and Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty. They all loved the great view from on top of the mountain. Darryl had a slight accident, injuring his knee, and had to be rescued by the ski patrol.

Karmen Carey, Frostburg, Amanda Platter, Smithsburg, and Ashlin Gray, Hanover, recently visited their grandmother, great-grandmother, and great-great-grandmother, Ida Reckner. Olive Bender was also a recent caller.

Linda Oester, Salisbury, Pa., visited her parents, Jim and Donna Glotfelty, on Valentine's Day.

ANOTHER SNOW DAY

Well, guess what. The past Friday morning a snow/sleet storm rolled up and parked itself above Bittinger. We got enough snow and sleet to make the roads too dangerous to send the kids to school. So, yes, Garrett County schools were closed. The joy was unlimited by my three daughters. They sang and danced through breakfast time until they finally got on each other's nerves. Our big black Lab dog just moved to the clear end of the couch so that they could fight over the rest of the couch. A constant battle of words followed with me finally calling, "Stop that." They didn't think much of my orders to clean up on their day off from school. They finally did pick up some of their papers from the computer room floor, plus old school papers, drawings, Weekly Readers, cards from various games, etc. They managed to get into quite a few fights over who would get to play the computer games. On and on they went. I was kept busy letting the dogs in and out. Finally they all went down to Whittemore's gym to practice basketball with their dad.

I know a losing battle when I see one, so I picked up all the stuff on the couch and threw it all in a box. When they return, it will be "Where is this" or "Where is that." It was just here." The couch was clean for about 10 minutes before that nice open space was quickly filled up. But girls, there is no use looking for the Game Boy games, as I hide them where they will never find them — under a pile of clean laundry. Fat chance if they move that for a week. But that is in the past and we finished dinner without any little spats between the girls. It is seven o'clock and pitch dark outside so it is time for going to bed! I can't wait, as it has been a stressful day.

I can't believe how fat our dog Boo is, but I guess I can believe it since she got a box of valentine gourmet chocolates belonging to me from my bedside table and cleaned it up really well, with not even a few crumbles on the floor.

I know it is a mistake to tell you about our not-too-perfect family as to what our people in Bittinger must think, as their homes are always perfectly neat and their kids never fight with their siblings, and the kids always help around the house. Believe it or not! I prefer not to believe it! I am inspired to put forth that little view of my family life as stated by my favorite author, James Thurber, that his family was all crazy and his family life was pure chaos.

Today is Monday, Presidents' Day, and another holiday. The couch is fuller than ever. After a busy weekend for the girls in Cumberland watching Claire and her cousins play basketball, Caitlin got her first-time experience with bowling with the Youth Council. She had a great time and now she will have to go bowling with her Gram, a great bowling fan.

The other day I chatted with Sharon Lowery, who commented about the nice warm sunny weather and how it made her want to start a garden. I feel the same way, but practically speaking, we had better wait at least another month even for the cold-weather crops like peas, lettuce, spinach, etc. We will wait awhile until the ground is dry enough to work on it. I think I will celebrate the sunny weather today by planting some tomato seeds early.

Delinquency To Be Discussed At Kitzmiller Hall

The upcoming regular business meeting of the Kitzmiller town council, set for 7:30 p.m Monday, Feb. 28, will include discussion of a countywide delinquency prevention plan. The forum is designed to gather ideas of all interested citizens for consideration by Kitzmiller officials and the Garrett County Delinquency Planning Committee.

The Kitzmiller discussion will take place at the town hall and is one of a number of such meetings slated throughout the county. "It is important that we get out to the communities in Garrett County to obtain opinions on how we should approach delinquency prevention," said Bob Stephens, planning committee spokesman. "The plan will help us be proactive in addressing the problems that lead to juvenile crime and delinquency."

The Delinquency Planning Committee consists of representatives from public and private agencies, the faith community, local government, and interested community members. For further information on its goals and future meetings persons may call the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families at 301-334-1189.

Yoakum Earns D.C. Degree

Shannon L. Yoakum, daughter of Robert G. and Cheryl D. Yoakum of McHenry, recently received her doctor of chiropractic (D.C.) degree from Life University, Marietta, Ga. The university is the world's largest accredited school of chiropractic, and provides a four-year professional education through its School of Chiropractic to prepare students as chiropractic primary healthcare providers. It offers both undergraduate and graduate level programs.

Antiques by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Potholders and other handmade kitchen items are becoming popular with collectors. They can be displayed or used, and can be found at rummage sales and flea markets for under $10. The most popular are crocheted potholders shaped like pants, dresses, faces or pieces of fruit. Bright colors or unusual designs are a plus. Potholders made of woven loops of fabric are still being made. The old loops were made of cotton, while the new ones are of synthetic fabrics. Quilted and embroidered potholders show off the needlework of an earlier time. Other examples of needlework for the home are trivets (sometimes made of thread-covered bottle caps), doilies and kitchen towels with edgings or embroidery.

Q: I have a low, oval, wooden table with six matching stools that are shaped so they can be pushed under the tabletop. The top and edges of the table and the edges of the stools are intricately carved with an oriental battle scene. When and where was it made, and what is it worth?

A: Your carved low table and matching stools were probably made in China or Hong Kong sometime in the 1930s. The set was made to be exported to the United States, where the style was popular. The set is worth about $1,500.

Tip: Protect your wooden floors by keeping dirt out of the house. Use floor mats inside and outside the doors.

Dollars and Sense

GET OUT OF DEBT!

If debt is getting the best of you and your family, the solution isn't a lottery windfall or big job promotion. Money helps, but if you don't know how to put your money to work for you, it will always seem to flow right out of your hands. All it takes is a few simple but carefully and consistently taken steps:

1. Begin. The only good time to start is now.

2. Make a list of all your debts. Next, make a list of your monthly expenses. Then determine a total amount you can reasonably afford to put toward debt repayment each month.

3. Pay more than the minimum payment.

4.Stop charging. STOP CHARGING! Limit use to one or two cards, and cancel the others.

5. Track your spending and expenses in an organized manner, whether listing them in categories or by date due.

6. Cut back on less essential expenses like eating out or making long-distance phone calls.

7. Every time you pay a debt off, take the amount of money you paid each month toward that retired debt and apply it to the monthly payment with the next highest interest rate.

8. When you do have a little extra income, invest it in something around the house, such as repairs.

9. Save. SAVE! Even if it's a little, sock it away and do it regularly.

10. Watch the results! You'll be proud of your progress in just six short months. Once you become part of the solution, the problem will never again have its hold on you.

Pet Care

by Peter Edwards

The Humane Society of the United States has issued a public advisory for people who keep reptiles as pets. Whether they're iguanas, snakes, turtles, lizards, or any other reptile, these animals naturally produce salmonella, which can cause dangerous and sometimes deadly infections in human beings. Infants, the elderly and those with weakened immune systems or with chronic conditions, such as diabetes, are especially susceptible.

The HSUS's warning is based on a report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention citing a rise in the rate of salmonella infection in the United States coincident with the rise of the reptilian pet population.

Salmonella is an organism that lives in the gut of all reptiles. It is shed in the feces and contaminates not only the skin of its host animal, but also its enclosure or any other surface with which it comes in contact.

The bottom line is that nothing can be done to stop reptiles from shedding the organism. The HSUS recommends that people do not keep reptiles as pets, both to reduce the risk of contracting salmonella poisoning and the sake of the animals which, as a rule, do not do well out of their natural environments. If you own a reptile, ask your veterinarian to provide you with the CDC's guidelines for proper handling of the animal and the cleaning of its enclosure. Also, if you no longer want the reptile, do not release it into the wild or try to euthanize it. Contact your veterinarian, animal shelter or humane agency for assistance.

Women's Forum Slated At FSU

Frostburg State University will host the FSU Women's Forum program "Celebration of Womanhood: Body, Mind, and Spirit" on Saturday, March 11. The daylong event is open to women from the community and FSU students, faculty, and staff.

The program will be in the campus Performing Arts Center from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Registration is free. Lunch will be $9.95 for faculty, staff, and general public, and $5 for FSU students. Space is limited for lunch.

The event will include opportunities for participants to share their personal celebration of womanhood and to hear from numerous panelists.

Activities include drumming, poetry readings, and other dramatic presentations, as well as discussions on topics including journaling, women's health, body image, massage therapy, and yoga. "The Journey Woman," written by Norma Blacke-Bourdeau, will be performed by Miss Cumberland, Gabrielle Gellinas, and "Desire" will be choreographed and performed by Dana-Marie Williams.

Other presenters include Madonna Pool, Nancy-Elizabeth Nimmich, Ina Hicks, Leontyne Peck, Naomi Byler, Sherri Schubert, Martha Schadt, Mikal Crawford, Lynn Wiljanen, Abbie Weiskopf, and Barb Hurd.

Between sessions, attendees will be able to visit exhibitors' tables to browse and/or buy crafts, soaps, hand-woven items, books, vitamins, herbs, jewelry, organic products, and aromatherapy products.

For more information, persons may contact Phoebe Wiley, chair, FSU Women's Forum, 301-687-4066, 114 Gunter Hall.

PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

The Garrett County Sanitary District has issued a boiling water notice for the Bloomington Water System until further notice. Due to high turbidity levels as a result of recent flooding, all residents in Bloomington are asked to boil water for drinking and cooking purposes. Residents are also asked to conserve water any way they can, since tank levels are low as a result of low production of water due to the turbidity problems. Anyone with questions may contact the Garrett County Sanitary District at 301-334-1980.

This project consists of furnishing all labor, equipment, and materials to construct one (1) 400,000 gallon pre-cast, pre-stressed concrete water storage tank meeting AWWAD-110, Type III requirements and having a diameter of 60 feet and water storage side wall depth of 20 feet, tank inlet, outlet and drain piping, and minor site work consisting of clearing and grubbing, site grading, entrance driveway, future building pad grading, sediment and erosion controls and seeding and mulching.

The Contractor will be required to complete and submit a project schedule with the Proposal Form Packet in order to ensure that all construction be completed in one hundred eighty (180) calendar days after Notice to Proceed. All Contractors bidding this project must be pre-qualified by having built a minimum of twenty (20) AWWAD-110 Type III, or other alternate approved type, concrete water storage tanks. The Contractor will be required to pay employees Davis-Bacon prevailing wages during the life of the Contract.

Contractors wishing to submit an Alternate Concrete Tank Type bid may do so by submitting a request for Substitution no less than two (2) weeks before the bids are due and shall be in accordance with the requirements of Section 01630-Substitutions contained in the Specifications, Proposal and Contract Documents.

A Performance Bond and Payment Bond in the full amount of the accepted bid will be required of the successful bidder. A Bid Bond in that amount of 5% of the bid amount must accompany each submitted bid.

Sealed bids must be submitted to the Procurement Division of the Garrett County Administrative Office, 313 East Alder Street, Room 105, Oakland, Maryland 21550 on or before Tuesday, March 21, 2000 at 1:30 p.m. (local time). Sealed bids will be publicly opened and read aloud in the Commissioners Meeting Room at 2:00 p.m. (local time) on March 21, 2000. All bids must be submitted in duplicate and should be enclosed in a sealed envelope and clearly marked "Northern Garrett Industrial Park Water System Improvements- Water Storage Tank and Site Work- Contract No. 2."

Copies of the Contract Documents may be obtained from the office of the Engineer, SPECS, Inc., 105 S. Centre Street, Suite 100, Cumberland, MD 21502. The cost for the plans and specifications is $75.00 and is non-refundable. All out of town contractors must pre-pay for shipping and the cost of the plans.

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids and waive technicalities in any part thereof deemed to be in the best interest of Garrett County.

By Order of the Board

WAMPLER FOODS

Wampler Foods, Inc., Moorefield Complex, is looking for a self-motivated, high energy individual to fill the position of:

CHICK DELIVERY DRIVER

The individual selected for this position will be responsible for driving a truck from the Hatchery to and from various growers' farms throughout the area delivering newly hatched chicks for grow out. This position's importance lies in the fact that this person must make sure chicks are delivered on timely basis and are correctly placed in the growers' houses to help insure a good start. Successful applicants will also realize that they are representing Wampler Foods, Inc., whenever they are driving a company vehicle, making sure to always follow the rules of the road.

Description of Duties/Qualifications:
- Must have excellent attendance habits.
- Will load trucks at Hatchery, deliver chicks to farms, return empty carriers to Hatchery and wash chick carriers after return from Hatchery. The nature of this position is very physical.
- Must be able to drive large trucks in all types of weather and have the ability to chain wheels, if needed.
- Must be able to lift/push 100+ lbs.
- Must have a valid CDL Class B license, a good driving record and must pass a DOT physical.
- Vision correctable to 20/20.
- Must possess good decision-making ability.
- As trucks are heated for chick transport, some mechanical abilities in this area would be preferred if repairs to the vehicle were needed while in transit.
- May also be required to do other Hatchery-related jobs.

If you are interested in a challenging career with a company that provides an excellent benefit package, please submit a resumé or summary of qualifications to:

Southern High School Students Of The Month Selected

Ashley Hershman, a sophomore, is the daughter of Craig and Debbie Hershman. In addition to being on the distinguished honor roll, she is the recipient of both the Success in School Award and the National Achievement Award for math. She plays soccer and attends the Corinth United Methodist Church. In the future she plans to attend a four-year college and pursue a career in business.

Frank Sweitzer, son of Franklin and Lisa Sweitzer, is a senior this year. He is a member of VICA and stage band and has been recognized by the Who's Who Among American High School Students program. He plays the drums and enjoys freestyle biking. Frank would like to attend the University of Maryland to major in mechanical engineering.

Cassandra Kave, a junior, is the daughter of Gary and Angela Kave. A member of chorus and both marching and concert bands, Cassandra has also been in the Who's Who Among American High School Students for two years. She volunteers at the AmeriCorps after-school program and attends Calvary Tabernacle Church. Future plans include attending Allegany College to become a registered nurse.

Freshman Greg Bobick is the son of Gregory Bobick Sr. and Patricia Nelson. He is an honor roll student and enjoys camping. Greg plans to major in archeology and anthropology.

Steve Lilly, son of Allen and Kathy Lilly, is a senior. He is a member of Skills USA VICA, is on the cross country team, and is an honor roll student. He has been included in the Who's Who Among American High School Students three times and received the perfect attendance award. Steve was the Student of the Month in ninth grade for math and the recipient of the National History and Government Award. He also was awarded a $1,000 per semester scholarship to DeVry. Steve won first place in the 4-H electrical engineering event at the county fair and won second place in the 4-H electrical engineering event at the Maryland state fair. He attends White United Methodist Church and plans to pursue a career involving electrical engineering or avionics. He is considering attending DeVry and entering the U.S. Air Force.

Becca Gangler, a senior, is the daughter of Natalie and David Gangler. During her freshman year, she won the Most Coachable Award with the JV basketball team. She is a member of the marching band and is on the track and field team. During her sophomore year she was on the varsity basketball team, and was awarded the U.S. National Band Award and the Who's Who Among American High School Students award. She was named "Best Thrower" in track and field in her sophomore and junior years. Becca also set a new school record for the discus throw during her junior year, winning third place at the Maryland state track meet. She was named "Best Defense Player" on the varsity basketball team and was on the honor roll, in addition to being an All-American Scholar. Becca also received the Certificate of Outstanding Attendance during her junior year and the National Science Merit Award this year. She has been a member of the Garrett County Swim Team for 11 years and placed first in her division in 1999. Becca attends St. Mark's Lutheran Church and plans to attend Coastal Carolina University to major in marine science.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOL NO. 123 OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 2000 PER COPY 47¢ Printed on RECYCLED NEWSPRINT

45 SECONDS OF LUNACY by 256 individuals on Saturday yielded an estimated $58,000 to benefit Special Olympics programs in Garrett and Allegany counties, as those brave souls took a dip in the icy, 32-degree waters of Deep Creek Lake during the second annual Maryland State Police Deep Creek Dunk. Participants waded into the lake at Uno Restaurant, as hundreds of spectators held towels, took pictures, and shouted words of encouragement. The inaugural event last year involved 161 dunkers and proceeds of $34,000. The top money-raiser was Tina Wehner of Elkridge, who collected $6,200. Blair Bittinger, McHenry, finished second with a total of $3,094 and, as a member of the MSP at the McHenry barrack, was the top money-raiser among the law enforcement officials who participated. In third place was Mtn. Lake Park resident Karen L. Clapper with $1,500. Trish Quick of Rosedale, dressed as a crayfish, won the costume contest. Other coordinating agencies besides the MSP were the Garrett and Allegany county sheriff's offices, the DNR police, and the Oakland Police Department. Local sponsors included Uno's, Wisp Ski Resort, WKHJ Radio, A&A Realty Long and Foster, The Republican newspaper, and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

Edwards, Hafer Review General Assembly Issues

Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Hafer hosted their annual mid-session informational meeting Saturday at Garrett Community College, with about 20 people in attendance. The elected officials reviewed the bills they have put in this session, and also discussed some of the "hot topics" of the General Assembly this year.

Local issues of interest included the sale of Deep Creek Lake and the formation of the new lake policy and review board. (See separate lake story.) Also discussed was the carrying over of a state loan to build the Garrett Information Enterprise Center at Garrett Community College, an increase in marriage license fees, a coal mining reciprocity plan, and the management of the state's current surplus of money, among other issues.

Some local issues were brought to the attention of the legislators, including the recent state-ordered closing of Safe Harbor, a Lighthouse home for persons with mental illness who are in crisis.

The officials discussed each of the bills they are sponsoring, some of which are as follows:

HB 808: An act concerning Garrett County agricultural land property tax credits. If passed, HB 808 will allow the Garrett County commissioners to give property tax credits for agricultural land. This is a continuance of the commissioners' intent over the past year to allow for such credits, with the purpose being to preserve land and assist the operators of working farms.

SB 549: An act concerning caterers being allowed to serve alcohol. This bill was put in at the request of the county's liquor control board, Edwards said, with the intent being to allow the board to issue a caterer's license that would permit that caterer to sell alcoholic beverages at certain events. Various conditions exist for the individual seeking the license. Another bill, HB 538, would allow resorts to be able to sell

WHY DO WE DO THE DUNK? This photo says it all when folks wonder why anyone would jump into an ice-covered Deep Creek Lake in the middle of the winter. These are Garrett County's representatives in this week's Maryland Winter Special Olympics that were hosted by the Wisp Ski Resort in McHenry, and from the looks of all the metal hanging on the necks of these young men, they had an exceedingly successful year. Pictured front is Keith Platter, who won a silver medal in the beginner giant slalom and a bronze in the slalom. At left is Chad Stallman, who won silver medals in both the intermediate slalom and giant slalom. At right is Robert Broadwater, who was the gold medal winner in the beginner slalom and giant slalom. Scores of special athletes, accompanied by coaches and many other volunteers from all over the state, participated in the event. The aforementioned "jump in the lake" is in reference to the second annual Deep Creek Dunk, which was held Saturday at Uno Restaurant and raised $58,000 for the Special Olympics programs in Garrett and Allegany counties.

Don Storck Is Named County's Tech Coordinator

The Garrett County Board of Commissioners announced Tuesday that Don Storck has been designated as the county's information technology coordinator. Storck currently serves as the director of information technology at Garrett Community College. According to a press release from the commissioners, Storck's availability for this assignment was made possible by the college "as a part of its mission and continuing commitment to bolster economic development in the county."

Storck, who has an extensive background in both information technology and strategic planning in the public and private sectors, will work part-time to assist the Garrett County Economic Development Department with the development and deployment of information technology capabilities and applications. In his role as coordinator, Storck is to represent the commissioners and the county when working with local, state, and other public and private sector enti-

Building Codes Office Adopting Procedure-Tightening Measures

In response to concerns recently brought to the attention of the Board of Garrett County Commissioners regarding the implementation and enforcement of the Maryland Building Performance Standards Act and related building codes, a set of recommendations for improvements was presented last week by the Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office. The majority of these recommendations were accepted by the commissioners, as announced at Tuesday's regular public meeting.

Among those recommendations approved for immediate implementation are the following measures:

1) If a code violation is identified during construction of a building, a copy of the code correction notice will be provided to the property owner. Such notice will be provided to the owner by mail or in person on the same day the correction notice is issued.

2) Contractors are required to notify the codes office upon completion of all correction measures outlined in the correction notice.

3) All permit applications, particularly the plumbing permit application, must be signed by the appropriate licensed contractor and approved by the permit office before a building permit is issued.

4) Original signatures from each reviewing agency will be required, certifying that all construction work has been completed to the satisfaction of that agency before a Use and Occupancy Permit is issued for a particular project.

5) The Codes Committee, which was originally formed to assist in the county's development of building codes implemented in 1997, will be reconvened to evaluate the policies and procedures currently utilized by the codes office. Members of the committee are individuals involved in all aspects of the construction industry, according to information from the commissioners. The committee will be asked to identify additionalrecommendations for the enhancement of the permitting and inspection process.

One recommendation made by the planning and zoning office but not approved by the commissioners concerned the establishment of a Garrett County contractor's license procedure. The commissioners explained that in the state legislature, House Bill 811 and its companion Senate Bill 759 may establish the need for all home builders in the state to receive a license and registration number from the Division of Consumer Protection. If these bills pass, there will be no need for a separate county license, Commissioner Ernie Gregg said.

Commissioner chairman Wendell Beitzel said many of the recommendations made by the planning and zoning office should improve the effectiveness of the county's permitting and inspection process immediately. The Codes Committee's work will take place over the next several months.

"We believe an evaluation of the current policies and procedures by an autonomous group of individuals working within the building industry will result in recommendations which will not only improve the county's code program, but will also enhance the quality of the construction industry," Beitzel said.

Commissioner Fred Holliday agreed, asserting that the commissioners' goal is to assure that all new structures in the county meet the minimum standards of the code and that these structures are safe and well built.

"We believe that it is to the industry's advantage to continue to have a reputation of quality workmanship in Garrett County," Holliday said.

United Way Of Garrett County Is Established

The United Way of Garrett County became official this week with the selection of its first executive committee. This committee will serve as the board of directors and will be responsible for managing the United Way effort in the county.

The members of the committee are Susan Athey-Oxford, Jeanette Rudy Fitzwater, Ernie Gregg, Bob Huebner, Tom Myers, Monty Pagenhardt, Ken Perrin, Dave Thomas, and Lisa Thayer Welch. The election of officers will take place at the group's next meeting.

The next step in the establishment of the county's United Way will be to form a community response committee, which will review projects submitted by the six agencies currently represented on the executive committee. Funds will then be allocated by the community response group.

Members of any other agency interested in becoming a United Way of Garrett County member need to complete an application package and submit it to the executive committee before the end of March.

Persons interested in volunteering to serve on any United Way committee are encouraged to contact one of the members cited above. Members noted that they expect the number of par-

Settlement Officially Occurs On First Parcel Of Deep Creek Lake

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) secretary Sarah Taylor-Rogers announced late last week that settlement has occurred on the first parcel of Deep Creek Lake, which includes the lake bottom of up to 2,466 feet of elevation.

The Maryland Department of General Services Office of Real Estate in Baltimore completed the $7.8 million settlement last Friday afternoon. Settlement on the remainder of the property is scheduled to occur in April, following formal approval by the General Assembly.

Members of the Deep Creek Lake Advisory and Review Committee met Monday evening to discuss the lake acquisition procedures and progress. The committee will dissolve as the new agreed-upon board is established. Pending the General Assembly passage of House Bill 733 and Senate Bill 788, the management of the lake will be handed to the Deep Creek Lake Policy and Review Board, which will have "advise and consent" power.

This new board will consist of the following members: Five governor-appointed members (two must be county residents, one a representative of the Bass Federation, and two at-large members), the senator of the district or designee, the delegate or designee, a county commissioner or designee, the president of the Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association, and the chairperson of the county chamber of commerce.

The commissioners and other interested parties have reported a generally positive reaction to the finalization of the lake sale, with the majority of the county's requests being honored by the state officials.

"The idea from the start was to keep things at the lake as undisturbed as possible," said Delegate George Edwards at a local legislative information meeting Saturday. "And I think we've done that. I think everyone should be pleased with how this is turning out."

Edwards said that any changes introduced by the DNR or any other entity at the lake will have to gain the approval of the new policy and review board. He also noted that the county will receive 25% of all revenue earned by the state through Deep Creek. This includes 25% of all dock fees, which the county has not benefited from in the past.

With the state's $17 million purchase, Deep Creek Lake will continue to be a Natural Resources Management Area. It is also now officially a part of Maryland's state park system. The policy and review board will begin work with DNR representatives in June, according to a report from the DNR Public Communications Office.

Commissioners To Host Code Home Rule Mtg.

The first of three public meetings concerning code home rule will be held Tuesday, March 7, at 6 p.m. in the county commissioners' courthouse conference room. The meeting is open to all interested persons.

The Garrett County commissioners are seeking input on the issue of code home rule, a form of government which they hope to adopt. Currently the fiscal authority of the county must seek legislation to change policies and/or procedures in the county. Code home rule will give more authority to the local officials in making some of these changes.

The change in government must be approved by the majority of the voting public. The commissioners plan to host the three mandated public meetings in order to place the issue on the ballot in November.

OVERLAPPING SEASONS -- The weather in Garrett County is baffling this year, with a heavy snowfall blanketing the area just one month ago, then balmy warmth for a few weeks, and then, this morning, a little snowfall. The flowers are up, coaxed toward the sky by lots of sunshine and very unseasonable high temperatures, but the buds were coated today by the snow, and cooler climes are expected for a few days, at least. March came in less than lionish, so who knows what the unpredictable month holds in store? These crocuses are the flowers of Adele Naylor and family in Oakland.

Garrett Co.'s MicroWorks Program Is Cover Story Of ARC Publication

The operation and success of Garrett County's MicroWorks program is the cover story subject of the September-December issue of Appalachia, a journal publication of the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC). On the cover of the magazine are photos of furniture maker Rodney Carr, wrought iron designer Howard Kepple, and artisan Barbara Englander — all of Garrett County and all participants in the local program.

Also highlighted in the article are MicroWorks participants Autumn Shay, the young owner of Meadow Lake Stables; Elmer Zook of Swiss Valley Crafts; Leslie Wrenn of Scroll Saw Artists; and various members of the Mountain Arts Cooperative.

MicroWorks is a program of the Garrett County Community Action Committee, and is directed by Mikal McCartney. ARC supports MicroWorks and similar programs through its Entrepreneurship Initiative, a program to foster the growth of businesses that are both profitable and committed to the communities in which they grow.

The Appalachia article, written by Fred D. Baldwin, describes the premise of MicroWorks, which is to give local entrepreneurs a jump-start in initiating small businesses. The story explains how this is a good fit for the Appalachian area. McCartney is quoted as she reviews the 1997 closing of Bausch & Lomb and the effect this had on the county. The MicroWorks program was born when county leaders agreed that the most effective economic development strategy would be to encourage employment diversification.

MicroWorks lends money to potential business people who have a solid business plan. These loans are at the prime interest rate plus 2 percent for up to seven years. Recipients do not have to make payments for the first six months. These loan recipients are determined through a process directed by an advisory committee to the program, McCartney said.

The article details the progress of the local MicroWorks participants, interviewing several of them. Photographs of these individuals, taken by Ann Hawthorne, are also included in the story. Since its publication, at least one artisan has been contacted by prospective buyers.

"Rodney Carr, owner of Deep Woods Furniture, has gotten calls from as far away as Tennessee," McCartney said. "They've seen the article and are very interested in his work."

While the article reports that MicroWorks has provided 13 entrepreneurial loans, McCartney reported yesterday that new loans have just been closed, bringing that number closer to 20. Meg Ellis, a specialist with the county's economic development office, is quoted in the article as she points out how even 13 jobs in the county is significant. She said that a business with 13 positions interested in locating in the county would be "courted very hard" by her office.

In addition to the money lent to business people, MicroWorks also provides extensive technical assistance. Sandy Major, a counselor for Garrett Community College's Western Maryland Small Business Development Center, advises the clients in the development of their business plans, although she does not do the actual paperwork for them. The process weeds out the clients who are not completely committed to their work, she said. Those who stick with the program move on, learning about marketing and good business strategies.

"We're really very excited about how well the program is working," McCartney said. "And the article is so well done. ARC is a class act."

Appalachia magazine is available on line at www.arc.gov. Copies are on file at the Ruth Enlow Library as well. For information about the magazine, persons may write to ARC, 1666 Connecticut Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20235. The office for the publication can also be reached by telephone at 202-884-7770.

Students From France Visiting Garrett County

Continuing a tradition started in 1988, students from France have spent the last three weeks visiting with American students and families in Garrett County. Under the coordination of Lowell Leitzel, a French teacher at Southern High School, the junior- and senior-year students from Lycée Alain-René Lesage in Vannes, France, stayed with host families and attended classes and social events with local students.

The 14 French students agreed that they had been warmly welcomed in the school and by their hosts. SHS is not as large as their own school, they noted, which has an enrollment of 2,000 students attending classes in several buildings that form their campus.

For all but one of the students from Vannes, this was their first visit to the United States, and they commented on some cultural differences they noticed.

SHS, they all agreed, was much stricter than the school they attended. "We are allowed to leave during the day. We come back when we have classes," one French student said, as others nodded in agreement or made similar comments.

However, it was also noted, that while the school environment is much stricter, the home environment in the U.S. is far less structured than what they are accustomed to. "The family does not eat together here. They are not together much," someone said. In comparison, the French families do dine together regularly, they explained.

High school sporting events in the U.S. were seen in strong contrast to such activities in Vannes. When asked what had been outstanding in their visit everyone seemed to concur that the basketball games were memorable. "In France not so many people go to games at school. Games are in clubs outside of school more than in school," one French student explained.

Though the crowds, cheering, and excitement of the basketball games they attended had surprised the French visitors, they said they had enjoyed the experience.

With host families, the exchange students also went shopping in nearby cities such as Morgantown, W.Va., Uniontown, Pa., and Cumberland. Before departing for home, the students, along with their teacher, François Urvoaz, will spend a day sight-seeing in Washington, D.C.

The hosts who opened their homes to the visitors from Vannes were Tom and Susan Peterson, Mikal and David Lee, David and Pam Spurrier, Robert Ulino and Mary Jane Berry, Monty and Nancy Pagenhardt, Butch and Mandy Upole, Wayne and Karen Ray, Chuck and Sue Harkins, Edward and Sheila Garland, Charles and Jane Nolan, Fred and Connie Jacoby, Jeff and Liz Gilbert, John and Lois White, Paul and Punkie Chorpenning, and Richard and Chris Palmer.

Curran Alerts Marylanders To Credit Card Scam

Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. wants consumers to be aware of a new telemarketing scam. Last week, some Marylanders received phone calls from telemarketers who said they were offering a credit card fraud protection plan, but who in fact appear to be fraud artists themselves

The callers said they represented a "fraud watch" service and were "mandated" by VISA to call all of its cardholders. The callers asked the consumers to verify their account numbers, providing the first digit of the consumer's credit card number and asking the consumer to supply the remaining digits. The callers said that the consumers should purchase a credit card protection plan, at a cost of $250, because criminals have been stealing credit card numbers over the Internet and consumers are liable for those unauthorized charges. In fact, federal law limits loss due to unauthorized credit card charges to $50 if the cardmember reports the unauthorized charges promptly. A VISA company fraud specialist said VISA did not give any mandate to these telemarketers to call its cardholders.

"Fortunately, the consumers who called us knew enough not to give out their credit card numbers," said Attorney General Curran. "But I am very concerned that other consumers might be taken in by this scam, and either pay for services that don't exist or have their credit card numbers misused by crooks."

These calls are similar to others that have misled consumers around the country in recent months. Last fall the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) brought complaints against two Arizona-based companies and another in Montreal that it said were persuading consumers to disclose credit card numbers, which result in unauthorized charges on those credit cards. Some of those same consumers were also charged anywhere from $200 to $400 for "protection services" that did not exist.

"This scam simply underscores the importance of never disclosing your credit card number over the telephone to anyone you do not know," Curran said.

Oakland Woman Handed 90-Day Jail Sentence

An Oakland woman was handed a three-month jail sentence during a recent Garrett County District Court proceeding after being convicted of assaulting a correctional officer at the Garrett County Detention Center.

Although Donna Lee DeWitt, 33, pleaded not guilty to second degree assault, she was convicted by Judge Ralph M. Burnett, who imposed a one year sentence, all but three months of which was suspended, and placed her on one year of supervised probation. The assault charge stemmed from her January arrest following an incident during which she had struck the correctional officer in the face with her shoe while being booked on an unrelated domestic-related assault charge.

In other district court news, Dores Dean Hanline, 66, Accident, entered a not guilty plea and was exonerated of a charge of violating an ex parte order.

DWI/DUI Hearings

Several driving while intoxicated (DWI) and driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drug cases were heard in district court recently.

Terry Wayne Sharpless, 38, Frostburg, pleaded guilty to two counts of DWI. He was handed a one-year sentence, of which all but six months was suspended, fined $105, and placed on one year of supervised probation by Judge Thomas Lohm.

Ryan Gregory Garrett, 24, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a probation before judgment, fined $305, and placed on one year of supervised probation by Judge Paul Stakem.

Taba Ann Hinebaugh, 28, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DUI and was handed a PBJ by Stakem, fined $305, and placed on 18 months of supervised probation.

Amy Susan Mosser Custer, 32, Accident, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ by Lohm, fined $150, and placed on 90 days' supervised probation.

Michael Eugene Ritchey, 18, Oakland, was handed a stet ruling by Burnett after his DWI hearing, with an order to complete 20 hours of community service.

Michael Jackson King, 23, Newark, Del., was handed a stet ruling after his DWI hearing before Burnett.

Steven Ray Thomas, 37, Frostburg, was found in violation of DWI probation by Burnett, who reimposed a one-year sentence.

Robin Jay Snyder, 38, St. Clairsville, Ohio, was found in violation of DWI probation and a two-day sentence was reimposed by Burnett.

Jeremy Shawn Baker, 23, Oakland, pleaded guilty to operating a vehicle with alcohol in his bloodstream, a violation of an existing court order. Stakem levied a $255 fine, imposed a 60-day sentence, all but five days of which was suspended, and placed Baker on one year of supervised probation.

Correction Noted To Court Report

Last week's Garrett County District Court coverage incorrectly reported the results of the hearings involving Samuel Roy Williams, 35, and his wife Sheila Lynn Williams, 32, both of Swanton.

The report should have stated that Samuel Williams was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) by Judge Thomas Lohm after pleading guilty to marijuana possession. No fine was levied. The marijuana possession charge faced by Sheila Williams was not prosecuted, rather than resulting in a PBJ.

Quilters Cast Announced By OT Theatre

Jane Avery, director of Our Town Theatre's April production of Quilters, has announced the cast for the show. The players are as follows: Lynn Broderick, Jann Dehus, Catherine Donaldson, Liz Rees Gilbert, Pegg Janney, Gina Powell, Miriam Sincell, and Sandy Wilson.

The play, based on the art of quilting in the pioneer days, will be presented on April 12-16 and 26-30 at the theatre. Seating reservations may be made starting March 15.

Quilters, written by Barbara Damashek and Molly Newman, is being produced through a special arrangement with the Dramatist's Play Service, and is being funded in part by the Garrett County and Maryland State arts councils, Maryland 2000, and the Stanley P. Smith Family Foundation.

Library Team Holds Meeting In Grantsville

The residents' committee working on the Grantsville library project met last week to continue discussing several issues, including sites for a new facility.

The 13 member group is composed of area residents and Cathy Ashby, director of the Ruth Enlow Library. The meeting, facilitated by area resident Fran Wishpick, focused on the merits of several potential library sites. Taking into account site size, parking facilities, and proximity to the main business district, the group also outlined criteria for making a final decision on a site.

The committee will present its findings and recommendations to the board of directors of the Ruth Enlow Library system at the board meeting scheduled for March 16.

150 TREES FOR 150 YEARS — Life Scout Brian Crabtree, son of Chris and Debbie Crabtree, Oakland, is currently working on his Eagle Scout project, which involves the planting of 150 trees in the Oakland area. His project is in conjunction with the town's recent 150th anniversary. Each tree costs $25, and persons are invited to purchase trees and dedicate them to the memory of or in honor of loved ones. Applications for donations may be obtained at the Oakland Town Hall. The advertisement on A-5 of today's issue can also be used to donate funds for the project. Crabtree is working with the Department of Natural Resources to select proper trees for the area. The scout is pictured with Oakland mayor Asa McCain.

Vehicle Strikes Residence Along Friendsville Rd.

A residence located along Route 42, Friendsville Rd., was struck by a vehicle last Saturday night, according to a report filed by the Maryland State Police in McHenry.

Tfc. Robert Sharp responded to the scene of the accident on Route 42 at 11:15 p.m. The officer reported that a 1994 Ford pickup truck, operated by Darrin E. Smith, 31, McHenry, was southbound when it side-swiped a guardrail on the southbound shoulder, swerved left across the northbound lane, crossed a lawn, and subsequently struck a residence.

Smith was charged with driving while intoxicated, reckless driving, and violation of an alcohol restriction. According to the report, no one at the residence was injured.

CDS Arrest

A driver was arrested for possession of a controlled dangerous substance following a traffic stop on I-68 last Thursday. Tfc. J. Broadwater reported that Perry J. Hayes, 23, Mt. Ranier, was stopped near the Casselman River bridge at 11:48 a.m. The driver, who was westbound on the interstate, was allegedly driving 80.5 mph in a 65 mph zone.

Following the traffic stop, Hayes consented to a search of his vehicle, which revealed a quantity of marijuana, Broadwater reported.

Bambacus In Running For GOP Delegate

Frostburg city mayor John N. Bambacus is a candidate in Tuesday's primary election for delegate to the Republican National Convention from the 6th Congressional District of Maryland. Bambacus was designated as a nominee by presidential candidate and Arizona senator John McCain.

Bambacus, who was elected to the mayor's office in 1994, is currently serving his third term. He has been employed by Frostburg State University for 30 years, where he is a professor in the political science department. He is also the director of the FSU Public Affairs Institute, where he administers an internship program that places FSU students in governmental offices throughout the state.

"As a student of government and a teacher of 30 years, I have always believed in the dignity of public service and have taught my students that serving one's community is a citizen's responsibility in a democratic society," Bambacus said.

Born in Washington, D.C., Bambacus was educated in the public schools of Maryland. Following graduation from high school he enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps, attained the rank of sergeant, and served in Vietnam. After his military service he entered into his professional career at FSU and began his public service on numerous boards and commissions.

Bambacus was first elected to public office in 1976, when he won a seat as finance commissioner on the Frostburg City Council and subsequently served a two-year term. He then served as special assistant and statewide campaign director to U.S. Senator Charles "Mac" Mathias (R-Md.) In 1982 he was elected a Maryland state senator and served from the Garrett and Allegany county district for eight years.

Bambacus was an elected delegate to the 1984 and 1996 Republican National Conventions supporting President Ronald Reagan and Senator Bob Dole. He is married and has two children.

On-Line Teacher Recertification Academy Formed

In response to a call for more aggressive educational reform in Maryland, Frostburg State University (FSU) and University of Maryland University College (UMUC), along with Maryland speaker of the house Cas Taylor, have announced the formation of the Online Academy for Teacher Re-Certification. Made possible by a $100,000 grant from AT&T, the on-line academy will help K-12 teachers meet the state's new recertification requirements that become effective this fall.

FSU and UMUC faculty will collaborate to develop courses focusing on reading, science, and math. Professors who teach the on-line courses will be certified in on-line teaching through UMUC's faculty training program. "Maryland teachers will update their skills, and as on-line learners themselves [they will] be better able to prepare their students for a technological society," an FSU spokesperson said.

According to the Maryland State Department of Education, Maryland will need to hire around 10,000 new teachers over the next five years. On-line education courses provide an alternative delivery model that can address some of this need and should also help alleviate the stress for teachers that may come with the expected mass shortage of teachers due to retirements, growing enrollments, and reductions in class size.

"On-line training affords busy teachers the flexibility of enhancing their knowledge at times and places convenient for them," the spokesperson added, pointing out that according to the National Education Association, U.S. teachers are required to teach more hours a day and hours per year than counterparts in any other nation.

Members of the University System of Maryland, FSU is known for its expertise in teacher preparation and UMUC for both academic expertise and experience in on-line education.

"FSU's faculty in education have been at the forefront of using the newest technology to deliver educational programs," said Catherine Gira, FSU president. "This collaboration is one more opportunity for them to apply their expertise in an exciting way."

For more information about the courses, persons may contact Susan Arisman, FSU College of Education Dean's Office, at 301-687-4759 (e-mail sarisman@frostburg.edu) or Jennifer Vest, UMUC Graduate Dean's Office, at 301-985-7066 (e-mail jvest@umuc.edu).

"This collaborative effort between UMUC and FSU provides a flexible academic environment via the Internet for K-12 teachers to advance their knowledge and skills." said Candi Humphrey, AT&T in Maryland's director of public policy and public relations. AT&T in Maryland has contributed more than $2 million to K-12 education projects and programs throughout the state over the last 24 months.

SPECIAL ATHLETES TAKE THE CHALLENGE - Three Garrett County athletes joined 150 other contestants on the slopes in McHenry to vie for the "gold" in the Winter Games of Maryland Special Olympics 2000. Chad Stallman, 17, Friendsville, Robert Broadwater, 15, Swanton, and Keith Platter, 15, Grantsville, all challenged the alpine event. In the photo above left, Keith demonstrates his medal-winning skill in the slalom contest, and teammate Robert (above right) completes his first-place run. ties on matters pertaining to information technology capabilities and infrastructure.

One of Storck's first tasks will be to develop a countywide strategic plan for enhanced information technology, according to the release. James Hinebaugh, director of the Garrett County Economic Development Department, was present for the announcement and commended the selection of Storck to the consulting position.

"This is good timing, too, as we enter into a new age of telecommunications and technology," Hinebaugh said, referring to the high-speed Internet connection lines presently being installed across the state.

"Technology is becoming increasingly important, and it will have greater influence on us from both a professional and personal perspective," said Wendell Beitzel, commissioner chairman. "We want to ensure that the county is in a position to capitalize on the opportunities that are available, taking action to position the county to take advantage of the opportunity that will be available," Edwards said.

Fill Out Those Forms...

Garrett County residents are receiving letters in the mail this week to alert them to the fact that, within the next few weeks, they will receive a 2000 United States Census questionnaire. Most people will receive a short form, but about one in six will receive a long form. We will have about two weeks to fill these out and return them.

In order to emphasize how important it is for each and every single family/individual residing in Garrett County to fill these forms out and return them, we need only look at the result of the 1990 census. In that census there was an undercount of 393 persons in Garrett County, which on a percentage basis really is not bad (less than 1.4% with a population of 29,000). However, that undercount of 393 persons cost our county, in federal tax money, an estimated $313,000 per year — per year — since 1990. Multiply that by 10 years and the result is a staggering $3.13 million that Garrett County did not receive in what would be its fair share of tax dollars. Imagine what could have been done with those funds over the past 10 years.

Of course, Baltimore City had an undercount of 70,000 in 1990, resulting in a loss of $71 million per year for the past 10 years — an unbelievable loss.

Residents who for whatever reason do not receive a form will be visited by a Census Bureau representative, assuming the bureau can locate all of these households.

Assistance in filling out the forms, if needed, will be available at a number of locations throughout Garrett County, including the Garrett County Community Action office in Oakland, the Flowery Vale Senior Center in Accident, the Friendsville and Grantsville senior centers, the Mennonite church in Swanton, and at the Garrett County courthouse.

We strongly urge all residents to complete their own forms, to encourage local friends and relatives to complete theirs, to assist others who may need help, and if asked, provide whatever information a census taker may need to locate some of our "backwoods" families. Every single person who is missed costs each one of us; it's that simple.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I was sorry to hear that we will no longer be having the symphony in Garrett County. For 13 years Kathryn Sincell-Corwell and Erik Friedman brought us quality music at a minimal cost. This will be a great loss to Garrett County. Hopefully, GLAF will be able to replace Kathryn and give us the same quality and affordable price that she was able to deliver.

The work that was behind the scenes that Kathryn did was unbelievable. Thanks, Kathryn, for all you did. Thanks to all the wonderful musicians who gave us the beautiful music.

Bravo!

To the Editor:

Concerning the high water in Crellin last Friday and Saturday, I don't think Mr. Frantz knew what he was talking about when he said no one was evacuated from Crellin. Why then did my daughter and husband sleep on the floor at Crellin school? Some went to motels. My daughter did not get back in her house until 5 o'clock on Saturday. The road was closed into Crellin. My daughter is Rose Mary Mayne.

Thank you.

To the Editor:

I want to help make the voters of Garrett County aware of the best kept secret in the Maryland Republican Party.

In May 1999, at the spring convention of the Maryland Republican Party, we passed a resolution to permit Independent voters to vote in the Maryland Republican Primary on March 7, 2000. I supported the resolution and spoke in favor of it on the convention floor.

There has been very little publicity on this issue.

I am very pleased that my political party has opened the doors to give Independents an opportunity to become involved in the selection of a presidential candidate before the general election. I urge Independents and Republicans to get out and vote.

Please feel free to call me if you have any questions (301-334-4500).

Sincerely,
Brenda J. Butscher

To the Editor:

All right, I don't blame businesses for taking advantage of the generous tax break brought about through the efforts of the commissioners. Once again, however, I question the common sense (rather, lack of) of the commissioners.

"This will mean $150,000 less on our tax base," Holliday said. Commissioner Beitzel said that the county is giving up revenue, but that "ultimately it will be returned two-fold." So I guess what that means is that even though the county is strapped for cash, the average citizen is supposed to believe that somehow this will be good for them.

It has been a while since I took economics, but as I recall there is a multiplier effect for every consumer dollar that is pumped into the economy. Every dollar generates eight more as it moves through the various stages. With that in mind, why not reduce the property taxes of the "consumers" and really get the economy moving in Garrett County? If they are happy with a two-fold return, they should be ecstatic with an eight-fold return.

To the Editor:

As a Garrett County businessman, I have quite often sat back and been quiet about county issues, but the latest issue is too much. To assassinate the character of Keith Sines and John Nelson with the accusation of impropriety is absurd. I work with them (generally as a subcontractor) all the time. Go to the city, like Washington, D.C., and see if you can call at 9 a.m. for an inspection to pour footers at 1 p.m. If it is humanly possible, their office will accommodate you to help you beat our Garrett County weather.

This past winter, my laborer purchased a home from J&J Homes. In order to get the home he wanted, he decided to build the foundation himself. I'm sure he will say that they were great to work with, even if he had to correct a few things to pass the inspection. The day that we backfilled, Mr. Winters was on site at 7:15 a.m. (I'm sure that this was not his usual starting time) to make sure that gravel was being used and that proper procedure was being followed. He came early as not to hold up J&J Homes from setting the house.

I've done business here in Garrett County a long time and none of these men have ever looked the other way for me, as I am positive they have not looked the other way for others as well. Maybe the man making these charges was quite swift to get his building permit before we adopted our inspection policy.

To the Editor:

I have two things I think the public should know.

1. Those of you who have lived and raised your families in Garrett County better go out and buy all the film that you can afford. Then I suggest that you take pictures of all that is left as of today. You'll never have a better skyline than now.

Have you noticed all the antennas being installed? I thought that that was why we were putting up all those satellites. I believe that before long it will look like driving to Martinsburg, W.Va., Veterans Hospital; every mile, there is a huge antenna. What are the satellites for? Also, cell phones in cars should be outlawed unless you are at a complete stop.

2. Another complaint is all the fighting over 219 interstate. I don't see why this fight continues. The interstate is going through. Why not put it where it belongs? At the place where 219 intersects with Route 40 in Grantsville, just go straight across 68 and continue toward Swanton and, on top of the hill before you drop into Swanton, go southwest to Mountain Lake Park and then join into U.S. 219 east of Oakland. The trucking companies will not have to go up and down all the hills and they can run out the Eastern Divide.

Oakland is close for deliveries and so is the lake, and the citizens in Oakland don't have to be all upset about something that our elected officials are going to do anyway. The highway will be close to all the businesses, but not intrusive on our lives. That plan would put the interstate through mostly state-owned land and not the family areas, and have less impact on us all.

Thank you,

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to Governor Glendening requested that it be published here.

Dear Sir:

I am a parent of a 34-year-old with mental illness. As such I am concerned about the apparent disregard of the plight of the mentally ill in communities and states, and politics in general.

I understand that Maryland, like much of the United States, is enjoying economic success and prosperity. At the same time the Mental Hygiene Administration and the community services portion of the budget has been greatly reduced. I hope you realize, with mental hospitals being closed down, that community services are a must.

I hope this trend is not an intentional disregard of the mentally ill. To do so will cause unnecessary suffering on top of an already terrible brain disease, and will enlarge the street-people community. That would not be a comfortable Glendening legacy!

To be sure you understand, mental illness can be treated and managed just like diabetes and heart disease, etc. My son is ready for employment and anxious to do so.

Please reconsider these special needs and do not discriminate against persons with mental illness by withholding Maryland's surplus from them in the form of a decreased budget for MHA. Do include full funding for the first year of the 5-year Mental Health initiative by including $5.6 million in the supplemental budget request to the General Assembly. Do not cut $6.1 million from MHA's community services budget.

Thanks for your time and consideration.

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter as a concerned citizen of Garrett County. In looking into the different organizations in Garrett County, I have discovered a much-needed service being provided to the citizens. I am referring to the Dove Center.

I was unaware of the unique and needed services available to victims of domestic and sexual violence. The services have quadrupled this past year, but the funds have not. The center has been aided by the timely arrival of the new director. It is to her credit and hard work that the center still operates. She has increased staffing and services that are desperately needed in our community. She has opened up many eyes, including those governing the center, to the needs of the community. Her previous experience has provided a valuable asset to the center in her applications for funds and grants that have kept the Dove Center afloat this year.

My question is, what happened to the center to have put them in such a dire situation as described in a Cumberland Times-News article published on Feb 11, 2000? Does the center not have a governing board to oversee and guide the center? What do the president and current board have to do with the present situation? Are there not any fund-raising committees who could help ease their current problem? And has the board gone to the commissioners with their pleas for help? Maybe the center needs the involvement of the county commissioners to help organize the center and its board until some bylaws and current standards are revised. As it stands, the current system does not seem to be functioning as efficiently as one would hope.

Because if the center is lost, we can only blame it on the board. These questions need to be answered, so the victims and the public will have no need to be concerned as where to turn to in the future.

LEGACY

Whenever someone experiences a life-changing event there is a need to review one's last will and testament. As a recently divorced person I have been making that review. In turn, that review has led me to a larger reflection on the issues of death, especially the questions: Will I be remembered? And, if so, how?

I am sure I do not want to be remembered by having something named after me. Time and time again I have seen a community gather in their collective sorrow to name a building or a highway after some beloved person. Within a very few years and within two generations at the most, one hears younger people ask, "Who was that guy anyway?"

Even if that "guy" were George Washington or Abraham Lincoln, the process of forgetting only takes longer. Off-hand, how many people know for whom the months of July and August are named, though in their day they were arguably the most powerful persons in the world?

As someone who loves history I want to do something historical, something worth remembering. As a student of history I know how little is remembered, and how few care enough about the past to study it willingly.

When I was in college — a very secular New England liberal arts college — there was no chapel program. There was a beautiful chapel, but nothing but the occasional concert or lecture took place there. I determined to change that, and I did.

With the help of very few others I developed a successful chapel program that reflected the breadth of Judeo-Christian faith on campus. We brought a variety of outstanding religious figures who spoke in the context of worship in that chapel.

When I graduated, the chapel program died. My four years of college were extremely valuable, but I do not think I learned from anything more than from the death of that successful chapel program. The lesson was this: if it won't continue when you're gone, then it doesn't really exist when you're there.

From then on I changed my approach from building programs or institutions (or, by extension, buildings) to affecting the lives of individual persons and to influencing individual processes. I learned a lesson from the stars.

If the sky is clear tonight, Polaris, the North Star, will be visible at the end of the Little Dipper's handle. The light that the eye perceives tonight was emitted 300 years ago. If Polaris is destroyed today, it would take 300 years before we would no longer see its light. In the meantime, the light already emitted would continue traveling to the end of the universe.

The question becomes: How much light can I produce? Light never dies; it just keeps on going.

In practical terms, that translates into questions like, "How much good can I do while I walk in this world?" And, "How can I alter the ways things are done today so that they will continue to be done differently tomorrow and the day after that and — most importantly — the day after I am not here anymore?"

For most of us, that means making a difference to one person at a time, one day at a time.

The most profound difference that anyone can make is through personal relationships. That is, after all, what Christianity is about, a personal relationship with Jesus Christ. If there isn't that, then none of the rest matters. The same is true in daily life. What matters is the truth expressed and revealed in our personal relationships. In the human imprint consists incalculable possibilities.

Jesus said, "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" The inverse is also true. It profits a man infinitely much if he loses the whole world, but gains his own soul, and how much more if it gains the soul of another through the cultivation of love. That is legacy worth striving for.

To the Editor:

I wish to commend the county commissioners for their bold vision in establishing the position of Garrett County Information Technology coordinator. Garrett County citizens, businesses, and governmental agencies live in a world that needs to stay connected. This commitment is timely in this fast-changing technology and information society.

Don Storck is an excellent choice as the first Garrett Information Technology (IT) coordinator. He brings a rich information technology background to the job requirements of his position. If our two committees' past associations with Mr. Storck are gauges, Garrett County has engaged a Renaissance man to coordinate enhanced information technology opportunities!

The commissioners show wisdom when the first task of this coordinator will be to develop a countywide strategic plan for enhanced information technology. The installation of the Level 3 fiber-optic cables along Interstate 68 has made access to the information superhighway feasible. However, we need a plan on how to connect to the off/on ramp that the state of Maryland has agreed to provide. There is a digital divide between the metropolitan areas and our rural and small-town Garrett County. Not only do the metropolitan areas have access to these critical communications functions, but they do so at a cost much lower than what can be found in Garrett County.

Businesses locate where these state-of-the-art communications exist and where their cost to operate is much lower. The present commissioners have invested in the business parks and infrastructure to foster commerce in Garrett County. Providing Don Storck as the coordinator of the Garrett County information technology efforts of governmental agencies, businesses, and the public will prove a benefit for the coming years. Our committees look forward to working with and assisting Don Storck and Garrett County in these critical efforts.

We as a community need to be connected in an increasingly connected world.

Sincerely,
Gary R. Ruddell
Chairperson
Technology Committee,
Garrett Economic Development Corporation

To the Editor:

Raw, unbridled greed is a tough thing to stomach. It's ugly.

Some would call that an unfair characterization of the Chesapeake Bay Trust. The Bay Trust, after all, is a nonprofit organization created by the Maryland legislature in 1985 to create public awareness and participation in the restoration and protection of the Chesapeake. They're the folks who give out grants to causes they consider worthwhile from the money they raise from sales of the Chesapeake Bay "blue heron" license plates.

Since 1990, the Trust has held exclusive rights to the sale of commemorative license plates. The plate, which appears on more than 600,000 Maryland vehicles, cost $20, $12 of which goes directly to the Trust. The Trust has more than $8 million in its coffers to support the causes it picks.

It's now 2000, 10 years later, and the state's farming community wants a commemorative license plate of its own to raise money for the Maryland Agriculture Education Foundation (whose $370,000 operating budget is less than the interest from the Bay Trust's stockpiled funds). The same farming community, which is reeling from an economic crisis, a drought, and is the target of tough new nutrient management regulations, now has the Chesapeake Bay Trust as an opponent.

Arguing before a House of Delegates panel just yesterday (Feb. 23), officials from the Bay Trust said they feared losing their monopoly. Former Maryland secretary of natural resources Torrey Brown said the Trust would gladly lend a helping hand to ag education from its funds.

But, the Bay Trust does not want to give up its money-making monopoly. It does not want to give up its control, given 10 years ago.

The Trust doesn't want to share the wealth — even

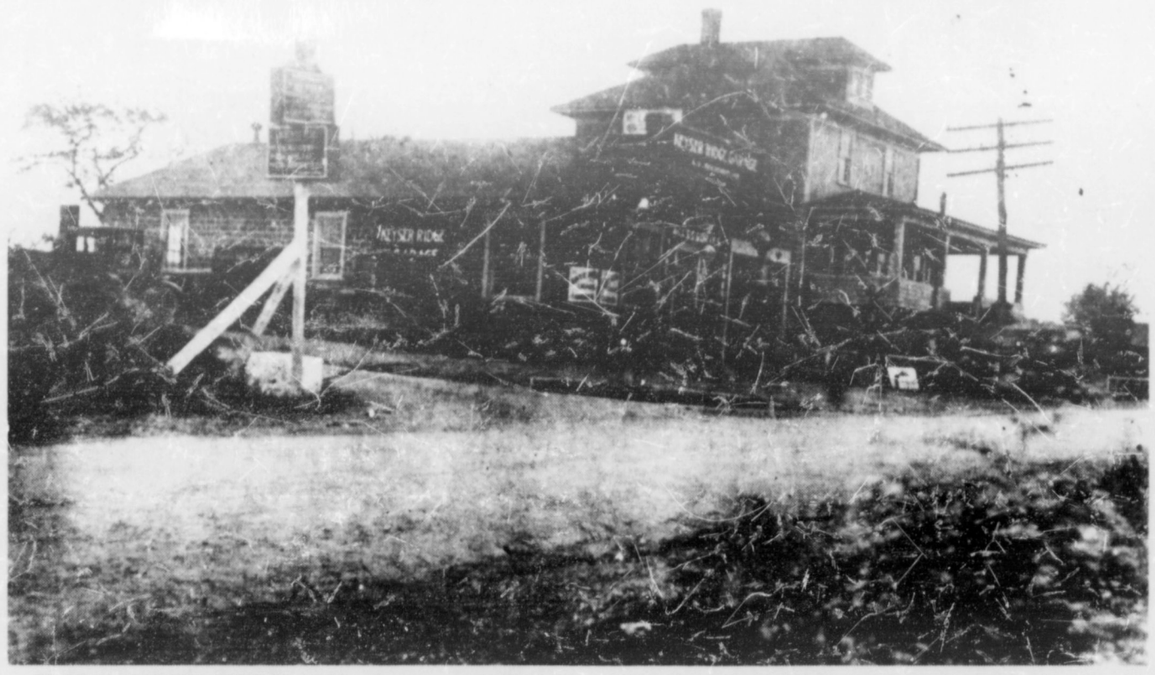
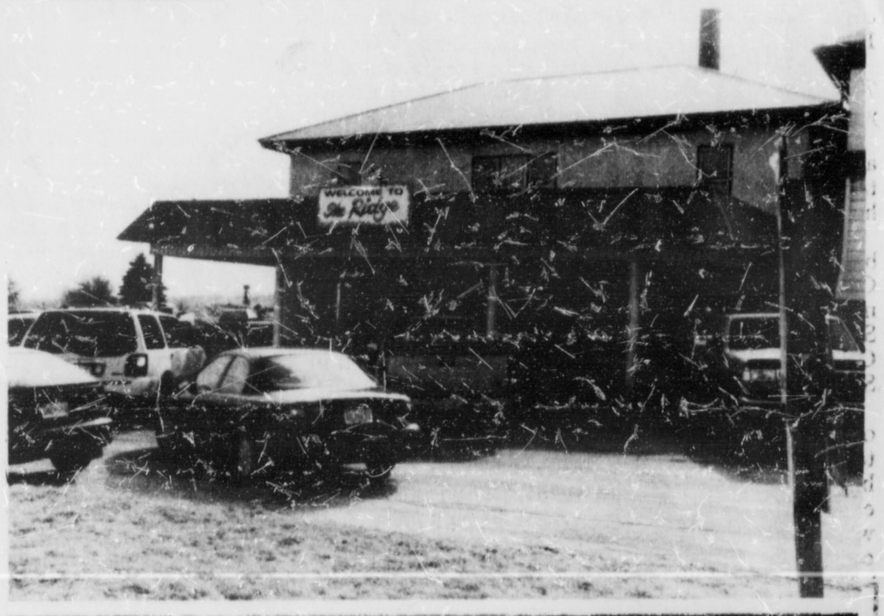
Historic Crossroads At Keyser's Ridge Serving Travelers For Generations

by Peggy Santamaria





THAT WAS THEN, THIS IS NOW - A crossroads in northern Garrett County has witnessed travel, progress, and history of people in this region and those moving on to other areas. What was Braddock's Road and the National Road and later Route 40 intersected with the old Seneca Trail — now known as Route 219. From Native American hunters to the minivans and utility vehicles of today, traffic has passed that way. In 1921 the Reichenbecher garage (above) stood at that crossroad atop Keyser's Ridge. In those days, Route 219, skirting the edge of the garage, was no more than a dirt road and, as the sign on the side of the building indicates, the place was known as Keyser Ridge — with no "s." In 1929 or so, the old garage was replaced with the brick building and lunch room, seen above right. As decades passed, the Keyer's Ridge Truck Stop housed Little Sandy's Restaurant where the sign welcomed all to "The Ridge." Last month an auction was held. The demolition that followed was quick. And now a new fuel-stop and restaurant stand ready to greet new generations of travelers to The Ridge.

For hundreds of years horses, wagon wheels, and rubber tires have traversed the National Road, now Route 40, where it wends its way across Garrett County, up into Pennsylvania and beyond. People and cargo were moved westward along this path, following in the footsteps made by Native American hunters thousands of years ago.

In the 18th and 19th centuries, all along the National Road the early hospitality industry began to flourish as taverns and inns sprang up every mile or two to serve the wayfarers. Today, vehicles rip through the county along the smooth surface of I-68, paralleling the historic route. Travelers, though moving faster through the area, still need to stop along the way to refuel vehicles and re-energize themselves.

To meet the needs of the road-weary, a rest stop area atop Keyser's Ridge, where Route 219 cuts south from the National Road, has served generations of travelers. Since 1921, a stop at "the ridge" meant an opportunity to refuel, have some supper, and rest a while before journeying on.

The Keyser Ridge Garage (there was no "s" after Keyser in those days), built in 1921 by Nelson Wright of Addison, Pa., was owned and operated by Albert Reichenbecher, who built his home next to the business. "I was born in that house 75 years ago. Daddy built it in 1922 or '23, and the last three of the six children in our family were born there," explained Margie (Reichenbecher) Menges of Keyser's Ridge.

In the early 1920s the Keyser Ridge Garage, providing gasoline, tires, inner-tubes, and other automobile accessories, sat directly at the edge of Routes 219 and 40. Directly across the street from the garage was a store.

"My uncle, Scot Duckworth, had a store right across the street. They moved it down the road to where it sits now. Frontier-Vision is in there. They moved it on skids, I remember. They didn't even take a single dish out of the cupboard to do it. It was a mess in there," Mrs. Menges recalled.

In 1934, automobile travel was increasing and the Keyser Ridge Garage was in need of an upgrade. Around 1929, the old garage came down. "I can remember looking out my window in the house and watching as they cleared the foundation, using something like big horse-drawn buckets. Then they laid the new foundation. The Platter boys, from over the ridge, worked on that," Mrs. Menges said.

The new garage, selling Esso gasoline, went up in place of the old station. It was red brick with a green tile roof, and reflected the hard work and pride of the owner. "It was a beautiful, clean building. In the back part we had a lunch room and sold sandwiches," she added.

While the garage was owned by the Reichenbechers, it also became the local bus stop for the Blue Ridge Bus Line.

The era of inner tubes, Esso gasoline, and the Blue Ridge bus stop have passed. The Keyser Ridge Garage changed hands several times in the following decades but never closed. Even though Route 40 was replaced by Route 48 and later Interstate 68 as the main thoroughfare, the stop atop "the ridge" remained an integral part of trips through the Allegheny Mountains of western Maryland.

As automobile traffic gave way to tractor-trailers as prominent users of the east-west route, the garage at "the ridge" took on the name of Keyser's Ridge Truck Stop. For the last 25 years or so it has been owned by the Peters Fuel Corporation, which operates several other fuel and dining facilities. All the restaurants in the chain go by the same name: Little Sandy's.

"We got the name from our business in Bruceton Mills. It is located on the Big Sandy River and people began calling it the Big Sandy plaza. But we wanted a name that sounded more like a family restaurant so we decided on Little Sandy's. We liked it so much we used the name at all of our restaurants," said Louise Friend, owner of Peters Fuel.

After more than 75 years of service and various upgrades and improvements, the decision was made to replace the facility housing Little Sandy's at the Keyser's Ridge Truck Stop. Friend spoke about the need for expansion. "Traffic movement through the area is increasing and more growth is predicted."

To meet the needs of travelers, a new facility was planned. The old Reichenbecher garage came down last month. This time it was not horse-drawn buckets, but the powerful jaws of heavy duty equipment chomping through the concrete and mortar.

The new building, situated just west of the former structure, is ready to open and the gas pumps will soon be pumping out the petrol. The old restaurant could seat 90 people. The new one will accommodate 125 and will also have a store attached, Friend explained.

"What is so interesting about this location is that it is historically significant for the travel history continuum," Friend reflected.

Web Site Listing Flood-Damaged Cars Available

A database is available through a link on the Maryland attorney general's web site that can provide consumers with information to help them avoid purchasing a used car damaged in last year's floods in North Carolina. "After massive flooding caused by Hurricane Floyd last September, many cars in North Carolina were declared totaled by insurance companies," said Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. "Some of those cars may be transported out of North Carolina and retitled in other states with a new title that gives no indication of their flood damage history."

The database allows consumers to check on specific vehicle identification numbers (VINS), organized by automobile make, model, and year. The database is maintained by the North Carolina attorney general's office and may be accessed from a link on Curran's web site, www.oag.state.md.us.

Flood damage can vary depending on how much water the car sat in and for how long. Flood water is usually heavily contaminated and can affect a car's electrical system or computer. An example of a possible flood-damage related effect might be air bags that deploy when they shouldn't or not deploy when they should.

Consumers considering buying a used vehicle should always take the car to an independent mechanic for an evaluation, Curran cautioned. Obvious warning signs of flood damage include unusual smells inside the car, including a mildew smell or a heavy deodorizer smell; a "water line" in upholstery or door panels, or in the engine compartment or trunk; or electrical problems like a power window that only works part of the time or after coaxing the switch.

Consumers who have problems with used cars they have purchased may contact the attorney general's Consumer Protection Division Mediation Unit at 410-528-8662.

On Dean's List

Michelle Renee Geis, Accident, has been named to the academic dean's list in the College of Human Resources and Education at Virginia Tech for the fall semester of 1999.

As a junior interior design major, Geis maintained a quarterly cumulative average of 3.7 in order to be named to the dean's list. A student must maintain a QCA of 3.4 or higher on a 4 point scale. In addition to being named to the dean's list, Geis is a member of Phi Omicron Upsilon, Phi Eta Sigma, Golden Key National Honor Society, S.I.D.A., and a student member of A.S.I.D. She is also a potential candidate for the Mortar Board National College Senior Honor Society.

A 1997 graduate of Northern High School and a member of the National Honor Society, Geis is the daughter of Ellen and Sam Housley, Accident, and Ed and Dixie Geis, Frostburg.

6/20/27 - 3/3/97

If I could have a lifetime wish, a wish that would come true; I would pray with all my heart for yesterday and you.

A thousand prayers can't bring you back, I know because I've tried, And neither will a million tears, I know because I've cried.

When I visit your resting place and put flowers with loving care, No one knows the heartache when I turn and leave you there.

Remembering,
Ann

The Family of

would like to thank our friends and family for their kindness and sympathy following the death of our mother on February 10, 2000.

Flowers, cards, food, and especially your thoughts and prayers were greatly appreciated at this difficult time.

We would especially like to send thanks to Rev. Meredith Ball, Rev. Sam Moon, the Staff of Garrett Co. and Ruby memorial hospitals, Dr. Robert Goralski, Swanton Otterbein United Methodist Church, Swanton Mennonite Youth Choir, Stewart Funeral Home, and the women of the Swanton Community Center for the meal following the funeral.

God bless you always,

Garrett Honor Students Attend Frostburg Event

Students in the Garrett Community College Honors Program recently attended a Frostburg State University event for honors students along with their advisor Virginia Broaddus, who teaches the multi-disciplinary honors English course. The GCC students -- Michelle McCartney, Shelley Taylor, Rachel Bender, Jamie Durst, and Morgan White — were guests of the FSU Honors Program.

Dr. Maureen Connelly, director of the FSU Honors Program and past president of the Northeast Regional Honors Association, presented information on opportunities for research and travel available to honors program students. She also discussed new course possibilities, including a proposed mini-course for GCC and FSU students that would take the class to the scene of the witchcraft trials in Salem, Mass.

The students were also greeted by Dr. Christine Grontkowski, provost, and Dr. John Lowe, dean of student development, as well as by staff from the admissions and financial aid offices. They were then given a tour of the FSU library, which included admission to the rare books room.

An opportunity was provided for the students to conduct research for the semester project they designed, which traces the life and narrative of Frederick Douglass from Baltimore to the slave-holding plantations of Talbot County, Easton, and St. Michael's. The students will be following Douglass's itinerary during a field trip to Baltimore and the Eastern Shore next month. Their reports will be presented at an honors conference next year. While in the Baltimore-Washington area, the students also will visit the Holocaust Museum and the Black History Museum, and will attend a performance of Les Miserables.

"I'm excited to work with Dr. Connelly, whose energy and vision are inspiring, and grateful for the opportunity to help develop transfer opportunities for our honors students," Broaddus commented after the FSU visit, adding that she plans to have similar conversations with Honors Program directors at Towson University and Salisbury State University.

Broaddus noted that a 25 percent tuition waiver is available to GCC Honors Program students. Persons interested in further information about GCC's Honors Program may contact her at 301-387-3077.

Senior Center Sets Nemacolin Bus Excursion

A day trip to the Nemacolin Woodlands Resort has been slated by the Mary Browning Senior Center for Monday, March 20, with boarding sites in Oakland and at Keyser's Ridge. Full payment of $35 is due no later than this Monday, March 6.

The cost includes transportation, lunch, a tour of the resort's "elegant" furnishings and unique artworks, and a shopping excursion to Heritage Court. The bus will leave the Oakland area at 9:30 a.m. and will make a second pick-up at 10:30 a.m. at the Route 40 McDonald's at Keyser's Ridge. The return leg of the trip includes a 3 p.m. stop at the McDonald's and a 4 p.m. Oakland arrival.

Persons interested in making a reservation may call the senior center at 301-334-9431, ext. 134 or 137.

AHEC Receives Grant To Access Health Info

The Western Maryland Area Health Education Center (WMAHEC) has been awarded a grant by the National Library of Medicine (NLM) and the National Network of Libraries of Medicine, Southeastern Atlantic Region. This project is one of 49 electronic health information projects awarded in 34 states.

The Western Maryland InfoHealth project will assess residents' health information needs and improve consumer Internet access to quality health information. The project will also provide training to librarians, health professionals, and service providers on the use of NLM electronic services and how to find full-text resources. A web site is scheduled to be on-line in November and will enable residents to access locally available resources and other links in their area directly through the Internet.

Regional partners involved in the development of the project include the Thomas B. Finan Center, Western Maryland Health System Library and Parish Nurses, Western Maryland Public Libraries Regional Library, Allegany College of Maryland Library, and Human Resources Development Commission/Allegany County; Garrett Community College Library, Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County, and the Garrett County Community Action Agency; and the Washington County Health System Library.

WMAHEC has a history of partnership with regional libraries, which includes facilitating the Consortium of Health Information Library Outreach (Chil-Out). Chil-Out membership is composed of public, academic, and health sciences library staff. In 1999, Chil-Out members expressed a need to improve consumer access to health information and to make available more training to staff about NLM's Medline*plus* and other services.

Mary Spalding-Edgerly, WMAHEC coordinator of information management, said, "Locally, this project will enable area residents, librarians, and service providers to access relevant electronic health information quickly and easily. On a national level, it will help the National Library of Medicine better meet the health information needs of health care consumers in small towns and rural areas."

Department of Commerce research indicates that, at almost every income level, households in rural areas are less likely to own computers than households in urban central city areas (July 1999, on-line). Areas such as western Maryland experience the "digital divide." In a "digital divide" area, libraries provide a vital link for area residents who need access to health information and the Internet. This is especially helpful for those who suffer from chronic health conditions, according to Spalding-Edgerly.

NLM is a component of the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda. The NLM provides free access to Medline, its premier database of biomedical journal articles, as well as other databases. Its Medline*plus* provides access to evaluated health information for consumers.

4-H Club News

SADDLE TRAMPS
by Michaele Puliti

The Saddle Tramps 4-H club met Feb. 7 at the Extension Office for a regular monthly meeting. Election of officers was held, and the results are as follows: president, Brittaney Wotring; vice president, Lauren Jolles; secretary, Heather Shultzanberger; treasurer, Erin Hoalcraft/Roxann Hoalcraft; and reporter, Michaele Puliti.

At the meeting we also planned events and activities for our year as follows: March, Horse Fair; March 11, Horse Bowl; April, horse clinic and Easter fund-raiser; May/June, trail ride/camp out; July, horse jamboree; and August, Garrett County Fair.

The group also met Wednesday, Feb. 16, to prepare for the Horse Bowl. Any members who did not attend the last meeting are requested and encouraged to attend the next meeting on Monday, March 6, at 7 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Extension Office.

The Saddle Tramps 4-H Club is open to all interested youth with a special interest in horses, as well as any other 4-H projects.

NHS Names November Students Of The Month

The Northern High School students selected as November Students of the Month were Molly Wolf, Kris Knox, Todd Foley, Brandon Butler, and Melanie Harvey.

Molly, a freshman, is the daughter of Mike and Linda Wolf, Friendsville. She is involved in basketball, volleyball, and the student council, in addition to being a member of the Asher Glade youth group, the Snowy Creek 4-H Club, and the Garrett County Association of Student Councils.

Molly, who has previously been on the honor roll and received the Minds In Motion Award, said she enjoys spending her free time shopping and swimming.

Todd, the son of Pat and Larry Foley, McHenry, is a sophomore who is active in both band and soccer. He said his interests include skiing and playing the piano. Todd was also named "Star of the Week" in biology class.

Sophomore Kris Knox, a resident of Accident, is the son of Roger and Donna Knox. At school, Kris is active in football and wrestling, and at home he spends time riding his four-wheeler and has won a second place award in a four-wheeler competition. In wrestling, he has won first place three times, second place twice, and third place three times.

Brandon, a junior, lives with his parents, Randy and Kim Butler, in Grantsville. He is co-editor of the school newspaper, The Viking, and co-president of his class; participates in Mock Trial; and is a member of the school improvement team.

Brandon plays piano at his church, and is the praise and worship leader for the youth group and a member of the church drama team. He also preaches occasionally.

Previously named Student of the Month, Brandon has also been listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students, and was nominated for the National Leadership Conference.

Melanie is a senior and daughter of Friendsville residents Chuck and Becky Harvey. She plays volleyball, basketball, and softball and is a member of the National Honor Society. She has been listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students and has received many volleyball awards.

GCC GALLERY HOSTS FSU EXHIBIT — These works are among the displays in "All Fired Up," a ceramic art exhibition at the Garrett Community College Art Gallery in McHenry. The month-long exhibition features over 100 works by 42 past and present Frostburg State University students that run the gamut of styles, techniques, and firing processes. "Industrial Death," at the upper left, was sculpted by FSU student Steven Weslow, and "Trumpet Fairy," upper right, is a work by Sharon Schade, art teacher at Cumberland's Braddock Middle School. The piece at the lower left, "Bowed Bowl," was sculpted by FSU art history professor Dr. Randall Rhodes, and FSU professor of ceramics Jackie Brown produced "3 Vases," shown at the lower right. A public reception is slated for Friday, March 10, from 7 to 10 p.m. in the gallery.

GCC Ceramic Exhibit Features Works Of FSU Alumni, Students

The Garrett Community College Art Gallery is currently presenting "All Fired Up," an exhibition of Ceramic Art by 42 current and former Frostburg State University students. The show displays over 100 pieces of ceramic and mixed media pottery and sculpture. The exhibit is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays through March 31. The public is invited to an opening reception slated for Friday, March 7, from 7 to 10 p.m.

The body of work on display consists of a wide variety of ceramic forms, techniques, and firing processes, including Raku, pit-fired, soda-fired, and wood-fired pieces, along with gas reduction and oxidation fired pieces. Creative sculptural pieces range from abstract to objective and expressive forms, and original pottery forms vary between functional and decorative pieces.

Among the artists included in the exhibit are FSU ceramics professor Jackie Brown, the exhibit's curator, and Dr. Randall Rhodes, FSU art history professor. Other participants include FSU alumni Joseph P. Campbell and Lisa Sheirer, professors at Frederick Community College; GCC professor Ron Skidmore; Pat Faville, adjunct instructor at FSU, FCC, and GCC; Shane Sellers, Jason Eric Mills and Shane Mickey, adjuncts at FCC; Sharon Schade, art teacher at Braddock Middle School in Cumberland; and professional potters Josh Brown and Debbie Bain.

Additional FSU alumni exhibitors are Kenny Allen, Kevin Boyle, Kris Buckley, Karen Kotapish, Ben Krupka, Denver Llewellyn, Lisa Doolan-Mickey, Jonas Mikalayonus, Maja Paunovic, Lisa Peterson, Joe Plutto, Shelley Plutto, Matt Putsch, Mark Simons, Jason Stakem, Elissa Twigg, and Jody Wright.

Current FSU students participating in the exhibit include Matt Bucher, Melissa Field, Susan Keilholtz, Sandy Kenney, Elizabeth Kirby, Windy M. Kroll, Amanda Moran, Amy Newcomb, Blue Owens, Vince Skelley, Steven Weslow, Chrissy Whetzell, and Megan Whitten.

The "All Fired Up" exhibition is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. For more information persons may contact the GCC art department at 301-387-3024.

Chamber Group To Perform At Frostburg State

The Chamber Orchestra of the Alleghenies will perform at the Frostburg State University Performing Arts Center this Sunday, March 5, at 3 p.m. in the Pealer Recital Hall. The program is free and open to the public.

Seventeen professional musicians drawn from the western Pennsylvania and Maryland region have joined together to create a new orchestra under the direction of Stanley Chepaitis, concertmaster of the Johnstown Symphony and professor at Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

Chepaitis holds a master's degree and doctorate, as well as the Performer's Certificate from the Eastman School of Music. He has studied violin with John Celentano, Raphael Bronstein, Renato Bonacini, and Carroll Glenn.

The program, titled "Old, New, Borrowed, and Blue," includes Capriccio by Felix Mendelssohn, Concerto Grosso by Georg Friedrich Handel, "Nicolas'" Song by Stanley Chepaitis, St. Paul's Suite by Gustav Holst, and three pieces by Duke Ellington arranged for strings and jazz trio by Stanley Chepaitis.

For more information about the concert, persons may call the FSU Department of Music at 301-687-4109.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

This is a typical Saturday afternoon for my family, as everyone is scattered all over the place, with the girls visiting their friends or cousins, and of course, playing basketball. Claire and Robbie played games today against Beall. It is pretty quiet around here, which is a real treat, as I can watch the game between Maryland and North Carolina on ESPN. So far the Terps seem to have the game pretty much in control, but as always it is tough between these two teams. I believe that since the early '70s I watched them play dozens of times and every one of them has been a heart-stopping game.

Today, one of the commentators for the game is Leonard Elmore, one of my favorite all-time players from my time at the university. He, along with Tom McMillan and John Lucas, made those days a very exciting time for Terp fans. They were quite an exciting group of players. But that was then, and this is now. The new Terps battled North Carolina again. In the first half it has been back and forth for most of the time, with a two-point spread. This one is the same as always. I think this year's Terp team can go a long way in both the ACC and NCAA tournaments. I am more enthusiastic this year than I have been in many years. That's my tip for March madness — go with the Terps.

At halftime the Terps are 10 points up. They have a great defense and really can force turnovers, and this is really my favorite kind of basketball. The Terps are quick and have relentless defense. I wish that I would have another Terp fan to watch today's game with me, but today everyone is gone.

Lloyd and Rodney are doing their father duty on the sidelines at Claire's and Robbie's games. I am watching the game diligently for a glance of my sister, Carol Bass, and son Scottie, as they are in the crowd at Maryland watching this exciting game. I can't wait to hear about it first-hand from Carol. We taped the game for Rodney, Lloyd, Courtney, and Barry, and we dared not mention the results until they watched the replay. That viewing was a big part of Rodney's birthday celebration. I did not say how old he is, but he is still under the 50-year-old mark. He is still young as ever.

The game really turned into intense play and I could hardly stand the excitement of the Terps winning, 81-73. You can't beat ACC basketball. In my opinion it is the greatest conference in the nation, with teams like the Maryland Terps, North Carolina Tar Heels, North Carolina State Wolf Pack, and of course, the Duke Blue Devils, even with the lesser teams of Clemson, Virginia, Florida State, and Georgia Tech, which are all tough teams.

Elmore interviewed Coach Gary Williams following the game. It came up that today the Terps broke the record set by the team 25 years ago when Elmore played on the team. Williams said, "No one remembers that team, as it was so long ago." Well, I remember that team in the '70s, and I am sure many other people do too. I can't believe Gary was so rude with that statement.

After the late reviewing of the game, we celebrated Rodney's birthday and also brother Barry's birthday, about three weeks ago, at my mother's house for cake and ice cream for our immediate family, plus Dale and Courtney.

Another recent birthday gal, Cindy Stanton, who was in Rodney's class at NHS class of 1970, celebrated a few days earlier in February. She is also still young and very active.

Saturday afternoon visitors of Sheila Southerly were JoEllen Graham and Beulah Moon. Blair Buckel was a guest of Sheila's for Monday luncheon.

Bill Southerly, professor of psychology at Frostburg University, recently attended meetings of the Web CT Corporation, a company that develops software allowing faculty to put their courses on the World Wide Web at the Marriot Resort in Peabody, Mass. Peabody is just north of Boston.

Mike and Eleanor Winter of Oakland visited with Ralph and Ethel Buckel on Saturday.

Visiting their great-grandmother, Ida Reckner, last week were Taylor and Tim Glotfelty, accompanied by Laura Bach and Wayne Menges of near Accident. Dorothy and Mitchell Cathell of Oakland were Sunday afternoon callers.

ART SHOWING

There will be a showing of some of the late John Buckel's art work at the Roper Gallery at Frostburg University this Friday, March 3, beginning at 7:30 pm.

Teacher Instit. On Md. Writing Project Offered

Frostburg State University, in partnership with Towson University, will offer a month-long Teacher Institute for the Maryland Writing Project from June 26 to July 27 on the FSU campus.

The Maryland Writing Project, housed in the College of Education at Towson University, is an affiliate of the National Writing Project, which has served over 1.8 million teachers and administrators since its inception in 1973. In Baltimore since 1981, it is a teacher-driven professional development organization where the area's best educators gather to instruct their colleagues about teaching writing and the use of writing as a learning tool.

The Summer Teacher Institute for the Maryland Writing Project draws together participants from every grade level, discipline, and education setting to write, research, share, and explore their use of writing in the classroom. It is an event that past participants feel has had a very positive impact on their professional lives and, in addition, offers practical ideas to use in the classroom as well as a supportive network of colleagues, according to a program spokesperson.

All participants in the STI become teacher-consultants who become part of a state-wide database which schools throughout the state can draw upon for inservice training and workshops. All proceeds from these events are split between the MWP and the teacher-consultant who runs the workshop.

The cost for the 6 credit-hour course is $950; however, the National Writing Project has offered a $250 stipend to participants. The credit hours are applicable to MSDE credit (with the exception of reading), and can be transferred from Towson University to FSU's master's in education degree program as elective credits.

For information, persons may contact Dr. Patricia Coward, FSU associate professor of English, at 301-687-4696.

HUSKIES CRUISE TO REGIONAL TITLE - As expected by every wrestling fan in the region, the Northern High School Huskies rolled to victory in last weekend's 1A/2A West Region Championships, held at Middletown High School. The Huskies finished with 230.5 points on the strength of five individual titles and three runner-up spots to top 15 other teams in the competition. Meanwhile, the Southern High Rams finished a respectable fourth place as a team with one individual champion, a runner-up, and four third-place awards. Pictured above left, Northern's Jeremiah Guard, who was not expected to place among the top three, handles this opponent in a semi-final round and later edged the favored John Curule, 1-0, to win the 125-pound division. Above center, Husky Pete Stein pins an opponent on his way to the championship in the 103-pound division. Above right is Blake Huber of Northern after receiving his first-place awards in the 112-pound division. Below left, Southern's Shawn Shiflett, far left, and Northern's Paul Beitzel, far right, receive the third and second place awards, respectively, in the 130-pound division. Below center, Southern's only regional champion, John Hayhurst (left), prepares to defeat an opponent in a semifinal bout in the 189-pound division. Below right, Northern's Mark Wolf (left) and Southern's Jeremy Hayhurst meet each other in the finals of the 160-pound class, with Wolf earning a decision win and Hayhurst settling for the runner-up spot. Husky Matmen Win 1A/2A Regionals; Rams Fourth

It was no surprise to area wrestling fans when Northern High School coasted to victory in the 2000 1A/2A West Regional Meet this past weekend at Middletown High School, as the Huskies amassed a commanding 230.5 points, five individual titles, three runner-up trophies, and two third places to whip 15 other teams in the region.

Meanwhile, Garrett County's other team, the Southern Rams, finished a respectable fourth place with 95 points, and had one individual champion, one runner-up, and four third-place finishers.

The top four finishers in each weight class advance to the Maryland State 1A/2A Championships, which will be held this weekend at Western Maryland College in Westminster.

Placing a distant second in the regional meet was Williamsport with 153.5 points, while Urbana was third with 105.5. Following fourth-place Southern were: Linganore with 76 points, host Middletown with 60.5, Smithsburg with 59, Beall with 56, Walkersville with 51, Francis Scott Key with 50, South Hagerstown with 44.5, Fort Hill with 31, Catoctin with 17, Allegany with 15, and Westmar and Boonesboro tied for 15th place with 0 points.

Regional champions for the Huskies were Pete Stein, Blake Huber, Matt McNees, Jeremiah Guard, and Mark Wolf, while Southern's John Hayhurst, who is ranked second in the state of Maryland among all high school wrestlers from all schools, 1A-4A, in his division won the 189-pound title.

Pete Stein pinned Correy Leggett to win the 103-pound division, Huber earned a 7-4 decision over Brandon Ashby of South Hagerstown in the finals of the 112-pound class, McNees decisioned Dave Pucino of Linganore to claim the 119-pound title, Guard edged John Gurule, 1-0, in the finals of the 125-pound division, and Wolf topped Southern's Jeremy Hayhurst on points, 6-1, in the finals of the 160-pound class.

John Hayhurst pinned Ryan Dennison of Urbana to capture the 189-pound division championship.

Runners-up for the Huskies were Paul Beitzel, who was nipped by a 4-3 score in the finals of the 130-pound division; Brandon Stein, who lost a close decision (3-1) in the 135-pound division final; and Brandon Kamp, who was edged in the championship round of the 140-pound division (2-1).

Earning runner-up honors for the Southern Rams was Jeremy Hayhurst, who fell to Northern's Wolf in the 160-pound final.

Northern's Adam Brenneman (152) and Ryan Brenneman (189) finished third, while Keith Artice (145) and Ryan Savage (275) also qualified for the state meet by placing fourth.

Third-place finishers for the Rams were Shawn Shiflett (130), Nick Sines (135), Jeremy Lear (140), and Keith Bennett (145).

The Northern Huskies, coached by Scott Stough, have already captured the state dual meet championship and will be the favorite to win the 1A/2A team title this weekend.

Southern Mat Club Wins First Pa. Tournament

For the first time ever, the Southern Mat Club youth wrestling team captured first place as a team in a strong Pennsylvania tournament. The team competed in Mapletown, Pa., Saturday against 48 other youth wrestling teams from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Maryland. On the strength of five individual champions, SMC earned top honors as a team, outscoring powerhouse teams like East Fairmont, W.Va., West Greene, Pa., and even the host team from Mapletown.

Several team members also competed on Sunday in Rockwood, Pa., in a tournament specifically for new, inexperienced wrestlers. The SMC wrestlers were very successful there also.

"The honor of first place as a team is something these kids have worked extremely hard to achieve," stated Coach George Scheffel. "These kids work hard in practice and they wrestle hard in the tournaments. They are successful because of their intensity level in the practice room."

The individual champions at Mapletown were Brutus Scheffel, Justin Ratliff, Scott Wildesen, Bubba Scheffel, and Jeremy Gregory. Paul Beckman earned his first-ever championship trophy at Rockwood on Sunday.

Local grapplers earning second-place awards at Mapletown were Lex Ozias, Casey Kamp, and Scott Wildesen. Sunday's second-place winners were Nicholas Brant and Aaron Friend. Daniel Carr, Nicholas Brant, Brutus Scheffel, and Jeremy Gregory all placed third on Saturday, while Derek Fratz-Orr earned third on Sunday. Placing fourth were Daniel Carr, Brutus Scheffel, Lex Ozias, and Ryan Ratliff at Mapletown, and Kurt Gangler, Colin McCaffrey, and Zach McCaffrey at Rockwood. Also competing this weekend were Coty Rasel, Gavin Murphy, Nick Fratz-Orr, Brady Donaldson, and Tyler Gregory.

"As a coach, I can't ask for anything more than the effort the SMC wrestlers give. These kids give 110% at every practice and 120% in every match, and I am proud of every one of them, regardless if they win trophies or not," Coach Dave Taylor commented.

This weekend the team will compete in Fairmont, W.Va., on Saturday and State College, Pa., on Sunday.

HUSKIES LEVEL MOUNTAINEERS - The girls' varsity of Northern High School gave an outstanding performance against Beall, taking a 57-35 opening win in Class 1A West regional action Monday. Emily Rawe (#4) is pictured below going up for a baseline jumper. NHS was downed 64-33 by top-seeded Allegany last night, and concludes its season with a 16-8 record. Huskies Crush Beall By 22, But KO'd By Streaking Alco

The Northern High School varsity girls' basketball team was eliminated from the Class 1A Region playoffs last night as Allegany took its 18th consecutive win by downing the Huskies 64-33. Northern reached the semifinal contest by taking a 57-35 victory from Beall Monday night. The Huskies' 1999-2000 season closes out with a 16-8 record for the squad and the departure of senior stalwarts Heidi Frazee, Heather Nugent, Mimi Harvey, and Heidi Pierce.

NHS steadily mounted its attack Monday evening on its home floor, going up 10-8 after one quarter, and 21-14 at the half, before expanding the margin to 39-24 at the opening of the final period. The Huskies outscored the Mountaineers 36-21 through the entire second half.

Frazee and Nugent paced Northern's offense with 20 points apiece, with Nugent connecting on each of her three-point attempts. Frazee grabbed six rebounds and Nugent had three steals. Sophomore Nikki Sisler pulled down a team-high seven rebounds. Beall's Jessica Conway scored 11 points, and Angel Spataro added 10.

Northern went into last night's match-up at Fort Hill against a much larger Allegany squad hoping to use their quickness to neutralize the Campers' power underneath the basket. Undaunted, the Alco squad jumped out to a 10-0 lead after only 2:36 had ticked off the clock. Allegany took the advantage to 16-0 before freshman Amanda Frantz hit a 12-foot jump shot to give NHS its first score with little over two minutes remaining in the quarter.

Northern was down 20-4 after the first quarter and 34-12 at the half. The second half opened with a 7-2 Alco run, leaving the Huskies down by 27 points at the 4:30 mark in the third quarter, which ended with Allegany holding a 47-26 lead.

The Campers hit 28 of 58 field goal attempts for a shooting average of just under 50 percent, while the Huskies connected on only 26 percent of their attempts with a 14-for-54 tally. Allegany sank seven of its nine foul shots, while NHS hit just 4 of its 15 free throw attempts.

Heidi Frazee led the Huskies with 14 points and seven rebounds, and sophomore Bridget Frazee pulled down a team-high eight rebounds. Nugent scored seven points and junior Kristin Lander scored six

RAMS BOMB BLAZERS - The Southern High School girls' varsity put on a clinic in their opening appearance of the Class 1A West Region Tournament Monday, demolishing Clear Spring by a 64-27 margin. Forward Becca Gangler (#25), shown above, makes a move by leaning into her defender as Jennifer Bosley (#13) follows the action from the right. Guard Amber Stewart (#11), below, brings the ball upcourt, with a Blazer in hot pursuit. Gangler and fellow seniors Jennifer Teagarden and Joy Jackson went out in style in their final homecourt appearance; however, the Rams were eliminated from playoff action last night when a Williamsport bucket with 12 seconds to go handed the Rams a heartbreaking 48-47 loss. Rams Destroy Clear Spring; Caught At Wire By Late Williamsport Rally

An intense Class 1A West regional girls' varsity battle between Southern High School and Williamsport came down the wire last night as the Rams were eliminated from playoff action when a Williamsport bucket with 12 seconds left gave the Wildcat squad a 48-47 come-from-behind win. SHS had advanced to the semifinals by crushing Clear Spring 64-27 Monday night at home.

The Rams went on an early tear against Clear Spring and never let up, taking a 24-2 first quarter lead that they increased to a 39-8 advantage at the half. The visitors managed to outscore SHS 13-9 in the third quarter to make the score 48-21 at the opening of the final period, which saw the Rams go on a 16-6 run to put Clear Spring away for good.

Forward Charlena Reeves and guard Ashley Liller each put up 14 points, while forward Jennifer Bosley added 12 points. Clear Spring was paced by 11 points by Kerrie White.

Rams, Huskies To Meet Again In Quarterfinals

For the third time this season, the Southern and Northern boys' varsity basketball teams will face each other, but this time it will be for the opportunity to play for the 1A West Region championship. When the two square off this evening at Allegany High School in a regional semifinal, some fans will conclude that the Rams have the edge since they won the two previous encounters, but others will give the Huskies the advantage because of the closeness of the first two games, and the fact that it is always difficult for any team to defeat the same team three times in one season.

The Rams won the first match-up in overtime, 56-46, on their own court on January 28, and then held on for a 51-48 win on the Huskies' floor one week later. Southern, which has won 12 straight games, earned a spot in tonight's semifinal by whipping host Hancock on Tuesday, 77-54, while the Huskies were dismantling visiting Oldtown, 84-31.

The Rams, who are seeded number one in the region with a 19-4 record, were in a reasonably close contest with the upset-minded Panthers of Hancock until they began to pull away in the fourth quarter.

SOUTHERN (77)

Ryan Ewing 1 2-2 4, Nathaniel Panther 6 2-2 15, Christian Warfield 1 0-0 2, Josh Bosley 1 0-2 2, Bryan Panther 5 0-0 10, Jamie Bosley 0 4-6 4, Josh Sharon 0 1-2 1, Justin Lilier 6 5-8 19, Jason Finch 4 5-6 13, Justin Stephens 3 1-2 7. Totals 27 20-30 77.

HANCOCK (54)

Danny Keifer 1 0-0 3, Jacob Pittman 3 3-4 9, Brandon Fling 4 0-0 8, Spencer Shives 5 1-2 13, Chris Wills 3 2-2 9, Dave Royer 1 0-0 2, Mike Hixon 5 0-0 10. Totals 22 6-8 54.

Three-point goals - Southern 3 (Lilier 2, N. Panther 1), Hancock 4 (Shives 2, Wills 1, Keifer 1). Total fouls - Hancock 22, Southern 12. Fouled out - Hixon, Royer (Hancock).

Southern held a 20-15 lead at the end of the first quarter, was on top by six at halftime, 37-31, and took a 51-42 advantage into the final period.

Seniors Justin Liller and Nathaniel Panther led the Rams' effort, as they have done in most of their games. Liller finished with a game-high 19 points and Panther recorded 15 points, six rebounds, and five assists. Jason Finch also reached double figures with 13 points, 12 of which he scored in the first half, and he also grabbed six rebounds. Justin Stephens scored seven points and pulled five rebounds, and Josh Bosley dished out five assists.

Leading Hancock (9-15) were Spencer Shives with 13 points and Mike Hixon with 10.

Rob Dozier was the leader for the Northern Huskies (14-9) in their easy win over Oldtown, as he scored 17 points, pulled down 14 rebounds, and blocked seven shots.

The Huskies took control of the game early and never looked back, as they built leads of 38-13 at intermission and 59-22 by the end of the third quarter.

Also reaching double figures for the Huskies were P.J. Workman and Jeremy Frazee with 10 points each. Workman also paced the defense with seven steals.

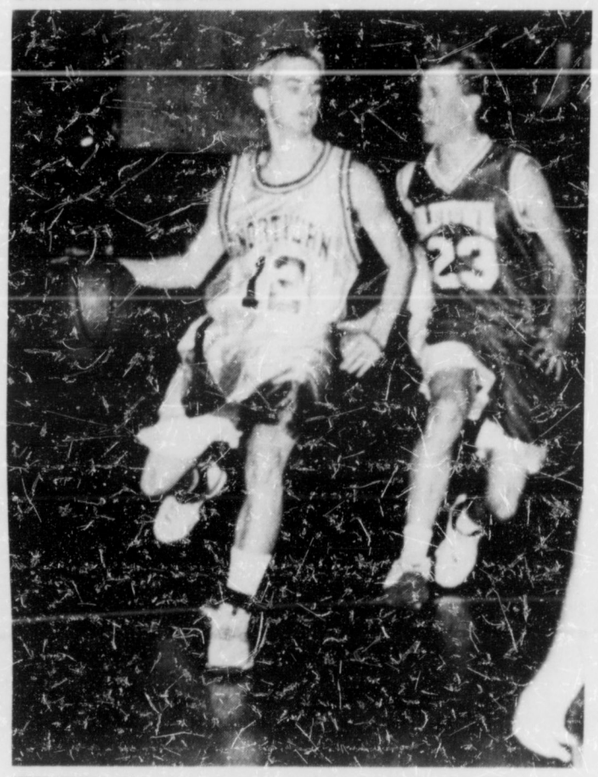
Leading the Indians (5-15) was Johnny Hampton, who scored 12 points.

The winner of tonight's game will face the winner of the Allegany-Williamsport contest in the regional title game, slated for Saturday.

The Rams are 12-0 against Class 1A opponents this season, and defense has been their trademark, as only one team (Keyser) scored more than 55 points against them. Nathaniel Panther and Justin Liller are the team's scoring leaders, with respective averages of 14.8 and 13.6 points per outing.

Pacing the Huskies is junior Rob Dozier, who is averaging 16 points per game and had a total of 43 points in the two games against Southern.

Also identifiable in the photo is Husky Josh Resh in the foreground (#34). Below, junior guard Denny Thorp brings the ball upcourt with an Oldtown defender at his side. The Huskies cruised to an 84-31 victory and thus earned a spot in the regional semifinals against the Southern Rams. That game will be played tonight at Allegany High School in Cumberland.



Huskies Roll Over Beall In Season Finale, 68-41

The boys' varsity basketball team of Northern High School concluded its regular season last Thursday evening with a convincing 68-41 victory over host Beall in a Western Maryland Interscholastic League contest. The win was the 13th in 22 games for the Huskies and their coach, Paul Edwards, and evened their WMIL mark at 6-6.

The Huskies crushed visiting Oldtown Tuesday in a 1A West Region quarterfinal and will, for the fourth time this season, face cross-county rival Southern in a regional semifinal clash this evening in Cumberland (see separate story).

Rob Dozier and Greg Speicher led the Huskies to their win over Beall, as each netted 12 points, with Dozier also grabbing a game-high 15 rebounds. Josh Resh, like Dozier, also had a double-double night for Northern, as he finished with 11 points and 11 rebounds.

The first quarter ended with the Huskies trailing by one, 10-9, but they seized the momentum in the second stanza and built a 29-18 advantage by halftime. They extended their lead to 11 by the end of the third quarter, 44-33, and the Mountaineers could get no closer than seven points in the fourth period. The Huskies poured it on down the stretch to outscore the host team by a commanding 24-8 margin and finish with the 27-point victory.

Pacing all scorers was Beall's Jeremy Smith, who finished with 16 points and also pulled down five rebounds. Jamie George reached double figures with 11 points.

The Northern junior varsity was topped in the first game, 74-51, as Bobby Smith scored 21 points and Chris McCormick contributed 11 to lead the Beall jayvees. Josh Swandel and Will Gallagher scored 12 and 11 points, respectively, to pace Northern.

The Huskies went into the regional playoffs Tuesday evening as the fourth seeded team and drew a bye in the first round.

Sheriff Offices To Play Charity Basketball Game

A charity basketball game featuring members of the Garrett County and Allegany County sheriff's offices will be played Saturday, Mar. 25, at Frostburg State University, with the proceeds benefiting two memorial funds.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office staff will play for the David Livengood Scholarship Fund, while the Allegany staff will play for the Kevin Joy Scholarship Fund. Livengood was a Garrett County deputy who was killed in the line of duty in 1979 during a robbery in Oakland. Joy was an Allegany County deputy who died last year from medical complications.

Door prizes will be awarded. The tip-off is set for 7 p.m. The Ali Ghan Shrine clowns will provide entertainment at halftime.

Ticket prices are $3 for youth ages 12 to 18, and $5 for those 19 and over. Tickets are available from both agencies and from staff persons. Financial donations as well as door prize donations are now being accepted.

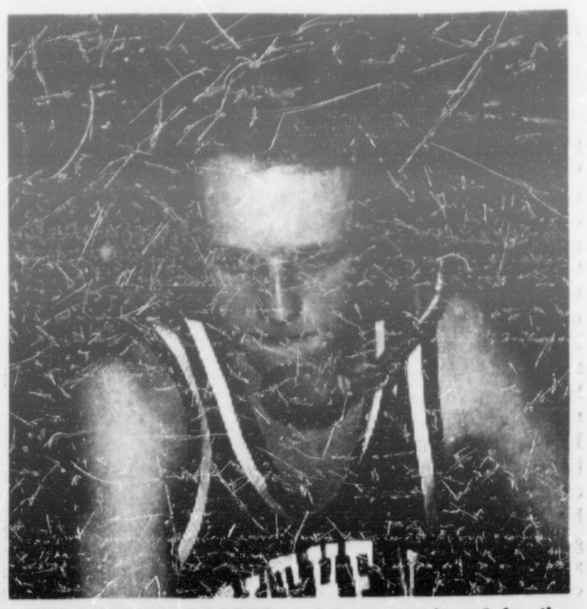
Gonder, Mettiki Winners In Rec League Contests

Teams sponsored by Gonder Insurance Agency and Mettiki Coal Company recorded victories in Recreational Basketball League action Sunday evening, as Gonder topped Quality Machine, 70-58, and Mettiki got by Dan Bosley Construction in the second game, 50-47.

Rick Minnick led four Gonder players in double figures, as he recorded 21 points, Jason Shank netted 18, Billy Braithwaite scored 15, and Denny Skeweris had 10. Pacing Quality Machine were Joe Refosco with 16 points, and Stan Eggleston and Mark Hickman with 11 each.

Brian Wilt and Mike Saturday were the leaders for Mettiki Coal with 15 and 12 points, respectively, while Tom Bosley scored 13 and Larry Roth, 10, for Dan Bosley Construction.

In games set for this Sunday, Mar. 5, Dan Bosley Construction will play Patterson Boat at 6 p.m. and Gonder will meet Mettiki at 7 p.m.



THE LEADING SCORER and "team engineer" for the Southern boys' varsity is senior point guard Nathaniel Panther, who is pictured above during a radio interview immediately following the Rams' victory over host Hancock Tuesday evening in a quarterfinal game of the 1A West Region championships. Panther recorded 15 points, six rebounds, and five assists in the 77-54 victory. The Rams, who are 19-4 and have won their last 12 games, will meet the Northern Huskies this evening in a regional semifinal, to be played at Allegany High School in Cumberland. It will be the third meeting of the two teams this season, with the Rams just barely winning the first two. The winner of tonight's semifinal will meet either Allegany or Williamsport in the regional championship game. Photo courtesy of Steve Folickman.

Lakers Miss Trip To N.Y. By One Point; Nearly Upset AC

Another winning season for the Garrett Community College men's basketball team came to a dramatic, and rather heart-breaking, end Sunday afternoon in Cumberland when the Lakers were edged in the finals of the NJCAA Region XX Division I championship by host Allegany College of Maryland, the nation's third-ranked Division I NJCAA team. The Lakers had an opportunity to pull off the major upset, as they had the last shot of the game, followed by a tip-in attempt, but the ball simply would not fall through the net, which sent them back home and the AC Trojans to the NJCAA District 3 Northeast Shootout, to be played this weekend at Monroe Community College in Rochester, N.Y.

The Lakers earned a spot in the Region XX Division I finals by hanging on for a 79-74 win over Hagerstown CC on Saturday.

It was the second time this season Garrett faced Allegany, and the second time the Lakers nearly pulled off the upset, as they gave up a 15-point lead and lost 68-63 in the first encounter earlier this season. The Lakers and their coach Dennis Gibson finished with an overall record of 22-6.

Saturday's game against Hagerstown was not one of the Lakers' finest efforts of the season, as they committed 32 turnovers and hit a modest 57% (21 of 37) of their shots from the foul line. However, strong defensive play, which forced a similar 32 turnovers by the Hawks, plus a 6-0 single-handed run by Carlos Jones late in the game, secured the victory.

Sophomores Charles Somerville and Jones shared scoring honors for the Lakers, each netting 22 points, while Somerville also paced the GCC effort on the boards by grabbing 12 rebounds. Corin Turner and Dexter Levi also reached double figures with 12 points each.

The Lakers held early leads of 9-4 and 20-13 before the Hawks went on a 14-0 run to take a 27-20 advantage with 8:05 left in the first half. The Lakers woke up and scored the next seven to knot the score at 27-27 before Hagerstown's Travis Roberson hit two jumpers to give his team a 31-27 advantage. The Hawks led 31-28 at halftime.

The Lakers assumed a 67-63 lead with 3:07 remaining when Levi, Jones, and Somerville hit back-to-back field goals, but Hagerstown rallied for five straight points on a three-pointer by David Covington and two foul shots by Delvin Anderson to regain the advantage at 68-67 with 2:20 remaining in the game.

The Lakers then took the lead for good when Jones hit a reverse lay-up on a feed from Somerville, recorded a second lay-up off a turnover, and then slammed a breakaway dunk off a rebound by Somerville to make it 73-68 with 1:20 left.

Warren Coates and Turner each followed with a free throw to give GCC a 75-68 lead with 24 seconds left, but the Hawks did not give up and scored five of the next seven points to make it 77-73 with just five seconds left and Corey Tabron at the line with a three-point foul shooting opportunity. He missed the first shot, hit the second, and intentionally missed the third in an attempt to give his team an opportunity for a field goal underneath. But GCC's Scott Kochenderfer grabbed the rebound, was fouled, and converted both of his free throws to conclude the scoring and ice the victory for the Lakers.

Tabron led the Hawks with 12 points and Jason Greene finished with 11. Hagerstown finished the season with an 18-11 record.

"We made a lot of mistakes and didn't hit a lot of our foul shots," stated Coach Gibson, "but our defensive play was great throughout the game against a very talented team, and it pulled us through. Good teams find a way to win even when they do not play very well, and I believe we have a good team."

The Lakers proved to everyone on Sunday just how good they are, as they came within a point of defeating the AC Trojans, who hold the nation's longest win streak at 25 games, are 28-1 overall, and are ranked third in the country.

A dunk by Garrett's Dexter Levi was the first score of Sunday's title game, and seemed to set the stage for the Lakers' impressive showing against the favored Trojans.

Allegany then scored the next six points to take a 6-2 lead, but the Lakers came back several times before intermission. The first half featured four ties and five lead changes, and ended with the Trojans up by one point, 32-31.

The biggest lead of the entire game for either team was following a 10-0 run by the Trojans, which gave them a seven-point advantage, 50-43, with 11:51 remaining. AC was up by six, 60-54, with 8:15 remaining, but the Lakers then scored the next eight points to take a 62-60 lead on a pair of free throws by Jones with 5:52 left.

A lay-up and a three-pointer gave Allegany the lead again at 65-62 with 4:50 on the clock, but a put-back shot by Corin Turner and a bucket by Charles Somerville put the Lakers up by one, 66-65, with 2:11 remaining.

Baskets were traded by AC's Malik Wallace and GCC's Levi to make it 68-67, but with less than a minute to play, Terry Taylor took a pass from Daryl Towe off a crucial Laker turnover and hit what would be the winning shot.

The Lakers forced three more Allegany turnovers in the final 45 seconds, but they could not capitalize on any of them.

Wallace, who was named the tournament's MVP, hit a game-high 23 points to lead the Trojans, while Taylor recorded 18 points and nine rebounds. Ryan Randle also reached double figures with 10 points.

Levi led the Lakers' offensive effort with 22 points, Turner finished with 13, and Somerville had 12 points and a game-high 14 rebounds. Kochenderfer and Coates each had three assists.

Levi and Somerville joined Wallace on the All-Tournament team, along with Taylor and Randle of AC, and Paul Michael of Hagerstown.

"Allegany is a very good team, but I think we have the best defensive team in the league," Gibson said. "We came in believing we could win this game, we gave a tremendous effort, and just couldn't get the last shot to fall."

Lakers End Season With Loss To PSC; Set To Host Regionals

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team missed an opportunity to notch an even .500 record for the 1999-2000 regular season by dropping a 72-61 contest to Potomac State College last Friday. The 11-13 Lakers are readying to host the NJCAA Region XX, Division II Tournament that opens tomorrow evening on their home floor. The tourney's fourth seed, Garrett takes to the court at 7 p.m. in a match-up with fifth-seeded Prince George's CC.

GCC went up against a streaking Catamount squad in McHenry Friday. Potomac State, winners of six of its previous seven outings, went up for good at the 8:06 mark in the first period en route to amassing a 41-27 halftime advantage.

Four PSC scorers hit for double figures to help negate a superb all-around performance by GCC's Tasha Blackmon. The forward put up 24 points, grabbed 16 rebounds, and nabbed five steals — each a game-high statistic. Guard Donielle Gaines added 13 points, forward Erica Henderson scored six points and took down nine rebounds, and guard Shawntice McLaughlin dished out six assists. The Catamounts, paced by Jocilyn Fiedorczyk's 17 points and nine rebounds, took their record to 13-7.

"This was a disappointing finish for our regular season," GCC head coach Ann Wellham remarked. "Potomac State came out ready to play, and shot an impressive 55.9 percent in the first half. We just couldn't seem to turn things around; [however,] I could not have asked for more from Tasha Blackmon. She played her heart out."

Tomorrow's Region XX action gets under way at 5 p.m. when the third-seeded Catamounts open against sixth seed Catonsville. The Lakers—PGCC battle will follow at 7 p.m. Top-seeded Frederick and second seed Hagerstown each received a first-round bye. Saturday's semi-final round will begin at 5 p.m. when Hagerstown faces the PSC—Catonsville winner. The winner of the GCC—Prince George's contest will go up against Frederick at 7 p.m.

Sunday's action will kick off at noon with All-Star game featuring some of the top sophomores from 11 Region XX schools. The Region XX championship will be decided in the tourney's final contest between the two top squads. Tip-off is slated for 2 p.m.

Rams Destroy

tonight," SHS head coach Don Stemple commented. "We pushed the ball up the floor and never let them get back into the game."

Last night's defeat was a heartbreaker for Southern, which had held the lead through most of the intense battle. With just 12 seconds to go, Williamsport's Brooke Weimer sank a two-point field goal that bounced around the rim to give her team the one-point win.

Southern opened the contest slowly, falling behind by a 12-6 margin after one quarter of play. The Rams went to work in the second quarter, which opened with a 20-0 Southern run. SHS outscored the Wildcats 22-8 over the full course of the period, including 10 points and three assists by Liller, who made some fine passes that led to scores by Reeves and Joy Jackson. The final moments of that action were marred by four straight Ram turnovers that led to a 8-2 Williamsport run just before the halftime buzzer, which sounded with Southern up by eight points, 28-20.

The Rams continued to hold sway throughout most of the third period; however, just prior to the stanza's conclusion, things began to unravel. SHS, up by 13 points, saw the Wildcats begin a 12-point run of unanswered scoring late in the stanza. While the Rams managed to retain a 37-29 lead as the final period opened, the continuing Williamsport run made it necessary for a pair of consecutive buckets from Liller and Becca Gangler to boost the Rams back up to a five-point lead with 4:11 remaining.

As the nip-and-tuck battle continued, Liller sank a turnaround jumper from the baseline to give SHS a 45-40 lead with two minutes to go. Weimer answered with a three-pointer for the Wildcats at the 1:29 mark, making it a two-point contest. The squads then exchanged turnovers before Weimer took another three-point shot that failed to connect. Williamsport grabbed the offensive rebound, but the quick-handed Liller stole a pass and was fouled with 36 seconds left.

Liller went to the charity stripe and sank both free throws, displaying a cool in the raucous atmosphere that belied her sophomore status. Ashley Van Norden then sank a three-pointer to pull Williamsport to within one point, 47-46, with 21 seconds to play. The Rams turned the ball over immediately when they failed to inbound the ball within the five-second allotment, setting the stage for Weimer's game-winning shot. A desperation Ram attempt was off its mark.

Liller turned in a remarkable performance for the night, scoring a team-high 18 points and dishing out a game-high six assists, in addition to grabbing three steals. Bosley contributed nine points and Gangler scored eight points and hauled down eight rebounds. Weimer and Van Norden, who had combined for 17 of Williamsport's 19 fourth-quarter points, tallied totals of 22 and 14 points, respectively.

"Give a lot of credit to Williamsport, especially Weimer," Stemple remarked. "She took charge in the fourth quarter, and we couldn't find the answer to slow her down. We knew she had the capability of doing that, but we thought we had her pretty well bottled until the fourth quarter."

The Rams concluded an outstanding year with a 17-7 overall record and bid farewell to seniors Teagarden, Gangler, and Jackson. Next year's season looks extremely promising, as Reeves, a junior, and sophomores Liller and Bosley will each return with last night's playoff-pressure experience under their belts.

Alco was paced by an impressive all-around performance by junior center Teandra Smith, who took game-high honors in three major categories with 25 points, 13 rebounds, and three blocked shots. Tracey Little scored 14 points and hauled down 10 rebounds, and Cassie Murray had eight points, eight assists, and five rebounds.

"We tried a triangle-and-two defense on Murray and Little," NHS head coach Julie Hoffman said afterwards. "We were hoping to make them take tougher shots than they got, and we also wanted to try to front Smith to make it harder for her to get the ball. That was the plan, [but] we just didn't match up with them, whatever lineup they put out there. They have the size, which kills you, and they controlled the tempo from the get-go."

The Huskies' skipper concluded by praising her team's efforts, stating "We earned the number six spot in the area and the fourth seed in the playoffs, but we knew we were the underdog in this game. We played the best team in the area, and I believe they'll be going to Catonsville for the state finals. We had a good season, about what I expected. We picked our game up at the end of the season and played well."

GO PT ASSISTS WORLD-CLASS OAKLAND ATHLETE — Noted snowboarder and mountain biker Holly Kuhn has been working with the staff of Garrett Orthopedic and Physical Therapy in preparation for the upcoming 2000 Junior World Snowboard Championships. The competition is slated for March 10-18 in the French Alps, and the American JWS team will depart from Detroit this weekend for travel to Amsterdam and Geneva before arriving at the competition in La Lechere, France, a short distance from the city of Les Menuires. The 16-year-old multi-talented athlete is shown above with GO PT staff; from the left are Mike Voelkel, Kuhn, Teresa Reynolds, and Tarry Butner. "Training with GO PT has helped me improve my strength for the giant slalom and boardercross events," Kuhn said of her work with the Oakland-based specialists. Another local sponsor, Tips Up Ski Shop of McHenry, is preparing Kuhn's snowboards for the world championship competition.

World Champion Kayaker Fix Speaks To GCC Students, Faculty

World champion and Olympic gold medal winning kayaker Oliver Fix told Garrett Community College students last week that if they have an ambition to do something, they should set a goal, then "go for it." Fix spoke to a group of students, faculty, and others at the monthly colloquium sponsored by the Adventure Sports program.

"After you establish your goal, you will find that people will support you," he said. "I encourage you to do what you want to do."

Fix, who grew up in Augsburg, Germany, competed in soccer and swimming before he set his sights on whitewater slalom. In discussing the culture of the world class athlete, he stressed the importance of continuous training.

"You work with athletes who are world winners," he said, "and you see them as ordinary people. Competition is very positive in athletic training because we learn from each other."

He explained the training system in Germany, where the government supports the athletes and volunteer coaches coach clubs in various sports.

Referring to his chosen sport, he said, "Where you are on the river is always in relation to where you come from and where you want to go. Having a perfect run has much to with acknowledging all the factors you are working with — head, body, and mind set."

Fix is currently a coach and trainer at the Bethesda Center for Excellence.

Baseball/T-Ball Sign-Up Slated In Grantsville

Sign-up night for Little/Minor League and T-Ball is Tuesday, March 14, at the Grantsville Elementary School cafeteria, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Little League tryouts will be held Saturday, March 18, at 10 a.m. in the Grantsville Elementary gym. Participants must be at least 9 years old but less than 13 years old before August 1. There will be no tryouts for the Minor League (ages are from 7 to 10 years old). However, anyone who is 9 or 10 years old is asked to try out for Little League prior to joining the Minor League team.

For more information, persons may call Greg Wilburn at 301-895-3284 or Greg Beachy at 301-895-5224.

ticipating agencies to increase as a result of the establishment of local funding control.

The County United Way, based in Cumberland, recently named officers for 2000. This organization serves Garrett and Allegany counties, as well as the West Virginia counties of Grant, Hampshire, Hardy, Mineral, and Pendleton. Harry King, executive director of the Cumberland group, was the instigator of the formation of the United Way for Garrett County.

The new officers of County United Way are Dr. Richard E. Paulman, president, who is also the director of the Allegany County Department of Social Services. First vice president is Katherine Getty, who is also vice president for commercial banking at F&M Bank. She is the president of the YMCA Heritage Foundation.

The second vice president is Dr. John M. O'Connell, superintendent of Allegany County Schools, and the secretary is Janice Felipa, a retired nurse coordinator of the Breast and Cervical Progam at Allegany County Health Department. The treasurer of County United Way is Randall P. Bittinger, chief accountant for Allegany County.

Thank You
The family of Cody Ferguson would like to thank everyone for their support during Cody's surgery and recovery. We are grateful for our family, friends, and community, and would like to thank the Southern Garrett Athletic Association, Faith Evangelical Free Church, St. Paul's United Methodist Church, the Garrett County Health Department, and the Swan Meadow PTO for their generous gifts. Our family truly appreciates all the meals provided by our neighbors and all the help we have had with the care of Cody while he recovered at home.
Thanks to everyone for the cards and gifts. Cody has enjoyed each and every gift and card he received. We'd especially like to thank everyone for their prayers. When Cody experienced complications during his surgery, our comfort came from knowing that God was hearing your prayers. Our most awesome experience at Johns Hopkins was when God answered them. We are fortunate for the care Cody received and to live in such a supportive community.
Cody has returned to school and is showing continued improvement.
Thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

REINDEER GAMES

Rated R - Running Time: 1:45 - Released 2/25/00

The fact that the first plot development in John Frankenheimer's thriller Reindeer Games stems from a prison cook lacing the Jell-O with dead cockroaches should be enough to warn away any intelligent moviegoers. Unfortunately, it didn't deter Ben Affleck, Charlize Theron, and Gary Sinise, all talented actors who probably did not realize what a Christmas turkey they were stuck in until after they had signed their contracts. One can't blame them, though. Frankenheimer has among his directorial credits such classics as The Manchurian Candidate and Birdman Of Alcatraz (both from 1962), and writer Ehren Kruger's Arlington Road was not at all bad for a freshman effort. But Reindeer Games is so full of outrageous (read: unbelievable) situations, gaping plot holes, self-conflicting characters, and even simple continuity errors, that the proven talent of its three leads fails to make a substantial difference.

Ben Affleck plays Rudy Duncan, a car thief finishing up his term in Iron Mountain Prison, Michigan, for manslaughter after a botched car theft. He and his cellmate Nick (James Frain) are both about to be released, and Nick is very excited about finally meeting Ashley (Theron), with whom he has been exchanging letters for 6 months. He found Ashley through a magazine ad and has never seen her in person, but their cell is plastered with her photos, and Rudy has not failed to notice how attractive she is. When Nick is killed in a prison riot stemming from the cockroach incident, Rudy decides to adopt Nick's identity, at least until he can make it a few times with Ashley. But soon after their meeting, he is visited by her brother Gabriel (Sinise), who wants his help robbing an Indian casino called The Tomahawk. You see, the real Nick used to work there, and he has told Ashley in his letters that the place would be easy to knock over on Christmas Eve because the staff is short and the security lax.

Rudy tells Gabriel that he's not Nick. Then Gabriel threatens to kill him, so he tells him that he is Nick. Then it turns out he doesn't really know anything about The Tomahawk, so he tries again to admit he's not Nick. Then Gabriel threatens him again, so . . . this is the kind of brilliant scriptwriting we see throughout the film, folks. After an excruciatingly stupid series of events which result in a half dozen dead Santas, then it's time to settle in for the multiple-twist ending. If one weren't already gaping at the screen from the sheer idiocy of all that precedes it, Ehren's convoluted finale might actually be forgivable. But by the time it rolls around, we have long since lost any hope of suspending our indignant disbelief, and it's clear that at some point in the process, Frankenheimer just stopped caring.

As the story goes on, we are continually forced to swallow the changes in character of people we thought we knew. Theron's character, especially, reinvents herself about every 20 minutes, and she seems at a loss as to how to achieve any semblance of credibility. People believe the lies of others when it serves to further the storyline, and then stop believing when it's necessary for the same purpose. And as this anemic story wends its way from one credibility gap to another, our three leads try desperately to act as if any of this stuff could actually happen. A valiant effort, but a failure nonetheless. ★½ alcoholic beverages in buildings not contiguous to the main resort structure. This was also requested by the liquor control board.

HB 807, SB 634: Acts concerning the Garrett Information Enterprise Center Loan of 1998. These cross-filed bills extend a loan from the state to Garrett Community College to build an "incubator" for new small businesses. The loan to build the structure was approved in 1998, but bids for the construction came in $700,000 over the limit, Edwards said. These bills request an extension of the loan for another half million, the delegate explained. The remaining $200,000 will possibly come from an Appalachian Regional Commission grant.

HB 1195: An act concerning the marriage license fee. At the request of the commissioners, Edwards has sponsored a bill to increase the cost of a county marriage license from the current $30 to $40. The added income from this increase is to go toward domestic violence prevention programs.

While the bill will most likely pass, the income could be less than expected because of the July 1999 changes in West Virginia marriage license laws. Before July, those wishing to wed in the neighboring state had to wait several days and get a blood test. The new law waived these conditions and persons in W.Va. may now obtain a license by simply applying at a court clerk's office. The result of this change has been a dramatic decrease in the number of licenses issued in Garrett County, where many West Virginians previously went to get their licenses because Maryland's laws were less stringent.

HB 537: An act concerning personal property tax exemptions and credits. This bill requires that property granted certain tax credits or exemptions for various purposes may not be treated as taxable personal property for purposes of calculating the payment of state aid to education or other state funding.

SB 632: An act concerning the Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County. At the request of the commissioners, Hafer has entered this bill to protect the name of the local public library. The issue made headlines this past year when the library's board of trustees attempted to change the name to the Garrett County Public Library, retaining the Ruth Enlow name at the Oakland branch. The Enlow family and local historians protested the change, winning the support of the commissioners in protecting the title by law.

SB 550 and HB 729: Acts concerning coal mining issues. SB 550 will allow coal mining industries in Maryland, Pennsylvania, or West Virginia to have reciprocal certifications. HB 729 encourages the sellers of Maryland-mined coal to sell the coal within the state. Edwards said that 4 million tons of coal are mined annually in the state, but just 1 million of that is sold within Maryland's borders. The bill offers a tax credit to instate purchasers.

Hafer discussed various bills that he is sponsoring, including SB 290, which would tax a new car purchaser on the difference of a trade-in vehicle rather than completely on the new car. He is also supporting SB 635, which limits "bait and hook" promotional tools that Hafer said are consumer "rip-offs." He supports the cessation of tax on social security income, which currently is not taxed until it reaches a certain level.

Hafer said he wants to see much of the state's surplus in funds go toward education. "We all know that education is underfunded," he said. He does not agree with Governor Parris Glendening's plan to offer matching funds to all counties, but does want the state to offer more to monetariiy distressed areas, including Garrett and Allegany counties.

With SB 286, Hafer hopes to create a Mass Transit Account within the state's Transportation Trust Fund. Currently, about 51 percent of the gas-tax-fed trust fund goes toward mass transit projects, which are almost entirely located in metropolitan areas. Hafer said the trust fund money is supposed to fund road repairs, bridge replacements, and other projects that affect all areas of the state. The formation of a mass transit account would more specifically denote where the gas tax money is allotted, he said, and would spread the funds more fairly throughout the state.

After discussing a number of bills and issues, the officials took comments from the crowd.

Bobby Andersen, a member of the Lighthouse board of directors, made an urgent plea of the two officials to see what they could do about the recent closing of Safe Harbor, a shelter for emotionally ill persons in crisis. The house is operated by Lighthouse and is manned chiefly by volunteers.

According to Andersen, the house has operated at full capacity for a year, serving three to five consumers at a time. Lighthouse received the approval of the state to operate the house, she said, and the letters of approval are documented. When the board this year requested an increase of beds to house more individuals, the state apparently issued a closure notice because the permitting process had not been properly followed. Safe Harbor has been closed since Feb. 15.

Andersen said alternative housing had to be found for the consumers, and that Safe Harbor is the only such shelter in the county. Now the organization must reapply for the license.

"Someone somewhere made a big error, and now we're paying for it," Andersen said. "Would you please see if you can cut through the red tape and get our doors open again?" Andersen said she and the board are frustrated by red tape that encumbers such services.

"We are a good organization and we've been doing good work. We are in the black and have the potential to grow. Why, then, are we being penalized?" she asked.

Hafer said the Lighthouse organization should have contacted the legislators on the day of the closing.

"Sometimes one short discussion with someone can overturn something like that," he said. Both he and Edwards said they would look into the issue.

Evelyn Crites, a resident near the Garrett-Allegany county border, expressed her concern to the legislators about fluoride in the water systems. She said she has a condition of high sensitivity to all additives in food and water and has to be careful about everything she consumes. She said fluoride is more harmful than helpful and should not be put in any water system. Edwards said the issue is a local one and should be taken up with local governments.

The elected officials both encouraged the public to communicate with them on any legislative issues. Edwards can be reached at 301-858-3435 and Hafer can be reached at 301-858-3565.

Tobacco-Free Group Reviews Laws/Compliance

The Garrett County Tobacco-Free Coalition meets monthly at the GW Plaza location of the Garrett County Health Department. The next meeting will be March 10 at noon.

The Garrett County Tobacco-Free Coalition met recently to review a variety of issues and actions.

Compliance

The group discussed restaurant compliance with the Maryland Occupation Safety and Health (MOSH) regulation on smoking in enclosed workplaces. It was noted that there still seem to be restaurants that are not complying with the law to protect nonsmokers from secondhand smoke.

Enforcement is the responsibility of the MOSH office and should be initiated by a call from an employee to the regulatory agency, group coordinator Kendra Todd pointed out. The group shared feedback from restaurant and/or bar personnel who had said they were afraid to "offend smokers or lose business." Todd reported that research shows that such action does not necessarily have a negative result.

It was suggested that the coalition consider approaching restaurant/bar owners with information about secondhand smoke. "This could include survey information that was previously gathered from restaurant owners and the general public about non-smoking policies," Todd noted.

Tobacco Sales

The enforcement discussion addressed compliance checks. In the past, STEAM (Students Tobacco Elimination Among Minors, a local youth group) educated merchants on the laws regarding tobacco sales to minors, visiting all vendors of tobacco products. "In 1998, STEAM members conducted friendly compliance checks which did not include law enforcement. All but 4 stores out of 35 complied," Todd stated.

A combined alcohol and tobacco compliance check was suggested. Diane Lee, coordinator of the Combatting Underage Drinking grant, reported that she has allotted money in her grant to pay for the additional time that would be required for police to conduct the compliance checks.

Sgt. Mike Hegedus of the Maryland State Police at the McHenry barrack said he is willing to move forward with this effort, using cadets and Explorers from the barrack.

The group discussed "card readers," machines that read the black strip on the back of the drivers' licenses which tells the card holder's age. Each machine costs about $270. Lee will explore funding possibilities to buy these for Garrett County establishments.

Future Plans

The group discussed several other issues, including, but not limited to, the following:

- Bidis and herbal cigarettes — There seems to be a trend among youth to use of these cigarettes. More information will be gathered for the March meeting.
- School compliance with tobacco-free grounds — There was discussion about the difficulty in monitoring and enforcing tobacco use at events on school property. Some suggestions to address this issue were to increase signage outside school buildings and to ask the schools to include a clause about the tobacco-free policy in the forms that outside groups fill out to use the school building.
- Youth tobacco addiction — While tobacco is not permitted on school grounds and in school buildings, the group noted the fact that there are youth who are addicted to tobacco. A concern arose that when these addicted youth cannot smoke in school, they may hold chewing tobacco in their mouth during the school day.

The group discussed cessation plans and aids for youth.

Alert Issued On Cuts In Mental Health Budget

A notice was issued last week by the National Alliance for Mental Illness, Maryland, concerning Gov. Parris Glendening's reduction of the budget request submitted by the Mental Hygiene Administration for FY 2001.

According to the memo sent out by the NAMI Maryland office, the governor has cut the MHA budget request by $1.3 million overall. "In addition, the community services portion of the budget was changed from $8.1 million to $2.5 million," the memo stated.

The budget which had been submitted included the expense of services needed to accommodate persons "down-sized" out of hospitals during a five-year plan to reduce the inpatient rolls and initiate additional community services

A NAMI Md. spokesman noted that while the state is experiencing a budget surplus such a reduction is "wrong." "Maryland's economic success and prosperity must be shared with individuals with mental illnesses, and they must not be discriminated against if the rest of Maryland is experiencing such prosperity," the spokesman stated.

NAMI Md. encouraged residents interested in supporting the cause of people with mental illness to write to: The Hon. Parris Glendening, State House, Annapolis, MD 21401. Anyone with questions may call NAMI Md. at 1-800-467-0075.

MS Awareness Being Promoted During March

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society, Maryland chapter, named the month of March as MS Awareness month in the state. The society, which is dedicated to supporting people with MS and their family members, will sponsor educational programs and traveling art exhibits throughout Maryland.

This year's campaign theme is "Count On Us." "The campaign represents a 'snapshot' of life in a family affected by this disease and illuminates the loving relationship between the children who have taken on the caregiver role and the object of their affection and concern," said Dee Myers, of the Maryland chapter of the society.

The traveling art exhibit, titled "MS Through the Eyes of a Child," is composed of over 40 works by children 5-to-15-years-old. It will be displayed in government buildings, banks, and art centers this year. In addition to the exhibit, the MS Society also sells all-occasion note-cards decorated with these art works. Any business interested in hosting this exhibit during the year is encouraged to contact Myers at the Maryland chapter for information.

Myers noted that the Maryland chapter of the society sponsors a speaker's bureau and provides information to groups and individuals. Persons may contact the MS Society at 1-800-FIGHT-MS or e-mail info@nmss.org. For Internet information persons may access www.nmss.org.

NEWBORN HEARING SCREENING — Newborn Holly Grace Schlossnagle is just one of the infants who has had her hearing tested since January as a result of the new hearing testing equipment purchased at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Legislation passed by the Maryland General Assembly requires all hospitals that provide obstetrical services to implement a hearing-screening program by July 1, 2000. The hearing-screening program was implemented at GCMH in January. While audiologists have estimated that three of every 1,000 babies are born with some kind of hearing loss, both Holly and her mother, Lori Schlossnagle (pictured), can be comforted in knowing Holly passed with flying colors.

Garrett County Women At Highest Risk For Heart Disease, Study Says

by Sandy Alexander
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Women on the Lower Shore and in far western Maryland are more likely to die of heart disease than women in central and urban counties, according to a report released last week. Garrett County leads the state in these deaths.

Health officials in the state said two major factors may account for the disparity — a lack of access to health care in rural areas and increased risk factors, such as poor diet and lack of exercise. Both could be aggravated by the relatively high poverty in those regions, they said.

"Education and income seem to matter," said John Ryan, director of the chronic disease program for the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

People with more education and higher income levels tend to smoke less and get treatment for hypertension sooner, he said. Access to health insurance may play a role as well.

The report by West Virginia University and the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention studied average annual mortality rates due to heart disease for women over 35 in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. The study covered deaths from 1991 to 1995. It included statistics on death from heart disease caused by blocked arteries, usually involving heart attacks, as well as heart disease associated with high blood pressure. It did not include deaths from stroke.

Maryland's rate of 395 deaths per 100,000 women over 35 was below the national average of 401 deaths per 100,000. Still, Maryland was in the lower half of the states overall, ranking 28th among all states and the District.

As in the rest of the nation, the report said black women in Maryland had higher rates of heart disease death than any other racial or ethnic group in the state.

Fourteen Maryland counties had rates higher than the national average, with the top six clustered in the western and southeastern corners of the state.

In Garrett County from 1991 to 1995, the death rate of women with heart disease was 487 (per 100,000). This topped the list, with Wicomico's rate at 458, and, further down, Allegany's rate at 439. The lowest death rate in this category was found in Frederick County, where 330 women succumbed to heart disease over the study's time period.

"There are two major factors" affecting heart disease rates in Maryland, said Frederick Kuhn, director of preventive cardiology at Mid-Atlantic Cardiovascular in Baltimore. "One is a difference in risk factors. The second is probably simply access issues."

State and county officials believe poverty may increase the presence of risk factors for heart disease: The Maryland counties with the highest heart disease mortality rates also had the greatest percentage of families living below the poverty level, according to Census Bureau data. Residents of rural counties face particular lifestyle and doctor-access issues, experts said.

Garrett County has very long winters and limited exercise facilities, said Amy Ritchie, a registered dietician for the county health department. There is not a YMCA or an indoor mall for people to walk around in, leading to a lot of overweight people at risk for heart problems, she said.

Ritchie estimated that residents need to travel 30 to 40 miles on average to see a doctor, and said there are no cardiologists in the county.

Heart disease is "a real problem for our entire area" said Wicomico County health officer Judith Sensenbrenner, who believes residents do not understand the need for prevention. In addition to problems with poverty and lack of health insurance, lack of public transportation makes it difficult for family members to see their doctors before problems develop, Sensenbrenner said.

Douglas Wilson, director of planning and business development at Peninsula Regional Medical Center in Salisbury, said the Lower Shore has "a great deal of heart disease associated with risky behaviors" such as smoking, obesity, unhealthy diet, and a sedentary lifestyle.

Peninsula said it has the largest cardiac rehabilitation program in the state and performs over 500 open-heart surgeries a year, but is surrounded by counties with high mortality rates for women with heart disease.

Many counties have community awareness, physical fitness, stop-smoking, and nutrition programs in schools and community venues. Peninsula even has a van that travels around the area offering blood pressure screenings. But Wilson acknowledged that it is very difficult to get people to seek care in the region.

"We try to find them, we try to get them in," Wilson said. "But many people tend not to go until it's too late."

Wilson warned that the numbers might be misleading because it is difficult to develop statistics with such small populations. But authors of the CDC/West Virginia University report said they factored in death rates for surrounding counties in an effort to counteract the limited sample.

Heart disease is the No. 1 cause of death in Maryland for both men and women, killing nearly 12,000 people each year, according to state health department statistics. The risk factors for heart disease are the same for women and men, said Kuhn, who acts as a consultant to the Maryland chapter of the American Heart Association.

But women are less likely to have classic symptoms of heart disease, such as pressure and tightness in the chest, he said. Doctors who are not sensitized may not realize neck and arm pains or shortness of breath may be signs of heart problems in women.

Agency On Aging Seminar Notes Nutrition Month

A seminar titled "Food and Fitness: Health for a Lifetime" has been slated by the Garrett County Community Action Area Agency on Aging in observance of National Nutrition Month (March). The seminar will be presented in Oakland on Friday, March 10, at the Mary Browning Senior Center, and in Grantsville on Wednesday, March 15, at the Grantsville Senior Center, from 10:30 a.m. to noon on both occasions. Lunch is available by reservation, which may be made by calling 301-334-9431, ext. 137 or 140.

The seminar will include three presentations by local nutrition experts. "Why Food Safety and Why Now," presented by Irmgard Koscielniak, Maryland Cooperative Extension, will provide practical tips and suggestions on how to avoid food poisoning and other contamination at home and when eating out.

"Healthy Eating for a Healthy Lifestyle," presented by Amy Ritchie, registered dietician with the Garrett County Health Department, will include a discussion on how diet is one of the most important health factors within a person's own control.

"A Dozen Other Reasons to Exercise," presented by Ronnie Padmos, Agency on Aging, will cover a number of reasons to exercise, including a segment that will show how exercise can keep off excess weight. "Exercise benefits everyone, whatever their age or physical condition," Padmos said. "People over 90 years old who were frail from inactivity have more than doubled their strength through exercise. The important thing is to start at a level you can manage, gradually increase the level of exercise, and make exercise a lifetime habit."

Almost two-thirds of the population are overweight, according to a recent study, and more than one-third of those who are overweight are obese. About half of the population (a "conservative estimate," an Agency on Aging spokesperson said) does not engage in light physical activity three or more times a week. The center for Disease Control and Prevention recommends vigorous physical activity at least three times a week. Some 87 percent of the population fail to meet this recommendation.

"Our society protects older people from doing physical tasks," a spokesperson from the National Institute on Aging said, "but not exercising is risky behavior. Older people should stay as physically active as they can."

According to the National Academy on an Aging Society "almost 100 million Americans have chronic conditions and millions more will develop [chronic conditions] as America ages. Some individuals are at risk for chronic conditions because of factors that cannot be modified, such as genetic predisposition, gender, and age. Risk factors related to health behaviors, however, can be modified. The majority of adults approaching their later years have risk factors for chronic conditions because of the health-related behaviors."

Couple Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Crowe were recently honored at a surprise anniversary party celebrating their 50 years of marriage. The celebration, which took place at St. Ann's Hall in Avilton, was hosted by the Crowes' son Bill and his wife Mary, and grandchildren Holly and Rachel of Lexington, S.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Crowe were married on New Year's Eve, 1949, at St. Ann's Catholic Church, Avilton. Attendants were Bob Turner, Avilton, and Margaret Drees, Finzel. Mr. Crowe, a military veteran, is retired from the steel mill at Lorain, Ohio.

The catered buffet for the event included a tiered wedding cake made by Shelby Gable. Bill, Mary, and the grandchildren decorated the hall with white wedding bells and gold and white flowers. Perry Kamp provided the music.

George-Blizzard Engagement Noted

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Lee George of Ridgeley, W.Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Kristina Marie, to Mr. William Edward Blizzard, son of Carl and Ruby Blizzard of McCoole.

Kristina is a 1994 graduate of Frankfort High School and a graduate of Potomac State College in social work. She is presently employed at Wal-Mart.

William is a 1984 graduate of East Preston High School and is also employed at Wal-Mart.

A late summer wedding is planned, with invitations to be sent at a later date.

Miss Lyles To Marry Mr. Fox

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Lyles of Yazoo City, Miss., announce the engagement of their daughter, Kelly Ann, to Petty Officer James N. Fox, son of Jane G. Fox, Friendsville, and the late Wilbur G. Fox.

A resident of Memphis, Tenn., Miss Lyles is a graduate of the University of Mississippi. She is currently an assistant vice president of equity underwriting with the National Bank of Commerce in Memphis.

Petty Officer Fox is a graduate of Frostburg State University. He is presently stationed with the U.S. Navy Band at the Navy Yard, Washington, D.C.

A wedding ceremony is planned for May 13 at Bethany Lutheran Church in Memphis. A Garrett County reception will follow for local family and friends in early summer. Invitations will be sent.

though the vast majority of Chesapeake Bay Trust license plates are on the cars of people in Montgomery County, Baltimore County, Baltimore City, and Prince George's County, and even though the ag tag would most likely be bought by folks in rural areas who would like to provide a boost to the state's farmers.

Greed is indeed an ugly thing.

Let's just hope the state legislature sees the Bay Trust's need for a monopoly for what it is and passes House Bill 486 supporting Maryland's agriculture community and its license plate. And let's hope the governor lends his support.

OBITUARY

Effie Olive Biser, 88, Springfield, Va., died Monday, Feb. 21, 2000, at Fairoak Hospital, Springfield.

A daughter of the late James Walter and Estella (Harsh) Feather, she was born Oct. 18, 1911, at Aurora (Stemple Ridge). She was preceded in death on May 21, 1999, by her husband, Marrel Sylvester Biser, whom she married Dec. 14, 1930; and by one son, Walter Gay Biser; four brothers, Lawrence, Guy, Russell, and Clifford Feather; one sister, Jessie Edeburn; and one grandchild.

Survivors include two daughters, Juanita Jentry, Fort Myers, Fla., and Deloris Malone, Jacksonville, Fla.; one son, Dayton Biser, Springfield; 13 grandchildren; 24 great-grandchildren; one brother, Willard Feather, Aurora; and one sister, Wilma Rembold, Aurora.

The Bisers spent the early years of their marriage at Eglon. They moved later to the Washington, D.C., area and into the city, finally retiring to Florida until their health problems in the fall of 1998 forced them to move to the Springfield home of their son, Dayton. Both the Bisers were members of the Washington, D.C., Church of the Brethren.

Services were conducted from the DeMaine Funeral Home, Springfield, on Feb. 25.

PERSONAL MENTION

Claud Poling, Stemple Ridge, was expected to return to his home early this week after being a patient at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, for the past week.

Arthur Junior Slaubaugh, Horse Shoe Run, was hospitalized last week, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. He was transferred Friday evening to Monongalia General Hospital, Morgantown, where he is awaiting bypass surgery at this writing.

Rose Ina Harsh and Ellen Harsh, paramedics and EMTs for the Union Ambulance Service, were among 500 West Virginians in attendance at the West Virginia Fire and Emergency Medical Services Conference held recently at Pipestem State Park. Classes were conducted by an instructional faculty composed of representatives from many other states.

Tom Lewis, Eglon, was one of Savage Industries' employees who attended a recent conference in Los Angeles, Calif. He returned home Saturday night.

Wayne and Linda Sutton, Cleveland, Ga., and her sons, Alan and Spear, were here attending funeral services for her mother, Frances Stemple. They also visited with her brother, Bobby, at her mother's home.

Youth of the Maple Spring Church went skiing in the rain on Sunday at Timberline, near Canaan Valley. Devin Hauser was transported to the GCMH emergency room after a collision with a tree caused a bruised leg.

Marie and Ellis Teets, Silver Lake, were weekend visitors at Harrisonburg, Va., with their daughter and family, Martha, Merlin, Marilyn, and Matthew Reish.

Judy Stemple has returned to her home at Eglon and continues her recuperation.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Air Force Airman Lorraine J. Cole has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

During the six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and customs, and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate's degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Cole is the daughter of Leslie R. and Joyce M. Cole of Rural Route 1, Terra Alta, W.Va. She is a 1999 graduate of Preston High School, Kingwood.

Town Hall

ACCIDENT

Municipal elections to fill two council seats will be held on Tuesday, March 7, at Town Hall. Town residents are encouraged to vote.

FRIENDSVILLE

Town meetings were held on February 7 and 15.

•The mayor and council met with Ken Wishnick, president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, to discuss the possibility of expanding the Autumn Glory festival into the northern end of the county and of hosting an outdoor event at Friendsville Community Park. An organizational meeting is scheduled for Monday, March 13, 7 p.m., for service organizations, businesses, and churches interested in participating in such an event.

•Charles Fox, the new proprietor of the former Old Mill Restaurant, informed the mayor and council that he is planning to open the new restaurant in April.

•The State Highway Administration informed the mayor and council that a "Streetscape" project will begin this summer to upgrade sidewalks and the roadways along portions of First Avenue and Maple Street.

•The council has received numerous statements of concern regarding some long-term parking along Maple Street in the center of the business district. A time restriction on vehicles parking in that area is being considered.

•The Garrett County Commissioners attended the meeting on February 15 to discuss mutual interests. They were informed by the mayor and council that the town will not seek a tax differential from the county for the fiscal year 2000-2001. The mayor and council requested assistance from the county with several local projects, including the development of a pedestrian walkway along Second Avenue from Maple Street to the entrance of Friendsville Community Park.

•A request from the fire department was approved to reserve the park for August 4-6.

•Citizens are reminded to park in the direction of the traffic flow in order to enhance safety and to comply with state vehicle laws.

•Directional signs for the Friendsville Community Center have been ordered for installation on Second Avenue.

•Mayor Spencer Schlosnagle attended the Maryland Mayors Conference in Annapolis recently. The importance of participating in the 2000 census was a key topic of the conference.

The next town meeting will be held Monday, March 6.

KITZMILLER

The town meeting was held Monday, Feb. 28.

•The Garrett County Commissioners attended the meeting to discuss the tax differential. The town will not pursue the differential.

•Some residents spoke of concerns about weakening of the embankment along the road where sewer work was done recently.

•The commissioners urged the citizens to support Code Home Rule within the county.

•Bob Stephens of the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families spoke to the mayor and council about developing a juvenile delinquency prevention plan for the county.

•Municipal elections will be held March 21. Candidates are: for mayor, incumbent Nancy Brady, and for council, Melissa Nesselrodt, incumbent Judy Paugh, and Robert Reckart.

•Ordinance 2000-1 was read for the second time and will become effective with the installation of the new town officials. This ordinance raised the mayor's salary to $120 per month and the council members' salaries to $40 per month.

•Mayor Nancy Brady reported on a meeting with the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce concerning the expansion of the Autumn Glory festival. She was told that Kitzmiller had the best response from residents of any town in the county. Several activities have already been organized including a fishing rodeo coordinated by Bill Ferry, a fire department tank display, a temporary coal mining museum, and applebutter making sponsored by church groups.

•Lights have been installed along the path in the park, and timers may be put on them. Lighting in the pavilion may also be changed.

•The town has agreed to sponsor a Relay for Life team and is considering fund-raising activities.

•Council member Melissa Lucas, having moved from the town, has submitted her resignation.

•The mayor has contacted the Army Corps of Engineers about developing plans to install a scenic walkway along the levy. Plans will be sent for approval. The installation may be supplemented by POS funding.

•There was discussion about the town purchasing the old company store. A grant for purchase funds is being submitted this month.

The next meeting will be held Monday, March 27.

leadership and commitment have made this purchase possible," said Taylor-Rogers. "The state is committed to retaining the status quo in managing this important able with access to technology. With technology advances comes the unique opportunity to improve our quality of life through better paying jobs while preserving our rural heritage."

Commissioner Ernie Gregg said the state's NetWork Maryland is an important step toward addressing the "digital divide" that exists between rural and metropolitan areas.

"We now need to take the initiative locally to ensure that we develop a strategic plan and the infrastructure to capitalize on the tremendous opportunity that is out there," Gregg said.

Commissioner Fred Holliday said that progress has been made recently in improving access to technology through the efforts of various public and private organizations in the county, but that a more focused, countywide initiative is now needed "to create an environment where all businesses (large and small), educational institutions, nonprofit organizations, government entities, and Garrett Countians in general can benefit from enhanced information technology infrastructure and related services."

Delegate George Edwards commented from his Annapolis office that Governor Parris Glendening, the state legislature, and the state's information technology staff are to be congratulated on the NetWork-Maryland initiative, which he said is intended to improve access to technology across the state.

"It is very encouraging to see that our local elected leadership recognizes the importance of technology to the county's future and is natural resource."

Accident School Slates Bookfair

Accident Elementary School PTA will sponsor the annual Scholastic Bookfair March 13-17. All members of the community are invited to browse and purchase books, software, and other educational items. The bookfair will open Monday, March 13, at 5:30 p.m. It will continue Tuesday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and on Friday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Cash, checks, and credit cards will be accepted for purchases. Money raised will be used to help support the school library.

under fire earlier this month, with one homeowner and an area construction professional accusing planning and zoning director John Nelson and the building codes office staff of not properly carrying out their responsibilities. As they did last week, the commissioners maintained their defense of Nelson and the staff this week, asserting their confidence in the office leadership and operations.

Thank You

I would like to thank everyone who sent cards, made phone calls, paid a visit, and prayed for me while I was in Garrett Memorial Hospital and Monongalia General Hospital for heart surgery.

Chamber Of Commerce Directors Guests At GCC Breakfast Meeting

At the Garrett Community College February breakfast meeting, members of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce board of directors and Executive Director Ken Wishnick heard college administrators and faculty tell about new programs and services now available to students and community members.

Following a welcome by college president Dr. Steve Herman in which the college's role in economic development was highlighted, Sandy Major, counselor of the Small Business Development Center and the planned Garrett Information Enterprise Center, spoke about the businesses that have been helped by the SBDC and that were featured in a recent issue of Appalachia magazine. Don Storck, GCC's director of information services, then told about new telecommunications facilities, including nine computer labs, four video labs that can communicate with other similar labs throughout the world, and a video switch that makes possible multiple video sessions.

Dean of Academic Affairs Dr. Lillian Mitchell told the group about the new program in juvenile justice expected to start in the fall, and then introduced faculty members, each of whom spoke about a new academic initiative. Speakers and their topics were: Virginia Broaddus on the new honors program and the planned field trip to trace the life of Frederick Douglass through the plantations of eastern Maryland; Terry Norris, the newly reorganized Business and Information Technology program that will prepare students to work in the business world where the Internet and e-commerce are part of their lives; Mike Logsdon, the new track of therapeutic recreation in the Adventure Sports program and the articulation with the four-year degree program in recreation at Frostburg State University; Kevin Dodge, the three emphases in the Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program that now includes training for a job, community education, and developing the economy without compromising the environment; and Willie Lantz, forms of alternative agriculture, such as horticulture and aquaponics.

Following the information about academic programs, Stacie Haskiell, career placement coordinator, spoke about the services available through her office, and the Job Fair scheduled for April 15.

Dr. Herman re-affirmed the college's commitment to tourism and cultural activities of the community, pointing to the week-long Chautauqua program scheduled for July. Chairman of the GCC board of trustees Doug Sites concluded the breakfast meeting with remarks about the state of the college.

Members of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors who attended the breakfast meeting were: Leonard Eiswert, Jonathan Kessler, Bill Weissgerber, Jerry Geisler, Cathy Clocker Brant, Doug McClive, John Foreman, Jeff McCauley, David Moe, Jim Murray, and Karen Myers. Also in attendance were Garrett County commissioner Wendell Beitzel and GCC board of trustees members Sue Beachy, Charles Bender, and Rob Michael.

Breakfast meetings are planned monthly by the office of Enrollment Development for the purpose of effecting fruitful two-way communication between the college and various segments of the community. According to Joan Crawford, the next planned meeting will be March 31 for the heads of Garrett County agencies.

Attorneys Open New Practice In Garrett County

Area attorneys Robert Kazary and Glenn Robinette have announced the formation of a combined practice, with its main office in Cumberland and a branch office near Grantsville in Garrett County. In addition to the new partnership practice, both attorneys will maintain their individual private practices serving clients in Garrett and Allegany counties.

The two attorneys said that their new partnership will expand the base of knowledge and experience available to clients.

In Garrett County the office of Kazary & Robinette LLP may be reached at 301-895-3138. In Cumberland the number is 301-777-8822.

On Dean's List At Allegany C.

A number of local students were among the 265 who were named to the dean's list at Allegany College of Maryland for outstanding academic achievement during the fall 1999 semester, according to Dr. Gene Hall, vice president of instructional affairs.

To be eligible for dean's list recognition, a student must earn a grade point average of 3.8 or higher on a 4.0 scale and be enrolled in five or more semester hours of course work.

Garrett County students named to the list were: Angela J. Klotz, Friendsville; Janel M. Hordubay, Frostburg (Garrett County); Chelsea C. Brenneman, Amanda M. Downton, and Roxanne M. Niner, Grantsville; Robert L. Rodeheaver and Erica L. Stahl, Oakland; and Holly G. Wilson, Swanton.

FREEDOM OF CHOICE

Part of the basic concept of freedom in this great country of ours is that we may choose the physician we want to treat us and the pharmacy we want to prepare our prescriptions. This freedom of choice is part of our heritage, and we guard it proudly and jealously.

We don't like to be told we have to get something at a particular place or from a particular person. Our pharmacy is proud to be a part of this community's health team, and we hope you will want to choose us to be your pharmacy.

EMERGENCY PHONE, 334-8617

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?

An Eye-to Eye Moment

Most of us can remember a time not so long ago when individual grocery items wore prices that checkers "scanned" with their eyes, when addresses did not consist of "www.com", and when "service" station did not mean self-service. We spoke to humans instead of recordings...and people actually looked at each other more often. Maybe we took that for granted...but it's not too late to give it another try.

The next time you place your groceries on the check-out line, make eye contact with the clerk and smile. See if it doesn't give you a warm feeling...and spark the human connection. Try this with all who serve you. It has been said that the soul shows through your eyes. Use every opportunity to share your spirit with others, for we are still God's children in the family of mankind.

Visit God's house each week. Greet each other warmly. When you depart, take God's love with you into the week. We don't just go to church or synagogue. We are the spirit of God in the world. Share an "eye-to-eye moment" today.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IS CHRIST DIVIDED?

March 5, 2000

Background Scripture:
1 Corinthians 1:1-17.
Devotional Reading:
1 Corinthians 1:18-25.

Paul's first letter to the church at Corinth is probably one which he would have preferred not to have to write. It is a deeply concerned letter to a 'problem church' courting disaster. The situation is doubly disturbing because this church was clearly one of Paul's favorites. He himself had founded it and labored diligently to nurture it. Now, however, the Corinthian church was struggling, not only within itself, but also with Paul. So, we might expect him to begin this crucial letter in a somber or even angry tone.

Paul, however, begins with thanksgiving because he finds both good news and bad news reaching him from Corinth. The good news was that the church in Corinth was spiritually gifted, advanced in their understanding of Christ, and eloquent in proclaiming the gospel. For all of this Paul is deeply thankful to God and he begins his letter with praise, instead of reproach: "I give thanks to God always for you because the grace of God which was given you in Christ Jesus, that in every way you are enriched in him with all speech and all knowledge...so that you are not lacking in any spiritual gift..." (1:4,5,7). Paul is saying in effect, you people are wonderfully blessed with spiritual riches.

Now, is Paul merely buttering them up before he gets down to brass tacks? Is this just a clever technique for winning them back to his leadership? Or is it indicative that Paul sees some things in this church that the people there have been missing. Is Paul trying to help them see some strengths and graces that they are overlooking?

Focusing on the 'Bad News'

Perhaps you have noticed that, when there are difficulties and disapp

Mary Yoder Becomes First Woman To Hold Northern Rescue's Top Office

For the first time in its 27-year-history, Northern Rescue Squad members elected a woman as captain, which is the highest office in the organization. Mary Yoder, a five-year veteran of the company, assumed the responsibility of leadership for the squad, which has sites in Grantsville, Accident, and Friendsville.

Yoder, a Grantsville native who graduated from Northern High School in 1968, has three daughters and three grandchildren. She completed her training as an EMT-B (emergency medical technician) at Garrett Community College. Working within her community, Yoder drove a school bus for a dozen years, and has provided in-home care to the elderly for 10 years. She said she has also been very involved with activities at her her church, and currently serves as president of the Women's Fellowship at Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren.

As captain of the volunteer rescue service, Yoder said she finds the day-time hours to be most challenging to staff. The volunteer members work and often find it difficult to leave their jobs. "Sometimes people we help, like visitors to lake area, are very surprised to find that we are not paid for the work we do because where they live, this is a paid service," Yoder noted.

Regardless of the many hours volunteered by the emergency rescue team, the efforts are not always appreciated by the community, she said. "When people thank us, it means a lot. We had the parents of a young man who was killed in an accident recently stop in here to thank us for all we did to help him," Yoder said.

The 83 members at the three stations comprising the Northern Garrett Rescue Service respond to 1,400-1,500 calls per year which may come from anywhere within a 300-square-mile area. "We cover an area that runs from the Allegany/Garrett County line to the West Virginia line and south," Yoder said.

Formed in 1972, Northern Rescue Squad still boasts two charter members on its roster: Jim Wilburn and Marvin Beach. Some of the newest members are seven EMTs who recently completed training, the captain explained. "We've got three new lieutenants, too: John Beachy at Station 1; Rod Bowser at Station 2; and Brett Friend at Station 3. They're doing a fine job," Yoder commented.

The rescue squad recently placed in service a 2000 Freightliner/Horton B.I.S./A.L.S. 4-wheel-drive ambulance, powered by 260 hp. The unit is equipped with an automatic lowering and leveling system, power steering and brakes, and a full DOT light package.

In addition to the new rescue unit, Northern Rescue also has new members on its board of directors: Cheryl Rexrode, chair; Danny Durst, vice chair; and members Alvin Shumaker, Walt Fearer, and Edgar Yoder.

READY TO RESPOND, the ambulance fleet of the Northern Rescue Squad was bolstered by the recent addition of Ambulance 925 (at right in the photo above), a 4-wheel drive, 260 hp, 2000 Freightliner/Horton. Responsible for the operations of this fleet of emergency vehicles and the 83 volunteers of the rescue company, Mary Yoder took office as the first female captain of the Northern Rescue Squad, which serves a 300-square-mile area. In the photo at right, Captain Yoder stands next to the new ambulance.

Maryland Fire Deaths Increase 17% In 1999

After collecting and analyzing fire death data from all 23 counties and Baltimore City, the State Fire Marshal's Office has determined that 91 people died in fires in Maryland in calendar year 1999. This represents an increase of 17% over the 78 people who died in 1998.

The major cause of deadly fires in Maryland remains smoking. Seventeen people (19% of all fire deaths) died in 16 fires which were caused by the careless use of smoking materials. This fact is virtually unchanged from 1998 statistics.

The second leading, identified cause of fire deaths is heating devices. Eleven people (12% of fire deaths) died in seven fires which were related to heating devices. The 1999 figures in this category are more than double those of 1998. The majority of these fires involved combustibles which were ignited because they were too close to space heaters. One heating related fire in Worcester County was responsible for four deaths, and another in Anne Arundel County was responsible for two.

Other leading causes of fire deaths in Maryland are electrical and candles. Together they are responsible for 13 deaths, or 14% of all fire deaths. Two sisters died in a house fire in Cumberland which was caused by a forgotten candle. Their home did not have a working smoke detector. A total of six people died because of candles in 1999.

Seventeen people died in fires whose origin has not yet been determined. This figure is higher than normal because six people died in one fire that is still under investigation in Baltimore County.

State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele said he is concerned over the increase in fire deaths and the fact that carelessness is responsible for most of these losses. He stated, "I challenge every Marylander to be responsible for preventing these senseless deaths by practicing basic fire safety rules." He reminded everyone to use great care with smoking materials, keep combustibles at least three feet from all heating devices, and avoid the use of candles.

Gabriele also reminded residents that "smoke alarms save lives." Persons should install one on every floor of the house and keep fresh batteries in them at all times. Almost 70% of those who died in home fires did not have a working smoke alarm in their home at the time of the fire.

For a copy of the detailed "Fire Deaths In Maryland" report, persons may contact Allen Gosnell, public information officer, at 800-525-3124.

Massage Therapy Overview Course Slated At GCC

An introductory course titled Overview of Bodywork and Massage Therapy will be offered by the Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett Community College for four consecutive Saturdays beginning March 4. It is a prerequisite for entry into the massage therapy curriculum, which prepares individuals for licensing in Maryland and West Virginia.

This overview course will present information on concepts and techniques of massage therapy, covering topics such as the history of massage therapy, the importance of touch, indications/contraindications for massage therapy, and business/professional guidelines. Students will learn basic techniques that can be used to provide a seated, upper-body massage therapy session in a personal or business setting. No prior education or experience is required.

The total cost for the course is $160 for Garrett County residents, and non-county residents will pay an additional differential. Senior citizens over 60 pay a reduced amount. For additional information interested persons may contact Carol Newman at 301-387-3088, or visit the Continuing Education and Training Division office located in Room 300 on the McHenry campus.

DNR Police Note Dangers Of Cold Water

Maryland Natural Resources Police superintendent Col. John W. Rhoads reminds boaters of the significant risk of hypothermia at this time of year.

"While the air temperatures make it feel like spring, water temperatures are still in the upper 30s and low 40s," Col. Rhoads said. "A person falling into water this cold can succumb to hypothermia in as little as 10 minutes. Ideally, boaters on the water at this time of year should carry an immersion suit or wear a flotation suit. At the very least, make sure everyone on board is wearing a life jacket, which helps keep you afloat as well as insulating against heat loss."

Persons who fall into cold water should: not discard clothing, because it helps to trap heat; avoid moving as much as possible; cross their arms and pull their legs up to retain body heat; and huddle together with others in the water to conserve heat.

To treat a person suffering from hypothermia, rescuers should: get the victim out of the water as quickly as possible; strip off wet clothing and wrap the victim in a warm sleeping bag or blanket; try to keep the person awake; not give them alcohol or massage the body vigorously; and get medical attention for the victim as soon as possible.

Risks of hypothermia are greater in people with low percentage of body fat, people who have consumed alcohol or drugs, or people who are injured or fatigued.

On Dean's List

Shelby M. Lee, Winthrop, Wash., was one of 152 women at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, Va., to be named to the dean's list for outstanding academic achievement during the fall 1999 semester. She is the daughter of William "Chip" Lee, Deer Park, and Babetee Joslin, Winthrop. She is a graduate of Liberty Bell High School.

Founded in 1891, Randolph-Macon Woman's College is a private, four-year liberal arts and sciences college, and is considered one of the premiere women's colleges in the country.

SUPER PANTRY WORKSHOPS CONCLUDE - The eight-week program of the AmeriCorps-sponsored Super Pantry workshops drew to a close recently at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church in Oakland. AmeriCorps member Salena White coordinated and conducted the Wednesday sessions, which covered topics including self-esteem, budgeting, parenting, fire safety, stress management, substance abuse, domestic violence, and job résumé preparation, presented by volunteer guest speakers providing instruction in their fields. Each session also included a nutrition and cooking demonstration led by Irmgard Koscielniak, extension educator with the Maryland Cooperative Extension office. Participants then volunteered to cook lunch for the group. Shown above, from left, are program graduate Karen Sisler, holding her son Quentin; Koscielniak and White; and graduates Jessie Capel, Deanna Titchenell, and Jennifer Moreland and her daughter Lyndsay. Not present for photo was graduate Tammy Burns and her daughter Melanie.

Massage Therapy Clinic Scheduled

A massage therapy clinic, staffed by Garrett Community College's core massage therapy students, has been set for Tuesday through Thursday, March 21-23. Session times will be noon, 1:30, 4, and 5:30 p.m. In this supervised clinical setting, members of the public may receive client-focused massage therapy sessions from students.

There is a fee to participate, and reservations are required. For additional information or to register, persons may call Carol Newman of GCC's Continuing Education and Training Division at 301-387-3088, or stop in at the Continuing Education and Training Division office, located in Room 300 on the McHenry campus.

Workshop Set To Address Fire/EMS Public Relations

The Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems will hold a day-long workshop beginning at 9 a.m. on Saturday, March 11, in Cumberland, to assist fire and EMS personnel in ensuring effective media relations. The course will provide instruction in how to conduct recruitment and retention campaigns, improve media relations, hold press events, and develop injury prevention programs.

"Participants will learn how to improve their ability to interact with the media, learn what information the media is looking for and how to obtain and distribute it, and take part in practical exercises where their interviews are videotaped," MIEMSS Region I spokesman Dave Ramsey said. "The instructors are media experts who have devoted their careers to educating the public about the importance of fire and EMS activities."

The workshop will take place in the Continuing Education Building at Allegany College of Western Maryland, and EMS continuing education credits will be given for participation. Refreshments and lunch will be provided, and class size is limited. Registration is required by Wednesday, March 8, and may be made by calling the MIEMSS Region I office at 301-895-5934 or 301-746-8636.

Friendsville PTO Schedules Bingo, Dinner Benefit

A mini-bucks bingo to benefit the Friendsville Elementary School PTO is set for Sunday, March 5, at the Friendsville fire hall. A donation of $15 in advance or $20 at the door will entitle players to a packet of bingo cards. The event payout will total $1,100.

A chicken dinner will be available for $5 when the doors open at 11:30 a.m., and "early bird" games begin at 1:30 p.m. The event is open to all members of the public, including those who wish to partake in the dinner but not play bingo. Refreshments and baked goods will also be available.

Funds raised by the event will go the Friendsville PTO, which has been raising funds for playground equipment, school field trips, classroom books, and afterschool activities. For advance tickets or further information, persons may call 301-746-4042 (evenings) or 301-746-5100 (days).

Fraud Protection For Businesses Is Seminar Topic

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce will continue its "brown bag lunch" seminar series at noon on Wednesday, March 8, with a program titled "Bad Checks and Consumer Fraud" presented by Lt. Larry Gnegy of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Gnegy will share information on how to recognize bad checks and how to protect a business against consumer fraud, which "comes in many different forms and can be expensive to an unprepared small business owner," according to Ken Wishnick, chamber president.

The program will be presented in the Visitor Center conference room, and is free to chamber members and $5 for nonmembers. Participants are asked to bring their own lunch. Drinks will be available.

The chamber's seminar series presents topics of interest in learning to be more successful in business management. "Business people need to have a broad base of knowledge to be competitive. Through this ongoing series, we will provide access to many experts that will increase small business efficiency and profitability," said Wishnick.

Four additional seminars are scheduled through the end of May on a wide variety of topics. For a schedule persons may contact the Chamber of Commerce at 301-387-4386.

CUB SCOUTS FUND ACTIVITY - The Den 4 Wolf Cubs of Cub Scout Pack 31 recently participated in a fund-raising project to pay for a special activity. The Scouts held an aluminum can drive, collecting cans to be recycled. They earned enough money for the group to go bowling and ice skating. The Scouts said that the people at B & S Scrap showed them how the aluminum was recycled. They also noted that families and friends were very helpful to them in the project. Pictured left to right in the photo are Matthew Broadwater, Ryley McBride, Andrew Sweitzer, Brandon Pritt, Nathaniel Walkling, and Jermeny Sharpless.

COVER STORY

HBO's new Walls will likely inspire more talk

By Jacqueline Cutler
©TVData Features Syndicate

Three love stories set in three distinct eras – the stiff prinness of 1961, the political crusades of 1972 and the boundless optimism of today – make a terrific movie guaranteed to spark discussions.

The twist on the love stories is that they are all about lesbian couples, and all are exquisitely done by a spectacular team of directors, writers and actors in If These Walls Could Talk 2, premiering Sunday, March 5, on HBO. Its predecessor, If These Walls Could Talk, about abortion, was the highest-rated movie in HBO history.

Without using a cudgel, this trilogy shows how each love story is just that. The opening story, "1961," stars Vanessa Redgrave and Marian Seldes as lifelong companions Edith and Abby. When Abby falls from a ladder, the nurses at the hospital where Edith has an agonizingly long wait don't even think to notify her of Abby's death. Although the two women owned a house together, shared decades of love and were completely devoted to each other, their love was a secret.

When Abby's nephew and his wife (Paul Giamatti, Elizabeth Perkins) come to cash in on their inheritance, it never occurs to them that Edith should stay in her home. Redgrave's on-screen greatness is on full display in a scene where Edith weeps for her beloved.

"Vanessa is a goddess," says director Jane Anderson. "Vanessa has such humanism. Her understanding of the human condition and empathy is universal. She was kind to everyone on the set, and she was particularly kind to me because she allowed me to direct her. ... She so filled the set with her grief."

As the next story, "1972," opens, just 11 years have passed, but the national psyche has taken a huge leap forward. Michelle Williams (Dawson's Creek) epitomizes the decade's college lesbian in peasant blouses and jeans. Martha Coolidge, the segment's director, says she has very strong memories of those years. She expertly captures the raging fights that ensued on campuses at feminist meetings when straight women and gay women shrieked at one another.

Williams, looking younger than her 19 years, says, "I'm really attracted to that time. I read the books and saw the clippings and watched the movies." This segment also features a great performance by Chloe Sevigny (Boys Don't Cry).

And as Angst-ridden as the '70s were, the ebullience of the present permeates the last story, starring Ellen DeGeneres and Sharon Stone and directed by Anne Heche, DeGeneres' partner. In "2000," two women in a long-term relationship decide to have a baby. The segment is a lovely tribute to pregnancy at the turn of the century, showing how difficult it can be to make the choices that science has afforded us.

Stone is playful and delightful in the role, which she says she ran by her mother before accepting. "She had told me I was getting too conservative and not pushing the envelope," Stone says.

The movie's producers, sisters Suzanne and Jennifer Todd, realize that some people might tune in to a movie about lesbian love for salacious reasons. "If Howard Stern wants to watch it and talk about it on his show, sure," Suzanne Todd says. "We're not going to turn people away."

Regardless, DeGeneres says, "the entire message is love."

Ana Gasteyer

Q: I love Ana Gasteyer, one of the actresses on NBC's Saturday Night Live, but I couldn't find out much about her. Where could I write to her? –Sarah Scanlon, Owensboro, Ky.

A: A graduate of Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., where she briefly was a voice major in classical music, Gasteyer later moved to California and joined the Groundlings comedy troupe along with SNL castmates Will Ferrell, Chris Kattan and Cheri Oteri.

Since 1996, when she joined SNL, Gasteyer has created such lively characters as National Public Radio host Margaret Jo; singer and music teacher Bobbi Moughan-Culp; and Kincaid, a goof on MTV's Kennedy.

She divides her time between New York and Los Angeles, where she lives with her husband, graphic artist Charlie McKittrick, and their two dogs and a cat.

Write to Gasteyer c/o Saturday Night Live, NBC, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10112.

Q: I could swear that I recognized Joseph Mascolo (Days of Our Lives) in Jaws. Also, my mother tells me that James Mitchell (All My Children) danced in Laurey's dream sequence in the movie Oklahoma! Are we correct? –Curious as Usual in Warroad, Minn.

A: Mascolo had a featured role in Jaws 2, not Jaws, but that was indeed Mitchell dancing the role of Laurey's "Dream Curly" in Oklahoma!

Q: Why did Mother Love leave Forgive or Forget? We don't care for the replacement. –Ross and Barb Ziegler via e-mail.

A: Neither do most other fans of the show, if my mail is any indication. Forgive or Forget pulled very disappointing ratings in its maiden season, and Twentieth Television executives decided to try a younger, more glamorous hostess before they pulled the plug altogether.

Their choice, Robin Givens (Boomerang), seems to be leaving most viewers cold. The show has a long shot at best for renewal.

Q: How old is the little boy who plays Timmy on the soap opera Passions? –A. Sapp, Columbus, Ohio.

A: That "little boy" turned 18 on Jan. 10. Actor Jos., Ryan Evans, who stands 3 feet 1 inch tall, made guest appearances as child lawyer Oren Koolie on Ally McBeal and co-stars with Jim Carrey in the upcoming big-screen How the Grinch Stole Christmas. He is also working on a series of children's books. Evans has a brother who is 6 feet 4.

Antiques by Ralph and Terry Kovel

Vases shaped like ladies' heads, with a hole in the top for flowers, were popular in the 1940s. A few are still being made. The lady wearing a hat filled with fresh flowers is an appealing idea that has been used by florists time and again. In the 1960s, not just head but also figural vases or planters were imported from Japan and sold to florists and dime stores. Many were in the form of young women in full-skirted dresses. Others were shaped like animals, birds, trains, cribs, baby carriages, hearts, rabbits, Santa Claus and turkeys. Collectors have begun searching for these figural vases. The most popular seem to be those made in the United States or marked with familiar importers' names.

Q: I inherited an unusual drop-leaf table. It is coffee-table height and has six legs. It forms a semicircle when the leaves at both ends are folded down. When the leaves are raised, the table is shaped more like a horseshoe. The name "Weiman Co." is marked under the table. Can you tell me anything about the company or the table style?

A: The Weiman Co. was founded in Chicago in the 1920s. It moved to Rockford, Ill., in the 1930s. At the same time, it opened a new manufacturing plant in North Carolina. Your table's semicircular design and leaves are reminiscent of a 1750-1850 English "wine table," often called a "hunt table." The original wine tables had a device that stretched between the ends so that a wine bottle could be reached from any point. Your table, a reproduction of the old style, probably dates from the 1950s.

It's a Hammer
by Samantha Mazzotta

Q. We had our kitchen redecorated a few years ago, using ceramic tile on the countertops and island. Wear and tear since then has chipped and broken a few of them. How can we repair them?

A. Broken, chipped or discolored ceramic tiles are easy to replace.

You'll just need a few tools on hand to do the job: A grout saw (availableat your hardware store), glass cutter, chisel (not a woodworking chisel), mallet or hammer, wire brush, tile adhesive, toothpicks, masking tape and grout.

Using the grout saw, remove the grout around the broken tile. Take the glass cutter and score the old tile with an "X", each line running from corner to corner.

Next, pick up the chisel and mallet (or hammer) and tap the center of the tile with the chisel. Start gently and add more force with each tap until the tile breaks into four pieces. Clean out any grout that remains in the tile space, using a wire brush or the grout saw.

When that is done, apply tile adhesive to the back of the replacement tile and ease it gently into place. Then, stick toothpicks all around it, in the ungrouted groove, to keep the tile centered. Anchor it in place with masking tape until the adhesive has dried.

Once the adhesive has dried, remove the masking tape and toothpicks and regrout the tile in place. It's that easy!

TIPS

• I fix creaky wood floors quickly with talcum powder. I just sprinkle it around the area that's creaking, rub it in lightly and sweep the remaining powder away. — Joyce S., Orlando, Fla.

• When putting up wood paneling in my house, I sprayed black paint on the backboard before starting. This helped to hide the small cracks between each panel much more effectively. — Richard W., Greenville, S.C.

Pet Care
by Peter Edwards

Many travel columns have made the point time and again not to forget to pack an extra copy of your prescriptions when taking a trip. Medication can be lost or stolen.

Well, the same advice can be applied to pets. Before traveling with your dog or cat, make sure you not only have a more than adequate supply of their medication, but that you also have prescriptions for them. This would include prescriptions that are available over the counter in the United States, but which may be restricted elsewhere. Ask your vet to write out your pet's needs for these products.

And, if you're crossing a border, make sure you have a current health certificate for your pet with you. Your vet can supply one that shows an up-to-date record of vaccinations. Speaking of vaccinations, be sure to plan ahead. Vaccinations against bacterial and viral diseases should be administered 30 days before departure, allowing time for your pet's immune system to build defenses against infection.

You might also want to travel with an extra supply of bottled water. As with people, pets can have distressing gastrointestinal reactions to change of water.

Finally, if you plan to put your pet aboard a commercial airline while traveling, make sure to use an airline-approved carrying case. The wrong case can be lethal.

Voters' Guide

March 7, 2000, Primary Elections

The League of Women Voters of Garrett County, in cooperation with The Republican newspaper, is pleased to provide the information on these pages to assist voters in their decision-making before going to the polls in next Tuesday's Maryland primary elections. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. that day.

NOTES:

A. For the March 2000 Primary Election, voters who are not registered with a recognized political party may cast a ballot in the Republican Primary. These unaffiliated voters will be provided the Republican Primary ballot containing Republican contests and nonpartisan contests. Although unaffiliated voters may vote in the Republican contests, they are not required to do so.

B. Democratic Delegate Selection Plan: The Maryland Democratic Party is allocated 87 delegate seats and 11 alternates at the 2000 convention. Forty-four delegates and 7 alternates will be elected at the March 7 primary. There must be an equal number of male and female delegates.

C. Republican Delegate Selection Plan: The Maryland REpublicans will send 32 delegates and 32 alternates to their party's 2000 Convention. Twenty-four delegates will be elected, 3 from each Congressional district, at the Primary election. In each Congressional District, the three candidates who receive the most votes shall be elected.

U.S. House of Representatives District 6

WALTER E. CARSON, DEMOCRAT, AGE: 56,
BACKGROUND:

Carson, a 56-year-old attorney, has prior experience as: a U.S. Congressional staffer; an assistant law director for the City of Cleveland; an assistant attorney general for Ohio; and a congressional liaison officer for the U.S. Postal Service. He and his wife Jackie have been married for 34 years.

HEALTH CARE:

Some 45 million people (including 11 million children) in America live without health care insurance. This is unacceptable. As a Nation, we must establish a universal health care insurance program to protect such persons and those others who lack adequate coverage.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

Money, especially big money from special interest groups, has a corrosive effect on the political process. The solicitation, contribution, and use of "soft money" must be prohibited. The U.S. Surpreme Court must also be asked to reconsider its decision in Buckley v. Valeo, to make further dramatic reforms possible.

BUDGET SURPLUS:

Assuming a federal budget surplus is actually realized, it should be used in the following manner: (1) to preserve and protect the Social Security System, allowing the government to meet its contractual obligations; (2) to fund a universal health care insurance program; and (3) to retire the national debt.

FARMER RELIEF:

The small, independent farmer is an important component of the U.S. economy. Depending upon the circumstances, federal responses to low prices and/or natural disasters, can include one or more of the following: tax credits and incentives, price supports, government purchases, and payments under national disaster/emergency programs.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

Yes.

DONALD M. DE ARMON DEMOCRAT, AGE: 44
BACKGROUND:

Married to Ann. Four children: Belle, 18; McCamie, 15; Alexandra, 11; John, 7. Born in Frederick, attended Maryland public schools. Graduated UNC-Chapel Hill. My career has been in public service, working 22 years as a congressional staff assistant to help government solve problems for people. Web site: www.dearmon.com

HEALTH CARE:

In a time of prosperity, Democrats and Republicans must work together to provide health care to all Americans. Tax credits and expanding access to existing health plans both hold promise. Will fight to reach agreement, add prescription drug coverage to Medicare, and pass a strong Patient Bill of Rights.

BUDGET SURPLUS:

We need to invest in ways that make our country stronger. I'll work to reduce class sizes in our schools, cover all Americans with health care, and place Medicare and Social Security on a secure, long-term footing.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

Partisan politics, negative campaigns, and lack of congressional progress on important issues are driving too many Americans away from participation in our great democracy. I support bipartisan Shays-Meehan reform bill to eliminate "soft money" abuses, but passage is only the first step in regaining the confidence of American voters.

FARM ECONOMICS:

We need reliable, affordable disaster insurance. But we also need to reinstate a price support system that supports family farmers, not giant agri-business. Farmland preservation programs can be used to enhance the environment while providing important farm income. I also support increased agricultural research and trade promotion.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

I support a woman's right to choose within the guidelines of the Roe v. Wade decision.

JOHN EWALD, DEMOCRAT, AGE: 36
BACKGROUND:

John Ewald is a native son of Maryland's sixth congressional district. The son of a United Methodist minister, Mr. Ewald has had the pleasure of growing up in western Maryland. He has camped, hunted, fished, and boated in these beautiful hills all his life. He was born in Flintstone, moved ...

HEALTH CARE:

Effective measures include implementing partial premium payments on a graduated scale; separating health care premiums from income; and combining public financing with private coverage. This would afford everyone — not just people with employer-provided insurance — a tax break. We must also invest in health education to prevent illness and accidents.

BUDGET SURPLUS:

The surplus should be used to further reduce our national debt, to shore up our social security system for the retirement of baby boomers and future generations, to invest in growth and opportunity that are equally available to every working American, and to allow for moderate yet noticeable tax cuts.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

While our current electoral process makes PAC funds a campaign necessity, I strongly believe the role of money in politics must diminish and citizen participation must increase. Ideally, campaign funding will someday be limited to individual donations and public financing, and candidates accepting public financing would receive free broadcast time.

FARM ECONOMICS:

Challenges facing farmers today go way beyond overproduction or years of falling prices. I support a rural development effort that will fund farm research and education programs. I also support expanded emergency farm financial relief so that when natural disasters occur, farmers receive federal aid when they most need it.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

Absolutely. I am committed to keeping abortions safe, legal, and accessible — but also to making them more rare! I will continue to support programs, principles, and legislation that ensure every child in America is a wanted child who has the chance to be raised in a loving, strong family.

ANTHONY J. McGUFFIN, DEMOCRAT, AGE: 47
BACKGROUND:

Tony McGuffin teaches for Howard County Public Schools. He is a theatre artist and former artistic director of the Ellicott Theatre, a folk musician performing in the Maryland-DC-Virginia area, and a founding member of the Baltimore-Washington Songwriters Guild. He is also president of the Ellicott City Democratic Club.

HEALTH CARE:

We must have meaningful reform either in the way the Insurance/Health Care Industry provides services, or in the way we buy insurance. In the meantime, I favor expanding federal plans to include the poor and children, subsidies for persons between jobs to stay insured, and more inclusive enrollment.

BUDGET SURPLUS:

Wise choices in determining the use of this surplus will effect our economy for a long time to come. We should invest in our future, in social security, in Medicare, and in paying down the debt, which will save the taxpayer money by lowering interest payments and public debt.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE:

The American people should be the most powerful special interest group. Too much money has corrupted that democratic ideal, and major reform must correct it. Soft money should be abolished. "Issue ads" should be subject to contribution limits and disclosure requirements. Contributors should never be allowed to help write legislation.

FARM ECONOMICS:

Western Maryland should have a booming farm economy. But farmers need support in Congress. I will lead in efforts to influence, persuade and lobby for dairy compacts, subsidies and natural disaster relief. Innovations in farming and policy must lead to saving the independent farms; we're going to need them.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

I support a woman's right to reproductive choice. This right does not diminish the weight of moral objections to abortion, or the need for a dialogue toward understanding and compromise. I am committed to making improvements in areas like education and adoption services to actually reduce the number of abortions.

★★★★★★

ROSCOE G. BARTLETT, REPUBLICAN, AGE: 73
BACKGROUND:

I am a conservative with a consistent record as a strong advocate for Western Marylanders. My diverse background as a successful professor, research scientist, small business owner, farmer, father, and eight years as a Representative in Congress provide invaluable experience and motivation to solve the challenges facing our country.

HEALTH CARE:

I support reducing federal restrictions and mandates that have made health insurance unaffordable for many; incentives such as a 100% tax deduction for the self-employed; expanding MSAs; and creating more flexible options to provide lower cost group rate coverage through business associations, unions, churches and other organizations.

BUDGET SURPLUS:

We must continue the 1999 victory of saving the Social Security budget surplus. Other budget surplus overpayments can be allocated to maintain Medicare, national defense and other vital programs; to pay down and eventually eliminate the debt; and given back as tax relief to the taxpayers who earned it.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

I have voted for and will support requiring that most campaign donations come from home districts; to eliminate soft money by requiring full disclosure and immediate publication of all contributions; and to maintain limits on contributions from PACs and individuals, I oppose public financing "welfare" for political candidates' campaigns.

FARM ECONOMICS:

Small farmers are a vital national resource, but unlike other businesses are vulnerable to natural disasters, price fluctuations, and unfair international competition. I support Maryland joining the Northeast Compact; and reforming federal crop insurance to cover most crops and livestock and low prices and subsidizing the premiums for small farmers.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

All Americans are endowed by the creator with the inalienable right to life. I will continue to fight to ensure that all human life will be protected by law at all stages, including the unborn.

TIMOTHY R. MAYBERRY, REPUBLICAN, AGE: 43
BACKGROUND:

Washington County resident six generation Marylander. Treasurer, Maryland State Republican Party, private sector finance/economics consultant. B.S., George Washington University/other academics. Formerly Vice President Citibank/others, consultant FDIC, instructor Center for Procurement Management Studies. Currently, Vice President/member various charitable boards. Communicant St. Mark's Episcopal Church.

HEALTH CARE:

Tax incentives for business to cover workers all brackets. Tax breaks for under-employed to permit entry into unmanaged, non-rationed health care system. Explore opportunity for entry into actual or similar Federal Health Benefit system for families. Reduce costs through cooperation between public/private programs. Provide prescription services for elderly.

BUDGET SURPLUS:

Save substantial share for Social Security/other essential needs. Use balance for tax relief, allocate funds to empower families to exercise school choice, increase school teacher compensation, provide adequate Medicare reimbursements. Restructure economic calculations, utilize realistic growth projections powered by tax cuts, reduction of wasteful Federal interventionist programs.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

Eliminate loophole-filled system. Remove candidate caps while strengthening restrictions on special interests, union excesses misusing member dues, foreign national contribution mechanisms. Increase public disclosure, enforce legal restrictions via meaningful penalties. Prohibit selling of public-owned residence, the White House, to benefit Party-in-power candidates.

FARM ECONOMICS:

Revamp subsidy initiatives to bring farmers into mainstream competitive posture without undue regulation, federal dependency. Vigorously protect farmland appraisals from artificial fluctuation. Insure adequate credit. Restructure international trade agreements to insure full opportunity U.S. products. In crises take broad-based action re grant/loan response eliminating red tape/delays.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

Genuine choice requires currently absent informed consent. I support elimination of misinformation, scare tactics which ignore American women/family respect for human life over reproductive legalisms. Believe issue does not belong in government, courtrooms, advocacy publicity. I support maternal alternatives, maternal/family empowerment, parental-family involvement.

★★★★★★

SIDNEY ALTMAN, DEMOCRAT, AGE: 78
BACKGROUND:

Founding chairperson of Eugene McCarthy Democrats on Long Island; elected alternate delegate to Democratic National Convention in 1968. Ran third out of eight in 1992 primary in Maryland's 8th Congressional District. Received 17,000 votes for Montgomery County Central Committee in 1998. Was Executive Board member New York City chapter A.F.T.

HEALTH CARE:

Reducing excessive military spending would facilitate enactment of national health insurance. Every NATO ally has made drastic cuts in military spending; each has national health insurance and subsidizes prescription drug costs. In 1993 Democrats, with Congressional majority and the presidency, missed a rare opportunity to enact national health insurance.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS:

Our nuclear arsenal and overall military strength would obliterate any nation that attacked us. Given our secure position now and in the foreseeable future, we should ratify the treaty. The potential threat from so-called "rogue" nations is exaggerated, but I support the development and deployment of a missile shield.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

The impact of money on elections can be reduced by requiring television channels to provide free time for all serious candidates. Britain does this, and large contributors have significantly less influence on elections. The FCC should insist that public responsibility accompanies the right to use our air waves.

FARM ECONOMICS:

Continue designating areas which suffer nature-inflicted damage as disaster areas, making them eligible for assistance. All farmers are now protected against major falls in prices through a complicated formula as part of the state farm price support program. It would not be proper to exclude factory farms from this program.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

I support the Roe vs. Wade decision.

U.S. Senate

GEORGE ENGLISH, DEMOCRAT, AGE: 60
BACKGROUND:

Education: Bachelor's degrees in Business Administration (Colorado College) and International Management (American Graduate School of International Management); master's degrees in Economics (University of Colorado) and Marine Affairs (University of Rhode Island). Experience: Army Rifle Platoon Leader, NASA management intern, Northrop Airport Development Corporation economist, National Ocean Service (NOAA) economist (retired).

HEALTH CARE:

The only viable long-term solution to providing health care for all Americans is to institute a single payer, government-operated universal health system modeled on the Canadian health care system. The Canadian system covers everyone and costs 7% Gross Domestic Product (GDP) versus present U.S. cost of 14% GDP.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS:

Negotiations for a comprehensive world-wide nuclear weapons test ban treaty including all countries must be reopened under United Nations auspices. Adequate inspections and verification procedures under U.N. supervision should be required for all countries, with gradual elimination of stocks of existing weapons incorporated into the overall treaty.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

Shorter election campaign periods with government-financed candidate information distribution should be implemented to include free radio and television time mandated as part of broadcast license approvals. No private individual or organization contributions should be permitted except for a $1,000 limit on related campaign expenditures by each candidate

FARM ECONOMICS:

Farmers wanted "freedom to farm" without federal interference when farm exports and prices were high without recognizing that adverse markets could reappear. A return to limited individual farmer income supports coupled with production controls, free crop insurance, and market stabilization measures is needed to avoid future farm emergency loan bailouts.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

Although unacceptable to a vocal minority, the present situation regarding reproductive choice appears to be acceptable by two-thirds of the populace. No changes in these laws should be made without broad public acceptance lest they become unenforceable. Economic pressures on families should be eliminated to make forced "choice" unnecessary.

PAUL S. SARBANES, DEMOCRAT, AGE: 66
BACKGROUND:

Born: Salisbury, Maryland; attended Wicomico Senior High School, Princeton University (A.B.), Oxford University (Rhodes Scholar), Harvard Law School (LL.B.); elected to Senate in 1976, re-elected in 1982, 1988 and 1994; three-term member of the U.S. House of Representatives, 1970-1976; served in the Maryland House of Delegates, 1966-1970.

HEALTH CARE:

I believe that access to quality, affordable health care is essential to the well-being of all Americans. Comprehensive proposals should maintain high quality care, emphasize preventive health care, preserve individual choice, guarantee comprehensive coverage to every American, and simplify a system that has become enormously complex and confusing.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS:

I strongly supported the Comprehensive Test Ban

FREDERICK D. SANDERS
Election Director

Treaty's resolution of ratification and deeply regret that it failed to receive the two-thirds majority necessary for ratification. It is my hope the Senate will have another opportunity to consider this important treaty, which enhances our security and serves our national interest.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

I am a cosponsor of the leading two campaign finance reform bills in the 106th Congress, sponsored by Senators McCain and Feingold and the Senate Minority Leader. Both bills would reduce spending on "attack ads," place limits on contributions made by lobbyists, and limit contributions of "soft money."

FARM ECONOMICS:

I strongly supported legislation in 1999 to provide needed relief to farmers in Maryland who fell victim to economic crises and drought conditions affecting family farms and others in the agricultural sector. I worked with colleagues from the Northeast/Mid-Atlantic region to ensure problems facing the agricultural community were addressed.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

It has been my longstanding view that a decision about abortion must, in the end, be made by the individual after applying her own moral and ethical precepts and consulting with her own family and with her religious and spiritual advisors.

★★★★★★

ROBIN FICKER, REPUBLICAN, AGE: 56

BACKGROUND:

Born, lifetime Maryland resident. Three children. U.S.M.A. West Point. B.S. Engineering, J.D. Law, M.A. Public Administration. Maryland Legislature — only 2000 Republican Senate candidate ever elected public office. Personally shaken 600,000 Marylanders' hands since March 1997, this campaign. Collected 15,000 signatures 18 times placing mostly tax-cutting initiatives county ballots.

HEALTH CARE:

Shall champion bill of rights for patients and medical savings accounts. Uninsured working individuals should be allowed tax deductions for health care premiums. Patients should be able to choose their own doctors, women their own OB/GYN. I shall set example for our youth of active, healthy lifestyle.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS:

Yes. I learned at West Point that discussion beforehand of possible use of weapons of mass destruction is always useful. Only our superpower strength will maintain peace in face of terrorist attacks, Chinese threat, or Middle East aggression. Bringing about verifiable non-testing of nuclear weapons remains our goal and priority.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

Conventional wisdom is Senate candidates spend all their time with special interest fund-raisers, pollsters, political consultants rather than with you the voters. I disagree. Since March 1997, I've been shaking hands statewide in person-to-person campaign on the issues. I've given over 600,000 Marylanders my individually numbered campaign cards.

FARM ECONOMICS:

As only Senate candidate who lives on a farm, I know we need to eliminate the inheritance tax so small farms aren't divided and sold to pay the confiscatory 55% tax. Favor disaster relief insurance for small farmers and limited price supports, not corporate welfare for huge agricultural combines.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

Opposed to partial birth and sex selection abortion. Opposed to abortion except in cases of rape, incest or where life of mother is in danger. Favor mandatory notification of parents before minor has abortion. Won landmark federal lawsuit involving county attorney's discrimination against women in hiring practices.

BACKGROUND:

U.S. Naval Officer WW2; Ph.D. Physicist, Married: 3 children, 3 grandsons. Professor; National Science Foundation; D.I.A.; Livermore Nat. Lab., Astrophysics/space research.

HEALTH CARE:

If an HMO denies treatment, a panel of M.D.s (medical doctors) must be given power to order treatment. A small tax on all HMOs and medical corporations would fund a pool of money to treat uninsured workers.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS:

CTBT was a bad treaty, dangerous to our national security and unverifiable. Yes, I would reopen discussions for a new treaty, based on good scientific data.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

Close the Soft Money loophole. Stop foreign funds influencing American campaigns. Raise limit on individual contributions to $10,000 each.

FARM ECONOMICS:

Long term, low interest government loans to help small independent farmers are needed. But none to huge corporate farmers.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

Yes. However, "partial birth abortions" should be stopped except in case of emergency. Also, a girl, dependent, living at home, less than 18 years old, should have to have parental consent for an abortion, subject to judicial review.

ROSS Z. PIERPONT, M.D., REPUBLICAN, AGE: 82

BACKGROUND:

University of Maryland (B.S. Pharmacy, M.D. Medicine), Diamond member Terrapin Club; political activist and entrepreneur. Civic activist and financial supporter of Baltimore Symphony and Baltimore Opera; owner of Skipjacks — professional hockey team; President of Gempro and Gempro Direct. Dr. Pierpont is dedicated to community effort; health care reform.

HEALTH CARE:

Institute gradual elimination of our failed Medicare-Medicaid system. Embrace a new proven health care system. Extend Congressional waivers to one or two target states for rapid transition to new system, without compromise of health care during transition. Use proven system (116 years) in place in 12 countries — latest in Israel.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS:

1) Initial move: Deploy (S.D.I.) Strategic Defense Initiative over America. 2) Negotiate test ban treaty from position of controlled strength. 3) We are not the aggressor here. Rogue states: North Korea, Iraq, and yes, China and Russia, bear watching.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

1) Disclosures, literally immediately by all, is the only way to reform. 2) Unions and union bosses outspend all Republican collected money without any disclosure. 3) Finance rules must apply to everyone. 4) All spending "in-kind" as well, must be reported. 5) Unions to file independent audits each year.

FARM ECONOMICS:

1) Eliminate Death Taxes — avoid forced sale of farms. 2) Coordinate Farm Bureaus, cooperatives and farm groups' problems to state and county. 3) County and state set policy with federal government for coverage of problems and flexibility for necessary final action, whether permanent or emergency.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

1) Stimulate and encourage education by parents, churches, health care agencies and schools on family planning. 2) Pro life attitude: a) Banning partial-birth abortion. b) Third term pregnancy — bar abortion except for saving life of mother. c) Bar abortion except for rape, incest, life of mother. 3) Except above listed: parental consent — no government funding.

PAUL H. RAPPAPORT, REPUBLICAN, AGE: 65

BACKGROUND:

28 years Maryland State Police, major, Howard County Police, chief, past president Maryland Chiefs of Police, graduate Howard County Leadership, Army veteran, juris doctorate degree, University of Baltimore, University of Baltimore Alumnus of the Year, attorney, small business owner. Married to Margaret Rappaport, clerk of the Circuit Court.

HEALTH CARE:

Must be available, accessible and affordable to all individuals without placing the cost on small-business owners. I support medical IRA's, a reduction in the cost of prescription drugs and advocate that a portion of prescription drugs be covered by Medicare.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS:

Support discussions regarding nuclear weapons; however, the United States should never be placed in an inferior position in the production and testing of weapons. Any agreement should contain President Reagan's doctrine of "Trust but Verify." I support an anti-missile defense system for America and key allies such as Israel.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:

I advocate full disclosure of all contributions, tax deductions to small contributors of $250 or less, and that television networks provide free air time for candidates to communicate their views to the voters.

FARM ECONOMICS:

We must ensure that the American farmer has a level playing field in regard to global markets. We must initiate reform in programs such as crop insurance and disaster relief. We must eliminate excessive regulations and protect the small farmer.

REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:

I am opposed to partial birth abortions. I support the Pro-Life position.

END OF BALLOT

ROB SOBHANI, REPUBLICAN, AGE: 39
BACKGROUND:
[Not filled out.]
HEALTH CARE:
First, we must restore the doctor-patient bond. For the uninsured I propose Health Aid — like financial aid: Not a handout but a helping hand.
NUCLEAR WEAPONS:
America should be the last country to give up its nuclear arsenal.
CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:
I would champion TERM LIMITS as the most effective method of campaign reform.
FARM ECONOMICS:
I would link our farmers (in Maryland) to the global economy so as to ensure a long-term market for their goods.
REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:
I am against partial birth abortion and believe in parental consent for minors.

JOHN STAFFORD, REPUBLICAN, AGE: 56
BACKGROUND:
Traditional constitutional conservative. Working families-friendly. U.S. Senate, judicial, legal, law enforcement, economic, business, financial, journalism experience. Theological seminary. Vietnam Marine Corps service. Political expertise. Never beaten in debate! U.S. Senator pre-primary endorsements. Ancestors founded Howard and Anne Arundel Counties. Related by marriage ancestrally to Sen. Charles Carroll, first U.S. senator, Maryland...
HEALTH CARE:
All Americans have access to health care, albeit in costly emergency rooms. Greatest cause of high costs is "socialized medicine" — federal government involvement. Get Feds out of health care and cut associated taxes by +$300 billion. Then most Americans can pay their own way for these services. No constitutional ...
NUCLEAR WEAPONS:
"No to the CTBT." Need to maintain reliability and safety of nuclear arsenal. Morally oppose policy of warfare against civilians, but U.S. forced to build and maintain force by continuing atheist Communist threat against the Christian West. Communist dictatorships maintain huge nuclear force targeted on America, contrary to Clinton's lies...
CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:
This mutual extortion racket exists because the constitutional limits on the federal government have been massively, chronically violated by both parties (for decades). Huge federal honey pot attracts may flies. Cut federal spending of taxpayers' dollars by $800 billion annually ($400 billion is corporate welfare), and strengthen bribery statutes and ...
REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:
No woman (or man) has any "right" to "reproductive choice" — both have a God-given duty to bear and raise any child they conceive. And all life begins at conception. The phrase "reproductive choice" is a deception. Conversely, the child does have a God-given, natural, and constitutional right to life ...

KENNETH R. TIMMERMAN, REPUBLICAN, AGE: [not filled out]
BACKGROUND:
As a reporter with the American Spectator and Reader's Digest, I investigated the Clinton administration sell-off of high-technology to Communist China. My campaign will focus on rebuilding on national security, creating better educational opportunities for our children, and resolving the traffic logjam through innovative approaches such as telecommuting.
HEALTH CARE:
Congress can expand accessibility to health care by 1) making health plans offered by employers fully portable; 2) offering tax credits for taxpayers, and vouchers for low-income families, to purchase private health insurance, 3) allowing individuals and the self-employed to deduct the full cost of health insurance premiums.
NUCLEAR WEAPONS:
The CTBT was a fatally flawed treaty that would have compromised our nation's security for decades to come. Arms control among willing partners is useful; it is a delusion when expanded to rogue nations. Instead of another CTBT, we need to disarm rogue states such as Iraq, that pose ...
CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:
The limit on personal contributions remains fixed at $1,000 per election since it was first set in 1974, despite inflation. I favor bringing that threshold up to date. I would support a comprehensive ban on soft money from labor unions as well as from corporations, not one-sided legislation.
FARM ECONOMICS:
I favor the approach of the 1996 Freedom to Farm Act. The best thing the U.S. Congress and Maryland can do to help small farmers is to abolish the inheritance tax, so families who have been farming for generations can keep their acreage in their families.
REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:
My wife and I have 5 children. I find abortion personally and morally objectionable. I don't believe a child is a choice, but a gift from God. But as a conservative, I am also against federal intervention in our personal lives, with the exception of a ban on late term ...

KEN WAYMAN, REPUBLICAN, AGE: 53
BACKGROUND:
Live in Carroll County with wife, son, mother-in-law. High-tech entrepreneur for 13 years. Foreign service officer 1973-1981; Army officer Europe, Vietnam 1969-1972; disabled veteran; Bronze Star, Joint Service Commendation, Army Commendation Medals; B.S. Electrical Engineering; M.S. Business Administration; candidate U.S. Senate 1998 and vice chairman of Maryland State Republican Party 1999.
HEALTH CARE:
Medical Savings Accounts, complemented by private-sector catastrophic-coverage plans, should be made available to everyone. The self-employed should have full deductibility for health insurance. Working poor should retain transitional access to Medicaid. Private sector should provide alternative programs to Medicare and Medicaid. Seniors could buy additional coverage penalty-free.
NUCLEAR WEAPONS:
As a veteran, I fully support any activity to ensure that we remain in a state of control readiness to defend our country. The nuclear weapons test ban treaty would adversely impact our ability to ensure readiness and add nothing to our defense position vis-a-vis the adversaries we may face.
CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM:
The only campaign finance reform is "no cash and instant notification." Money will remain an issue as long as the government is controlled by career politicians and big-money special interest groups. The long-term solution? Get career politicians out of politics and keep government where it belongs in our lives.
FARM ECONOMICS:
As a businessman I know it's tough to run a successful, profitable business. But the government should not determine who succeeds and who fails. Taking money from one business and giving it to another is not "fair." That is corporate welfare — for small farms or for big business — and it must end.
REPRODUCTIVE CHOICE:
After seeing an early sonogram of my beautiful son, I realized on a deeply personal level that a fetus is a living human being. I could not watch my son kicking and punching and sucking his thumb without knowing he was alive. Since that time, I have been anti-abortion.

Basic Nursing Assistant Skills Course Slated

"Basic Nursing Skills for the Geriatric Aide and Nursing Assistant" will be offered by Garrett Community College in two parts beginning Monday, March 27. The theory portion of the course will meet Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of that week from 6:30 to 9:45 p.m. at the Mountain Glade Adult Day Services in Oakland. Students who successfully complete the theory portion will continue with a 40 hour on-site clinical portion, which will take place at a local long-term care facility.

Prior to beginning the course, interested persons must take a standardized Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) placement test. Individuals who score below a particular grade equivalency will be advised to enroll in remedial functional skills training. CNA placement testing is by appointment only on Wednesdays beginning March 8 at 3 and 4 p.m. There is no cost for placement testing. Individuals should report to Room CE-300, in the Continuing Education building, McHenry campus, 10 minutes before their scheduled test time. Potential students will be permitted to enroll in the CNA course after completing entrance placement testing.

New Maryland regulations require that anyone who performs nursing tasks delegated by a nurse for compensation must complete an approved CNA course of study and be certified by the Maryland Board of Nursing. Those individuals who work in long-term care facilities must, after completing the CNA course, successfully challenge the Maryland registry test and be certified as a geriatric nursing assistant by the Maryland Board of Nursing.

Topics for the course include the role and responsibilities of nursing assistants, common medical terms and abbreviations, major organs and body systems, ambulating devices, human growth and development, ethical and legal issues, and demonstration of various nursing assistant functions. Students must complete the theory portion of the course with a minimum grade of 80 percent in order to continue into the clinical portion. During the supervised clinical portion of the course, students will provide demonstrations of learned skills for evaluation against accepted standards.

There is an enrollment limit of 24 persons for this course, and enrollment is on a first-come, first-served basis. The cost is $325 for Garrett County residents, plus approximately $60 for texts. Residents from other areas pay an additional differential fee. Maryland senior citizens over 60 pay a reduced amount. For additional information or to schedule testing, persons may call Carol Newman of GCC's Continuing Education and Training Division at 301-387-3088.

Deep Creek Park Seeks Volunteers For New Group

Deep Creek Lake State Park, which includes the Yough" River Management Area and the new Discovery Center, is seeking people who are interested in serving as volunteers in a variety of positions that will be available all year. The mission of the group will be to "bring natural resources and people together through volunteerism," explained Todd Metz, ranger naturalist.

Individuals may choose to serve in educational programs, to work on park beautification projects, or maintain park trails. Opportunities will also be avilable for those who wish to focus on the children's interactive exploration room at the Discovery Center.

"We have volunteers who come in now to give campfire presentations. If anyone has an educational presentation and would like to volunteer to give it at the park, we would be very open to that. If someone wants to develop some new program to offer, we would be glad to hear about it," Metz said.

Park volunteers earn several benefits, including free admission to the park and all its programs and discounts on gift shop items.

"Though we have people who volunteer now, we have never formalized a volunteer group at this park. Other parks have such groups and these programs have been going on for years. We will be organizing this group, writing bylaws and becoming incorporated," Metz said.

The next meeting of the Deep Creek Lake State Park volunteers is scheduled for Thursday, March 9, 7 p.m., in the Discovery Center. For more information about the meeting or the volunteer program, persons may contact Metz at 301-387-7067 or at dclsp @mail2.gcnet.net.

Heidi Frazee Is Contestant For Miss Western Md.

A 17-year-old Friendsville resident will be among 10 young women who will compete in the annual Miss Washington County/Miss Western Maryland Scholarship Pageant, to be held this Saturday, Mar. 4, at 7 p.m. at Hagerstown Community College.

Heidi Frazee, daughter of Brenda Frazee, will be among those vying for a scholarship. She is a senior at Northern High School and her platform is "Working with Blind Children." Her talent presentation will be a vocal selection.

Over $5,000 will be awarded in scholarships, with each contestant receiving a scholarship. Two winners will be selected and will have the opportunity to compete in the Miss Maryland Scholarship Pageant, to be held in Hagerstown in June. Miss Washington County 2000 will be selected from those candidates who are residents of that county.

All contestants will compete in four areas: a private interview, talent, physical fitness in a swimsuit, and evening wear. The pageant is a part of the Miss Maryland and Miss America organizations.

Tickets cost $10 in advance and $12 at the door. For more information, persons may telephone 301-714-4968 after 5 p.m.

CONGRATULATING THE WINNER - Jennifer Sanders, a senior at Southern High School and daughter of Dennis and Linda Sanders of Oakland, received double congratulations recently for winning first place in the American Legion oratorical contest, both in the Oakland competition and again in the district contest. Jennifer's oration, titled "Constitutional Responsibilities of a True American Citizen," was delivered before judges at the American Legion Post #71, Oakland, in January. In this competition, second place was awarded to fellow SHS student Marianne Peracchio, daughter of Dorian and Carol Peracchio. Marianne's oration was titled "Our Rights Are Our Responsibilities." Jennifer took the district title February 12, and will compete against six other orators at the state level this Sunday, March 5. The competition will be held in the rotunda of the State House in Annapolis. The winner of the state competition will receive a $2,500 scholarship. Those who move on to the national level will compete for the first-prize $18,000 scholarship. In the photo above, from left are Carl Rebele, chairman for the Post 71 competition, Dennis and Linda Sanders, Jennifer, and Darvin Reckert, Mtn. District commander.

State Accused Of Hoarding Temporary Assistance Funds

by Nicole Morgan
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Maryland was sitting on $99.3 million in federal funds intended to assist low-income families at the end of the last fiscal year, according to a report by a coalition of advocates for poor people.

The report last Thursday by the National Campaign for Jobs and Income said that Maryland has failed to spend 15 percent of the $660 million in Temporary Assistance for Needy Families block grant funding it has received since 1996.

Of the unspent money the state was holding on Sept. 30, 1999, the coalition said Maryland had plans for $52.1 million, but had not yet spent it. The report said the state had not indicated how it planned to spend the remaining $47.2 million.

But a spokeswoman for the Maryland Department of Human Resources called the coalition's figures "outdated and inaccurate." Erlene Wilson conceded that there was $47.2 million in the bank on Oct. 1, but said "those monies are now being transferred" to programs to assist poor people.

A great deal of funding is being put into child care subsidies and programs for families headed by teenaged parents and grandparents, Wilson said. "Some funds are being allocated for after-school programs," she added.

The National Campaign for Jobs and Income, an initiative of the Washington-based Center for Community Change, said in its report Thursday that Maryland is one of 45 states that are depriving low-income earners of cash assistance they need from TANF.

The TANF program replaced the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program in 1996 as part of federal welfare reform. The new program is designed to give states more leeway in how they spend assistance funds, but critics charge there are loopholes that allow states to misuse funds.

"I think all Americans should be outraged that money that was supposed to go to low-income families is being diverted for other purposes," said Deepak Bhargava, director of the National Campaign for Jobs and Income. "It's not illegal, but Congress surely did not intend for this to happen.... It's just plain wrong."

He said that federal law lets the state transfer money from TANF to other anti-poverty programs geared toward curbing drug abuse and providing childcare. He agrees with those goals, but questioned the shifting of money.

Bhargava said the states are creating surpluses by saving the money that they used to spend out of their own treasuries, and allowing TANF funds to pay for those programs now. Most of the states then spend the saved money on programs that may not be beneficial to the poor population.

"In Maryland, they are doing two things," with that saved money, said Steve Bartolomei-Hill, of the Maryland Budget and Tax Policy Institute. He said the state is "putting money away for a rainy day, and ... also taking it away from welfare and spending in non-traditional welfare programs," such as state Department of Education grants for schools in disadvantaged neighborhoods.

"Are more people getting child care, or is the state reducing what it spends on child care and spending those moneys on other things?" he asked. "The state will likely dispute the numbers.... They will say they're old figures and they're not sitting on any money at all," said Bartolomei-Hill, whose organization monitors budget, tax policy, and issues that affect the state's "vulnerable population."

That is essentially what Wilson said, calling the issue a non-story and the report nothing more than "this group's take on what has occurred."

"There's nothing new here. We talked about this back in September," she said.

Bhargava said the report was released this week to put poverty issues on the national agenda. A lot of states are focusing on reducing the welfare rolls, but not on reducing the number of impoverished people, he said.

"We have the money, we know how to do it, it's just a question of political will," he said.

Dinners Set At Oakland Church

Saint Peter the Apostle Catholic Church has scheduled a series of fish dinners on Friday evenings from March 10 through April 14, 4:30 — 6:30 p.m. The dinners will take place in the parish hall, located at 208 S. Fourth Street, Oakland, every Friday of Lent, with the exception of Good Friday.

The menu includes deep fried haddock filet, macaroni and cheese, french fries, stewed tomatoes, applesauce, cole slaw, roll, drink, and homemade dessert. The cost is $6 for adults and $4 for children under 12, and carryouts will be available. All proceeds will benefit St. Peter's 150th Anniversary Fund.

Sen. Hatch Talks About Family Farm Survival

While conceding that he did not have all of the answers to the substantial economic problems facing American agriculture, Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, offered some ideas to delegates and members attending the 98th annual convention of the National Farmers Union (NFU) recently in Salt Lake City, UT.

Hatch, who dropped his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination after the New Hampshire primary, said vertical and horizontal integration in agribusiness is posing a serious threat to the survival of family farms and ranches. "I don't know if federal anti-trust laws are being broken, but you have a problem when there is only one potential buyer for agricultural products in a region."

The Senate Judiciary Committee chairman said the panel would be holding hearings to determine if current anti-trust laws are being fully enforced and are adequate to meet the needs of producers as well as consumers. Federal rules prohibiting the interstate sale of state inspected meats are "stifling competition," Hatch declared. "These rules are exacerbating concentration. It doesn't make sense to allow internationally inspected meats full access to U.S. markets, but deny access for state-inspected meats."

Noting the importance of cooperation across party lines, the Utah Republican said the Interstate Distribution bill he has authored with Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., would give smaller, state-inspected meat packing plants access to interstate markets.

Hatch said Canadian dumping in U.S. markets has clearly victimized American cattlemen, and he said he supported the Ranchers Cattlemen Action Legal Foundation (R-CALF) petition seeking imposition of countervailing tariffs. "Trade can only be free, if it is fair," he declared.

Hatch agreed with the need to reform federal crop insurance, making it more affordable and expanding coverage to additional crops. He also said agricultural producers would benefit from repeal of federal capital gains and estate taxes.

Farming In Maryland.....

Number Of Hired Workers Down, Wage Rates Up

Reports show that there were 836,000 hired workers on the nation's farms and ranches the week of January 9-15, down 3% from a year ago. The National Agricultural Statistics Service said there were 666,000 workers hired directly by farm operators. Agricultural service employees working on farms and ranches made up the remaining 170,000 workers. Migrant workers accounted for 7.3% of the January hired workforce, compared to 6% last year.

Farm operators paid their hired workers an average wage of $8.12 per hour during the January 2000 survey week, up 18 cents from a year earlier. Field workers received an average of $7.32 per hour, up 9 cents from last January. Livestock workers earned $7.64 per hour compared with $7.31 a year earlier. The field and livestock worker combined wage rate was up 18 cents from last year.

Number of hours worked averaged 38.2 hours for hired workers during the survey week compared with 38.1 hours a year ago.

The largest increases in number of hired farm workers over last year occurred in the Mountain I (Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming), Mountain II (Colorado, Nevada, and Utah), Mountain III (Arizona and New Mexico), Northern Plains (North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Kansas), and Corn Belt I (Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio) regions. In Mountain I and II regions, warm weather gave farm workers more time for general farm maintenance and tending to livestock during the survey week. Calving and lambing were also beginning in these regions.

In Mountain III, record high temperatures allowed farmers to work in fields and nurseries, prune orchards, and irrigate wheat where needed. Dry, mild weather in the Northern Plains and Corn Belt I regions gave farmers more opportunities for land preparation in advance of spring planting, equipment cleaning and repairs, hauling grain, and moving livestock.

The largest declines in number of hired farm workers from a year ago were in the California, Northeast I (New England and New York), Southeast (Alabama, Georgia, and South Carolina), and Pacific (Oregon and Washington) regions.

In California, heavy rains moved into the northern part of the state, and some light rainfall was reported in central and southern areas of the state during the survey week, which generally led to fewer field workers throughout the state. Heavy snow, accompanied by sharply colder weather, spread into the Northeast I region during the survey week, reducing farm activities.

In the Southeast, the survey week was characterized by rainfall early in the week followed by a late week cold front, leading to less farm activity. In the Pacific region, frequent storms brought excessive rains to the coast and heavy snows on the Cascades. As a result, fewer farm workers were reported in the region during the survey week.

Hired farm worker wage rates were above a year ago in most regions. The largest increases occurred in the Northeast I and Corn Belt I regions. The higher wages were generally attributable to higher paid workers retained on the payroll during the winter months in these regions.

Regions showing declines in the hired farm worker wage rates were Mountain II, Appalachian I (North Carolina and Virginia), Appalachian II (Kentucky, Tennessee, and West Virginia), and Hawaii. Slight declines in the hired wage rates resulted from additional seasonal workers added to the payrolls in Mountain II; fewer higher paid, full-time workers reported in Appalachian I; and seasonal workers still stripping tobacco in Appalachian II.

'99 Annual Milk Production Up 3.4% from 1998

According to the USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS), the annual production of milk for the U.S. during 1999 was 162.7 billion pounds, 3.4% above 1998. This was the third consecutive year of increased milk production and a new record high. Revisions to 1998 production decreased the annual total by less than 0.1%. Revised 1999 production was also down by less than 0.1% from last month's publication.

Production per cow in the U.S. averaged 17,771 pounds for 1999, 582 pounds above 1998. Average annual rate of milk production per cow has increased 20% since 1990.

The average number of milk cows on farms in the U.S. during 1999 was 9.16 million head, down slightly from 1998. Average number of milk cows was revised down 4,000 head for 1998 and 2,000 head for 1999 from the previous estimate.

Broiler Project To Begin For County Youth

Garrett County youth 8 to 18 years of age by Jan. 1, 2000, are invited to participate in the 2000 Youth Broiler Project sponsored by Southern States Oakland Cooperative and the Maryland Cooperative Extension 4-H Program.

Southern States Oakland Cooperative will provide 20 broiler-type chicks to each participant to raise for seven to eight weeks. Orders are due no later than March 17. Baby chicks will arrive in mid-April, and the project ends in June.

Project completion includes submitting a feed and management record, and exhibiting two bird samples.

Those who wish to participate or need additional information may call the Garrett County Extension Office at 301-334-6960.

Farming For Profit And Stewardship Conference Set

Farming for Profit and Stewardship, a conference focusing on farming in the Mid-Atlantic region, will be held March 10-11 at the Ramada Inn Convention Center in Hagerstown. Sponsored by Future Harvest — Chesapeake Alliance for Sustainable Agriculture, Maryland Cooperative Extension and Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, ARS, USDA, the two-day conference will highlight how farmers can tap new markets, fully utilize on-farm resources, work cooperatively to increase profits, add value to products, and conduct on-farm research.

The registration fee is $40 per person and includes Friday's dinner and Saturday's lunch and refreshments. To register, those interested may call Bruce Mertz at 301-405-8762 or Jim Hanson at 301-405-7992.

Dairy Products Price Highlights Reported By NASS

Farmers Face Steep Fuel Prices In 2000

Rising fuel and oil prices will cost farmers an estimated $1 billion in increased expenses this year, according to the editors of @griculture Online Express, a weekly Internet reporting service. Another news service, Reuters, said estimates peg farmers' production costs at $7.4 billion this year compared to $6.4 billion last year. Crude oil prices have skyrocketed to 10-year highs of $30 a barrel because of tight OPEC controls on production.

Iowa Senator Chuck Grassley asked the White House to reconsider foreign aid plans to OPEC nations and to take a tougher stand with OPEC allies like Saudi Arabia.

U.S. Red Meat Production Down

Commercial red meat production for the United States totaled 3.78 billion pounds in January 2000, down 1% from the 3.83 billion pounds produced in January 1999, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS).

Beef production, at 2.18 billion pounds, was slightly above the previous year. Cattle slaughter totaled 2.94 million head, down 1% from 1999. The average live weight was up 9 pounds from the previous year, at 1,229 pounds.

Veal production totaled 17.0 million pounds, 2% below January a year ago and equal to the previous record low for January set in 1998. Calf slaughter totaled 93 thousand head, down 12% from January 1999. The average live weight was 33 pounds above last year, at 311 pounds.

Pork production totaled 1.57 billion pounds, down 4% from the previous year. Hog kill totaled 8.14 million head, 5% below 1999. The average live weight was 3 pounds above the previous year, at 262 pounds.

Lamb and mutton production, at 19.0 million pounds, was up 7% from January 1999.

Small Farmers,

Cultivating For The Future

by Bernice Kepple, farm editor

The unseasonably warm weather we've been experiencing not only gave us a welcome relief from winter, it made us impatiently long for and begin planning for spring. Here on the mountaintop we know it's way too early to start planting, but we can think about it! There's a lot of preparation and planning that can be done before spring is here for good. It always helped me to be patient if I could keep my mind occupied until I could actually get down on my knees in the dirt and get my hands occupied.

For me, one of the best tools I own for the work I do now is the home computer. Granted, my work doesn't include being in the great outdoors anymore, but I think even those who will be outdoors doing spring work would find the computer to be a good research and planning tool, one you will learn to depend upon more and more for ideas, answers, and yes, enjoyment. A good web site I've found to help gardeners, especially new gardeners, plan ahead is www.vg.com, or Virtual Garden.

One of the first and most important things gardeners should do is determine what growing zone they're in. At Virtual Garden all that is necessary is to enter a zip code and it will give you the zone. Here in Garrett County we are in Zone 6, but since we border on Zone 5 and because of our elevation, we should consider combining information from both to be safe. Zone 6 indicates a minimum temperature of -10 degrees F, while Zone 5 can experience -20 to -10 degrees F minimums. Zone 6's southern latitude bestows a long growing season and milder climate than Zone 5. It begins along the coasts of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, and northern New Jersey, then extends southwest through the country's midsection to northern Texas. In the West, Zone 6 includes parts of Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Nevada, Oregon, and Washington, then extends narrowly north along the coast of Alaska, sort of an inverted rainbow. Eastern gardeners contend with humidity, while in the West dry heat and a lack of rainfall are the gardening challenges. Zone 5 gardeners experience colder winters, but benefit from an ocean influence across Newfoundland and Nova Scotia and along the seacoast of Maine and New Hampshire. The zone continues through western Massachusetts and midstate New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, much of Michigan, southern Iowa and Nebraska, northern Missouri and Kansas, and eastern Colorado. In the interior West, this zone forms a patchwork pattern that extends from New Mexico into British Columbia, the southern Alaskan coast, and the Aleutians. I mention all of this because sometimes I think it's hard to imagine that these far-reaching parts of our nation have the same temperatures we do and can grow the same kinds of plants.

Frost dates are another important factor to determine before planting, although we know here in Garrett County frost can sneak up on us almost any time of the year. A frost is defined as a light freeze, between 29 to 32 degrees F. The amount of damage to plants depends on the duration of the freezing temperature, as well as the degree. During a light freeze, tender plants may be killed with little destructive effect on more hardy vegetation. The Virtual Garden site warns that there is a 10 percent probability that a temperature of 32 degrees will occur in spring later than the date listed, and the same probability that a temperature of 32 degrees will occur in fall earlier than the date listed. Then it lets you pick your state to find out what those dates are. I thought, "Sure, Garrett County is going to be listed with the rest of Maryland and I know that won't be accurate." But, the state is broken down into six regions, by cities, listing Baltimore the warmest and Oakland the coldest, with the last spring frost date of June 5 and the first fall frost date of September 10.

The site also has a suggested "to do" list for each month for each zone. The February "to do" list for both Zones 5 and 6 is to order seeds, sow seeds for hardy spring blooming plants, sow seeds for cool weather vegetables, and sow frost-tolerant perennials indoors. The important thing for us here on the mountaintop is to take any advice from any reference with a "grain of salt." Use your own common sense and experience before planting anything, though, no matter what any book, farmer's almanac, or computer might tell you, and remember that no matter how impatient you may get, you're better safe than sorry.

But for pure enjoyment this time of the year, Virtual Garden offers beautifully colored garden pictures, topics about gardening basics, suggested weekend projects, and gardening with the kids. So if you don't have a computer, pick a cold day to visit a computer-owning friend or go to the library and enjoy a virtual spring from Virtual Garden.

NFU Says Clinton Proposal Is Only A Good Start

The Clinton administration's budget proposal to strengthen the farm safety net is a good starting point, but more will be needed to fully address the depth of the farm crisis, including additional emergency funding in 2000, said the National Farmers Union (NFU).

The proposal, released Feb. 2, earmarks an additional $11 billion over two years to provide income assistance, expand conservation programs, improve risk management and expand economic opportunities in rural areas.

"The administration's budget proposal is a place to start, but more will be needed to turn the farm economy around," said NFU president Leland Swenson. "For two years, Congress has used a band-aid approach to deal with the farm crisis and has neglected the underlying structural flaws in the farm program. We will not see a true recovery in rural America without a substantial commitment of resources and significant policy changes."

NFU has urged Congress to implement an adequate counter-cyclical farm safety net that is equitable to all producers, regardless of region or commodity. The group also has called for higher loan rates, improved marketing tools, such as a limited farmer-owned grain reserve, and expanded conservation programs, including a short-term conservation diversion. NFU is also seeking policy changes to address planting distortions caused by flaws in the Freedom to Farm act.

The organization added that any improvements Congress makes to the farm program in 2000 may come too late to assist farmers and ranchers, and that additional short-term funds will likely be needed. "We urge Congress to build on the administration's proposal in crafting an adequate response to the farm crisis," said Swenson. "We look forward to working with the administration and Congress to craft a farm program that gives family farmers and ranchers the opportunity to receive a fair price from the market, not from government programs."

U.S. Cattle On Feed Up 10%

The National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) reports that cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in the United States for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 11.58 million head on Feb. 1, 2000. The inventory was 10% above Feb. 1, 1999, and 7% above Feb. 1, 1998.

Placements in feedlots during January totaled 2.23 million, 15% above 1999 and 29% above 1998. Net placements were 2.16 million. During January, placements of cattle and calves weighing less than 600 pounds were 494,000, 600-699 pounds were 696,000, 700-799 pounds were 654,000, and 800 pounds and greater were 382,000.

Marketings of fed cattle during January totaled 2.05 million, 1% above 1999 and 3% above 1998.

Fresh Market Vegetables Show Slight Increase

Fresh market vegetable production increased 5% in 1999. Production of major vegetable commodities totaled 2.61 million hundredweight (cwt.), down from 2.49 million cwt. in 1998.

Cucumber, green pea, strawberry, tomato and watermelon productions were down, while production of all other crops remained unchanged or increased.

Yields of lima beans, cabbage, cantaloupes, sweet corn, greens, pumpkins, spinach, squash, turnips, and watermelons all increased from the previous year. Harvested acreage also increased 5% from 1998, totaling 29,990 acres. Growers were forced to use irrigation equipment when drought persisted during a majority of the growing season, but insect and disease problems were minimized by the dry conditions.

Mountain Lake Park Observer

by Dan Whittelsey

It is not my intention to devote this column to struggles between the residents of Mountain Lake Park and their government. The town council stands ready to address any problems a resident may have.

However, the matter of a burnt house is a perfect case of a demand and desire for correction of a problem and the rights of any citizen to be protected from any capricious acts of town officials.

But first the facts: burnt house, 209 D Street; owners Concetta Burns and William Boyce; date of fire, March 16, 1999. Paul Shockey becomes mayor of Mountain Lake Park in July 1999. Fire marshal orders premises boarded up and "No Trespassing" sign posted.

The current condition is a house only partially boarded up, and there is no "No Trespassing" sign posted. The building is a real eye-sore and dangerous. Black smoke marks above the windows and other signs of fire damage inside and out are evidence that the fire was caused by faulty wiring. The structure was being leased at the time of the fire. No one was injured.

At the time Mayor Shockey was elected, he promised Ms. Connie Simmons he would correct the situation. Then he found out that he did not have the power to do anything because previous administrations had neglected to create an ordinance that would give power to the mayor and town council to act in such a situation.

This is a classic case in which the town council needs to act, and act on the rightful request of a resident, but cannot because there is no law empowering the town council. On the other hand, there are the rights of the property owners.

It was at this point that the mayor and town council asked the town attorney to draft a Dangerous Building Ordinance. This was done and the ordinance was passed December 14, 1999.

Along with the ordinance, the town attorney offered advice to the mayor and town council on how to proceed legally. This document is very interesting. It is four pages long and states in great detail the extreme care our town officials must take when it comes to forcing any property owner to do anything with his/her property.

Procedure (a summary)
Ordinance 99-5,
Dangerous Building

Initially, the mayor and a certified building inspector must survey the whole town of Mountain Lake Park and consult with the town attorney on their findings of dangerous buildings. The ordinance gives the mayor and the inspector the right to have access to not only the surrounding property, but also to the interior of the building. If the building is occupied, then a court order is required to gain entry.

If the mayor and the building inspector find such dangerous buildings in violation of the ordinance, then this is to be reported to the town clerk, who is then to give written notice to the owner, lessee, and party holding the mortgage.

Within 10 days of the above notice given by the town clerk, the town council should meet to hold a "show cause" hearing, which allows the owner or other interested parties to respond.

Within five days of the "show cause" hearing, the town council will make a written "Findings of Fact" that certain buildings are dangerous buildings and must be vacated, repaired, or demolished. The town clerk will advise all interested parties and advise them what must be done.

For all of the above steps there are time constraints that must be met by all concerned.

If the order of the town council is not complied with, then the town council must carry out the order. All costs incurred should be carefully kept and leveed against the property, the same as any other tax.

Finally, the town attorney advises that failure to comply with this order may cause the owner to face criminal charges or civil action.

After reading this I am sure you will agree with me that the mayor, town council, clerk, and town attorney will be scrupulous in considering the rights of the residents of Mountain Lake Park in any ordinance or other acts the town council may pass.

The owners of the aforementioned property could quickly settle this matter by correcting the conditions and appearance of 209 D Street. It would save the taxpayers a considerable amount of money and make your neighbors forever grateful.

The next meeting of the town council is 6 p.m., March 14, at the Town Hall. The next meeting of the Planning Commission is at 6:30 p.m., March 8.

4-H Club News

TRAILBLAZERS
by Sarah Cosner

The Trailblazers 4-H meeting was held February 17 at Yough Glades Elementary School. There were four new members: Jeff, Jessica, and John Simson and Amanda Rubis. Diana Mayfield talked about Achievement Night. We also discussed the Southern boys' basketball game on February 22. All the proceeds will go to our 4-H member, Cody Ferguson. Everyone was asked to try to attend. We also voted to make a donation.

Ryan Sines, Diana and Susan Mayfield, Angie Beckman, Erin, Nick, Carey, and Jenna Rush, Sarah and Jennifer Cosner, Emily and Erica Green, and Travis Sines gave speeches. Everyone was encouraged to participate in the County Public Speaking Contest. Jenna, Nick, Carey, and Erin Rush served refreshments.

Our next meeting will be held on March 19 at Par-Matt Lanes from 6 to 6:30 p.m. From 6:30 to 9 p.m. we will have a bowling party.

RED HOUSE
by Stephanie Brenneman

The February meeting of the Red House 4-H Club included a club trip vote that decided upon a visit to Sea World and Six Flags Theme Park. The Cussins family gave a hoagie sale update. A vote was taken on the prices for the club's annual spaghetti dinner, which will take place Saturday, March 18, from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. All-you-can-eat spaghetti will be served, along with a salad, roll, and dessert.

Two club members and two adults attended the county 4-H council meeting. The club will be making a donation to Adam J. Herbert for his walk for the American Lung Association. The club will organize the food for the annual 4-H Achievement Night on Saturday, April 15. Seven club members and three adults participated in the 4-H Ski Day at the Wisp.

Rachel and Daniel Skipper recited the 4-H motto and pledge. Livestock Association attendance requirements were discussed. Rachel Skipper, Jordan Skipper, and Adam Sanders presented demonstrations. A club bowling activity was organized by Stacy and Michelle Holler. The Cloverbuds presented their craft to the club members, and the meeting came to a close.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING GARRETT COUNTY COMMISSIONERS DEER PARK SANITARY DISTRICT PROPOSED BOUNDARY CHANGE

Notice is hereby given that the County Commissioners of Garrett County will hold a public hearing on Thursday, March 16, 2000, at 6 p.m. at the Deer Park Town Hall located at 100 Church Street, Deer Park, Maryland, to consider a proposed change in the boundaries of the existing "Deer Park Sanitary District."

In a Resolution adopted on February 7, 2000, the Garrett County Sanitary Commission, pursuant to Section 9-648 of the Health-Environmental Article of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1996 Replacement Volume), proposed to change the boundaries of the Deer Park Sanitary District for the purpose of excluding those residents who do not receive sewage system service in the Deer Park Sanitary District. A copy of the Resolution of the Garrett County Sanitary Commission adopted February 7, 2000, and the plat showing the boundaries of the proposed service area are on file in the office of the Garrett County Sanitary District, 313 East Alder Street, Old Courthouse, Room 200, Oakland, Maryland, and are available for public inspection during normal business hours.

The Garrett County Sanitary Commission will present information regarding the proposed boundary change. Interested persons will be heard at the public hearing on March 14, 2000, to determine if the change in boundaries of the Deer Park Sanitary District is necessary for the public health, safety, and welfare of the residents of the proposed service area and is feasible financially and from an engineering and taxing standpoint.

Said property is more commonly known as 987 Blooming Rose Road, Friendsville, Maryland, and consists of 7.24 acres, more or less, and is improved by a ranch style residential structure. This property will be sold subject to the purchase money deed of trust of American Trust Bank, N.A., in the original principal amount of $32,000 dated December 4, 1996, and is superior to the Deed of Trust being foreclosed upon.

TERMS OF SALE

The property and the improvements thereon will be sold in an "AS IS" condition and subject to prior conveyances, conditions, restrictions, liens and agreements of record affecting the same, if any. Neither the Substitute Trustee, the Beneficiary, nor their respective agents, successors or assigns make any warranty or representation either expressed or implied, with respect to the property including, but not limited to, description, use, recorded or unrecorded leases or other occupancy agreements, if any, improvements, physical conditions, zoning, building codes compliance, merchantability, or title. The purchaser is responsible for the property and the improvements described above are sold subject to any environmental matter or condition, whether latent or observable, that may exist at or affect or relate to the property and the improvements and to any governmental requirements affecting the same.

A cash or certified check deposit in the amount of $10,000.00, shall be paid by the purchaser (other than the Beneficiary, its successors or assignees) at the time and place of sale. The balance of the purchase price shall be paid in cash or by certified check at settlement (except that if the Beneficiary, its successors or assigns is the purchaser, a credit will be allowed for the debt) which shall be twenty (20) business days after final ratification of the sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, unless said period is extended by the Substitute Trustee, his successors or assigns for good cause shown, time being of the essence. Failure of the purchaser to settle in a timely manner will result in the resale of the property at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser or forfeiture of the deposit at the election of the Substitute Trustee, who reserves all legal and equitable remedies available to him. Interest at the rate of ten percent (10%) per annum shall be paid on unpaid purchase money from the date of sale to the date the funds are received in the office of the Substitute Trustee.

Taxes, water and rent to be adjusted to date of sale. All other public and private charges and assessments payable on an annual basis shall be adjusted to date of sale and assumed thereafter by purchaser. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes, document preparation and title insurance shall be paid by purchaser. Purchaser shall have the responsibility of obtaining possession of the property. If the Substitute Trustee is unable to convey good and marketable title, purchaser's sole remedy in law or equity shall be limited to the refund of that purchaser's deposit to the purchaser. Upon refund of the deposit, this sale shall be void and of no effect, and purchaser shall have no further claim against the Substitute Trustee, the Beneficiary, or their successors and assigns.

The Substitute Trustee reserves the unqualified right to reject any and all offers.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF INTENT TO RELEASE OF FUNDS

The purpose of this Notice is it identify actions to be taken by Garrett County Board of Commissioners (Name of Grantee).

On or about March 20, 2000, the above named Garrett County Board of Commissioners will request that the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development release funds from the Small Cities Community Development Block Grant Program to be used for the following project:

Project Title: Shallmar/Crellin Flood Mitigation Project

Purpose of Project: Give property owner the opportunity to vacate the floodway

Location: Shallmar & Crellin, Garrett County, Maryland

Finding of No Significant Impact

Notice is hereby given that the above named municipality has prepared an Environmental Review Record on the project(s) described in this Notice and has determined that said project(s) will have no significant effect on the quality of the human environment. No further environmental review of said project(s) is proposed prior to requesting Release of Funds.

The Finding of No Significant Impact is based on the following:

The project will improve the environment, and help to reduce the safety and health risk faced by the residents of these communities caused by periodic flooding.

The Environmental Review Record which documents the Environmental Review of these project(s) is available for public examination at the offices of the Garrett County Community Action Committee at 104 East Center Street during the hours between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Fridays.

Public Comments on Finding

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments respecting the environmental impacts of the described project(s) to the offices of Garrett County Community Action Committee and to the Department of Housing and Community Development. All such comments must be received no later than 3/20/00. All comments will be considered and the Garrett County Community Action Committee will not request the release of funds nor take any action on the project(s) prior to this date.

Request for Release of Funds

The Garrett County Board of Commissioners will undertake the project(s) described above with Small Cities Community Development Block Grant funds. This Notice also certifies that Wendell Seltzel, serving in the official capacity of Chairperson of Board, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is to be brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and certifies that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the Garrett County Board of Commissioners may use the Small Cities Community Development Block Grant funds, and also the Department of Housing and Community Development will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

Objections to Release of Funds

Objections to the release of funds will be accepted by the Department of Housing and Community Development only if it is on one of the following basis: (a) that the certification was not in fact executed by the Certifying Officer; or (b) that the Garrett County Board of Commissioners Environmental Review Record for the project(s) indicated omission of a required decision finding or step applicable to the program in the Environmental Review Process; or (c) no opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its Executive Officer to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the Nation Register of Historic Places, or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 36 CFR Part 800 (d) Objections by a Federal Agency. All interested agencies, groups and persons, disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments to the Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. and to the SCCDBG Program Manager, MD Department of Housing and Community Development, 100 Community Place, Crownsville, Maryland 21032-2023. All such comments must be received no later than March 20, 2000.

PUBLIC NOTICES

INVITATION TO BID
NORTHERN GARRETT INDUSTRIAL PARK WATER SYSTEM IMPROVEMENTS

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners will accept sealed bids for Water System improvements at the Northern Garrett Industrial Park.

A pre-bid meeting will be held at 10:00 a.m. on Wednesday, March 8, 2000 at the Grantsville Town Hall, 171 Hill Street, Grantsville, Maryland 21536.

This project consists of furnishing all labor, equipment, and materials to construct one (1) 400,000 gallon pre-cast, pre-stressed concrete water storage tank meeting AWWAD-110, Type III requirements and having a diameter of 60 feet and water storage side wall depth of 20 feet, tank inlet, outlet and drain piping, and minor site work consisting of clearing and grubbing site grading, entrance driveway, future building pad grading, sediment and erosion controls and seeding and mulching.

The Contractor will be required to complete and submit a project schedule with the Proposal Form Packet in order to ensure that all construction be completed in one hundred eighty (180) calendar days after Notice to Proceed. All Contractors bidding this project must be pre-qualified by having built a minimum of twenty (20) AWWAD-110 Type III, or other alternate approved type, concrete water storage tanks. The Contractor will be required to pay employees Davis-Bacon prevailing wages during the life of the Contract.

Contractors wishing to submit an Alternate Concrete Tank Type bid may do so by submitting a request for Substitution no less than two (2) weeks before the bids are due and shall be in accordance with the requirements of Section 01630-Substitutions contained in the Specifications, Proposal and Contract Documents.

A Performance Bond and Payment Bond in the full amount of the accepted bid will be required of the successful bidder. A Bid Bond in that amount of 5% of the bid amount must accompany each submitted bid.

Sealed bids must be submitted to the Procurement Division of the Garrett County Administrative Office, 313 East Alder Street, Room 105, Oakland, Maryland 21550 on or before Tuesday, March 21, 2000 at 1:30 p.m. (local time). Sealed bids will be publicly opened and read aloud in the Commissioners Meeting Room at 2:00 p.m. (local time) on March 21, 2000. All bids must be submitted in duplicate and should be enclosed in a sealed envelope and clearly marked "Northern Garrett Industrial Park Water System Improvements- Water Storage Tank and Site Work- Contract No. 2."

Copies of the Contract Documents may be obtained from the office of the Engineer, SPECS, Inc., 105 S. Centre Street, Suite 100, Cumberland, MD 21502. The cost for the plans and specifications is $75.00 and is non-refundable. All out of town contractors must pre-pay for shipping and the cost of the plans.

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids and waive technicalities in any part thereof deemed to be in the best interest of Garrett County.

Raley Candidate For Republican Nat'l Convention

James M. Raley of Frostburg (Finzel) is a candidate in next Tuesday's primary election for delegate to the Republican National Convention from the 6th Congressional District of Maryland. Raley is currently not slated with any candidate for president.

An elected member of the Garrett County Board of Education, Raley is also a candidate for re-election in an uncontested race for the seat he currently holds on the board. "As an educator and school board member, I proudly support the principles of the Republican Party and hope to work to move the party to a more inclusive representation of voters throughout the nation," Raley said. Raley applauds the effort to include Independents in this primary.

"The Republican Congress has worked tirelessly with the current president to bring about a much needed change in this nation, and Republicans have led the charge," stated Raley, who supports tax reform while retaining funding for key social and education programs.

While Raley has not committed to any of the Republican candidates, he says he remains a strong believer that Republicans will fare well in the upcoming primaries. "The 6th District of Maryland remains a strong Republican area, and voters need to show strong support of our candidates in the March 7th primary," he said.

In addition to being a teacher and elected school board member, Raley is a community activist, having served for 10 years as a volunteer fire chief and currently serving as president of the Garrett County Volunteer Fire and Rescue Association. He has been involved in union and labor organization, having served the local and state teachers' organizations. He has been actively involved in the Program Open Space program within the Finzel community.

Raley concluded, "If you want a representative who believes in a vision for the Republican Party in Maryland and this nation, I ask for your support and vote in the Republican primary on March 7."

Local National Gd. Commander Takes New Post

Captain Francis J. Coulters is leaving Company B 121st Engineers, Md. Army National Guard, located in Cumberland and Oakland, to assume responsibilities with the 121st Engineers Battalion located in Ellicott City as the staff officer in the S-1 section. He will assist the executive officer on matters concerning personnel in the 500-soldier battalion. His responsibilities will include pay, benefits, promotions, transfers, and other issues of personnel concern.

Cpt. Coulters has been replaced by Cpt. R. Weedon Gallagher, who had served as the battalion plans officer in long-range training and state projects.

Cpt. Coulters served as commander of the Company B 121st Engineers from 1995 to 1999. He had enlisted in the United States Coast Guard in May 1977 and was honorably discharged in 1983. He enlisted in the Mississippi National Guard in 1989, graduated from the Officers Candidate School as a second lieutenant, and was assigned as a platoon leader with Company C 890th Engineer Battalion. He enlisted in the Maryland Army National Guard in April 1994 as a platoon leader with Company C 121st Engineers in Oakland.

Coulters' decorations include the Army Achievement Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, Coast Guard Meritorious Unit Commendation Medal, Coast Guard Good Conduct Medal, Army Reserve Component Achievement Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Armed Forces Reserve Medal, Army Service Ribbon, Reserve Component Overseas Training Ribbon with Second Award, Maryland Outstanding Unit Ribbon, Virginia Commendation Ribbon, Mississippi Commendation Medal, Mississippi War Medal, Mississippi Longevity Medal, Mississippi Service School Ribbon, and the Army Commendation Medal.

Coulters is a member of the National Guard Association of the United States and the National Guard Association of Maryland. He is a graduate of the Army Combined Arms and Services Staff School, Engineer Basic, and Advanced Officers school. He graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi with a bachelor of science degree in geology.

Coulters resides in Abingdon with his wife Mellissa and their two sons, Bradley and Chase.

Local Student Joins Fraternity

John Charles Ortiz, son of Olia and Mercedes Ortiz, Oakland, has been initiated into Beta Theta Pi by the chapter at Eastern Kentucky University. He is a graduate of Southern High School.

Beta Theta Pi, which was founded in 1839 at Miami (Ohio) University, is dedicated to scholarship, brotherhood, and community service. The fraternity has more than 115,000 members, including some 7,000 collegians on 137 campuses in Canada and the United States. The Eastern Kentucky chapter was founded in 1971. Other Beta chapters in Kentucky include University of Louisville and Centre College.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Air Force Tech. Sgt. Scott A. Thomas has graduated from the Air Force Noncommissioned Officer (NCO) Academy at McGuire Air Force Base, Trenton, N.J.

The graduate received instruction in advanced military leadership and management theories and responsibilities; physical fitness and conditioning, oral and written communications skills, supervisory roles relative to the Air Force mission and organization; human behavior concepts and problem solving, including counseling techniques and orienting new personnel in the principles, practices, and tools necessary to operate in the Air Force.

Thomas is an emergency actions sergeant assigned to the U.S. Strategic Command at Offutt Air Force Base, Omaha, Neb.

He is the son of George A. and Edith V. Thomas of 1040 Frazee Ridge Road, Friendsville. His wife Karen is the daughter of James Quinn and Beverly Quinn, both of Levittown, Pa.

The sergeant is a 1982 graduate of Harry S. Truman High School, Levittown.

Thank you to the good samaritans who stopped and assisted at the scene of the accident after my vehicle skidded on black ice Dec. 15, 1999, on Table Rock Road. I would also like to thank Southern Rescue Squad, Gorman Volunteer Fire Department, Garrett Memorial Hospital employees for the care given me, those who offered prayers, sent cards, flowers, made home and hospital visits, and those who brought friendship gifts, monetary gifts, groceries, and prepared meals.

May God bless each of you.

NO, THE STATION IS NOT BEING TORN DOWN — A "Back to the Future" sign was placed on the Oakland train station this week after the town hall received numerous calls from people concerned that the landmark was being torn down. The station is actually getting a long-awaited facelift, a dream Mayor Asa McCain and much of the town's citizenry. The project, which involves the restoration of the 1884 structure to its original appearance, is being funded through private donations, grant funding, and Program Open Space money. The refurbishment is to be complete by Oct. 7 of this year, just in time for the Autumn Glory Festival. Donations are always welcome to help defray the cost of the project, and can be directed to the town hall. For information, persons may call that office at 301-334-2691.

GC's Financial Status Upgraded; Outlook Positive

Moody's Investors Service in New York, the company that examines the county's financial stability, has upgraded the underlying rating on Garrett County's $8 million of outstanding general obligation bonds from Baa3 to Baa2. This rating indicates a stable financial outlook, according to the Moody report, and "reflects the county's improved financial performance and stronger margins."

With this report, the county's triple-A insured rating is maintained.

The report states that "because of conservative budgeting and strong management, the county will continue to display the consistently positive financial results that have characterized it in recent years."

The improvement began in 1995, according to the report, when new policies were instituted to address the financial imbalances that had led to a negative General Fund balance of $5,000. Since that year, the county has recorded four consecutive years of operating surpluses. By the end of fiscal year 1999, it had achieved a General Fund balance of over $3.7 million, the report states.

The county now has a policy of maintaining the fund balance at a minimum 5 percent of General Fund revenues. Other measures that Moody's report notes as helpful in the county's improvement include a $2.5 million increase in the property tax rate, improved monitoring of expenditures and enforcement of budget caps, and the budgeting policy that matches expenditures to available revenues. This policy was enacted in 1997 and began with FY 1998 under the leadership of then-commissioners Roger Glotfelty, Gary Fratz, and Wayne Wilt, and county administrator Monty Pagenhardt.

The report also notes that the county's debt burden, currently at 1.1 percent, will remain manageable because of the fiscal authority's "limited borrowing plans for the near future." The only such plans, according to the report, are for a $1.5 million rural development loan sometime this fall to fund the county's

TONIGHT'S NEWSNIGHT MARYLAND PROGRAM, to be aired at 7 p.m. on Maryland Public Television (local channel 16), is scheduled to feature a segment on the Mountain Arts Cooperative, a local organization of Appalachian artisans that has won an invitation to a prestigious European art show. The group's formation was a project of MicroWorks, a program of the Garrett Community Action Committee. Mikal McCartney, director of MicroWorks, is pictured above as she is interviewed by Newsnight Maryland co-host and reporter Bob Althage. The camera was manned by Kathy Pugh. The Mtn. Arts Cooperative, having been formally created in October of 1997, will be among the nearly 100 Appalachian businesses/artisans displaying their best products at the Ideal Home Show in London, England, this spring. Over 500,000 people are expected to attend the show, where they will see actual pieces of work by Louis DiCarlo, Howard Kepple, and Randy Crabtree, and will also be given brochures with photos of work by each member of the cooperative. Support for the endeavor has been provided by MicroWorks and the Appalachian Regional Commission. More coverage will appear in a feature article in The Republican as the show nears. Newsnight Maryland staff heard of the group's endeavor and came to Oakland last Friday to tape the piece that is to air this evening.

County Picks Match Country: Bush, Gore Top Garrett's List

Maryland was among several states involved in this week's "Super Tuesday," the primary election for presidential, senatorial, and congressional delegates for the 2000 general election. Voter turnout was low, with just 5,186 people of the 14,937 registered voters going to the polls, according to preliminary reports from the county elections office. (All numbers in this report are preliminary, as the final official count will take place today.)

Mirroring the majority of national voting results Tuesday, Garrett County voters chose Governor George Bush Jr. as the favorite Republican candidate and Vice President Al Gore as the Democrat winner. Bush received 2,585 votes to John McCain's 935. Gore captured 770 of the Democrats' votes, while Bill Bradley earned 408. The only other presidential candidate earning a three-digit count was Alan Keyes, who garnered 283 of the local votes.

Congressman Roscoe Bartlett won the overwhelming support of the voters, beating challenger Timothy Mayberry 3,104 to 517. Incumbent senator Paul Sarbanes also came in far ahead of his challengers, with Sidney Altman receiving 74 votes and George English garnering 138. Sarbanes earned 1,071 votes. In November, he will face Paul

Petitioners Ask Loch Lynn To Stop Fluoride

A petition to stop plans to fluoridate the town's water supply was presented to the mayor and town council of Loch Lynn during the regular monthly meeting Monday evening. The document was signed by 73 residents. "We have turned the petition over to our town attorney for review. We will be scheduling a town meeting to talk about this," explained town clerk Jean Tressler.

Last month, the Loch Lynn council voted to align with neighboring Mtn. Lake Park in approving the recommendation to fluoridate its shared public water source. The actions fol-

Superintendent's Budget For FY 2001 Presented

The Garrett County Board of Education superintendent's FY 2001 budget, presented last night at Garrett Community College, carried a bottom line of $31,552,737. This amount reflects a 4.85 percent increase over last year's budget. The majority of the additional $1,459,853 is requested for salaries and wages, medical insurance, and student transportation, explained Ervin Fink, director of human resources and finance for the board of education.

The budget presented was formulated by Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent; Dr. Brenda McCartney, assistant superintendent; and Fink, using information submitted from each school based on recommendations of school improvement teams (SIT), staff, and administrators.

- Replacing the boiler at Dennett Road School.
- Installing lights at the SHS football/soccer field.

Reviewing the increases projected, Fink noted that the board has experienced increases in medical insurance costs. "Our medical insurance claims have gone up about 25 percent during the past year which is resulting in higher premiums next year for both employees and the employer," he said.

Spiraling costs in fuel were noted as factors in driving up the cost of student transportation and the resulting increase in the transportation budget. "Anyone who has purchased fuel for a vehicle is very much aware of higher fuel costs," Fink commented.

Chamber Of Commerce Makes Pitch For Share Of FY '01 County Budget

The Garrett County commissioners gave audience this week to chamber of commerce leaders as they made their pitch for the chamber's share of the fiscal year 2001 budget. Ken Wishnick, president and executive director of the Garrett County chamber, cited the need for increased advertising and pointed out comparison tourism spending across the state as he presented the chamber's request for $420,000, an increase of $72,596 over last year's allotment.

Also present for the budget meeting were chamber representatives Jerry Geisler (Wisp Resort) and Jonathan "Smiley" Kessler (the Fun Zone in McHenry), and staff members of the county's financial office.

The chamber publishes the yearly Vacation Guide, a book of information about Garrett County lodging, sights, activities, restaurants, stores, and other tourism items. The book is circulated throughout the county and is sent out to tourism locations in Washington, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, and other cities. It is also sent to individuals who call the Visitors Center and request it.

Wishnick said the expenses of publication "are up by almost $42,000," chiefly because of a "sharp rise" in the cost of quality paper. In last year's original budget, the chamber planned to publish 175,000 of the books. The commissioners allotted $327,000 to the organization for FY 2000. However, an additional reprint of 20,200 Vacation Guides was needed midyear because of heavy demand, and the commissioners agreed to give the chamber an additional $20,404. This year, the chamber hopes to publish 225,000 copies of the guide at a cost of $41,596.

Wishnick said the chamber is also focusing on promoting the "slow seasons," when there are no winter opportunities or when there is little use of Deep Creek Lake. The members hope to increase radio coverage of the area and increase the "soft adventure" visitor market. The goal is to increase tourism in the area by 10%. Wishnick said an increase of 10% could in five years equal as many as 282 new jobs, $1.8 million in addi-

DOWN FOR THE COUNT — "My town's bigger than your town," said two local mayors yesterday as they squared off in a faux boxing match to help promote the U.S. 2000 Census. Mtn. Lake Park mayor Paul Shockey and Oakland mayor Asa McCain "met in the ring" to challenge each other to a count — not a count to 10, but a count of thousands, hopefully, in this year's census. The two staged the drama to help stress to the public the importance of filling out the census forms now being circulated. At stake may be millions of dollars in federal and state monies allocated to Garrett County and its eight incorporated towns. This includes money given for schools, police protection, and other essential services. For each person not counted, the county loses $797 per year, totaling millions lost in federal and state funding over the 10-year period between censuses. Of the 24 jurisdictions in Maryland in 1990, Garrett County ranked 22nd in the number of completed census forms. The actual population count of these mayors' towns has been in dispute for years, with the official numbers 10 years ago putting MLP with 1,938 folks and Oakland with 1,741. However, that year Oakland was rated 7% below the state average for the number of completed forms, while the Park was rated 3% above average. So the count is on, and both mayors, having faced off in No Man's Land (at the old movie theatre off Weber Road) yesterday, are pleading for each and every citizen to stand up and be counted. Those who don't voluntarily mail in the census forms will be visited by volunteer counters. The bout was mediated by referee Brad Frantz, director of the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management. Shown from left are Shockey, Frantz, and McCain.

STATE CHAMPIONS...AGAIN - it was just a few weeks ago that the Northern High School wrestling team won the state dual-meet championship, and this past weekend the Huskies won their school's and the county's first-ever regular team championship in the Maryland 1A/2A State Tournament, held at Western Maryland College at Westminster. Four members of the team — Pete Stein, Matt McNees, Brandon Kamp, and Mark Wolf — won individual state titles to lead the squad to the largest margin of victory in the history of the state tourney. Pictured from left, front, are: Brandon Stein, Pete Stein, and Blake Huber. Seated in the second row are: Keith Artice, Mark Wolf, Matt McNees, and Brandon Kamp. In the back are Jeremiah Guard, Ryan Brenneman, Ryan Savage, assistant coach Steve Savage, Paul Beltzel, and coach Scott Stough. In the top photo, Southern High School's John Hayhurst controls Brian Mullinix of Atholton in the semifinals of the 189-pound division and ultimately earns Southern High School's first-ever individual state wrestling title. "Croquet Soiree" To Be This Year's Garrett Lakes Arts Festival Benefit

The Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) has announced a benefit event to be held in its honor on Saturday, June 17. The event, titled "Croquet Soiree," will present "an opportunity for the community to support the performing arts in Garrett County," said Elizabeth Johnson, GLAF executive director.

Ray and Betty Thayer of Turkey Neck Road, Deep Creek Lake, have donated their lawn croquet court, equipment, and tutorial expertise for team croquet, which will take place from 4 until 6 p.m. on the night of the benefit.

"The croquet is for fun, and certainly not mandatory," said Martin Heise, chairman of the GLAF Gala Committee. "Guests will play the part of Gatsby while donned in their whites (and tennis shoes, if playing the sport). Those not interested in trying their hand at croquet are welcome to watch the fun while wine-tasting and socializing under the big tent donated for the event by George Scheffel."

The Turkey Neck Yacht Club will be the benefit host for the remainder of the evening, with socializing and a silent auction beginning at 6 p.m. Dinner will follow at 7 p.m. with easy-listening music.

Ann Englander, a member of the yacht club and the Gala Committee, said that the members of the club want to give back to the community. "So we have chosen to donate our beautiful facility for this one-time event to benefit the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival," she said.

Johnson said the organization is greatly appreciative of all those working to plan the event. "Many thanks to Ray and Betty Thayer, George Scheffel, the Turkey Neck Yacht Club, and to the Gala Committee, whose enthusiasm is escalating and contagious," she said.

The GLAF Gala Committee is made up of Heise, Englander, Chan Bell, Jane Frawley, Suzannah Kurtz, Nancy Nemith, Vava Railey, Mary Warther and Tiddle Wheeler.

The cost for the entire event is $65 per person, which includes a tax-deductible donation to GLAF. For further information, persons may call the GLAF office at 301-387-3082. The office is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Postal Service Slates Annual Food Collection

For many years the local Postal Service offices have participated in Maryland's Harvest for the Hungry Food Drive. This annual campaign collects tons of food for those in the community who are in need.

In the past, the carriers from the Oakland Post Office as well as those in the other Garrett County post offices, have collected food products from customers and distributed it to food banks and shelters in Garrett County. "I want to assure everyone who gives that all food collected stays right here in our community," said Ken Perrin, postmaster of Oakland. "This year we will be giving food to the House of Hope, Community Action, and the Dove Center, as well as other food banks in our area."

During the week of March 11 to March 18, carriers will collect non-perishable food items. Customers may leave bags at their mailbox or bring food items into the lobbies of the Oakland, Mountain Lake Park, and Deer Park offices.

"This is a wonderful project that helps countless families who find themselves in need during the year. I hope we are able to break last year's record number of pounds of food collected," Perrin concluded.

Elections Held In Accident For Town Council

Municipal elections were held at Town Hall in Accident on Tuesday, March 7, to select two council members from among three candidates. The seats went to Ed Golden with 43 votes and Dave Hook with 25 votes. The third candidate, Bert Massengale, took 24 votes.

Approximately 25 percent of those eligible to vote in Accident cast ballots on Tuesday. Golden and Hook will be sworn in during the town meeting on April 3 to begin their two-year terms. They will join current council members Chuck Hahn and Tom Georg, council president.

The town council meets in open session the first Monday of each month at town hall beginning at 7 p.m. For further information persons may call Town Hall at 301-746-6346.

Oakland Man Faces Charges After Mishap

An Oakland man escaped serious injury when his van ran off Garrett Highway and turned onto its side early Sunday morning. Charges of driving while intoxicated (DWI) and negligent driving resulted from the single-vehicle mishap, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

David William Saba, 38, was operating a 2000 Chevrolet van southbound on Garrett Highway just south of Foster Road at approximately 4 a.m. when the vehicle left the roadway and went into a ditch off the shoulder. The van continued traveling in the ditch for approximately 100 yards until turning over onto its side and skidding along the roadway until coming to rest in the southbound lane.

Saba, who reportedly told deputies that he had swerved to miss a deer, refused medical treatment for his minor injuries.

A two-car collision that took place along Garrett Highway at Kings Run Road on Tuesday, Feb. 29, resulted in injuries to a passenger in one of the vehicles and a charge against the driver of the other car.

Effie Parker, 47, Oakland, was attempting to make a righthand turn onto Kings Run Road from northbound Garrett Highway shortly before 1 p.m. when a 1991 Ford Escort operated by Jessica Lynn Tasker, 19, Oakland, pulled around her vehicle on the right shoulder in an attempt to pass.

Tasker's car struck Parker's 1999 Dodge Neon in its right front quarter, and the impact injured Shawna Parker, 27, Oakland, a passenger in the Neon. Parker was transported by the Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for neck injuries.

Tasker was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision.

OTT and Save Oakland Station Plan An "Evening On A Train"

One-Act Auditions Scheduled For April 1

Our Town Theatre and the Save Oakland Station committee have slated an "evening on a train" to raise funds to assist with the restoration of the Victorian-era Oakland Train Station. The theatre has scheduled a May 12-14 production of the Thornton Wilder one-act play Pullman Car Hiawatha, which will be presented in conjunction with the History Channel film Presidential Trains.

"The railroad theme of the show is a natural fit for Oakland's efforts to save the Oakland train station," said Edward Mallory, the play's director. "Jane Avery, artistic director of OTT, suggested that proceeds from the show should benefit that effort.

"Pullman Car Hiawatha peeks into the lives and thoughts of assorted passengers as they spend a night on a train somewhere in Maryland as it travels to Chicago during the 1930s," Mallory remarked. "Nancy Learey, director of the Garrett Choral Society, is planning a small chorus to accompany the play, providing many sound effects and voicing the parts of the world outside as the train speeds through the night."

A Garrett County resident, Mallory is a television and movie actor who has also written, directed, and produced a number of television programs. At the conclusion of each performance of Pullman Car Hiawatha, and following a brief intermission, the film Presidential Trains will be shown. Mallory wrote, produced, and directed the historical documentary, which covers the history of trains as presidential transportation and campaign vehicles, including Grover Cleveland's honeymoon trip to Deer Park.

Preliminary plans for the Friday and Saturday evening performances also include OTT's first "Dinner and a Show" event. In keeping with the railroading theme, a special pre-theatre dinner with a menu featuring recipes from the "golden age" of railroad cuisine is being planned by Christiane and Fred Bergheim of the Cornish Manor restaurant. The dinner, which will involve an additional cost to diners, will be served at the Oakland restaurant.

Auditions for the play will be held at Our Town Theatre on Saturday, April 1, between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. Persons interested in trying out but who cannot be present that day may call 301-387-5488 to make other arrangments with production assistant Judy Finkel.

The play has several small parts, including five women and seven men (one of whom should be able to speak a little German) of various ages. "This is a perfect opportunity for anyone considering trying out for a play," commented Mallory. "Small roles and a one-act are a great way to get started in theatre."

Dates and showtimes are slated for Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, May 14, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 each, and reservations may be made by calling Our Town Theatre at 301-334-5640 to leave a request that includes a name, phone number, number of tickets, and desired performance date. Patrons will receive a confirmation call from the theatre.

OTT SETS AN "EVENING ON A TRAIN" — A railroad-themed theatrical event is being planned for May by Our Town Theatre and the Save Oakland Station committee. The event will include a one-act play, Pullman Car Hiawatha, and the film Presidential Trains, which will both be presented during evening productions on Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13, and a Sunday afternoon matinee on May 14. Plans are being made for the evening performances to include the opportunity for a special pre-theatre dinner at Cornish Manor. Edward Mallory, the play's director and the writer, director, and producer of the train documentary film, is shown above seated at the center of the SOS committee. Surrounding Mallory are, from the left, committee secretary Peggy Jamison, Oakland mayor Asa McCain, Main Street program manager Glenn Tolbert, Mark Phillips, committee treasurer Ellen Zimmerman, and Bill Nemith. Auditions for Pullman Car Hiawatha are open to the public and are set for Saturday, April 1, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Our Town Theatre.

Local Activist Dorothy Leighton Dies Early Today

Oakland resident Dorothy L. "Dottie" Leighton, well-known for her community work and contributions to civic organizations throughout the county, died today, March 9, at Ruby Memorial Hospital in Morgantown, W.Va., at the age of 69.

She helped found the Garrett County League of Women Voters, was a member of the Garrett County Historical Society, where she served on the fund raising committee; was a member of the Garrett County Arts Council; and was a charter member of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival.

She taught music for many years in Keyser, W.Va., and in Baltimore area schools. She was a member of St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland, where she served for 25 years as the choir director.

Born March 19, 1930, in Cumberland, she was a daughter of the late Walter B. and Mabel (Chapin) Brock.

Surviving are her husband, Dr. Herbert H. Leighton; three daughters, Dr. Barbara Leighton, Philadelphia, Pa., Catherine E. Boulter, Lima, Ohio, and Ann E. Leighton, Oakland; one son, Vernon Leighton, Winona, Minn.; two sisters, Marian B. See, Baltimore, and Edith G. Brock, Mtn. Lake Park; two brothers, Richard W. Brock, Florham Park, N.J., and Lawrence W. Brock, Indianapolis, Ind.; and seven grandchildren.

The Durst Funeral Home in Oakland is in charge of arrangements which are incomplete.

The family suggests memorials take the form of contributions to the Ruth Enlow Library, the Garrett County Historical Society, or a charity of the donor's choice.

Grant Awarded To Replant Flora At Grantsville School

The Chesapeake Bay Trust has recently awarded a grant to Grantsville Elementary School to fund the replanting of native flora in the area. All students will be involved in the gardening project.

The students in each class will select and order plants which they will cultivate and care for in their own garden patch. The produce which the children raise will be used for a variety of purposes.

Native vegetables will be simmered into soup; salad greens will be harvested from another garden patch; gourds will be grown, gathered, and crafted into birdhouses; and a berry patch will provide nourishment for birds and small animals.

Other areas will highlight black-eyed Susans, plants used by Native Americans in this area, and native flowers for beautification.

Several businesses and organizations have donated seed packets, plants, and materials. Anyone wishing to donate materials or funds to this project may call the school at 301-895-5173.

"Kidstuff" Set Saturday At Our Town Theatre

Kidstuff, a creative dramatics event for children in kindergarten through fifth grade, will be held this Saturday, March 11, 1-2:30 p.m. at Our Town Theatre in Oakland. This will be the fourth installment in the Kidstuff winter series, which is under the direction of Jane Avery, artistic director.

The afternoon will include stories, acting, art projects, mime, and other activities. Parents are requested to make reservations for their children by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640. Persons should leave the names of the children and their ages. No reservations will be accepted after 5 p.m. on Friday, March 10.

Relay For Life Kickoff Event Set For Tuesday Evening At GCMH

A kickoff celebration for the second annual Garrett County Relay for Life will take place Tuesday, March 14, at 6 p.m. at the Community Services Building at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The kickoff will preview what is expected to be the largest cancer awareness event ever held in the county, surpassing even last year's major community undertaking that raised $50,000. Over 400 registered walkers, 100 local cancer survivors, and 1,000 spectators gathered at Southern High School for the first local Relay for Life last June.

"We encourage everyone who knows someone with cancer or who has lost someone to this disease to join us at the kickoff celebration and bring a friend," said Relay for Life co-chair Doug Riley. "Relay for Life is more than just a walk, it is a celebration of life."

Information will be available at the kickoff pertaining to all phases of preplanning and the actual staging of the Relay for Life, as well as opportunities for interested persons to volunteer their assistance in making the event a success.

Relay for Life is the national signature event for the American Cancer Society and is designed to honor and remember living and deceased cancer patients. Participants, friends, and family members organize into teams that take turns walking around the track for 24 hours to raise funds for the fight against cancer.

The opening ceremony and first lap of the relay is started by survivors, who are given a red sash and honored for the years they have survived. "It feels fantastic to have your family and friends cheer you on and encourage you in your fight against cancer" was a sentiment voiced by many cancer survivors at last year's relay. Caregivers and loved ones join the cancer survivors on the second lap, and on the third lap family, friends, and co-workers walk in honor or in memory of the special persons in their lives.

"A great evening of free entertainment, fellowship, food, and fun is being planned again this year," Riley stated. "Team challenges, campsite design contests, group Twister, and lots of other games are sure to keep teams involved and having fun."

At dusk the event pauses for the luminary celebration, during which candles are lit in honor and in memory of cancer patients. "The luminary celebration brings everyone together in reflection," said Joyce Landacre, community services coordinator with the American Cancer Society. "You can't leave the luminary celebration without feeling a powerful sense of love and togetherness. Each of us knows someone who is living or has died because of cancer. The luminary celebration is an opportunity for you to pay tribute and remember those people."

IT TAKES A LOT OF HEART to walk as a team throughout the night, but that's just what hundreds of area residents did last year during the first Garrett County Relay for Life. Bagpiper John Grant is shown above as he leads 100 local cancer survivors, each wearing an honorary red sash, through last year's opening lap on the Southern High School track. The American Cancer Society fund-raiser will take place again this summer, from the evening of Friday, June 9, through noon the following day. A Relay for Life kickoff celebration is slated for Tuesday, March 14, at 6 p.m. at the Community Services Building at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. All area residents are encouraged to attend the kickoff event to mark what promises to be an even bigger event than 1999's huge community undertaking.

Blaze Destroys Metal Building In Loch Lynn

A fire of undetermined origin gutted a wood-framed, metal sided building in Loch Lynn Tuesday afternoon, resulting in an estimated loss of $70,000 for owner Michael Simpson. The 24-by-48-foot structure, which housed Pleasant Valley Craft Works, was fully involved in flames upon the arrival of units from the Oakland and Deer Park Community volunteer fire departments.

According to local fire investigator Steve Wendling's report, the owner's daughter and son had been at the building at approximately 2:05 p.m., looked inside, observed nothing unusual, and left the building. Approximately 10 minutes later they heard banging noises and ran back to the building to find smoke and fire inside. They attempted to telephone 911 at their house (320 May Pole Lane), but their phone was inoperative. They went next door to the residence of Becky Mason and asked her to report the fire.

Approximately 20 firefighters responded to the scene and had the fire under control in about 15 minutes. Also responding to the scene was the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Wendling said that the fire originated inside the building, but his investigation into the cause is continuing.

Schneider Named Mental Health Clinic Director

Rodney B. Glotfelty, Garrett County health officer, announced this week the appointment of T. Brooke Schneider as the director of the Community Mental Health Clinic.

Schneider has a master of science degree in rehabilitation with an under-graduate degree in psychology/sociology. He is a licensed professional counselor and a nationally certified addiction prevention specialist.

He comes to the local health department with extensive experience in the mental health field. He has served as executive director and CEO of the Potomac Highlands Guild since November 1998. The guild is a comprehensive mental health program for five West Virginia counties. As director of the guild, Schneider was responsible for a $6 million budget. Prior to his work with the guild, he was the program administrator at the Fairmont General Hospital Department of Behavioral Medicine and Addiction Treatment, serving there since 1985.

Schneider, a native of Wisconsin, is the father of three children. He said that he is "delighted to accept this position and looks forward to working with the health department staff to continue to provide exceptional mental health services to the Garrett County community."

Schneider's management expertise in fee-for-service environments will strengthen the financial position of Garrett County's Community Mental Health Clinic, according to Glotfelty. His past successes in marketing programs and services and in developing community coalitions will aid the department in enhancing mental health services to Garrett County residents, he added.

Charges Filed In Accident On Route 135

An accident on Route 135 Saturday was investigated by Tfc. B. Broadwater of the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police, who later filed charges against the driver of one of the two vehicles involved.

According to Broadwater's report, Gary E. Evans, 53, Oakland, was pulling out from Dorsey Hotel Road onto Route 135 at 6:49 p.m. and Robert I. Moore, 38, Kitzmiller, was eastbound on Route 135 at the time. Evans allegedly pulled onto the travel portion of the road, failing to yield to Moore, whose vehicle subsequently struck the vehicle driven by Evans.

Southern Rescue Squad and Deer Park VFD responded to the scene. Police and emergency management reports state that two persons were transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital for treatment but the hospital was not able to confirm this report.

Police charged Evans with failure to stop and yield to through traffic.

Traffic/CDS Violations

Pamela K. Farrow, 39, Girardeau, Mo., was a passenger in a 1988 Chevrolet truck operated by Dennis L. Rouggly, also of Missouri, traveling westbound on I-68 last Saturday. Tfc. J.F. Broadwater reported that he stopped the vehicle for failing to drive in a single lane.

Following a consent to search, Broadwater said he found marijuana in Farrow's purse and rolling papers in the truck. Farrow was charged with possession of marijuana.

Gerald A. Coddington, 29, Oakland was stopped by police at Route 135 and G Street for a reported equipment violation. He was subsequently charged with driving while intoxicated and a search of his vehicle allegedly revealed marijuana. He was also charged with possession of marijuana.

DWI

The following arrests for driving while intoxicated were reported by the state police: Anthony D. Berarducci, 22, Sykesville on March 4; Jesse S. Redman, Gaithersburg, on March 5; and Robert V. Winters, 29, Oakland.

Fresh Air Fund Host Families Being Recruited

Local families willing to host one or more children from New York City for two weeks of rural living this summer are being sought by the Fresh Air Fund's Friendly Town program. The program, an independent, non-profit agency, has provided free summer vacations to over 1.6 million disadvantaged New York City children since 1877.

This summer, nearly 6,000 children will visit volunteer host families in suburbs and small communities across 13 states. Additionally, 3,000 will attend five Fresh Air camps on a 3,000-acre site in Fishkill, N.Y.

Children who participate in the program are from low-income, inner-city families, with the majority receiving some form of public assistance. Those on first-time visits range in age from 6 to 12 years old.

"Through our program, inner-city children experience, for the first time, the thrill of swimming in lakes and streams, running barefoot through grassy meadows, and making new suburban and country friends," stated Michelle Harris, local Fresh Air Fund representative. "Fresh Air hosts are young families, single professionals, empty-nesters, and grandparents, all of whom want to share the simple pleasures of suburban or country life with an inner-city child."

Local persons desiring more information about the program may telephone Harris at 301-759-4757 or the Fresh Air Fund at 1-800-367-0003. The fund also has a web site at http://www.freshair.org.

lowed a study of fluoridated drinking water and a recommendation by an ad hoc committee in Mtn. Lake Park. The committee presented information favoring fluoridation and held public information forums for residents prior to the votes in each town.

Mtn. Lake Park mayor Paul Shockey, commenting on the petition, said that the only opposition to fluoridation that he has heard has come from outside the professional health care community and has lacked scientific foundation. "I think some of these people who are opposed to fluoride are really doing a disservice to others in the community. I have a real concern about this," he said.

Mtn. Lake Park and Loch Lynn are served by the Garrett Sanitary District for water supply and sewage treatment. According to sanitary district director Ron Petrella, his office has not been advised to change plans already under way to purchase and install the necessary equipment to add fluoride to the water supply. "We were notified by the towns to begin the process and we are going to continue at this time," he said. He also noted that it would be almost impossible to separate the water supply for the two towns.

Petrella also said he would be available to participate in any future meeting with the Loch Lynn residents. "I would be happy to attend any meeting and answer any questions about the fluoridation plans," he noted.

Transcending the Sport...

We feel we would be remiss if we did not devote this corner this week to a group of young men from Northern High School who have just completed an incredible year in the sport of high school wrestling. The Northern Huskies won not one, but two, team state championships, the first ever for a Garrett County high school, and they also won every other tournament in which they competed this year, including a huge tourney in Bedford, Pa., midway through the season. Grasping the magnitude of this accomplishment is difficult, even for those who enjoy following local sports.

Northern is, as most know, one of the smaller 1A schools in the state of Maryland. Unlike most athletes in other sports, wrestlers must compete at the state level against not only every other 1A team in the state, but also against every 2A team. The same cannot be said for the sports of football, basketball, baseball, cross country, track and field, and others, where competition in the regional and state playoffs is always against schools of similar size. Yet the Huskies defeated all 44 of the other 1A and 2A schools in the state tournament, and they did so by the largest margin ever in the tournament's history.

Even more significant than the state titles was Northern's team victory in the Thomas Chevrolet Tournament in Bedford last month, an event that includes teams from all sizes of schools, 1A through 4A.

By this point, some readers may feel that this editorial should appear on the sports pages, and not in its usual location here on A-4. But the accomplishment of these Northern Huskies, the message that they have demonstrated, and the example they have set all transcend the sport itself.

There are no other athletes in high school sports who work as hard, or at least any harder, than wrestlers. In order to really excel in the sport, a wrestler must undergo both physical and mental training of the nth degree. His battles are intensely individual, as he is all alone on the mat against his opponent. But the results of those individual efforts are also for the benefit — or detriment — of others, his teammates.

The value of these accomplishments to each member of the Northern team, particularly in later life, cannot even be estimated. They have each learned the value of commitment, of extremely hard work, of confidence, of teamwork, of taking great pride in something, and of who knows how many other positive aspects of life.

So to state champions Pete, Matt, Brandon, and Mark, plus to John of Southern High School, to all of their teammates, and to their coaches, we extend a hearty congratulations, but more importantly, our heartfelt thanks for representing our county in this manner and for setting such a super example for the thousands of young people who will come along behind you (not to mention us adults).

LENTEN REFLECTIONS ON THE HOLY LAND

Two weeks ago my son and I returned from a 10-day pilgrimage to Israel. Many people had told me that such a pilgrimage would be a life-changing experience, and it was that, though in ways different than I had expected.

Preparing for Lent has been specifically shaped by a visit to Jericho near the place where the Jordan River runs into the Dead Sea. The mountain that stands above Jericho has been called the Mount of Temptations for 1,700 years, at least. According to tradition it is the site of the first and third of our Lord's temptations by the devil.

On the side of the mountain, several hundred feet up, is a Greek Orthodox monastery which was built at the end of the 19th century. It is not on top of the mountain, rather about two-thirds of the way up, which looks, to the casual glance, like a sheer rock face.

The monastery is built on a rock shelf. It is one-room deep, and a person walks between the monastery building and the mountain itself. The stone monastic structure, however austere and remote, was a tremendous capitulation to luxury. Previously the monks had lived in caves which are still there. Over the centuries the caves were linked by tunnels to form a cave network called lavra.

In those caves, the monastic community persisted, and sometimes flourished, since the early 300s when the Roman Emperor Constantine became a Christian. It was he and his mother who built churches on what were believed at that time to be original holy sites.

Some were, indeed, original holy sites, and others were the best guesses which could be made at that time. That is why of so many sites it must be said, "according to tradition." In the case of the Mount of Temptations it is possible that monks inhabited the caves as much as 250 years earlier than Constantine which would take tradition back to the period following the death of the apostles.

One of my discoveries was how little it mattered if the places we visited were the precise locations of the Biblical events. Even if the best guesses were wrong, the places have become holy because of faithful people praying there century after century, in the ebbs and tides of Christianity.

Historical character is primary to the events which lie at the heart of Christian claims. It is wonderful when we can identify the actual site of a specific event, but faith can grow from the prayers of the faithful who have gathered at that site, as well as from the original historical character of the place.

Something of that principle is applied in the 14 Stations of the Cross which can be found in most Roman Catholic churches. The Stations represent Christ's pilgrimage to the cross.

The idea originated back in the middle ages when only a very few people could make the physical pilgrimage to Bethlehem, Jerusalem, and other places where Jesus lived and ministered. By placing the stations in every church it became possible for all Christians to follow the path of Christ as he bore his cross to Calvary.

Actually going to Israel will affect any Christian. Anyone who has the health and financial means to go, should go. Even if we all could go once — which is impossible — the rest of the time of our lives will be lived elsewhere, mostly in that place called "home."

At home it is helpful to establish a physical place of prayer. It can be a corner of a room, or one shelf in a bookcase, or even a small room, a literal prayer closet.

Our Holy Land pilgrimage taught me how physical Christianity is, and how the physical features of faith feed and nurture our spiritual health. The eternal Word needs to continue becoming flesh in our lives. What better quest could we have in the season of Lent than to recall the physical temptations that Jesus himself endured.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Hold on to your wallets! This week, personal injury lawyers are hoping that Maryland legislators make it easier for them to take more of your money. House Bill 1079, Lead-Based Damages — Market Share Liability, would allow personal injury lawyers to sue companies without proving their products caused damages. Market share liability holds companies responsible for damages based solely on the amount of a product they sold in the state. This widely discredited legal theory says there's no need to prove a company's own product caused the damages.

House Bill 1079 is aimed to make it easier for personal injury lawyers to sue paint companies, but that is only the tip of the iceberg. If state legislators accept the market share theory, personal injury lawyers could use that precedent to go after any other company in the state. Maryland consumers will ultimately pay the cost of this legislation when companies are forced to raise prices to pay for the frivolous litigation. Personal injury lawyers are hoping to win this lawsuit lottery by putting the state's economic future at risk.

Sincerely,
Janna Naylor

To the Editor:

I felt a deep sense of regret and sadness when I heard of the resignation of Dr. Margaret Kaiser as the medical director of Hospice of Garrett County. I have seen first-hand the kindness and compassion Dr. Kaiser has demonstrated to patients at the end-stage of their disease.

As a former hospice nurse, I can personally attest to Dr. Kaiser's expertise. She has been involved with Hospice since 1982 and has given freely of her time and money. She was a medical director who had true feelings for the patient. I always knew I could call upon her for advice, night or day. She believes hospice patients should die with dignity and be free of pain. I always felt comfortable promising my patients that the end would come easily and naturally.

Not only did Dr. Kaiser have compassion for the patients, she also had it for the caregivers of Hospice. She was always there to support us emotionally after a difficult case.

Dr. Kaiser has always acted in good faith. She has volunteered thousands of hours and thousands of dollars to Hospice of Garrett County. She has been educated in palliative care and pain management. She has completed advanced training in medical directorship.

I have seen what a kind and loving person Dr. Kaiser is. I have been a witness to her medical expertise and her concern for outstanding end-of-life care.

She will be sorely missed.

Sincerely,
Judy Wilt

To the Editor:

Very soon, major decisions affecting the fate of thousands of Marylanders will be made in Annapolis. Over the next two weeks Governor Parris Glendening's Tobacco Settlement spending plan will come up for review by the Maryland General Assembly. Governor Glendening's proposal to spend $80 million annually on two groundbreaking programs has afforded Maryland the opportunity to become a national leader in tobacco control as well as cancer prevention and treatment.

As a member of the Governor's Task Force to End Smoking in Maryland, I must implore the legislature to enact those recommendations that our task force put onto paper, as well as those of the governor's equally important and impressive task force to conquer cancer. To wait yet another year to decide how to spend the tobacco settlement dollars would not only confuse and further politicize the process, but would also cause Maryland to be less proactive in the areas of tobacco and cancer control.

Maryland should once again lead the nation and become a model for how to correctly spend this settlement money. We need to avoid putting forth another well-meaning, but toothless, plan such as those around the nation falling apart due to politics as usual.

Enacting the governor's plan would enhance our capabilities to make right what the Tobacco Cartel has done wrong. I am proud of the work that the task forces have done and urge all citizens to stand behind our governor as he attempts to bring Maryland to the forefront of public health and tobacco control.

Sincerely,
Margie Weaver, Chair

Public Policy Committee

To the Editor:

Personal injury lawyers are getting desperate and your wallet may soon pay the price. For years, personal injury lawyers in Maryland have been trying to win large awards from the paint industry for lead-based damages, but they haven't been able to prove their cases in court. So their latest strategy involves a universally discredited legal theory that nearly every state and federal court has rejected. At the urging of personal injury lawyers, legislation that uses a "market-share" theory to place automatic liability on every company that once sold paint in the state has been introduced in the General Assembly.

It's not hard to see where personal injury lawyers are going with this. After they hit the paint industry, every other business in Maryland is up for grabs. Milk farmers may soon find themselves liable every time a personal injury lawyer claims that too much milk causes health problems. What about fast food restaurants whose products could contribute to obesity? If no one knows who to blame, personal injury lawyers say blame everybody!

This legislation, HB 1079, sets a dangerous precedent for Maryland's economic future. When personal injury lawyers needlessly drag companies into court, prices on goods and services increase so that businesses can pay the litigation costs. And that's only for the companies that survive the huge financial hit these frivolous lawsuits cause. Companies looking to move to our state will be scared away by a liability system created to benefit personal injury lawyers. It's time to protect consumers and businesses from this latest attack of personal injury lawyer greed.

To the Editor:

The Monday night town meeting in Loch Lynn Heights was of great interest because of some very absolute opinions on the issue of fluoride use in the town water supply.

A few weeks ago both Mountain Lake Park and Loch Lynn Heights leaders embraced the adding of fluoride in the water supply. It seems that the town leaders forgot to ask the citizens' opinions on fluoride. Sure there may have been a meeting about it, but it wasn't well publicized at all.

We are very thankful that we have a citizen like Lee Hargrove, who took his time and effort to write up a petition and ask for support of town residents. He presented the petition to the town council Monday night, with over 70 signatures on it against the use of fluoride in the water supply. What was a shock about all of this was the way the mayor and some of the council reacted to the presentation of the petition. It was anything but warm and friendly or business like.

There are too many important issues, not only in this town, but in our county that are decided by just a small handful of people. We feel that if we let the large issues such as the fluoridation be decided by a vote of the people, the outcome could be totally different.

Prime example — Sunday sales. If it were up to a handful of our leaders, we would have Sunday sales. It is different because the people have the right to vote on it. Their voices are heard this way.

It made us feel proud when we had so many of our citizens turn out for our town meeting this past Monday night. We urge all Garrett County citizens to turn our for the town meetings and start asking questions. Our leaders owe us answers and their decisions still speak for us. We want them to be truthful on all decisions and, without this communication, how do we know they are speaking for us?

With community concern,
Sid and Sandi Nazelrod

Editor's note: The writer of the following letter to the Garrett County commissioners requested that it be published in this column.

Dear Board of Commissioners:

I read in a recent issue of The Republican that you were investigating the issue of outdoor signage regulations. I was unable to appear at the meeting on March 1 and am submitting this letter instead to express my concern that real estate property rental signs be included in your investigation.

I am a property owner and very regular user of my Deep Creek Lake property. Among the very few things I have trouble with at and around the lake is the large number of real estate signs which are unsightly and, I believe, unnecessary.

Signage serves the useful purpose of identification for rental properties, both as notification to prospective renters and for identification when renters need direction to a property. I do not believe, however that the signs provide any measurable or significant advertising advantage for the realtors involved. Said differently, it is highly unlikely any prospect will choose a property to rent based on the identity of, and/or a preference for, a particular realtor.

On the other hand, any improvement in appearance is a valuable improvement, not only for those of us who simply enjoy the beauty of the area, but also for the realtors who benefit from increased value.

I suggest it would be better for everyone if we had a regulation regarding rental signs. I have visited areas where rental properties are identified simply with a uniform numbering system (the house number, or a block allocated numbering system) and color coding using standardized signs. If all realtors were to operate under such a scheme, then prospective renters and realtors would both be served fairly. In addition, we would all regain some of the lost beauty of this wonderful place.

Yours truly,
John Canavan

To the Editor:

Our son, a senior at Northern High School, was recently suspended for having used an injurious instrument during a sporting event. You ask what that item might be — it was a laser pointer brought to this event by an elementary school child.

We are told that the laser pointer falls under the description of an injurious instrument that could endanger the safety of others. The item is said to be a "potential hazard to unprotected eyes of individuals who look at the laser from within the direct beam, and is reportedly to have caused eye damage." (From "Hazard Alert for Pen-Like and Other Laser Pointers," published by the Laser/Optical Radiation Program, U.S. Army Center for Health Promotion and Preventative Medicine.)

Our reason for writing this letter is not to deny our son's involvement but to alert parents of this dangerous item. We know that for a fact these laser pointers have been sold at our very own Garrett County Fair and anyone can purchase one. We are told by our state police that if found with one of these, and used improperly, criminal charges can be incurred. How many of you knew this? We do not recall ever hearing of this.

Our son had no idea the price he would pay for shining this [laser pointer]; we, his parents, were also surprised. Because of this incident a lot more students as well as adults are aware of the dangers involved. If this incident helps an accident from occurring, our son has done more than set an example.

We need to mention some teachers use these laser pointers correctly in their classrooms as teaching utensils, but students may not be aware of the dangers involved if they would obtain one and use it incorrectly.

Interested persons may direct questions or concerns to the U.S. Army Center for Health Promotion and Preventive Medicine at 410-671-3932.

Thank you,
Debbie and Phil Workman

Editor's note: The Workmans provided The Republican with the "Hazard Alert" referred to in their letter, and a "Laser Safety Bulletin" published by the Laser Institute of American. These documents state:

- Even small laser pointers can cause, and reportedly have caused, eye damage as a consequence of improper operation.
- Never shine a laser pointer at anyone. Laser pointers are designed to illustrate inanimate objects.
- Do not point a laser pointer at mirror-like surfaces. A reflected beam can act like a direct beam on an eye.
- Laser pointers are commonly found in novelty mail-order magazines and at electronics stores. Although some of these devices contain warning labels, many have been erroneously advertised as "safe."
- These devices are not toys and should not be used by children.

Friendsville Man Faces Charges Of Burglary, Theft

Garrett Bureau of Investigation detectives filed charges against a Friendsville man recently in connection with a Friendsville burglary that occurred last year.

Dale Matthew Frazee, 18, was arrested on Thursday, Feb. 24, on a warrant charging him with first degree burglary and felony theft. The GBI alleges that at some point between September 1 and the second week of October he entered an unlocked First Avenue residence and removed a pair of metal lock boxes that contained $1,200 in coins and an assortment of personal papers. Among the coins were a number of Susan B. Anthony silver dollars.

Frazee subsequently sold a quantity of silver dollars of that type to a Friendsville resident, the charging statement indicated. The GBI learned of the sale early this month, and after developing further leads and recovering the missing coins, the detectives filed charges against Frazee.

Frazee remains incarcerated on a $25,000 bond.

In other sheriff's news, a pair of separate domestic-related assaults this week resulted in the arrests of two local men. Alcohol was cited as a factor in both incidents.

Peter John Ligas III, 27, Loch Lynn, faces two counts of second degree assault and two counts of destruction of property stemming from an altercation at a West First Street apartment in Loch Lynn. He reportedly beat his girlfriend and a friend of hers in the apartment at 11 p.m. Tuesday evening, and also broke a glass table and ripped a telephone from the wall. Deputies reported that he was intoxicated at the time of the assaults.

Ligas was released after posting a $1,000 bond.

Todd Allen Whitacre, 30, Kitzmiller, was arrested for a reported assault that took place the same evening at his Kitzmiller Road residence. He allegedly came home intoxicated at 7 p.m. and told his wife to wake him at 11 p.m. after a nap. When she did as he requested, he reportedly woke up angry and commenced beating her, then went outside and threw rocks at the house.

When deputies arrived at the home, Whitacre was gone and his wife required transport by the Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where she was treated for her injuries and released. Whitacre was later apprehended and charged with second degree assault.

Whitacre was released after posting a $1,000 bond.

Michael Irwin Rinker Jr., 19, Romney, W.Va., was cited for misrepresenting his age in an attempt to purchase alcohol on Tuesday evening at the Chestnut Ridge Amoco. A clerk noted a suspicious ID, and it was determined by deputies that the photo card purported to be a West Virginia ID had been purchased off the Internet and added two years to his age. Rinker was released after signing the citation, and a trial is pending.

DWIs/DUIs

Several individuals were charged with DWI, in addition to the subject mentioned above, or driving while under the influence of alcohol and/or drugs (DUI) recently: Gerald Edward McGinnis Jr., 39, Deer Park; Daniel Lee Graybeal, 22, Sykesville; Christopher Aaron Manusco, 37, Irwin, Pa.; and Aaron Patrick Glotfelty, 21, Mtn. Lake Park.

In conjunction with Glotfelty's DWI arrest at 2 a.m. Monday morning along Hutton Road, Brian W. Gank, 22, Deer Park, was charged with indecent exposure and failure to obey a lawful order, and was released on his own recognizance. Gank, a passenger of Glotfelty's, urinated in public while deputies were speaking to Glotfelty.

State Jobless Rate Decreases, County's Climbs

During January, the number of employed people in Maryland declined as anticipated, falling by about 22,600 to 2,699,783, and the unemployment rate rose to 3.5 percent. Rising unemployment is the seasonal norm in January because of post-holiday and weather-related layoffs in addition to semester break activity in education. Nationally, unemployment, following a similar increase, rose to 4.5 percent, a full percentage point above that of Maryland.

In Garrett County the jobless rate jumped from 7.9 percent in December to 10.8 percent in January, but was well below last January's rate of 13.3 percent.

Secretary John P. O'Connor of the Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation said, "The strength of Maryland's economy is evident in that this year's January employment slide is well below the historical norm, and, even with the decline, January's employment level represents the highest on record for the month."

In addition to the annual January trend, Maryland's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate fell. Reflecting national trends, employment levels in the state helped the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate drop to 3.1 percent in Jan.

The withdrawal of seasonal workers from the labor market offset January's employment decline somewhat, leaving just 97,335 people unemployed. Last January, nearly 114,860 people, or 4.2 percent of the labor force, were without a job.

Statewide, unemployment rates were as low as 1.4 percent in Howard County, 1.7 percent in Montgomery County, 2.2 percent in Charles County, 2.4 percent in Calvert and Frederick counties, and 2.6 percent in St. Mary's County.

Seasonal employment declines were scattered throughout Maryland's business payrolls during January. Retail trade employers, showing the most significant cut-backs, began to downsize following the holiday season. General merchandise stores, restaurants and miscellaneous retail establishments reported employee reductions, as well as business services, agricultural and amusement services. Activity in construction began to show signs of slowing as temperatures turned colder while break activity temporarily diminished employment in state/local government and transportation services.

Public Works Board Approves Electronic Commerce Contract

Governor Parris N. Glendening this week announced Board of Public Works approval of a three-year contract to provide a full-scale interactive procurement system for state agencies and local governments throughout Maryland. A new web site, eMarylandMarketplace, will help companies of all sizes supply products and services to the state by providing them with a fast, easy-to-use, and cost-effective commerce on-ramp, according to the governor.

"Computers, technology, and information systems have been a powerful force behind our current record-breaking prosperity, and they will continue to drive the economy of the future," said Glendening. "This year, working with the General Assembly, we will strengthen Maryland's position in the high-tech economy and enact the number one technology agenda in the nation. The board's action allows us to move forward on one of our top priorities, which is to make Maryland the national leader in delivering government services over the Internet. eMarylandMarketplace will dramatically improve customer service for our vendors by enabling them to conduct business with us on-line, and will streamline the process and reduce the cost of public procurement."

eMarylandMarketplace allows buyers to conduct business transactions and communications with vendors of any size over the Internet. Beginning with procurement of commodities costing less than $25,000, state agency buyers will use eMarylandMarketplace to perform the functions that have traditionally been accomplished using paper methods and manual entries into the state's financial information systems, the governor said.

"Establishing eMaryland Marketplace provides significant benefits to state of Maryland procurement organizations, as well as the supporting vendor community," said Glendening. "Participating businesses will see significant benefits in both reduced costs and in exposure to a larger number of opportunities. The state will benefit from process improvements as well as lower prices resulting from increased competition, aggregate buying power, and greater vendor efficiencies."

The board awarded the three-year contract with three one-year renewal options to Science Applications International Corporation (SIC) after the successful completion of a 90-day pilot project. A leading electronic commerce systems integrator, SAIC will provide systems integration and consulting services to implement eMarylandMarketplace. The system is based on technology from Intelisys, a leader in Internet-based electronic procurement solutions. SAIC's partners, Early Morning Software and International Technologies Inc., two Maryland-based minority business enterprises, will provide technical services and user support for the project.

Glendening has introduced legislation to make Maryland the national model for delivering government services over the Internet. The legislation will require state agencies to make all of their services available on-line: 50 percent by 2002, 65 percent by 2003, and 80 percent by 2004.

Chaired by the governor, the Board of Public Works is also comprised of Comptroller William Donald Schaefer and Treasurer Richard N. Dixon. The board is empowered by the General Assembly to approve major construction and consultant contracts, equipment purchases, property transactions, and other procurement actions.

LEAP DAY MINUS ONE

The dog and I share a rectangle of sun-warmth on the carpet, until he shoves me out with his splayed legs and kibble breath. I'm drawn to the window and the blue baby-blanket of the sky, draped behind scabby, naked branches that creak and call to the buds of leaves and flowers. Grow into this sun, this light that teases wind and hours and makes tissues of the clouds.
I can't wait for my first sunburn.

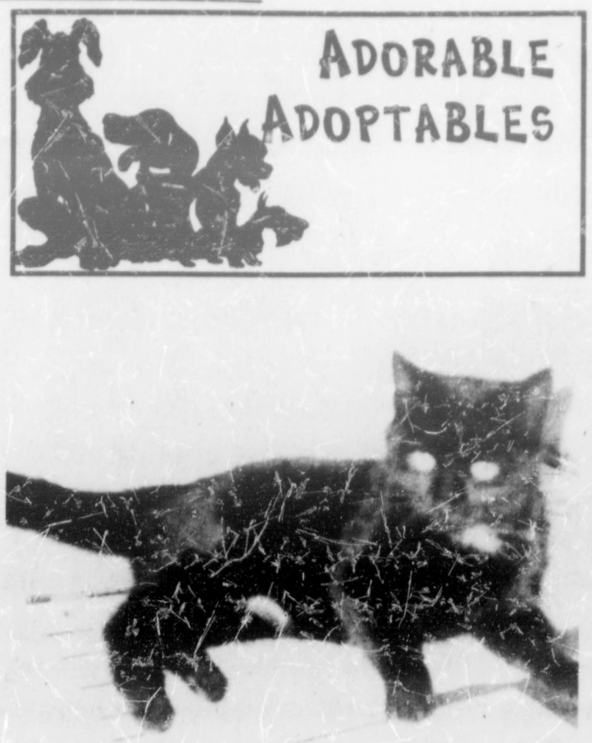
ADORABLE ADOPTABLES



A PAPERWEIGHT THAT PURRS — Lending a touch of dignity to a cluttered desk is a 1-year-old black cat with a tiny bit of white that is available for adoption at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Also available is the adult Dalmatian, described as very gentle, who picks up his dish and carries it around—not a common feat! At the bottom right is a 9-week-old black female puppy. These and other animals may be viewed weekdays at the animal shelter, located along Oakland Sang Run Road, and which may be reached by calling 301-334-3553. ("Honey, have you seen the tax forms?"—"I put them under the cat!")

LOOKING FOR SOMEONE SPECIAL — This older female hound is in need of a loving retirement home. She is described as very calm, quiet, and affectionate, and, as with all animals adopted via the Garrett County Humane Society, has been spayed and has all her shots. Inquiries may be made by calling the organization at 301-334-8274, 301-334-2699, or 301-746-5725. Interested persons may also view other animals available for adoption through the Humane Society by logging onto the Internet at www.countrysideah.com/humanesoc.

DOROTHY R. HAYWOOD

Dorothy Rosalie Haywood, 83, Swanton, died Friday, March 3, 2000, at the Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser.

Born on May 26, 1916, at Piedmont, W.Va., she was a daughter of the late Harley William and Ivy Irene (White) Harvey.

She was a 1934 graduate of Bruce High School, Westernport. She was a retired beautician, having owned the Capri Beauty Salon in Westernport, and the "Coney Capri Beauty Salon" in Lonaconing. She was a member of the Trinity United Methodist Church, Piedmont.

Surviving are her husband, Thomas Haywood; two daughters, Dorothy Brode, Westernport, and Marilyn Malcolm, Swanton; two sisters, Julia Carrillo, Annapolis, and Constance Dominick, Oakland; four grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

At Mrs. Haywood's request, her body was donated to the Human Gift Registry at West Virginia University. There was no visitation or service.

Arrangements were under the direction of the Smith Funeral Home, Keyser.

The family requests that expressions of sympathy be directed to either the American Cancer Society, Mineral County Chapter, c/o F&M Bank, Main Street, Keyser, WV 26726.

Food Sanitation Certification Training Slated

Food sanitation training for the purpose of becoming certified by the National Restaurant Association will be held at the Continuing Education building of Garrett Community College beginning next month. The 16-hour course will meet from 4 to 6 p.m. on the consecutive Tuesdays of April 4, 11, 13, 18; Thursday, April 20; Tuesday, April 25; Thursday, April 27; and Tuesday, May 2.

The instructors will be Irmgard R. Koscielaik, nationally certified food safety instructor, Garrett County Cooperative Extension, and Tina Buckel, sanitarian with Garrett County Environmental Health office. There is a charge for a study book without which it will be difficult to pass the certification test, according to the instructors. Twenty-five participants will need to be registered in order to hold the class, they added.

"Food safety should by now be on everyone's mind," Koscielniak commented. "Food handling procedures that have worked in the past may not be sufficiently careful in the future. The origin of our food supply is dramatically changing; our cleaning and food preparation procedures are not what they used to be. We eat out more and are in a hurry when it comes to preparing a meal at home; often the children do the cooking."

"Our protection is education," remarked Buckel. "This is important not only for the family member preparing meals, but especially for group food preparers at senior centers, restaurants, schools, child care centers, senior homes, and others. Occasional food preparers could make meals for churches, picnics, family reunions or other special occasions. It is not wise to take a chance and think 'it was OK last year'."

For further information or to register, interested persons may contact Koscielniak at 301-334-6964 or Buckel at 301-334-8980.

Mountain Lake Park Observer

Mountain Lake Park Observer
by Daniel Whittelsey

Councilman Lou DiCarlo and I recently took a driving tour of the playgrounds of Mountain Lake Park. There are two of them, Allegheny Park and Veterans Park. They are a credit to those who have supported and encouraged their development. Mr. DiCarlo has been particularly active in trying to improve them.

Unfortunately, these two parks still fall far short of what they could and should be. I believe there are many unanswered questions.

Should there not be one or more small parks throughout the community? After all, this basically is a bedroom community with families of all sizes and ages. Additional parks would place these facilities within short walking distances for young and old.

How about facilities? Drinking water and toilet facilities are always needed. Where are they?

As of now the parks are dominated by jungle gyms suitable for young children, a few basketball courts, and some open area for playing softball or soccer. Swings are always used, but none are in evidence. They need activities for the elderly, such as shuffleboard or checkers.

I know this all sounds very expensive and ambitious, but it seems to me that the mayor and town council should recognize the opportunities to organize a planning committee to determine what should be done, how long it will take, what financing is required, and what insurance costs may be. Playgrounds are very important to a community. It seems to me that there may well be grant money available.

Just throwing money at a problem is not always the best solution. Remarks have been made that the playgrounds are not used, at least not to the fullest extent possible.

The answer to that is "people." An individual should be selected to act as, say, athletic director, to help organize teams and competitive events using the park's facilities by the local young, middle aged, and elderly. The usage of local parks by the community, combined with the atheltic facilities of our public schools, can create a tremendous field of activity for all age groups.

And this is important. There is always the temptation of idle young minds to occupy themselves with something of interest. There already exists such groups that can help. Their objectives are clear. Keep drugs and crime out of our neighborhoods. Provide the young with excitement and challenges in sports and play.

If you agree with the above, let the mayor and town council hear from you by either calling, writing, or attending town council meetings. The following meetings are scheduled:

Town council meeting: Tuesday, March 14, at 6 p.m.; and Zoning Appeals Board meeting: Wednesday, March 22, at 4 p.m.

Please attend as many of these meetings as you can. Voice your opinions so that your elected officers can determine what the community wants and needs. That is the objective of this column.

Salem Introduces New Residential Program Director

Debi Lyons, a LaVale resident who holds a master's degree in social work from West Virginia University, recently accepted the position of residential director at the Maryland Salem Children's Trust, Garrett County.

Prior to joining the staff at Salem, Lyons worked with children in need, including those in the therapeutic foster care unit of the Allegany County Health Department. She also held the position of care coordinator in the Medical Management department at Maryland Physicians Care, Cumberland.

Since assuming her responsibilities as residential director, Lyons has been instrumental in laying the groundwork to open the new Emergency Shelter Care Program at Salem. In addition she operates three residential homes and a Level 5 special education and transition school that serves residents of Garrett and Allegany County day students.

Town Hall

ACCIDENT

Town elections were held Tuesday, March 7. Ed Golden and Dave Hook were elected to fill council seats. See story.

The town meeting was held Monday, March 6.

- The Garrett County commissioners and Monty Pagenhardt, county administrator, attended the meeting to discuss the tax differential. The town will not ask for the a financial consideration but will accept county assistance for several town projects.
- Deputy Valentine told the council he is enforcing the parking restriction along Accident/Friendsville Road.
- The council discussed the 2000-2001 constant yield tax. A decision on the tax rate will be made at a later meeting.
- Residents are reminded that regulations prohibit the operation of 4-wheelers in the town parks.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, April 3.

FRIENDSVILLE

The town meeting was held Monday, March 6.

- A group of citizens presented concerns relative to some independent kayakers exiting the river onto private property, changing clothes in public areas, consuming alcoholic beverages on town streets, and causing parking problems. Boaters will be encouraged to utilize the takeout ramp and changing facility at the town park. Council will also notify the police and ask for assistance with this ongoing problem. It was noted that the local rafting companies are considerate of town citizens and that Mountain Surf is working to educate independent boaters regarding the etiquette for boating near small towns.
- Council approved a request from the Friendsville Lions Club to reserve the community park on May 27 for the biennial circus and on July 15 for the annual fiddlers' contest.
- Local and state officials have been contacted to determine what assistance may be available to develop additional flood controls for the community.
- Permission was granted for the local Little League to use the park balifield for practices Monday through Thursday evenings in April.
- The health department's Community Outreach Program was granted permission to sponsor an Easter egg hunt at the community park on April 15 for local children.
- A complaint was received regarding several unlicensed vehicles which are parked on town property. The police will be notified of the situation.
- A meeting is scheduled for Monday, March 13, 7 p.m., at Town Hall to organize a steering committee to develop a proposal to submit to the chamber of commerce for locally sponsored Autumn Glory activities. Such events would take place at the community park and possibly at other local sites. Representatives of local organizations and groups, as well as interested individuals are urged to attend.
- A municipal tax rate was set at 59 cents per $100 of assessed value. This is the same rate as the current year.

The next town meeting will be held Tuesday, March 21.

LOCH LYNN

The town meeting was held Monday, March 6.

- A group of residents attended and presented a petition to the council requesting the fluoride not be added to the water supply. The council will hold a public meeting to discuss this issue further. The date for such a meeting has not yet been determined. See story.
- The committee working on the "old school" project reported that renters are currently being sought for spaces in the recently upgraded facility. Anyone interested in renting space may call Town Hall at 301-334-8339 and leave a message.
- The town tax rate of 48 cents per $100 was discussed. The council will further consider possible adjustment of the tax rate.
- The ball fields will not be ready for spring use.

The next town meeting will be held Monday, April 3.

OAKLAND

The town meeting was held Monday, March 6.

- The town made donations to Southern and Northern high schools' after-prom parties.
- The Halloween committee, representing Oakland, Loch Lynn, and Mtn. Lake Park, reported on several recommendations to increase safety and better coordinate the towns' celebrations.
- Lowell Leitzel, a teacher at SHS, updated the council on the accreditation process which is under way at the school.
- There will be some additions to the cable television line-up. Several new channels will be added, including a soap network, a TV guide channel, and GRTV. These new additions will be phased in, at no extra charge, over the next few weeks.
- Town elections will be held Monday, March 13. Polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Residents who are registered for the general elections may vote. Those on the ballot are Asa McCain, incumbent, running for mayor (unopposed); incumbents Harold Cannon, Mary Lou Stemple, and Peg Jamison plus Mikal McCartney are running for council. Blair Glass, incumbent, is running for treasurer (unopposed).

The next town meeting will be Monday, April 3.

JWCC DONATES TO OVFD — The Junior Woman's Civic Club recently made a donation to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department. Above, Beverly Barb, JWCC vice president, presents the check to Fred Callis, president of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department.

JWCC Convenes, Makes Donations

The Junior Woman's Civic Club met last Thursday at the Deep Creek Lake Discovery Center for a potluck dinner and the club's regular monthly meeting.

During the business meeting, donation checks were written to the American Cancer Society and Garrett Community College Scholarship Foundation. The club also voted to make a donation to Brian Crabtree, Life Scout, to assist in his endeavor to plant 150 trees in the Oakland area. The meeting concluded with the drawing for the door prize, a Party-Lite candle and holder, which was won by Carm Swift. After the meeting club members were given a demonstration by a Mary Kay consultant, Dot Brown of Lisbon, Ohio.

The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, April 6. The Junior Woman's Civic Club is open to women, 18 and older. Anyone interested in attending the next meeting or joining the club may contact Beverly Haines at 301-387-9629, Beverly Barb at 301-334-2113, or any club member for further information.

DNR Sets Syrup Program, Meal At Local Parks

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources has scheduled "Turning Sap into Syrup," a demonstration program of how sap is boiled into maple syrup, for Saturday, March 11, at Swallow Falls State Park, and Sunday, March 12, at Herrington Manor State Park. Maple syrup products will be offered for sale from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. both days. Steyer Brothers, a local sugar camp, will be on hand to answer questions.

Sunday's events at Herrington Manor State Park will include an all-you-can-eat pancake and buckwheat cake breakfast that will be served from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the concession building. Pancakes, buckwheat cakes, pure maple syrup, sausage, orange juice, coffee, and tea will be served at a cost of $5 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12. Horse-drawn hay rides will also be offered throughout that same day at Herrington Manor State Park. Pre-registration is required for the rides. For additional information persons may call 301-334-9180.

4-H Club News

NORTH GLADE
by Rachal and Rebecca Winegardner
Reporters

The North Glade 4-H Club officers for 2000 were elected recently, and selected were: Joshua McKnight, president; Adam Bernard, vice president; Megan Bernard, secretary; Jessie Woods, treasurer; Rachal and Rebecca Winegardner, reporters; and County Council representatives Joshua McKnight, Cody Gilpin, and Lori Woods.

The club's February meeting included public speaking presentations by each club member. Serving as judges of these presentations were Barbara Herbert, Sandy DeWitt, and Sue Roberson.

The club members decided to sell hoagies, with proceeds benefiting Adam Herbert's Bike Across America project. His trip will benefit the American Lung Association. Members need to have orders and money turned in by Thursday, March 16. The delivery date will be Friday, March 24.

The next meeting of the North Glade 4-H Club will be at the 4-H building on March 16 at 7 p.m.

Healthy-O-Living in Garrett County

Mental Health Group To Open Drop-In Center

The Right Step, a consumer-oriented drop-in center, is currently being organized under the auspices of Mountain Top Mental Health Associates.

According to MTMHA board member Howard Gerard, the center will offer a place for socializing and holding events for people with mental illness, plus their family, friends, and other members of the community. "The center will be open on weekends and during evening hours when some of the mental health consumers may not have other things to do," Gerard explained.

Funding for the endeavor will initially come from the state, which will provide start-up money for the program and support during its first year or two, until it can become self-supporting, Gerard said.

Plans for activities to be held at the Right Step include classes, discussion of mental health issues, and public education on mental illness in addition to recreational activities. MTMHA is currently seeking an appropriate site for this center. "We have an appointment to look at one available site on Friday," Gerard concluded.

For further information, persons may call MTMHA at 301-334-8144.

Juvenile Arthritis Often Hard To Diagnose, Treat

Despite the fact that juvenile arthritis affects nearly a quarter of a million children and is one of the most common childhood diseases, it can be difficult to diagnose and treat, according to J. Karen Krug of the Maryland chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

"Compounding the problem is the declining number of pediatric rheumatologists, a subspecialty critical to the proper diagnosis and treatment of children living with this chronic, painful, and disabling disease," Krug noted.

Not Just "Growing Pains"

Many parents and some physicians may regard the symptoms of juvenile arthritis as just "growing pains" until they become serious. Unlike other diseases that can be determined by a single test, a doctor may have to go through many steps to find out if juvenile arthritis is present. "What's worse, the longer a diagnosis is delayed, the more potential there is for joint damage to occur," Krug stated.

She also explained that with early recognition and aggressive treatment, the devastating impact of the disease can be minimized.

Awareness & Warning Signs

As Juvenile Arthritis Awareness Week approaches, March 6-12, the Arthritis Foundation is launching a nationwide campaign to raise awareness of juvenile arthritis, the warning signs that accompany it, and the critical need for pediatric rheumatologists.

Juvenile arthritis is a general term for all types of arthritis that occur in children. The symptoms include pain, stiffness, and sometimes swelling in or around the joint. Children may develop juvenile rheumatoid arthritis or childhood forms of lupus, ankylosing spondylitis, or other related forms of arthritis, Krug reported.

285,00 Affected

"Contrary to general belief, infants, children, and teenagers can get arthritis. As estimated 285,000 children under age 18 are affected by juvenile arthritis, and juvenile rheumatoid arthritis (JRA) affects up to 50,000 children," she said.

According to the Arthritis Foundation, juvenile arthritis is even more prevalent than juvenile diabetes and cerebral palsy. "And it's not just minor aches and pains. Arthritis may be a cause of blindness in children," Krug explained.

Medications used to treat juvenile arthritis may affect growth. Some children with JRA may undergo changes in appearance from medications that result in weight gain. The Arthritis Foundation offers a variety of supportive services for people with arthritis.

Parents' Eating Habits May Lead Kids To Obesity

The eating habits of parents may play an important role in the development of obesity in children, according to research presented last week at the American Heart Association's L.J. Filer Jr. Third Annual Conference on Atherosclerosis in the Young.

Researchers looked at the eating habits of the parents of 92 children, age 3-5, enrolled in the Framingham Children's Study.

Method Used

The researchers used a questionnaire to assess three factors associated with parents' eating behaviors: dietary restraint, disinhibited eating, and self-perceived hunger. The dietary restraint scale measures conscious efforts to limit food intake. The disinhibition scale gauges "impulsive eating" as well as the resulting fluctuation in both dietary intake and body weight. The hunger scale assesses whether a person eats in response to internal cues, such as hunger, or to external cues.

The parents were divided into three groups for each of the three scales, reflecting high, medium, or low scores on those scales. Researchers then looked at changes in body fat in the children over the next six years.

Body fat was measured each year by recording the child's height and weight and by using calipers to measure the thickness of the child's skin folds and changes in the skin fold thickness from year to year.

Findings

- The kids whose parents scored highest on either dietary restraint or disinhibition (impulse eating) had greater increase in body fat over the next six years than children whose parents scored lower.
- The parent's level of impulse eating strongly affected the child's body fat level. The children whose parents had the highest scores in the disinhibition (impulse eating) scale gained an extra 25 millimeters in the skin fold thickness compared to children whose parent had the lowest scores.
- The children whose parents alternated between dietary restraint and impulse eating gained the most body fat over time. Those parents struggled to restrain their intake of food but were prone to eating excessively on impulse even when they weren't hungry.

Lynn L. Moore, D.Sc., assistant professor of medicine at Boston University School of Medicine, Mass., explained that while most people do this occasionally, disinhibited eaters are prone to this loss of control in the presence of certain food cues.

- Parents are often unaware that they are passing on their own dietary habits and attitudes to their children. Some parents may emphasize the importance of a healthy diet to their children, but if their own diet doesn't reflect that belief.
- Parents who score the highest on dietary restraint may also exert excessive control over the child's eating choices and may suppress the child's ability to internally regulate his or her own dietary intake.

Purpose of Study

Moore said the study's purpose was to identify how risk factors for chronic adult conditions such as high blood pressure, heart disease, or obesity are first established, so they can be prevented. "By the time a child reaches adolescence, many of those risk factors are already set. These children have already developed habits such as a sedentary lifestyle or unhealthy dietary patterns that will persist throughout their lives and increase their risk for heart disease in the future." she said.

Arthritis Foundation Offers Services

The Arthritis Foundation offers a variety of programs geared to support and reduce the pain for those with arthritis. Some of the services provided follow:

- Water- and land-based exercise classes
- Support groups
- Home study courses
- Instruction videos
- Public forums
- Educational brochures, booklets, and self-help books
- Family retreats, conferences

School Breakfast Week Highlights Nutrition, Health

School Breakfast Week will be observed in Garrett County schools March 13-17. The theme for the week is "School Breakfast — A Great Adventure."

According to Scott Germain, director of food and nutrition services for the Garrett County Board of Education, research indicates that breakfast is the one meal that children should not go without. "A nutritious breakfast from the five food groups can provide children with about one-fourth of their daily nutrient needs," Germain stated.

During the week, parents of children attending Garrett County schools are invited to have breakfast at school. "This is a great opportunity to focus students' and parents' attention on the relationship between nutrition, health, and fitness," said Germain.

The Food and Nutrition Services office asks that each parent who wishes to have breakfast at school notify the school office of the day one plans to visit. The charge for adults is $2.25 and non-school children will be charged $.75.

Shelter Program For Children In Crisis Opens

The Salem Shelter Care Program opened recently at the Maryland Salem Children's Trust in northern Garrett County to offer a safe, temporary placement for children in crisis. Only boys and girls age 8-15 will be considered for placement in the eight-bed facility.

According to the mission statement of the program, Salem will offer a "nurturing and highly structured" environment. "The restoration of hope, order, control, and responsibility will be the goals for those admitted," it said.

The shelter program managers make emergency placement decisions within 30 minutes of application. Once in the program, children will attend the Salem School Transition Education system.

A maximum stay in the shelter is 60 days. Prior to a child leaving the program, discharge planning with the case worker will include the goal of long-term placement.

For more information on the Salem Shelter Care Program, persons may call 301-589-8176, ext. 208 or 210, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Lead Poisoning Prevention Web Site Available

The Garrett County Health Department has noted that, despite efforts at education and prevention, children in Garrett County continue to be poisoned by lead from peeling lead-based paint, lead-contaminated dust, and other lead sources in their homes.

To raise public awareness of the problem, the health department is participating in the National Campaign for a Lead-Safe America, which includes a new web site that provides information on lead safety. The web site, available at www.lead-safeamerica.net, also provides updates on the national campaign's activities, links to other resources, and an overview of lead poisoning prevention programs around the country.

"Nationally, almost 1 million pre-school children have enough lead in their blood to harm them," said Tina Buckel, lead poisoning prevention grant coordinator with the Environmental Health office of the local health department. "Thanks to this national effort and the involvement of many wonderful partners and community groups, we'll be bringing messages on lead safety to the people who are in the best position to do something to protect children still at risk."

For more information about the lead poisoning program, interested persons may call the Environmental Health Office at 301-334-8980. For more information persons may contact the Campaign for a Lead-Safe America at 1-800-424-LEAD, P.O. Box 65464, Washington, DC 20035.

AURORA/EGLON NEWS

SOUP AND SALAD DINNER SET

A March 25 Soup and Salad dinner will be held from 4 until 8 p.m. at the Maple Spring Church along Rt. 24, south of Eglon. The all-you-can-eat meal will feature a variety of soups and salad bar, plus homemade desserts, for a donation of $5 for adults; $3 for those 6-12 years; and preschoolers eat for free.

This annual event is sponsored by the youth fellowship group of the church.

PRAYER OBSERVANCE

Twenty-five women from area churches gathered Friday, March 3, at the Maple Spring Church of the Brethren to observe World Day of Prayer, one of three annual observances by Christian women around the world under the auspices of Church Women United.

Following a covered-dish luncheon, the women gathered in the sanctuary for worship using the theme "Talitha Kumi," or "Young Women, Stand Up," for the program. Wilda Stemple presented a background on the Indonesian area, its climate, products, customs, and people, preceding the worship service.

BAKER BIRTH

Kenneth and Carrie Baker Aurora, announce the birth of a son on Feb. 18. Named Jared Lee, the baby weighed 7 pounds 13½ ounces upon arrival at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. His older siblings are Kara, Keith, and Dillon.

Bill and Ellen Baker of Aurora are the paternal grandparents. Anne Huffman of Buckhannon and Dale Humphrey of Belington are the maternal grandparents.

PERSONAL MENTION

Albert and Ruth Moran of Alaquippa, Pa., were Feb. 26 guests of Fred and Dorotha Forman, Amboy.

Attending Heritage Day at the legislature were Alice McGinnis, Laura Blue, Thelma Stemple, and Jo Ann Helton, all Aurora.

David and Jennifer Conrad and son Daniel, all of Eglon, visited last week in Marlinton with the Charles Myers family.

Mary Kelly has returned to her home near Columbus, Ga., after several weeks here with her mother, Maxine Hauser, Aurora.

Billy Allman, son of John and Mary Allman, Eglon, was admitted Saturday to Garrett County Memorial Hospital with an apparent infection in his leg.

Lee Martin of Aurora was admitted Sunday morning to Garrett Memorial Hospital following a fall at his home.

Joe Spaid of Eglon underwent eye surgery Friday at Garrett Memorial Hospital.

Sunday visitors with Rose Ina and Stanley Harsh at Eglon were Don, Neva, and Missy Frantz; Mark, Jenny, and Michelle Harsh; Claud, Brenda, Carroll, and Allen Hartsell; Melissa and Dakota Harsh; Eleanor Beckman; and Sylvia and Amanda Beckman. Also visiting were Vic and Carol Imes and Amber, and Wilmer and Abbey Harsh, all of Ft. Ashby.

Ruth Teets was taken from Cortland Acres Nursing Home to Garrett County Memorial Hospital Sunday evening.

Martha Bolyard returned Friday to her home in Aurora after visiting her brother, Charles Bolyard, and her nieces, Pattie Winningham and family at Sparta, Tenn., and Pam and Bill Wainscott of Statesville, N.C. The latter were accompanied by Mr. Bolyard to Aurora, and returned Sunday to their respective homes, his in Kingston, Tenn.

Visiting this weekend in Aurora with Homer and Marguerite Myers and celebrating Mrs. Myers's birthday, were her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Myers of Houston, Texas, and their daughter and husband, Mary and Alan Teets of Middletown, Del.

Alice Bolyard underwent leg surgery at Garrett Memorial Hospital on Feb. 28, and is now reportedly recuperating at her Amboy home.

Mrs. Doris Adams expressed her appreciation to all who remembered her family during the illness and death of her husband, Jack T. Adams.

Terra Alta Library To Move March 18

The Terra Alta Public Library is moving on March 18. The new location will be the former Rite-Aid building on the west side of Route 7 in Terra Alta. Because of the move, the library will be closed March 16 through March 23. The book return will still be in use for patrons to return their reading materials.

This will be the fourth move of the Terra Alta Library, with each move being necessary because of growth. The library opened in 1972.

Hospice Volunteer Training Scheduled

Grant Memorial Hospice, Petersburg, will be holding hospice volunteer training on Saturday, March 25, and Saturday, April 1, in the Rural Health Initiative (RHI) building located on the hospital grounds. The classes will run from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. This 12-hour training will be an overview of hospice history, development, and application. Anyone interested in attending or learning more about the training should call Joyce McNeill at 257-1026, ext. 550.

Hospice volunteers are needed in Grant, Hardy, and Pendleton counties. Volunteer services are individualized to meet both the patient and/or family needs and what the volunteer is willing or able to do.

The training will not be held if there are not at least five class participants.

Annual Dance Set At Alpine Lake

The annual "Luck of the Irish" dance will be held this Saturday, Mar. 11, from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at Alpine Lake Resort near Terra Alta. Co-sponsored by the Terra Alta Civic Club and Alpine Lake Resort, the event will feature Soundmaster Entertainment, with Mark Falkenstein "spinning oldies, but goodies."

Admission at the door is $3 for singles and $5 for couples. The dance is restricted to persons age 21 and over (identification will be required). All persons meeting the age requirement are invited to attend, according to Mary Jo Gregg, publicity chairperson for the Terra Alta Civic Club.

Grant Memorial To Host Class

The Tri-County Red Cross Service Unit is holding a Red Cross Emergency Assistance I class Saturday, March 18, in the Multi-Purpose Room at Grant Memorial Hospital, Petersburg. This eight-hour class is much needed in the tri-county area to update and train volunteers in filling out Red Cross Emergency Assistance vouchers. This past fall and winter Red Cross vouchers were issued to three families who suffered losses by fires. Hardy County had two such fires and Grant County had one.

Emergency Assistance vouchers are used by the Red Cross in place of money and used for those in need of emergency assistance to help in their recovery from a disaster. The Red Cross has guidelines that must be followed before vouchers can be issued or honored. At this time vouchers are issued in the tri-county area by one volunteer. The goal is to have a couple of dependable volunteers in each county — Hardy, Grant, and Pendleton — who can take care of the voucher needs in their own county. Several tri-county volunteers received this training in 1997, but need to be updated in the voucher changes since then.

The March 18 training is free. For more information and to pre-register, persons may call Grant Memorial Hospital at 257-1026, ext. 106, or Fran Welton at 538-2511. Persons are asked to pre-register so enough training materials will be available.

tional property taxes, $5.15 million in employee income, and $18 million in gross sales. However, in order to effectively promote the area to reach this increase, the chamber must spend more money on advertising, Wishnick explained.

The chamber members stressed that tourism is of vital importance in Garrett County. Statistics presented indicated that in 1996, tourism in the county generated 2,823 jobs, $51.51 million in employee income, and $183.3 million in gross sales. The 1999 property taxes from homes around Deep Creek Lake (many of which are second homes built by visitors) equaled $18.6 million, the chamber members reported.

While tourism is important in the area, the money given by the county to support the chamber is lower than in most areas, Wishnick said. In a cover letter to the budget request, he said that "cash strapped Allegany County budgeted to spend $60,000 more on tourism than Garrett" in FY 2000. Further on in the document, he noted that "there's not a lot of rocket science here — if we spend more, we stand to become a far more successful tourism destination."

Wishnick also noted that the chamber has "squeezed" the budget request, cutting out certain costs and items. He said the chamber has managed to increase its income through such avenues as improved monetary returns from the Autumn Glory Festival, an increase in membership, and an increase in tourists coming to the area, from whom accommodations/amusement tax monies are collected and ultimately returned for more tourism promotion. The net county accommodations tax collected, according to information provided by Wishnick, has increased over the years from just under $200,000 in 1988-89 to over $400,900 in 1998-99.

Concerning Autumn Glory, Wishnick has recently circulated his staff throughout the county to meet and discuss the inclusion of more areas in the yearly event, and to also divest the chamber from the responsibility of operating most of the popular weekend's events. He has suggested that a non-profit foundation take over the operation of the event, as it is too time consuming for the chamber's staff to handle. (An article exploring this item further will be published next week.) The chamber has already handed its annual Scottish Highland Festival over to the Deep Creek Lions Club, which Wishnick said will save money for the chamber this coming fiscal year.

Commissioner Fred Holliday asked the chamber members how they would feel about an increase in the accommodations tax, raising it a penny. The members responded negatively to the idea.

"Our ski lift tickets are already taxed higher than any other nearby resort — higher than those in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and others in Maryland," Geisler said. "I don't think it would be a good return. We would lose money if we raised the tax any higher."

Kessler agreed, asserting that the expense of promoting the off-seasons would in the long run bring in far more money than added taxes. The men said they believe the chamber is reasonable in its request, and that it's "fair to ask the commissioners to reinvest the money that tourism has brought to the county."

While the chamber has focused the majority of advertising on the Deep Creek Lake area, Wishnick, in answer to a question on this issue, said that the cultural heritage/small-town uniqueness of the county's municipalities is promoted after the prospective tourists are "hooked" by the lake advertising.

"You have to get their attention first, and then you can show them everything that is available for them," he said. "A brochure about small-town culture isn't necessarily going to make a city person get out of his chair, but if you attach to the resource we have in the lake area, he's more likely to look into what we have to offer."

Another request made by the chamber was for a new marque sign to be placed on top of the Visitors Center at Deep Creek Lake. Complaints have been received that people are passing by the center without seeing it. The sign's cost is estimated at $33,200. It would be used, Wishnick said, to not only bring attention to the center, but also to advertise whatever event might be taking place around the county.

The commissioners are taking budget requests each week and are planning to strike the entire county budget by May 1.

Huskies Win State 1A/2A Team Title

The Northern High School wrestling team made school and county history this past weekend by capping a stellar season with a Maryland Class 1A/2A State Wrestling Championship at Western Maryland College in Westminster. The Huskies, who won every tournament they entered this season, including the prestigious Thomas Chevrolet tourney in Bedford, Pa., and the Maryland State Dual-Meet title, amassed a Maryland Public Schools Secondary Athletic Association record 173 points to defeat 44 other 1A and 2A schools in the state.

The Southern High Rams also completed their most successful season in over 20 years by placing eighth in the state event.

Finishing second with 153 points was Kent County, a team that the Huskies had edged, 27-26, in the state dual meet a few weeks ago. Williamsport was third with 116 points, followed by Atholton and Rising Sun tied with 61, Urbana with 58, North East with 48.5, and Linganore and Southern tied for eighth with 46 points each.

Four members of Coach Scott Stough's team came home with individual state championships in their respective weight classes, while one Southern Ram earned a state title. Northern sophomore Pete Stein won the 103-pound title when he decisioned Ryan Jackson of Poolesville, 6-4; senior Matt McNees blanked Dave Pucino of Linganore, 4-0, in the finals of the 119-pound class; junior Brandon Kamp pinned Josh Swartz of Williamsport to capture the 140-pound crown; and Mark Wolf, also a junior, topped Southern's Jeremy Hayhurst, 5-1, to claim the 160-pound division crown.

Winning Southern High School's first-ever individual state championship was John Hayhurst, who earned a convincing 8-2 point victory over Joey Kirwan of Kent County, meaning that Garrett County wrestlers captured five of the 13 individual titles.

Completing the most outstanding individual season in the county was undoubtedly Mark Wolf, who not only amassed a personal 34-1 record, but did not give up a single take-down the entire season, including at last weekend's state tourney. His only loss for the campaign was a 5-3 decision to none other than Southern's Jeremy Hayhurst soon after Wolf had knee surgery.

"It was a fantastic season for our team," said Wolf, who placed fifth in the state tournament last year as a sophomore. "I thought my competition at states would be tougher than it was, but I really didn't have any trouble until I got to the finals against Jeremy. We have wrestled each other six times this season, so neither one of us had any surprises for each other.

"Wrestling takes a tremendous amount of hard work, both physically and mentally," he said. "But I love it, and I hope to come back next year and win a second state title."

The local wrestler who dramatically earned the title of "the come-back kid" was without a doubt Northern's Brandon Kamp, who trailed in every single match at the tournament, but found a way to rally for a win.

"Brandon was behind in his very first match, but came back to win it," said Coach Stough. "In his quarterfinal he was down 10-6, and then pinned the guy. In his semifinal he was losing until the third period, then tied the score and won in overtime. And in the finals, he was behind 4-1 at the end of the first period, but then pinned that guy, too. It was an incredible effort."

Kamp's pin in the 140-pound finals also avenged a 2-1 loss to Swartz of Williamsport in the regional championships.

"I was nervous going into my first match at states, but calmed down a little after getting my first win," Kamp said. "I just never stopped working in any of my matches, even when I was behind, and it paid off. I give a lot of credit to Coach Stough, as well as Coach (Steve) Savage, because they really helped me a lot."

Kamp, who finished with a personal mark of 30-8, is also looking forward to next season already, and believes he will move up one weight class.

Another Husky who without any doubt will move up in weight next year, possibly several classes, is 103-pound sophomore champion Pete Stein, who had to work extra hard to stay at that weight.

"I weighed 123 pounds when the season started, and was well over 103 just before states," he said. "It was an extra challenge for me because I was often sort of weak going into my matches. But after I won my first match and got the jitters out on the first day of the tournament, I had a great second day. After I won my semifinal, I felt like I was going to win the title.

"It was great to get the team victory, too," Stein said. "We worked very well as a team and we succeeded as a team. I'm looking forward to trying to repeat next year."

Stein's freshman season last year was cut short by a broken arm. He finished this year with an overall record of 34-2.

Matt McNees, the 119-pound state champion, is a newcomer to Northern this year, having been a student at Chesapeake High School previously. The senior finished with an overall record of 34-3 and settled a score with Pucino of Linganore in his 119-pound state final.

"I beat him at regionals (8-2) and he beat me in the Garrett County Invitational (4-2)," McNees said, "so it was great to win the third match with him since it was for the state title.

"States were both exciting and very tough for me," he said. "But it really feels great to win an individual title and be part of a team that won both the dual-meet and team championships. We had a few minor problems early in the season as a team, but we worked everything out and became a great team."

McNees said he isn't sure if he is going to move on to the collegiate ranks, at least not right away. "Right now, I think I want to take a break," he said. "I just haven't decided yet."

Coach Stough said that the "never quit" attitude never wavered with his team. "They got along very well with each other, but their real strength was that they simply did not know defeat," he said. "That was their mind-set long before the season even started; in fact, it went back to last year when we placed second in the state tournament."

The Huskies were topped only by Franklin last year, the largest 2A school in the state at that time and now a 3A school.

As to the future, Stough admits that the loss of eight starters via graduation will be a blow to the team next year, but added quickly, "Three of our four state champions will be back though."

Southern's John Hayhurst, the 189-pound state champion, finished second in the state last year. He opened this season with a modest 1-2 record, but then proceeded to win 33 straight matches to finish with a 34-2 mark. One of his losses was a disqualification when he accidentally broke his opponent's arm, and the other was a case of virtually pinning himself after building a points lead over his opponent. It was the third time that he qualified for the state tournament, and he went into states this year as the second-seeded 189-pound high school wrestler in the entire state, classes 1A through 4A. He recorded two pins and two decisions en route to the title.

"It was not like any other feeling in the world," Hayhurst said. "Last year I came so close to getting a title, but fell just short."

Hayhurst lost a 12-11 decision in the finals last year and had control of the match in the final seconds, but simply ran out of time.

"My first two matches were fairly easy (both pins)," he said. "My third one was the toughest." That match was against senior Brian Mullinix of Atholton, whom Hayhurst defeated by a 6-3 decision.

"My final match was pretty tough until the third period and then he just gave up," he said. Kirwan, a sophomore, was called three times for stalling in the final period.

"Obviously John is one of the best wrestlers to ever come through Southern High School," stated Ram coach Kurt Lear. "He and Jeremy both came up through the ranks of the Southern Mat Club (youth wrestling program), and that made a huge difference. It's great to finally break the ice in getting our first individual champion, but I think we are going to have several more in the next few years."

Lear is particularly confident of that fact since all but one member of his team will return next year. Adam Murray is the only starting senior on the squad.

"Besides John and Jere-

CAPPING AN OUTSTANDING SEASON and helping lead Northern High School to a state team championship was Mark Wolf, pictured above left battling Southern's Jeremy Hayhurst in the Maryland 1A/2A 160-pound division state final. Wolf, a junior, earned a 5-1 decision to win the state title and complete a 34-1 personal record for the season. Hayhurst's second place was crucial to the Rams' second-place finish in the 45-team tourney. Standing atop the winners' stand at right is Jeremy's cousin, John Hayhurst, third from right, who won Southern High School's first-ever individual state title. He finished his season with a 34-2 mark and the 189-pound division championship. At far left in the same photo is Northern's Ryan Brenneman, who also earned points for his team by placing sixth in that division. Below left, sophomore Husky Pete Stein works to record a 6-4 decision over senior Ryan Jackson of Perryville High to win the 103-pound state title. Below right, Brandon Kamp of Northern works against Josh Swartz of Williamsport in the finals of the 140-pound division and ultimately pins him to win that individual title. At bottom right, Matt McNees takes on Dave Pucino of Linganore and finishes with a 4-3 decision win to claim the 119-pound division title. As a team the Huskies won every tournament this season and had only one team defeat, a close loss to powerful East Fairmont early in the campaign. Photos courtesy of Delos Carpenter.

Huskies Win

ny, Nick Sines, Jeremy Lear, Keith Bennett, and Shawn Shiflett all qualified for states, and two other freshmen, Geoff Tressler and Chris Hayhurst qualified for regionals," he said.

Jeremy Hayhurst, a junior, placed sixth at the state tournament last year, but most likely would have made the finals had he not sustained a concussion in his quarterfinal. Northern's Matt Kauffman, whom Hayhurst had defeated throughout the regular season, placed third in that weight class last year.

"I think Jeremy will probably stay at 160 next year," Lear said, "and John will most likely stay at 189, or move up to 215 if Maryland decides to add that weight division."

Other place winners at the state meet for the Huskies were Blake Huber and Paul Beitzel in third, Jeremiah Guard in fifth, and Brandon Stein and Ryan Brenneman in sixth place.

Huber, who was a state runner-up last year, pinned Jason Freiert of Hammond in the consolation round of the 112-pound class, while Beitzel recorded a 15-6 decision over Daniel Hoeck of North Hagerstown to place third in the 130-pound consolation.

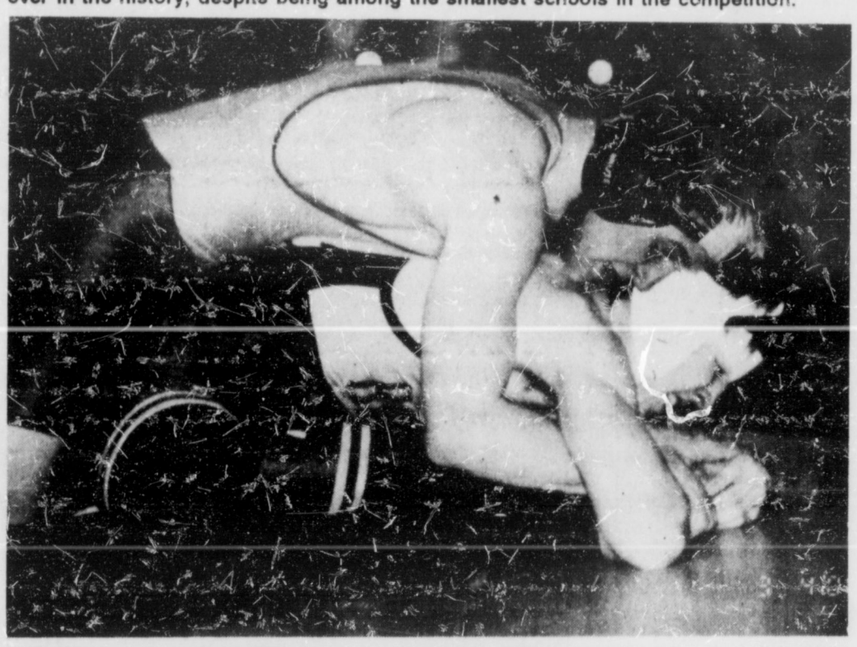
Guard's fifth place came in the 125-pound division, Brandon Stein wrestled in the 135-pound class, and Brenneman was sixth in the 189-pound class.

Stein, who was a defending state champion, was working hard to defend his title, but broke his ankle in the semifinals and had to default to Jake DeMatt of North East. He went into the tournament with a 30-3 record.

Other Huskies qualifying for the state tourney were seniors Keith Artice (145), Adam Brenneman (152), and Ryan Savage (275), while freshman Shawn Shiflett (130), junior Nick Sines (135), and junior Jeremy Lear (140) also qualified and competed for Southern.

"Garrett County was certainly well represented in the state tournament," Stough said, "and our success is really good for the sport and for our area."

WINNING THIRD PLACES In the Maryland 1A/2A Wrestling Championships on Saturday were Northern High Huskies Blake Huber and Paul Beitzel. Huber is pictured above in control of Jason Freiert of Hammond in the consolation finals of the 112-pound division. Huber later won the match with a pin. Below, Beitzel earns points against Daniel Hoeck of North Harford and goes on to record a 15-6 victory in the 130-pound division. The Huskies won the state team championship by the widest margin ever in the history, despite being among the smallest schools in the competition.



Pen-Mar League Meeting Slated

The Pen-Mar Baseball League will hold its first meeting of the 2000 season this Sunday, March 12, at 2 p.m. at the Keyser's Ridge McDonald's. All managers and officers are strongly encouraged by league president John Culp to attend this organizational meeting.

This season will be the 52nd consecutive season for the semi-pro adult baseball league that has teams from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The Pen-Mar league is a showcase for many current and past area college baseball players. The league has featured many players who went on to play professional baseball. Most of the tri-state area baseball coaches have played at one time in the league. The league also provides a forum for many adults who want to continue playing the game of baseball beyond high school and college.

New teams are always welcomed to the league, Culp said. Persons interested in playing or managing a team in the Pen-Mar league are asked to call Terry Helbig at 301-334-4491 or John Culp at 301-334-6023.

Jackson To Write For Internet Mags

Former local resident Jeff Jackson has recently been named technical writer for Internet magazines Swingweight.com and Golf Club Review. Jackson, vice president of Dynacraft Golf Products Inc. of Newark, Ohio, will maintain his current position with that company in addition to the new editorial assignment.

Swingweight.com and Golf Club Review serve the Internet audience with golf club equipment reviews, technical articles, and various how-to segments related to all types of golf equipment. Swingweight.com is the leading independent Internet magazine serving the golf equipment segment of the industry.

Additionally, Jackson will contribute to a new Internet publication, Xlsports, in the capacity of technical panel member and contributing writer. The new Xlsports site will be on-line by late March. Jackson's work will be found in the golf section of the web site. Jackson also edits Dynacraft's on-line magazine, Clubmakers' Digest. He has authored two texts related to golf equipment and regularly contributes to several other golf magazines, including Golf Tips, Europe's Golf Monthly, Hong Kong Golf Digest, and India Golf.

Jackson joined Dynacraft in 1991. His current duties include product design and development, instructing at the Dynacraft Clubmaking Institute, and managing the sales and technical staff at Dynacraft. Dynacraft is among the largest component club suppliers in the world, with divisions in Canada, England, Australia, South Africa, and Malaysia.

Jackson is a former Frostburg resident who taught at Northern Middle School for 12 years. He was director of golf at the Wisp Resort and owned Western Maryland Golf, a repair and custom club facility in Cumberland, from 1983 through 1990. Jackson graduated from Western Maryland College in 1979 and received a master's degree from Frostburg State College in 1983. He has one daughter, Jerilyn, a student at Frostburg State.

Sweitzer, Meyers Win Keystone, Mel's Tourney

Jim Sweitzer and Jeff Meyers emerged as the winners of the annual Keystone Paving/Mel's Truck Service Bowling Tournament, held Friday at Par-Matt Lanes. Twenty-six bowlers competed in the three-game qualifier, with the top four finishers in two different brackets, handicap and actual, competing for the top prizes of $250 each.

Sweitzer was the winner in the handicap competition, while Meyers captured the top prize in the actual bracket.

Sweitzer was tied with Larry DeBerry for the top seed after the qualifying rounds, as he recorded a 603 actual and 678 handicap, while DeBerry had a 582 actual and a 678 handicap. Tim Chapman rolled a perfect 300 game to qualify fourth with a 622 actual and a 670 handicap, and Terry Garlitz came in as the third seed with a 602 actual and a 674 handicap. Sweitzer and DeBerry rolled a two-frame roll-off which placed Sweitzer as the top seed.

In the final roll-off, Chapman topped Garlitz and then defeated DeBerry before being stopped by Sweitzer in the final match.

Rich Glover rolled a 554 to earn the fourth seed in the actual bracket, Hugh Schrier had a 560 to be named the third seed, Jeff Baker recorded a 566 to win the second seed position, and Meyers had a 580 in his qualifier to go into the final roll-off as the top seed. In the roll-off, Schrier defeated Glover, Baker then topped Schrier, and Meyers stopped Baker in the final game to win the $250 prize.

Additional sponsors of the event were Par-Matt Lanes, First Mortgage, and First United Bank & Trust. Appreciation was extended by tournament organizers to Ken Metheny of Keystone Paving, Mel Humberson of Mel's Truck Service, the other sponsors, and to all bowlers who participated.

Rickman Places First In Conf. Wrestling Event

Nathan Rickman, a junior at James Madison University, Harrisonburg, Va., was among six members of the JMU wrestling team who captured individual championships in the 2000 Colonial Athletic Association Wrestling Championships, held Saturday at George Mason University. The Dukes, who placed all 10 of their wrestlers in the semifinals and seven in the finals, also captured their second straight team championship with a conference record 108 points.

Rickman, who still holds the career record number of wins at Southern High School (122), won the title in the 174-pound division when he decisioned George Sable of Old Dominion University in the finals. It was Rickman's 67th victory as a JMU Duke and upped his season record to 24-10. With his victory he earned a berth in the NCAA Championships, which will be held March 16-18 at the Kiel Center in St. Louis.

Rickman was the Virginia Intercollegiate Champion and placed third in the CAA tournament last year. He was also named a CAA Scholar Athlete and earned honorable mention recognition as an Academic All-American.

An honor student at JMU, Rickman is majoring in integrated science and technology. He is a son of Jack and Norma Rickman, Oakland.

George Mason placed second in the tournament with 58.5 points, followed by Old Dominion with 54, Campbell with 48, and American University with 42.5.

JMU's coach, Jeff "Peanut" Bowyer, was named the CAA Coach of the Year for the second straight year.

Masters, Senior Games Set At Frostburg State

The Frostburg State University Recreation and Parks Management Program, in conjunction with the Frostburg Senior Center and the Allegany County Area Agency on Aging, will host the inaugural spring/summer Western Maryland Masters & Senior Games on Saturday and Sunday, April 29 and 30. The events will be held on the FSU campus and in community venues.

The goal of these games is to conduct athletic events that promote active living among senior and masters participants, and provide a learning experience for FSU students in the Recreation and Parks Management Program. FSU students within the Program Planning and Leadership course and other program majors, under the direction of their faculty, will plan and implement the games. This event will provide the students a hands-on, out-of-classroom learning experience in collaborating with community agencies and programming special events.

The seniors division of the games will serve as a satellite event for the Maryland Senior Olympics, an affiliate of the Maryland Senior Olympics Commission. The FSU two-day program includes three premier events — golf, 5K run, and softball. Other competitions include track and field, horseshoes, bocci, swimming, tennis, badminton, basketball 3X3 and free throws, racquetball, volleyball, table tennis, and bowling.

Event participation is open to all residents of the western Maryland region, including southern Pennsylvania and northern West Virginia. Masters division designation is for persons age 40 to 49. Seniors will compete in age groups including 50 to 54, 55 to 59, 60 to 64, 65 to 69, 70 to 74, 75 to 79, 80 to 84, 85 to 89, 90 to 94, and 95 plus. If participant numbers are insufficient, age groups may be combined for competition purposes.

In addition to these games, plans are under way for fall/winter competitions to be held in November 2000.

For information on this event, persons may contact Ken Bulik, FSU lecturer, at 301-687-4436 or Alphia Sharpless, Frostburg Senior Center, at 301-689-5510.

THE GOING WAS ROUGH last Thureday evening for Northern High School's leading scorer and rebounder Rob Dozier, pictured above going up for two against the Southern High Rams. Dozier was held to just seven points by the Rams, who recorded their third win of the season over the Huskies to advance to the finals of the West Region 1A championship game. Dozier did, however, grab a game-high 11 rebounds. Identifiable in the photo for Southern are, from left: Bryan Panther (#33), Jason Finch (#42), Christian Warfield (#22), and Justin Liller (#40). Below, Justin Stephens puts up a shot for the Rams, with Warfield and Panther prepared to rebound. Pictured at right is Northern's Josh Resh. The 47-39 win was costly for the Rams, however, as their leading scorer and senior point guard Nathaniel Panther sustained a broken hand in the first quarter. Photos courtesy of Steve Folickman.

Rams Fall To Wildcats In Regional Championship

Another shot at a state championship eluded the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team this past week, even though the 1999-2000 squad was one of the best in Coach Tom Bosley's successful career as head of the program. The top-seeded Rams worked their way into the finals of the 1A West Region Championships by defeating cross-county rival Northern, 47-39, in a semifinal last Thursday at Allegany High School in Cumberland, but were edged by Williamsport in the title game, 44-39, also played at Allegany.

The loss to Williamsport stopped the Rams' season win streak at 13 games and gave them an overall 20-5 record for the campaign, and a 40-8 mark for the past two seasons. Williamsport earned a spot in the finals by rolling over Allegany in the other semifinal, 70-49.

The game with Northern was a costly one for the Rams, as senior point guard Nathaniel Panther, the team's leading scorer, went down late in the first quarter with a broken hand, ending his high school career. Most Ram fans believe that injury cost Southern a regional title, a trip to College Park, and a berth in the state 1A semifinals.

But Tom Bosley, who is one of the area's most successful coaches, wasn't about to use the loss of Panther as an excuse for losing to Williamsport. "It's very unfortunate for Nate, but it's part of basketball," he said. "I'm not going to use it as an excuse."

The contest with Northern was the third time that the Rams and Huskies had met this season, with both previous encounters going right down to the wire. The Rams won the first encounter in overtime, and then held on to eke out a second win in the next regular-season game.

A third win over the same team in the same season is always difficult, especially when the team leader and primary ballhandler has to leave the game before the end of the first quarter, but fellow senior Justin Liller moved out to the point and, with strong support from several teammates, Southern pulled out the win.

The first half was just as anticipated — close. The Rams held a 9-7 edge at the end of the first quarter, but the score was knotted at 19-19 at halftime. But three turnovers by the Huskies in the first 1:20 of the third stanza were capitalized upon by the Rams, who took the lead for good, 21-19, on a shot by Bryan Panther. Southern would finish that quarter with a six-for-nine effort from the floor to go into the last period with a 32-25 advantage.

A bucket by Justin Stephens opened the fourth quarter and gave the Rams their largest lead of the game, 34-25. The Huskies then rallied to score eight of the next 11 points and cut Southern's lead to three, 37-34, with 4:01 to play in the game. However, they could get no closer, as the Rams made good on five of seven free throw attempts in the final 3:51.

Liller finished with 14 points, nine in the second half, to lead the Rams and was the only player in the game who reached double figures, as both squads excelled on defense. Bryan Panther hit all four of his shots from the floor and finished with eight points, while Josh Bosley contributed seven.

Northern's leading scorer Rob Dozier was limited to just seven points by the Ram defense, but pulled a game-high 11 rebounds and had two blocks. Josh Resh led the team in scoring with nine points and had seven rebounds, Tim Umbel also netted nine points, and Greg Speicher finished with eight points.

The Rams connected on just over 50 percent of their shots (15 of 29), but were out-rebounded by a 27-16 margin. The Huskies had more opportunities at the basket, but made good on just 12 of 39 attempts.

"Fundamentals and discipline are the keys to winning, and this team is as fundamentally sound and as disciplined as any I've ever coached," Coach Bosley said. "But Northern gave us all we could handle all year. They worked hard and finished with a good season."

"Southern is a well-coached team that still outplayed us after their best player went down," said Northern coach Paul Edwards. "They played hard and earned the win. They took away our inside game, just like they did the first two times we played them, which made it difficult for us to get the ball into Rob (Dozier) underneath.

"But at 14-10 for the year, with two of our losses in overtime and two more by one or two points, I am pleased with our season," he continued. "It was the first time in a long while that we believed we could beat any team we faced this year."

Panther, who was injured in a collision with Northern's Resh, learned after the game that his hand was broken in two places and that there was no way he could play against Williamsport. He was averaging just under 15 points per game, 12th best in the area.

Saturday night's regional final against Williamsport was also a close contest from the opening tip-off, but the Rams trailed by a handful of points most of the evening. Their best effort was an 11-3 run in the second quarter that momentarily gave them a 20-16 advantage, but the Wildcats responded with an 8-0 flurry and assumed a 26-22 lead at halftime.

The second half featured one tie, but Williamsport quickly resumed the advantage and was up by three, 36-33, at the end of the third quarter. The Rams' worst period was the fourth, when they committed four of their nine turnovers, two of which were steals by Williamsport forward Chris Barton.

A jump shot by Ryan Grabill with 2:00 remaining put the Wildcats up by four, 40-36, after which the Rams missed their next two shots and were forced to foul Barton with 20 seconds left. Barton connected on all four of his opportunities in those final moments to secure the win for the Wildcats, who improved their record to 18-7.

Jason Finch led the Rams in scoring with 12 points, half of which he netted in the first quarter, while Liller recorded 10 points, five rebounds, and four assists. Bryan Panther finished with eight points and Christian Warfield netted seven.

Grabill led Williamsport with a game-high 17 points, Cory Wolfensberger also reached double figures with 10 points and had four assists, and Barton finished with nine points.

The Rams out-rebounded the Wildcats by a 26-22 margin and hit a higher percentage of their shots from the floor. They connected on 14 of 36, while Williamsport made good on 15 of 46 attempts. Both teams did well at the free throw line, from which Southern hit nine of 11 and Williamsport went 11-for-12.

The win avenged a loss by Williamsport to the Rams in last year's regional semifinals. "We knew Southern had another fine team this year," stated Wildcat coach Deron Crawford. "They play outstanding defense and are extremely well coached. We were fortunate to get the win."

Tom Bosley, who lost all of his starters from last year's team that likewise reached the regional finals but lost to South Hagerstown by a point, 54-53, ached for his players. "We followed a great season last year with no starters back, and the kids bought into our program and worked very hard to earn the top seed in the region. I think we are still the best team in our region."

As the West Region champion, Williamsport will face the East Region champion in the state semifinals this Friday at the University of Maryland's Cole Fieldhouse in College Park.

Bosley Const., Mettiki Winners In Rec League

Dan Bosley Construction topped Patterson Boat, 49-44, and Mettiki defeated Gonder Insurance, 68-56, in Recreational Basketball League games played Sunday.

Paul Lewis and Dan Bosley led Dan Bosley Construction in scoring with 19 and 12 points, respectively, while Bill Franklin netted 14 and Max Hill added 10 for Patterson Boat.

Mike Saturday's 19 points led Mettiki, while Stan Skiles scored 14 and Kevin Liller netted 12. Pacing Gonder were Billy Braithwaite with 18 points, Denny Skeweris with 15, and Jason Shank with 13.

Quality Machine will face Dan Bosley Construction in the 6 p.m. game this Sunday, Mar. 12, and Mettiki will take on Patterson Boat in the 7 p.m. game.

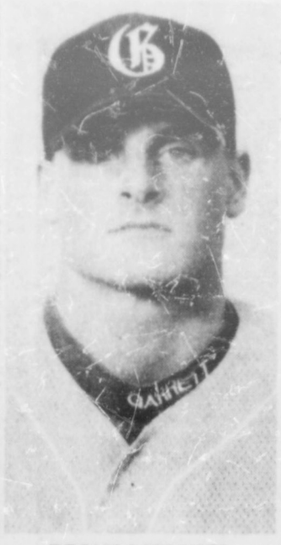
Wildesen Banking On Freshman Recruits For Successful Season



BRIAN MELNYK

KEVIN LOCKE

GARY LEE

The 2000 spring baseball season is under way for the Garrett Community College Lakers, and despite losing a number of key players from last season's winning squad, Coach Ed Wildesen's team has won three of its first four outings. (See separate story for game details.)

Six former Lakers are now playing ball at Division I or II universities/colleges, including Matt DiAngelo, who is at Radford University; Brian Tarajack, who is at West Virginia University; Josh Pearson and Mike Maravich, who are both playing for Ohio University; Joe Eisner, who is an All American at Point Park College; Lee Pennington, who is at West Liberty; and Andy Blackwell, who will soon be in the program at the University of Pittsburgh.

The top returning sophomores, whom Wildesen will depend upon for team leadership, are Gary Lee, Kevin Locke, and Brian Melnyk, who has already signed to play for WVU next fall.

Even though his team is young, Wildesen still has high hopes for the 2000 campaign, as he has his biggest roster since 1996 and a number of outstanding freshmen to fill most of those shoes. "This is one of the best freshman classes I've ever had at Garrett," he said. "We have four players who made it to the final American Legion All-Star game at Harrisburg, Pa., last summer, which showcases 44 of the top Legion players in Pennsylvania, and Pennsylvania is one of the biggest Legion baseball states in the country. Another Pennsylvania player pitched in the AA state championship game in Pennsylvania."

One recruit is from as far away as Toronto, Ontario, (Neil Blewett), and Wildesen also snared a number of impact players from the local area. Among them are Northern High School standouts Jeff Carr and Scott Sisler, Chris Bittinger of Southern High School, and Myron Deal from Meyersdale High School.

"Team chemistry and discipline, plus depth at every position will be our strengths," Wildesen said, "with youth, obviously, being our biggest concern. Our starting line-ups in our first four games included seven freshmen.

"These young men get along, they know right from wrong, and they know they will all contribute this year," he continued. "They are getting excellent leadership from Kevin Locke, Brian Melnyk, and the other sophomores, as well as a few of the freshmen."

GCC was listed among the top 50 teams in the country in the 2000 NJCAA Division I pre-season baseball poll.

The Lakers will play the West Virginia Wesleyan junior varsity this Saturday in Buckhannon and then open their home schedule with a doubleheader against Cuyohoga College on Sunday, with the first game getting under way at noon. Then they will head south over spring break on Mar. 17 to play 13 games in Maryland the Carolinas.

The Lakers are a member of the Maryland JUCO Conference and the NJCAA Region XX, Division I. Assisting Wildesen are Cliff Everett, Seth Hansen, and Chris Cutright.

Special Olympics Bowling Teams To Begin Season

The bowling team, sponsored by the Garrett County chapter of Special Olympics, will begin practice at Oakland's Par-Matt Lanes tomorrow, Friday, March 10, 5-7 p.m.

For this second season of the bowling program, Carol Walker will coach, assisted by volunteer Sara Hoffman.

Last year's charter team members Robert Broadwater and Roger Uber, who represented Garrett County at the Summer Games in Towson, will return to the team this year. They will be joined by about 40 new special athletes, as members of the Appalachian Crossroads program sign on with the team.

Garrett County Special Olympics coordinator Chad Brown recognized the positive effects of volunteers and parents of the participants. "Without them, our program couldn't have grown," he said.

GCC Off To 3-1 Diamond Start; Shows Strength In Every Area

The Garrett Community College men's baseball team broke out to a 3-1 start for the 2000 season this week, an outstanding debut for a young roster composed of 20 freshmen and only five sophomores. The Lakers opened with an 11-5 rout of Bridgewater (Va.) College's junior varsity, followed up with a 7-4, 10-5 doubleheader sweep of Rappahannock (Va.) Community College, then fell to Charles Community College 8-7 when a late-game rally nipped the Garrett squad by one run.

The Lakers performed well in every category over the week. The offense pounded out an average of over 12 hits in each contest, and the pitching staff held the opponents to an average of five hits per outing. GCC head coach Ed Wildesen said he was especially pleased with his squad's defense, noting that although it usually takes several outings for a team to jell in the field, the Lakers committed very few errors this week. Three of those errors proved costly against Charles CC, however.

Friday's opener at Bridgewater featured some fine pitching by freshman hurler Jon Means. The 6-3 southpaw gave up only two hits over five innings while striking out eight batters and giving up only two walks on his way to recording the victory.

Means was staked to an early lead when his teammates erupted for a four-run second inning that included five straight hits by Dan Kochenderfer, Dennis Show, Matt Mills, Jason DiAngelo, and Brandon Stewart. Garrett added four more runs in the seventh inning when Bridgewater's Andy Morris gave up four walks and two wild pitches.

Kochenderfer went 2-for-5 at the plate with three runs batted in and two runs scored, catcher Gary Lee also turned in a 2-for-5 performance with two doubles, and Show got into the act by going 2-for-5, including a triple, and scoring two runs. Mills recorded two singles in three plate appearances.

Bridgewater's batting line-up, stymied throughout the contest by Means and reliever Matt Bellamy, managed to field just one multi-ple-hit batter, Philip Patterson, who went 2-for-5 himself.

The following day's excursion to Warsaw, Va., for the doubleheader with Rappahannock resulted in a GCC sweep. The top half of the twinbill was a tight battle as the score was knotted 1-1 after three innings and 3-3 as the eighth inning got under way. Bellamy broke the deadlock by drawing a bases-loaded walk in the top of the inning, and Garrett added three insurance runs over the remainder of the stanza before yielding the batter's box to the hosts. Rappahannock managed a single run in the bottom of the eighth as the game drew to a close.

Chad Cooper led the Lakers on offense by whacking two doubles and netting one RBI. DiAngelo drove home three runs on three singles, and Mills added a double. GCC accumulated 12 hits during the contest while committing only one error.

Domenick Magnotti, a freshman lefty, started on the mound and pitched the first five innings before yielding to Bellamy. The Laker hurlers gave up a total of only six hits over the course of the battle. Dana Thomas hurled a complete-game loss for Rappahannock, while his teammates committed three errors behind him.

The second game began much like the first, as the score was tied at 2 after three innings of play. Garrett scored twice in the top of the fourth, but the hosts answered with two runs in the bottom of the inning to go up 4-3. GCC put four runs on the scoreboard in the following inning, two in the sixth, and one in the seventh to leave Rappahannock five runs back at the end.

DiAngelo launched a solo home run, the game's lone round-tripper and GCC's first of the year. Cooper doubled in two runs, and Mills and Craig Barkey punched out two singles apiece and scored twice. Just as in the opener, Garrett tallied 12 hits while committing just one error.

Rappahannock's Ricky Cox tagged a solo home run and added a single for a three-RBI total. John Hurd added two doubles and drove in one run. Rappahannock committed two errors in the field.

Scott Sisler, a 1999 Northern High School graduate, started the game on the mound for the Lakers. The Friendsville native pitched the first two innings before Pat Atkins came on in relief. Chris Nutter took the mound in the fifth and pitched the rest of the way.

David Sisson pitched the first three innings for the hosts before handing the ball to Hurd, who pitched until B.J. Kennedy arrived in the sixth.

Sunday in LaPlata, the Laker starter Brian Melnyk,

Lakers Bumped From Region XX Tourney By PGCC, 65-60

A rebuilding year came to a close Friday as the women's basketball team of Garrett Community College was eliminated from the Region XX Division II Tournament at the hands of Prince George's Community College, 65-60. The Lakers concluded the season with a somewhat disappointing 11-14 record, but have much to look forward to next year as eight of their ten players should be returning after a year of seasoning. The young squad will lose only two sophomores to graduation, forward Tasha Blackmon and guard Amanda Larnerd, but the strong pair will definitely leave a void in the Laker lineup.

Friday's contest in McHenry was a tight battle, as GCC led at the half, 32-31. With 1:18 to play the Lakers were down by only a point, 61-60. A layup by PG's Angelique Weston that gave the visitors a three-point lead was followed by a Garrett miscue when Syreeta Johnson stole a Laker pass and was fouled. She connected on one of two free throws to stretch the PG lead to four, and a second Laker turnover on the subsequent possession forced Garrett to foul Letisha Brown, who sunk one of two free throws to put PG up by the final five-point margin.

The two fatal late-game turnovers were among the 28 turnovers the Lakers had on the evening, as compared to only 18 miscues by PG. The visitors also held a 5-2 advantage in successful three point goals, but Garrett led in a number of other major categories, including rebounds by a 68-44 margin and 13-9 in assists.

The Lakers also committed only 17 fouls to PG's 23, but both squads turned in poor free throw shooting performances: the visitors hit only 4 of their 12 attempts, while GCC managed to connect on only 8 of 22 foul shots overall and just 3 of 12 in the second half. "Our free throw shooting really hurt us," GCC head coach Ann Wellham remarked. "We've been struggling with that all year."

Tameka Graves turned in an outstanding performance for Garrett as the center scored 22 points and hauled down a game-high 16 rebounds, in addition to taking away three steals and blocking a pair of shots. "We had a tremendous game from Tameka Graves. We outsized them and took advantage of it," Wellham said. Blackmon scored 12 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in her final appearance in a Laker uniform, and Sha'Ray Washington nabbed 13 rebounds and dished out four assists.

Johnson paced PG with 24 points, half of which came on her four three-pointers. Weston added 13 points and 13 rebounds, and Brown scored 10 points and handed out five assists.

Wellham has high hopes for next season. "I've seen a lot of growth from several players. We ran out of time this year, but next year shows promise."

PRINCE GEORGE'S (65)
Syreeta Johnson 9 2-4 24, Letisha Brown 4 1-4 10, Darrika Erby 3 0-0 6, Angelique Weston 6 1-3 13, Tina Wilson 5 0-0 10, Verna Severn 1 0-1 2. Totals 28 4-12 65.

GARRETT (60)
Amanda Larnerd 1 0-0 3, Shawntice McLaughlin 2 4-8 8, Tiffany Morris 1 0-0 3, Tasha Blackmon 5 2-2 12, Gretchen Baker 1 0-0 2, Erica Henderson 4 0-5 8, Tameka Graves 10 2-6 22, Sha'Ray Washington 1 0-1 2. Totals 25 8-22 60.

Halftime score: Garrett 32, Prince George's 31.

Three-point goals - Prince George's 5 (Johnson 4, Brown 1), Garrett 2 (Larnerd 1, Morris 1). Total fouls - Prince George's 23, Garrett 17. Fouled out - Risha Lynch (PG). Rebounds - Prince George's 44 (Weston 13), Garrett 68 (Graves 16). Assists - Prince George's 9 (Brown 5), Garrett 13 (McLaughlin, Washington 4). Turnovers - Prince George's 18, Garrett 28.

Registration For Bowl For Kids' Sake Under Way

Bowl for Kids' Sake, sponsored by the Garrett County Branch of Big Brothers Big Sisters (BBBS), will be held April 1, April Fool's Day, at Par-Matt Lanes, Oakland, beginning at noon for individual and team bowling. The theme for this year's event is "Don't be a fool, be cool — Bowl for Kids' Sake!"

Being a great bowler is not a requirement for this event, according to BBBS coordinator JoAnn Fletcher. In fact, Big Brothers Big Sisters guarantees everyone a score of 100, she said. Bowlers can participate by signing up sponsors and bowling at the event.

Incentive and door prizes have been donated by local businesses and will be awarded to bowling participants. Bowlers who raise $50, $100, and $150 will automatically receive their choice of prizes, and do not have to compete to win. Door prizes will also be awarded every 15 minutes.

The grand prize for the event, presented to the individual who raises the most money, is a two-night stay at the Country Inn in Berkeley Springs, W.Va. While there, a performance by Tom Netherton, formerly of "The Lawrence Welk Show," and dinner are part of the award. Other category prizes are competed for by individuals in their age group, based on how much money they bring in. In the adult category, the winning bowlers have their choice of an off-peak pass at Wisp Resort, a two-night stay at Herrington Manor State Park in a rustic cabin, a gift certificate from West Virginia Public Theatre, or one month of aerobic lessons from Brenda's Body Shop.

The youth prizes are for students in grades 6-12. They may choose between a portable boombox, four free movie passes and gift certificates from Uno Restaurant and Garrett 8 Cinemas, whitewater rafting trip for two given by Wilderness Voyageurs, or a party of golf, Lazer Tag, and pizza for 10 at the Fun Zone and Smiley's Pizzeria.

Children from pre-school through 5th grade will compete for a free rental per month for a year from Reel Video and a pan pizza per month from Little Caesar's, a McDonaldland party for 10, four passes on the Western Maryland Scenic Railroad, or a Flurry every month between April and October from Oak-Lee Dairyland.

Bowl for Kids' Sake is a bowl-a-thon that raises funds to support Big Brothers Big Sisters services in the community. This is the main fund-raiser that helps to keep the much needed programming available in Garrett County, Fletcher explained.

Big Brothers Big Sisters serves children from primarily single-parent homes between the ages of 6 and 16. The agency provides assistance to these families by matching a child with a special adult (Big Brother or Big Sister). The staff supervises the "matches," and gives guidance and support for the children. "The one-to-one mentoring friendship is thoroughly beneficial to the child, the family, the adult volunteer, and the community at large," Fletcher said. "We have a real need for volunteers who could share their life with a child to help make the difficult transition to adulthood."

Pledge sheets are available through the Big Brothers Big Sisters local office at 105 South Second Street and at Par-Matt Lanes. Persons may call the BBBS office at 334-3591 or 800-400-0735 for further information about the agency or Bowl for Kids' Sake.

a sophomore, racked up 11 strikeouts in six innings of work against Charles County, and when he left the mound GCC held a slim 7-6 lead. Reliever DiAngelo struck out three batters over his three innings on the mound. All told, the pitching duo held Charles' batters to a total of three hits, but hurt their own cause by giving up nine walks that resulted in five runs. The Laker fielders committed three errors that led to additional scores.

Justin Windsor took a complete-game victory for Charles, even though Garrett rocked him for a total of 16 hits. The hosts committed two errors in the field.

Magnotti led GCC's offensive production with a double and three singles for two RBI. Mills hammered out a triple and a double for two RBI, DiAngelo whacked a pair of doubles, and Show added a double of his own.

The Lakers travel Buckhannon, W.Va., on Saturday to take on the junior varsity squad of West Virginia Wesleyan in doubleheader action. GCC's home opener follows Sunday with a noon twinbill against Cuyohoga (Ohio) Community College.

Arsenal Football Seeking Players, Raising Funds

The Arsenal Football (soccer) club is in the process of seeking a few players to fill its spring rosters. Open positions remain on the U-12 Girls, U-14 Boys, and U-16 Boys teams. There will be a limited tryout on Saturday, March 18. Girls born on or after August 1, 1987, may try out for the U-12 girls team at 9 .m. Boys born on or after August 1, 1985, may try out for the U-14 boys team at 10 a.m. Boys born on or after August 1, 1983, may try out for the U-16 team at 10 a.m. Each tryout will last no more than one hour.

Weather permitting, tryouts will be held at the lower field next to Southern High School's practice field. A parent must accompany the player and sign a waiver and medical release before the player may try out. Parents also need to bring along a copy of the child's birth certificate and Social Security number for club records if selected to a team. If the tryout cannot be held outdoors because of weather conditions, WKHJ radio will announce relocation of the tryout site.

Arsenal Football is also currently involved in a fund-raiser to generate funds for the club, with a specific emphasis on creating financial assistance for many of its current as well as future players. "The Arsenal Football board has a strong commitment to do its best to make this soccer program affordable to its players," said director Mel Menker. "This fund-raiser will assist many to participate in this developmental soccer program."

The fund-raiser is in the form of a card which is sold for $10 each, with each card providing a number of discounts at local merchants. The 10 sponsors have offered discounts that can be used every day for one full year. "Our sponsors, to whom we owe our deepest appreciation, are (in alphabetical order): Arby's, Four All Seasons Gift Shoppe, Fox's Pizza, Marvin's Men's Wear, Oakland Super Car Wash, Potomac Video, Smiley's Fun Zone, Smiley's Pizza, Subway, and TCBY. If you would like a card, contact one of the Arsenal players or Patty Petrella, coordinator, at 301-334-1174," Menker concluded.

Erika Durst Is Leader In Track At Gettysburg

When the outdoor track and field season opens at Gettysburg College on March 28, one of the leaders on the Bullets' team will be Erika Durst, a 1996 graduate of Southern High School and daughter of Donna Durst and Mark Durst of Oakland.

Durst is one of only three of the 29 members of the team who has earned three letters in track and field. The versatile, 5-3 senior English major runs the 100 high hurdles and the 400 intermediate hurdles, throws the javelin, and pole vaults for the Bullets. She holds the college's women's pole vault record at 9'1", placed first in the pole vault in the indoor Centennial Conference Championships and second in the outdoor championships in that event. She was seventh in the conference last season in the 100 high hurdles.

Durst, who is a high honors student at Gettysburg, was also a standout athlete in track and field while a student at Southern High School.

The Gettysburg Bullets are coached by Bob Condon, who also coaches the men's track program. In his six years at the college, the women's team has amassed an overall record of 24-6, the men have recorded a 19-9-2 mark, and four of his squads have won or shared Centennial Conference championships.

Extra Tryouts Set By Oakland Little League

Because of an expanded interest, the Oakland Little League is announcing a supplemental tryout and registration for T-ball, minor league, and the 15/16-year-old division of the senior division only.

Those ages 5-8 need only to register, while anyone age 9-12 by 8/1/00 will be required to try out, as will anyone who is interested in the senior division, which has the same Aug. 1 cutoff.

Registration and tryouts will be held at 1 p.m. at Southern Middle School this Sunday, March 12.

TOP SHOOTERS RECOGNIZED — The Casselman Valley Sportsmen's Club, Grantsville, recently held its annual membership shrimp feed and awards ceremony to honor the top shooters of the past year. Pictured above left are the top rifle shooters (from left): Jim Wiltrout, Maurice Wiltrout, and Ralph George. Above center are the top shotgun shooters: Charles Hunter, Marvin Warnick, Richard Broadwater, Morris Warnick, Tony Warnick, and Bob Green. Above right is special award recipient Richard Broadwater, who broke 100 consecutive clay birds, a first-ever achievement at the club, and was presented a special cash award, plaque, and a club jacket. Below left are top muzzleloader shooters: Jim McCullough, Terry Mulligan, Fred Kreiger, and Wayne Butler. Below center are the top men's .22 shooters: Fred Kreiger, Wayne Butler, Alex Gross, and Terry Mulligan. Below right is special award recipient Heather Butler, who received a $100 check from club president Marvin Warnick for recording a perfect score of 00.0 in a match. Bottom left are top women's .22 shooters: Sharon Butler, Earlene McKenzie, and Eleanor Gross. Bottom right are the top youth .22 shooters: Tyler Sweeney, Zachary Hare, Randy Warnick, and Brett Showalter. The club holds bench-rest matches on Saturday and Sunday afternoons during the season, shotgun matches on Sunday afternoons, and turkey shoots, muzzleloader matches, running deer matches, and Calcutta and Lewis shoots at various times. The club, which was started by a small group of local sportsmen in 1951, now has a membership of over 300.

ceived the highest number of votes in Garrett County were Charles A. Johnson with 1,536, John N. Bambacus with 1,524, and James M. Raley with 1,464. The top two female Democratic National Convention candidates in Garrett County were C. Sue Hecht (637) and Wendy Fiedler (598), and the two top male delegate candidates were John T. Riley (778) and Ernie Grecco (575).

The local polling places closed Tuesday at 8 p.m., with all precincts being counted by about 10 p.m.

"We were really hoping that with the nice weather and the interesting Republican race, we might see over 50% of our voters come out. But that just wasn't the case," said Robert Boal, a staff member of the Garrett County elections office. Boal said the lack of local items on the ballot could have been a factor in the low turnout. He also speculated that constantly reported national opinion polls could have a dissuasive effect on the voting public.

"People just feel like it doesn't matter what they think. It's really a shame — it does matter," Boal said. It is hoped among the staff members that the November election will have better participation.

Hunter Safety Course Slated

A hunter safety course will be offered at the New Germany State Park lakehouse on April 18, 20, and 22. The class sessions will take place from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday, and Saturday's concluding session is set for 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. There is a $4 fee for course materials. Persons interested in attending should pre-register by contacting the Savage River Complex office at 301-746-8359 or 301-895-5759.

He also cited additional costs for increased mileage by extending bus runs, higher bus maintenance costs, and higher salaries as contributing to the need for the budget boost.

EXPENSE CATEGORIES

Fink outlined the categories of expenditure covered in this budget and indicated what percentage each represented in the overall picture.

- Instruction, the largest category, was linked with special education, pupil services, and health services to comprise 57 percent of the budget.
- Fixed costs, including such things as medical insurance, social security, and the state retirement plan, were allocated 17 percent of the whole.
- Operation and maintenance and capital outlay combine to claim 10 percent of the budget amount. Covered in this category are maintenance of $68,000,000 in fixed assets, equipment, furniture, and vehicles along with utilities, water, sewerage, and communications.
- Pupil transportation absorbs 9 percent of the budget request.
- Administration and mid-level administration would exact 7 percent of the amount budgeted.

The members of the board of education will review, comment on, and vote on the superintendent's budget at the board's regular monthly meeting next Tuesday, March 14. The board-approved budget will be presented to the county commissioners later this month.

Garrett County Outdoors

By Robert Yonke

Turkey hunters are looking toward a rapidly approaching spring gobbler season. Reports are that birds seem to be plentiful here in Garrett County. Large flocks have been seen in the Savage River Valley, along Route 495 heading north toward Grantsville, and smaller groups have been seen in, of all places, the Turkey Neck Road area.

Experienced turkey hunters know the importance of the proper shotgun and load. The right turkey gun is any full-choked, 12-gauge shotgun that fits you comfortably and centers its pattern exactly where you aim at 30 yards. Extra-tight chokes that increase pattern density are always helpful, but don't use them to make extra-long shots. Turkey hunting is a close-range sport. Long shots cause cripples.

Always use magnum loads with the highest pellet counts of either No. 5 or 6 shot for your first shot. It helps to mount an adjustable sight on your turkey gun so that you can zero the sight at the center of the pattern your shotgun delivers at 30 yards. Don't aim at the gobbler's head; rather, aim at his red wattles, right where the bird's bare neck meets the feathers. If you aim at the head, half of the pattern will fly uselessly high. When you aim at the neck, however, the entire pattern is centered on the target area. Don't shoot when the turkey is gobbling because he may pull his head back at any instant. Don't shoot when the turkey is in strut because his neck is then drawn in and protected by the breast muscles. Wait for the bird to come out of strut and go sleek. His head and neck are then completely exposed.

When it comes time to hunt, the turkeys will probably be where you have seen them before. Now is the time to be locating flocks and roosting areas. Be careful about calling while you are scouting, however. There is good reason to believe that turkeys can get accustomed to hunters calling during preseason and then tend not to answer or respond during the actual season.

LOCAL ARCHERS CONTINUE A VERY COMPETITIVE WINTER SEASON

After six weeks of competition, the D & B Sport Shop indoor archery league has the team of Dick Sherwood, Lonnie Artice, and Allen DeWitt in the lead (3,368 total points). Right on their heels is the team of Jerry Vogel, Dennis Leathermen, and Lonnie Lewis in second, with Terry Lucas, Darrel Welch, and Roger Hinebaugh in third. Noteworthy is the recent performance of young Brian Roderick, who had the high score of the week with a 216 out of a possible 240.

SAFE STORAGE IS AN IMPORTANT PART OF RESPONSIBLE GUN OWNERSHIP

With hunting activity on hold until turkey season, hunters should make sure that their firearms are stored securely. While trigger locks are excellent for simple security, a gun safe offers more in security for the firearms owner. The gun safe can provide a good deal of peace of mind, especially when the home is empty due to vacations or extended business travel. The denial of access to those who would misuse firearms is a critical issue in these times of anti-gun bias from so many sources. Responsible measures to protect firearms from unauthorized use may never be covered in the national media, but keeping legally owned firearms out of the wrong hands is a win for all gun owners. When your firearm is not in use, be sure a trigger-locking devise is in place. When you travel or leave your home unattended for a period of time, serious security considerations should be in place. A gun safe is an excellent option for these times.

DEEP CREEK LAKE DISCOVERY CENTER WORTH A SPRINGTIME VISIT

The Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park has lots of fun and information for outdoors people of all ages. On the three remaining weekends of March, the staff there has planned horse-drawn hayrides (or sleigh rides if weather cooperates). For more information or to make reservations, call 301-387-7607.

The Discovery Center is a one-of-a-kind educational adventure for people of all ages. Through hands-on exhibits that showcase the natural resources of western Maryland, families can learn about local flora, fauna, and wildlife.

The exhibits provide a behind-the-scenes look into Deep Creek Lake and its watershed, industrial development in the area, and conservation issues. History buffs will enjoy learning coal extraction from the former Old Brant Mine, and the role the Youghiogheny River played in area timber logging. The Discovery Center also features an aquarium with native fish and other aquatic species from the lake and river, and a raised relief map that gives visitors a perspective of the mountainous terrain.

Naturalists, rangers, and volunteers lead daily educational programs, from hikes that focus on birdwatching, tree identification, and wildflowers, to more extensive educational programming that touches on such subjects as black bear management, endangered species of the Youghiogheny area, submerged aquatic vegetation, boating safety, and trail stewardship.

Maryland's Deer Season Sets New Harvest Records

Deer hunters established a new record for the number of deer taken during Maryland's deer hunting season, Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Wildlife and Heritage Division director Mike Slattery announced recently. The total harvest of 77,660 deer (76,177 white-tailed deer, 1,483 sika deer) exceeded last year's total harvest by six percent.

"New deer management regulations, established in 1998, are clearly providing hunters with additional recreational opportunities, as well as improving our ability to manage the state's deer population," Slattery said. "These regulations encourage antlerless deer harvest in sections of Maryland with high or rapidly growing deer numbers. During the two years these new regulations have been in effect the average antlerless deer harvest in these sections of Maryland increased by 34 percent over the average total antlerless harvest for the two years prior to the new regulations."

Firearm deer hunters set a new harvest record of 44,097 deer. This total topped last year's firearm take by eight percent. Antlerless deer accounted for 52 percent of the 1999-2000 firearm deer harvest.

The total muzzleloader harvest numbered 17,191 deer, a new state muzzleloader record. The 1999-2000 total muzzleloader tally exceeded last season by six percent. Fifty-six percent of the new record muzzleloader harvest were antlerless deer.

The 1999-2000 statewide bow season total of 16,372 deer, exceeded last year's archery harvest of 16,300. Forty-five percent of deer taken by bow were antlerless.

Statewide, the top 10 counties with the highest total deer harvest were Frederick (7,244), Washington (6,404), Garrett (6,258), Allegany (6,199), Dorchester (4,154), Baltimore (4,003), Carroll (3,921), Montgomery (3,609), Kent (3,557), and Worcester (3,416). Garrett County's harvest was divided between the firearm season tally of 3,236 deer (2,358 antlered and 878 antlerless), and the bow season tally of 1,672 deer (1,002 antlered and 670 antlerless).

DNR will hold several public meetings around the state regarding proposed hunting and trapping regulations for the 2000-2001 and 2001-2002 hunting seasons during March. The department encourages the public to attend these meetings and to comment on proposed hunting and trapping regulations. The local public informational meeting will begin at 7 p.m. on Thursday, March 30, at Cash Valley Elementary School in LaVale.

For persons unable to attend, written comments may be sent to Mike Slattery, Director, DNR Wildlife and Heritage Division, Tawes State Office Building E-1, Annapolis, MD 21401. Slattery's office may also be contacted via telephone at 410-260-8540, fax at 410-260-8595, or e-mail at lwiley@dnr.state.md.us. The proposals are currently available for review and comment on the Internet at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife. Public comment on the proposed regulations will be accepted until 4 p.m., Monday, April 3.

Marylanders Go To Washington To Plead For Prescription Drug Coverage

by Sandy Alexander
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Mary Muir is 91 years old, but with the help of medications for high blood pressure, arthritis, and asthma, she still cooks her meals, does her laundry, goes shopping, and cleans her Frostburg home.

But the same medications that bring Muir independence also cost her more than 40 percent of her $700 monthly income. Her daughter, Stella Roth, said Muir manages to pay her bills and buy her medication, but only because her family helps her.

"In a time when so much of my mother's care is dependent upon prescription drugs, there doesn't seem to be any feasible option for purchasing coverage," Roth told lawmakers last Wednesday.

Roth, of Rosedale, told her mother's story last week to the Democratic Policy Committee in the Senate, part of a panel of speakers invited to explain the importance of adding prescription coverage to Medicare.

Muir is one of 559,000 Maryland seniors and 69,000 people with disabilities in the state who receive Medicare, according to a report released Tuesday by the National Economic Council. But Medicare does not cover prescription drugs, and the report said only 22 percent of Maryland firms offer health insurance to retirees.

Enrollees can pay for supplemental Medigap insurance, but advocates say not all Medigap plans cover prescriptions, and the ones that do are expensive. In Maryland, Medicare members can also enroll in basic managed care plans that cover prescriptions, but the plans often cap annual prescription coverage at anywhere from $300 to $1,000.

In addition, most rural areas of the state do not have access to Medicare managed care plans, said Lee Hammond, president of the Maryland chapter of AARP, which advocates for midlife and senior citizens.

Several proposals are currently under discussion in Washington, including President Clinton's $432 billion plan to modernize Medicare and subsidize a voluntary prescription program for seniors. Sens. John Breaux, D-La., and Bill Frist, R-Tenn., have a plan to restructure Medicare and pay for enrollment in competing drug plans. There are also proposals pending in the House.

When Medicare was created in 1965, prescription drugs were not usually part of health plans, but they have since become an important part of treatment for almost every major illness, said Rebecca Elon, medical director for North Arundel Senior Care in Annapolis, in written testimony for the committee.

In her geriatrics practice, Elon said she sees nursing home patients who take an average of seven medications a day.

While pharmaceutical use is increasing, so is the cost of prescription drugs. Elon said in her statement that one of her patients paid $1,400 for prescriptions in one month. Another went without $150 of pneumonia medication because she could not afford it in addition to her rent and her regular regimen of medications on her pension of $800 a month.

"Seniors in Maryland are having to decide between prescriptions and food," said Hammond.

The ones in the worst situations do not have medication coverage under Medicare and spend their savings on prescriptions, until they finally qualify for Medicaid, Hammond said.

The problem is not likely to go away: By 2025, there will be 1 million seniors in Maryland alone, according to the National Economic Council study, almost double the current number.

After seeing her mother struggle with prescription bills, Roth is concerned about what her own future holds.

"I believe Medicare is a great program, but it falls seriously short of meeting the prescription drug needs of seniors," Roth said.

Letters

ren. I am a very devoted mom who is saddened by the fact these changes that may occur are issues that can be finalized by the approval of the staff (principal, teachers) of our school.

I have always respected, supported, and been very proud of our small town school and the "family" atmosphere that we are very fortunate to have. I have always been very supportive and involved with my children and their school activities by being a PTA member, homeroom mother, or by volunteering my time to help out in whatever way is needed. I have always believed children do better in school when we as parents show an interest in school as well. I am also a working parent, which means my day off is spent at the school, but I have always felt this to be one of my priorities as a mom.

The issues right now involve making transportation changes, which in turn will change the time — to start earlier — than their present time schedules. I know that some of you reading this letter are thinking "well, we start our day early now too" but, let's use Crellin School for an example in explaining my concerns as a parent. First of all, the geographical area needs to be considered. We live in a remote area where the weather, as well as travel time, are big factors to consider. We are not as fortunate as Crellin to have the school at our "back door." We have children coming from such remote areas as Chestnut Grove, Walnut Bottom, Mt. Zion, Vindex, etc., that I may also add have deadend roads. The Crellin bus route is basically in a "circular" area around the school itself. This poses a real safety issue in this area!

Secondly, I am concerned for the health of our children in relation to starting their days so early. Think about it — would you like to be a 5- or 6-year-old starting your day — Monday through Friday — as early as 6 a.m.? That is totally ridiculous!! I don't think any school should start its children that early. I would like documentation that shows this is healthy for our children and their academic achievements.

I know that in some situations change is sometimes for the better, and you may feel that we cannot accept a change, but may I remind you — I am a parent, a working parent who deals with changes almost on a daily basis. I cannot accept this proposed change when it puts our children's safety, health, and education potential at risk. This brings me back to a fact that really upsets me as a parent — the final decision is going to be based on the principal and staff regarding the future lives of our children! They have already voted and decided to "explore" this decision. They are basically experimenting with our children and their lives to save a few thousand dollars, when you are talking about a budget of several million and the safety and well-being of our children.

I ask myself one question: What happened to those "devoted" teachers, etc., whom I have always respected? We as parents have no vote in this decision and we as parents basically have no control of our children as to when they start school. Let me remind you of something: We are the ones who made the final decision to bring these children into the world to begin with. We are the ones who have provided these children with a home, clothing, food, and lots and lots of love since the day they were born. And now, we have no final vote in the decision that is to be made that affects every aspect of their lives. What is this world coming to?

I say a prayer to God every day before my sons leave for school that they will be protected, and I also put my trust in the school system to use judgment that best benefits my children and their well-being, but I am losing all my respect and just have one final thing to ask: Can you honestly agree that your final decision to be made is truly in the best interest of our children, or is it in the best interest of you?

A concerned mother,
Leeanna Marks

Music Ministry Program Set By Mt. Top Assembly

Evangelists Rich and Tami Stevens of Warren, Ohio, will present a program of music ministry at the Mt. Top Christian Assembly of God church at 6 p.m. on Sunday, March 12. As singers, pianists, and songwriters, the Stevenses encompass a variety of musical styles in their ministry. They have completed a number of recordings, which are available after their programs, and make use of both soundtrack and live keyboard accompaniment during their services.

The Stevenses are both graduates of Central Bible College in Springfield, Mo., where Tami Stevens was the soloist with the Revivaltime Choir for two years. The couple have been involved in full-time music ministry since 1985, and have traveled in 31 states, Ontario and Quebec, Canada, and the West Indies and England.

The Mt. Top Christian Assembly of God is located along Maryland Highway next to Sisler Lumber. For further information on the Stevens program, interested persons may call pastor Dave Johnson at 301-334-8422.

STEVENS TO SHARE MUSIC MINISTRY — Rich and Tami Stevens, shown above with their daughter Erin, will present a music ministry program this Sunday, March 12, at 6 p.m. at the Mt. Top Christian Assembly of God church. The Warren, Ohio, family has toured the nation and has traveled to several foreign nations to perform their original compositions. For more information on the program persons may call Pastor Dave Johnson of the Mt. Top Christian Assembly at 301-334-8422.

GCC Professor Receives Who's Who Recognition

Beth Luers, professor of social sciences at Garrett Community College, has been nominated to Who's Who Among American Teachers for the third time. To receive this honor, a teacher must be selected by a student who has also been nominated to Who's Who as a person who has made a difference in his or her life. Only 5% of teachers are ever nominated to Who's Who and only 2% are second-time nominees. To be nominated three times is a very rare distinction.

"I was speechless," Luers said of receiving the honor. I have been blessed by having wonderful students." In her years at GCC Luers has taught developmental courses, history, cultural geography, English, and French. She holds a bachelor of arts degree in French and a master of arts degree in modern humanities from Frostburg State University. In 1989 she received the Excellence in Teaching Award from the state of Maryland.

Luers is a member of the Organization of American Historians, People for Ethical Treatment of Animals, and Greenpeace. She currently lives with two dogs, both adopted mixed breeds. She and her husband Bob, a history teacher, have a son and a daughter who are both graduates of the U.S. Naval Academy. Lt. Scott Luers, USN, is currently stationed at the Pentagon, following a tour of sea duty aboard submarines. Lt. (jg) Ann Casey, USN, works in cryptology at Northwest Radio Station, Chesapeake, Va.

OTTERBEIN U.M. CHURCH

The ladies' Sunday school class took Ildra Frantz to Denny's restaurant in Oakland on March 2 for a birthday breakfast. The following were present: Linda Fleming, Louise Beckman, Shirley Lipscomb, Mary June Harvey, Carol Sweitzer, Luella Baker, Mareva Teets, Maxine Ball, Freda and Barbara Rexroad, Sara Friend, Barbie Sweitzer, Connie Coleman, Becky Hardesty, Pauline Sweitzer, Phyliss Friend, Doris Howell, Sandy Friend, Alverta Sweitzer, and Brenda Friend.

At the worship service last Sunday morning, Rev. Meredith Ball honored Ildra Frantz with a gift from the church and Sunday school. Th oldest member, Ildra joined the church in 1928. The president of the local United Methodist group then presented her with a pin and a certificate. The group had given a gift to missions in her honor.

Rev. Meredith Ball, Barbara Rexroad, Mary June Harvey, and Alverta Sweitzer attended the South Garrett Parish meeting Monday at St. Paul's United Methodist in Oakland. The Brotherhood will meet Tuesday, March 14, 7:30 p.m., at Hoyes United Methodist Church.

The United Methodist Women will hold a "Call to Prayer and Self-Denial" service at Otterbein on Tuesday, March 14, at 10 a.m. Louise Beckman will be the leader. A covered-dish luncheon will follow.

COMMUNITY CENTER

The center is planning a trip to Lancaster, Pa., on Friday June 2, where they will attend two shows, Noah and Abraham and Sara, at the Sight and Sound theater. To make a reservation or for more details, persons may call Dorothy Bernard at 301-387-5723.

There will be bingo at the Senior Hot Meal Site on Tuesday, March 14, at 10:30 a.m.

PERSONALS

Phyliss, Sandy, and Brenda Friend, Dotty Beckman, and Luella Baker met Feb. 23 at the home of Mary Lou and Joni Wilson to plan a birthday celebration for Ildra Frantz, whose 85th birthday was March 2.

Ildra's nieces and nephews hosted a surprise birthday dinner for family and friends at the Community Center on Sunday. More than 70 persons attended. Tom Wilson played "Happy Birthday" and other music on his violin.

Pauline Sweitzer is recuperating at home following eye surgery in Garrett Memorial Hospital last Friday.

Saturday visitors of Orval and Mareva Teets were Luella Baker, Mary June Harvey, Linda and John Fleming, and Rev. and Mrs. Ball.

Carolyn and John Livengood returned to their home Sunday after vacationing in Florida.

Helen and Bob Winters returned home on Monday. They had spent some time with Carolyn and Sam Snyder in Houston, Texas.

Harold and Peggy Friend of Warren, Ohio, were weekend guests of Dotty, Melvin, and Andrew Beckman.

Curt and Judi Miller, North Glade, are going to be grandparents for the third time.

Registration Under Way For PreKindergarten

Applications are now being accepted by the Garrett County Board of Education for the Extended Elementary Education Program (EEEP) or PreKindergarten (PreK). To be eligible to enter this program, a child must be age 4 on or before December 31, 2000, and meet the guidelines for selection by following the two-step application process.

Interested parents may pick up the first set of forms at any Garrett County elementary school or at the board of education office in Oakland. This packet — the Notification of Interest forms — includes an explanation of the enrollment and selection process and an information sheet to be filled out and forwarded to the board of education office or dropped at the nearest elementary school.

A second set of documents, sent to the parents after the first set has been received by the board, will include the board's guidelines for eligibility and selection and a questionnaire, which will provide the information needed to determine eligibility.

Any questions about this enrollment process may be directed to Liz Lewis at 301-334-8939.

Many Seniors Unprepared For Living Longer Lives, Study Says

by Sandy Alexander
Capital News Service

WASHINGTON — Verna Day-Jones is a 75-year-old newlywed, great-grandmother, amateur actress, and community activist, and she is concerned about her future.

The Baltimore woman expects she and her new husband, whom she married after being widowed for 25 years, will care for each other as they get older. Her four children "have their own challenges in life, so I know I don't want to depend on their financial support if I were to require long-term care," she said. She keeps on top of aging issues as a member of Baltimore's Commission on Aging and Retirement.

But a new survey says that, unlike Day-Jones, most elderly Americans do not have the information they need to prepare for the practical and financial issues associated with long-term care.

The report, released Monday by the U.S. Administration on Aging, the National Association of Area Agencies on Aging, and the National Association of State Units on Aging, was based on responses by 10 focus groups around the country targeting older and baby boomer women from five racial and ethnic groups. It found that there is a "pressing need for information ... that will permit seniors, baby boomers, and caregivers of all ages to engage in rational planning and informed decision making."

Many people in Maryland are "sort of in aging denial, yet it is a very important area," said Pamela Causey, a spokeswoman for the Maryland Department of Aging. She said around 800,000 Maryland citizens are 60 and older, and that number is expected to jump dramatically in the next couple of decades.

But Causey said issues surrounding aging and caregiving are receiving more attention in Maryland as residents live longer and healthier lives. Local agencies are focusing on outreach to senior citizens and their adult children, which Causey called an exciting trend in the counties.

Some people are "afraid to face up to the fact that, 'Yes, I may need long-term care,'" said Carolyn Mohler, client services manger for the Calvert County Office on Aging. "Often, when decisions have to be made, it is at a time of crisis."

Deciding on the best living arrangements is an important issue for many seniors. While members of the study said they would prefer to stay at home as long as possible, most were not aware of services that would help them, such as meals-on-wheels and adult day care. Participants also said they would rather live in a retirement community or assisted living facility rather than a nursing home.

Those who could afford alternatives did not want to be a burden to their children, but many participants worried that they had insufficient financial resources.

Many people are under the misconception that Medicare will cover all of their needs, said Mohler.

While Medicare does cover skilled care, such as physical therapy or speech therapy, it does not provide all-day supervision, personal care, or help with meals for people who have a long-term, chronic condition, Mohler said. State and county agencies on aging are trying to make seniors aware of alternative sources of help.

Mohler said her office also helps people with a wide range of other issues including wills, guardianship issues, powers of attorney, living wills, and long-term care insurance.

The Baltimore County Department of Aging has published two books on planning for the future, and Deputy Director Arnold Eppel said he believes many seniors are aware of the questions they face. But he is not convinced that baby boomers understand the challenges of long-term care, even though they are making decisions for their parents and could be buying extra insurance for themselves.

The focus groups found that people often face financial burdens as well as stress, frustration, and physical and mental strain when they become caregivers for senior family members.

Causey said caregivers' needs are a "huge issue" and are receiving more and more attention in Maryland. Mohler pointed out that finding ways to address caregiving is especially important now that more adult family members are working outside the home.

Day-Jones remembers how difficult it was to take care of her own mother. "Just as my own mother required in-home services and eventually residential care, so will many of us as time goes on," she said.

She is an advocate for projects that help seniors. She has a federal retirement package, life insurance, private insurance, and Medicare, but she said even she could do more to ensure her future.

Participating in the focus group with nine other older African-American women from the Baltimore area "really opened my eyes," she said.

Small Business Center At GCC Slates Courses

The Small Business Development Center (SBDC) at Garrett Community College has slated two courses this spring for small business-owners and/or their employees. The courses will meet on the college's McHenry campus.

Computerized Records Management, a Quickbooks overview course, is set for consecutive Tuesdays and Thursdays, March 21, 23, 28, and 30, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the college. The eight-hour class will focus on the numerous features of the Quickbooks program, which assists small-business owners who keep their own records. Topics to be covered include charting accounts, using forms and registers, and setting up the company and payroll accounts. The course instructor will be Sandy Major, SBDC small business counselor.

A second course, Building Quality Customer Service, will meet on two consecutive Fridays, March 24 and 31, from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. This six-hour class will provide employees, managers, or owners of small businesses with a number of strategies in dealing with customers to enhance relationships.

Topics to be covered include building and keeping customer goodwill; making all customer contacts positive; using actions that build trust; improving communication and phone skills; and dealing calmly with difficult people.

The cost for each of these courses is $60 tuition and fees. For registration information persons may contact GCC's Small Business Development Center at 301-387-3080.

THE YOUTH BOWLING BASH, sponsored by the Garrett Youth Council, took place recently at Par-Matt Lanes in Oakland. Approximately 70 youth from throughout the county participated in the bash, which included a "moonlight" bowling session that featured black lights, strobe lights, and fluorescent bowling pins. Shown above are, from the left, Michael Gibbons, Sara and Sam Cavalier, and Katie Burke. The Cavalier siblings are active members of the Youth Council who contributed to the planning of the party and assisted with advertising the event at their school. "The event was very successful," said Sue Newton, Garrett County Health Department. "I was extremely pleased with the turnout. It's obvious that the youth of Garrett County would benefit from more youth activities." The Youth Council's next meeting, during which plans will be made for another youth activity for the near future, is set for this Sunday, March 12, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. at the Health Department office located at 14389 Garrett Highway.

Garrett Youth Council Slates Sunday Meeting

The Garrett Youth Council will meet this Sunday, March 12, from 3 to 4:30 p.m. at the Garrett County Health Department office located at 14689 Garrett Highway, just north of Underwood Rentals. All interested youth are encouraged to attend this meeting, during which plans will be made for another youth activity for the near future.

Among the other topics slated for discussion at the meeting are the upcoming "Bowl for Kids Sake 2000" event, VIP cards that would entitle bearers to discounts at local businesses, the formulation of a student interest survey that would be distributed at schools to determine the activity preferences of local youth, and the setting of Youth Council goals for the year.

For more information on the meeting and on the activities of the Garrett Youth Council, interested persons may contact Sue Newton of the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-8122.

Senior Computer Classes Slated By Garrett CC

Several basic computer training classes for senior citizens age 60 and over will be offered by Garrett Community College beginning this month. The classes will take place either at the Oakland National Guard Armory or on the McHenry campus of the college.

Basic Computer Skills for Seniors Level I will introduce participants to the basic operations of a computer as well as give a basic understanding of desktop publishing and Microsoft Windows 95.

Three offerings of the Level I course are available to choose from: Tuesdays, March 21 - April 11, from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Oakland Armory; Fridays, March 24 - April 14, from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Oakland Armory; or Fridays, March 10 - March 24, from 10 a.m. to noon at the McHenry campus. Fees are $15 for Garrett County seniors, and a tuition charge of $5 applies to non-seniors.

Basic Computer Skills for Seniors Level II will meet the needs of senior citizens who wish to obtain additional skills and knowledge of basic computer operations, including accessing the Internet, web pages, and e-mail.

Three offerings for the Level II course are available to choose from as well: Tuesdays, April 18 - May 9, from 2:30 to 5:45 p.m. at the Oakland Armory; Fridays, April 28 - May 19, from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. at the Oakland Armory; and Fridays, March 31 - April 28, from 10 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. at the McHenry campus. Fees for this course are $25 for Garrett County seniors, and a tuition charge of $5 applies to non-seniors.

Persons who wish to enroll must pre-register for these classes, and registration will be taken on a first-come first-served basis. Interested persons may call 301-334-8304 or 301-387-3069 for further information.

50 percent share of the new health department complex. A portion of future operating surpluses are also to be used to pay down existing debt, the report states.

Moody's document notes that while the county's populace has wealth levels "well below Maryland averages," the taxable base has topped $2 billion this year after four years of 4 percent annual growth. While the coal and timber industries remain important in the county, the report states that most of the growth is the result of second home building around Deep Creek Lake.

The report also notes that although the leadership has been unable to replace the entire 600 jobs lost with the 1997 closing of Bausch & Lomb, approximately 350 new jobs have been created through the establishment of new businesses and the expansion of local companies.

THE NEXT BEST THING

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:46 - Released 3/3/00

Madonna has made wise use of her considerable talent over the years. She wasted no time in becoming an '80s pop star and video icon, but didn't stop there. With a shrewd eye and some careful career choices, she has propelled herself to success in films, all the way to a Golden Globe award in 1997 for Evita. And the fact that she had a kid didn't hurt her any. But if the reigning queen of pop thinks that John Schlesinger's The Next Best Thing is going to garner her the crown of cinema, she may be mistaken. The film is riddled with problems that chip away at its overall success, and though she does adequately with her role, it is her co-star, Rupert Everett, who deserves most of the praise. In terms of acting, the man runs circles around her.

Regardless of any comparison between the two leads, it's hard to get around the fact that the script, by Tom Ropelewski, is weak at best. First, it is almost the identical same story as the 1998 Jennifer Aniston/Paul Rudd vehicle The Object Of My Affection. And while this film has arguably more star power, its title is unfortunately appropriate: Object did it better on most counts. Ropelewski's plot is feasible enough, but his dialogue has people saying things no human being would ever say in such situations, and there are many instances of deliberate emotional pandering. A story that moves one to tears can be a wonderful thing, but it's off-putting when that effect is being sought for its own sake.

Abbie (Madonna) is a San Francisco yoga instructor; her best friend Robert (Everett) is a live-in gardener for two aging gay gentlemen. After his partner's death a few years ago, Robert has not had much of a love life, and now that her boyfriend (Michael Vartan) is breaking up with her, Abbie has no one, either. The two of them get together and, with the help of some potent wine, have one sexual encounter. Just when they are trying to decide how this event will affect their long-time platonic friendship, she discovers she's pregnant. She is unsure of what Robert's reaction will be, but is delighted when he chooses to fully assume the role of father to the baby, even though the two know they will never marry.

Cut to 6 years later. Abbie and Robert have made a comfortable life together and their son Sam (Malcolm Stumpf) seems like a fun, intelligent, and well-adjusted kid. The trouble happens when Abbie meets Ben (Benjamin Bratt, Law and Order), a handsome, friendly investment banker with whom she establishes an instant rapport. Robert, who has given up his most recent lover because Sam was more important to him, is not particularly impressed by this genial interloper, but Ben's growing relationship with Abbie (and with Sam) culminates in their decision to marry. Robert's reaction results in a rash act by Abbie, which in turn leads to litigation. And it seemed like such a good idea way back when.

Rupert Everett saves this movie. Madonna and Stumpf are adequate, but unable to compensate for the script defects the way Everett seems to. (Incidentally, rumor has it that Everett did major rewrites to Ropelewski's text, causing some behind-the-scenes tension.) At first he seems bound to play Robert as a mincing queen, but when the situation gets tough, he drops the hilarity and shows us a man whose world is crumbling before his eyes. Bratt, on the other hand, is barely able to convince us of anything but his good looks. Ben is supposed to be so charming as to sweep Abbie off her feet, to draw her away from her lifelong friend and trusted partner, but Bratt does not possess the personality to pull it off. Sure, he's buff, but it's crucial that Abbie not look shallow in choosing him — and Bratt's performance gives her no other choice.

This film has many things going for it, not the least of which is the beautiful cinema by Elliot Davis (Forces Of Nature) and heartfelt, if spotty, performances by supporting cast members, including Neil Patrick Harris, Lynn Redgrave, and Illeana Douglas. Also there is Madonna's enjoyable rendition of Don McLean's "American Pie," a song that is featured throughout the film. But with textual flaws and stilted performances by some key performers, and an apparent inability on the part of director Schlesinger to deal with these problems, it's not exactly the best thing to hit the theatres lately. ★★★½

MY DOG SKIP

Rated PG - Running Time: 1:35 - Released 3/3/00

It is an unfortunate reality that most films aimed at children, excepting the annual big-budget animated blockbusters, are sadly lacking from an adult's standpoint. But Jay Russell's My Dog Skip, apparently based on the autobiography of the late Willie Morris and adapted for the screen by Gail Gilchriest, is a delightful exception to that rule. It is a heartwarming film about a young boy and his dog growing up in Mississippi during World War II, with not only a good story but excellent performances and high-quality production values. Its star is Frankie Muniz (Malcolm in the Middle), whose performance is elegant for a 14-year-old, but his is only one of several good turns by the supporting cast, which includes Kevin Bacon, Luke Perry, and Diane Lane.

Willie (Muniz) is a shy kid who has trouble fitting in at school, and when the war overseas breaks out, he stands to lose the company of his adult friend "Dink" Jenkins (Wilson), at least for a few years. Seeing that he needs a new companion, Willie's mother (Lane) gives him a puppy for his birthday. Although his dad (Bacon) objects at first, Willie is allowed to keep the pup, whom he names Skipper, or "Skip" for short. The dog helps Willie overcome several obstacles in his social life, including acceptance into an exclusive circle of friends and meeting the prettiest girl in school. The summer of '42 sees Willie coming out of his shell, thanks to the dog, and when Skip gets lost, his popularity compels the whole town to join in the search.

This film's plot is really quite pedestrian, which is not surprising, since it's supposed to be the true childhood story of author Morris. What makes it especially rich are the many layers of character, relationship, and subtext in Gilchriest's script and the ability on the part of director Russell and his cast to convey those layers. Embedded in the scenes, which seem to be simple in nature, are such subjects as the fine line between heroism and cowardice, the horror of war, the hurdles one must overcome for the sake of acceptance, and the pain of regret after one betrays a true friend. These are adult issues we have all faced, presented from a childlike point of view. The sensitive narration by Harry Connick Jr. as the voice of adult Willie adds a great deal to the overall effect. Also, I was particularly impressed with the authenticity of the period surroundings. Director Russell obviously took pains to ensure every detail fit the 1942 setting; this is something most directors of children's films find unimportant.

Anyone who has ever loved a pet will identify with this story, and even if that is not the case, one can't deny the power of Muniz's performance. It's a simple story, and it doesn't completely avoid the stereotypes often seen in this genre, but My Dog Skip is still better quality entertainment than what usually passes for kids' fare these days. ★★★★

WHAT PLANET ARE YOU FROM?

Rated R - Running Time: 1:47 - Released 3/3/00

Mike Nichols has an impressive resumé, having directed such films as Who's Afraid Of Virginia Woolf, The Graduate, and, more recently, The Birdcage and Primary Colors. But What Planet Are You From? is not exactly a shining example of his talent. Its uneven style is distracting, and its star (Garry Shandling) is not an actor but a comedian in actor's clothing. Shandling is best at making us laugh at his geekiness, but in a role that requires romantic leading man qualities, he falls short. The story was written by Shandling and Michael Leeson, with screenplay help from Ed Solomon and Peter Tolan, so there's another reason for such a mixture of styles. Too many cooks, you know.

Shandling plays H1449-6, an alien from an all-male planet whose population has relied on cloning for so long that they have no penises. But their desire to take over the galaxy (starting with Earth) requires that they build a population on the targeted planet. This means impregnating an Earth woman, and H1449 is chosen to do the job. He is fitted with artificial genitalia, given the name Harold Anderson, and sent to Phoenix, where he gets a job as a banker and promptly starts hitting on women. But since the leader of his planet (Ben Kingsley) is ignorant of how to relate to a woman, his training consists mainly of complimenting her shoes and saying "uh-huh" in between her sentences. Luckily, he meets Perry (Greg Kinnear), a co-worker who helps him with such subtle tactics as attending A.A. meetings for the sole purpose of picking up recovering female alcoholics.

Finally Harold meets a woman who's willing (Annette Bening), but Susan insists on getting married before sex. Soon the happy couple are in Vegas tying the knot and getting busy. A few weeks later, Susan is expecting, and after a lightning-fast pregnancy, she gives birth to a bouncing baby boy. But Harold's growing sense of Earthly emotion results in a breach of his contract and gets him in a heap of trouble back home. A side story, which has almost no bearing on the main plot, is the obsessive quest of an airline detective (John Goodman) who is onto Harold and his alien plan.

Like The Whole Nine Yards, this film's tone is in conflict. Its first half plays like a silly farce (although much of it is like a documentary on date rape), but at some point it uncomfortably mutates into romantic comedy. Some elements, like the buzzing of Harold's fake penis or the opening tutorial on Earth women, rely on the preposterous to get a laugh, but the domestic squabbling between Harold and Susan is almost too real. The fact that they barely know each other is unpleasant rather than funny; it's like watching the honeymoon recently enjoyed by the couple on Who Wants To Marry A Millionaire? What's more, the script is dreadfully sexist. All the film's women are regarded, by the script and the male characters, as sexual conquests, and extramarital affairs are not only accepted but encouraged. And the female characters only further this notion: all of them are either hot to trot (Harold is able to actually "score" with several women despite his pushy dating style and his whirring member) or nagging bitches who jump to conclusions with minimal provocation.

There are a few notable performances. Kinnear's portrayal of Perry is by far the funniest in the movie; his slimy charm and unbridled opportunism remind me of a Dabney Coleman character from the '70s. Bening's characterization of Susan is heartfelt; even if she is mismatched with the script, she gives reality to her scenes. And Goodman is adequate in his dippy part. But Shandling's Harold is not someone you can get behind, and his script is written with about as much knowledge of human interaction as . . . hey, wait a minute. Maybe he is an alien. ★★½

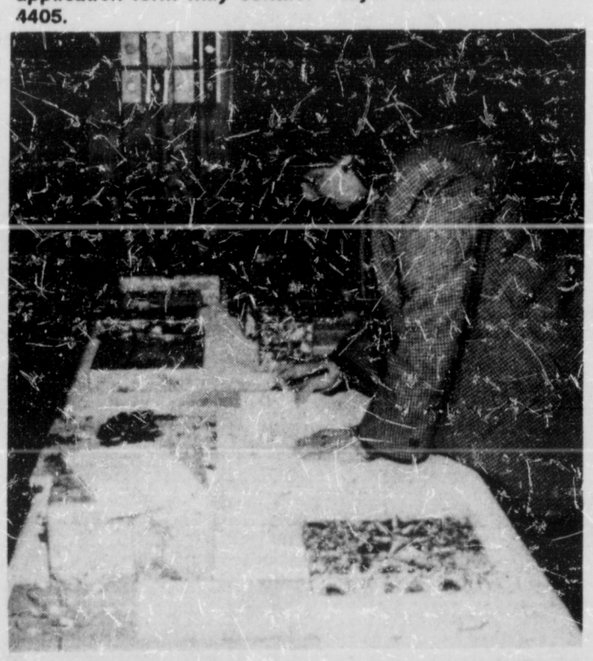
BPW SILENT AUCTION A SUCCESS — The Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club held a silent auction at its February meeting to raise funds for the BPW Foundation of Maryland. The Foundation has established a scholarship to enable deserving women to acquire the education necessary for careers in business and the professions. Among the items that went on the block for the benefit was a medium pomfret bowl donated by Simon Pearce, the Mtn. Lake Park fine glass product manufacturer. Simon Pearce senior sales associate Erin Ball is pictured above, at left, presenting the donated item to BPW's Joanne Harsh. Shown below, Lisa Thayer Welch, Garrett County state's attorney, enters a bid on a package. The local BPW club raised $121 for the Foundation's scholarship effort, and women interested in further information and an application form may contact Thayer Welch at 301-387-4405.



The Homemakers Corner
by Joan Schultz
Public Relations Chairperson

New County Council president Loretta Wotring officiated at the first ECE/Homemakers board meeting of the year. Many important topics were discussed, and the meeting proved to be very productive. The current project on the agenda is the "Tune Out Violence on TV" campaign.

Board members will meet at the courthouse on Tuesday, March 14, at which time the board of county commissioners will sign a proclamation marking Wednesday, April 5, as "Tune Out Violence on TV day." Members will attempt to get as many signatures as possible to support this effort. We request that parents leave their televisions off that day and spend quality time with their children.

The Meadow Glade club has set a bus trip to Lancaster, Pa., for Friday, June 2. The cost is $109, which includes dinner and two shows at the Millennium Theatre. The bus will leave the Oakland town parking lot at 6 a.m., stop for lunch at Good and Plenty restaurant (not included in the cost of trip), and arrive at the theatre at 1 p.m. in time for a behind-the-scenes tour.

Participants will then have free time to go to the mall or undertake another activity of their choice beginning at 2 p.m. A performance of the "Noah" show is slated for 4:15, to be followed by dinner then the "Abraham and Sarah" show. The bus will return to Oakland between midnight and 1 a.m. Interested persons should contact Wotring at 301-334-3837 or Hazel Teagarden at 301-334-9685.

Accident Elementary "Children Help Children" While Building Character

by Peggy Santamaria

During the monthly assembly at Accident Elementary on Friday, in addition to recognizing those selected as Citizens of the Month, the students presented a check to the Dove Center, Garrett County's resource for domestic violence. The children raised the money — $190 — as a project related to their character-building program.

"It was part of the 'Children Helping Children' project. The students chose the Dove Center, and for their project they raised money to buy a child-size table and chairs for the center," counselor Katie Fresh said.

The children earned the money by acquiring points for good behavior in the cafeteria for a month. The school then matched each point with a $1 contribution, Nesline explained.

At this month's assembly, students were honored for exemplifying responsibility, respect, and caring. Linda Spassil, executive director of the Dove Center, attended the assembly and thanked the children for their generosity. A check was presented by Ashley Clary.

The students are involved in a number of ongoing character development activities. For instance, they just completed a special month of caring. The "February Is For Caring" calendar suggested ways to show consideration and kindness each day. Included on the calendar were suggestions such as: "Tell a friend what you like about him or her"; and "Tell someone in your family how much you love him or her."

To help remind all students and teachers to be thoughtful of others and to practice character enriching behaviors, brightly colored flags hang above doorways of all classrooms. These pennant-shaped banners, in groups of three by each door, are marked with such words as respect, caring, and responsibility. "The teachers may hang these flags in any order. They also change them monthly so that each classroom displays the character trait of the month," principal Sandy Nesline explained.

Teacher Maggie Hochman noted that the idea for the flags had come from a seminar that staff members had attended. "We picked up some other good ideas, too, that we were able to change a bit and use here," she said.

Everyone in the school has been involved in this character development program. Nesline pointed out that specially designed flag holders were needed so the banners could be hung high enough to be out of the way without hitting the ceiling. "Tom Stemple, our custodian, came up with the idea and made all of these for us," she noted, gesturing to the dozens of small pennants lining the hallway.

In addition to the colorful flag reminders, the school character pledge is posted on the bulletin board in the main hall of the school. Each day, everyone in the school community encounters these words: "I promise to be patient and kind, to do my best to be a good citizen, with respect for myself, my parents, my school, and others."
